PEACOCK FEATHERS

By Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry, young son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, looks back upon his first romantic episode. As a boy of 12, he had eaten beside a young Italian girl. A few years later, Jerry goes to Washington for a brief visit, with his wealthy uncle from Colorado. In a restaurant the boy sees Mimi Le Brun, a senator's granddaughter of about 13 and she makes a deep impression on his young mind.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

"French blood, like a lot of St. Louisans. Some Irish, too, I imagine, with that hair."

He forgot her then, as someone stopped at our table to speak to him. When at last he turned to me, he said:

"Don't you want some more steak?"

"No."

"You haven't eaten much."

"I'm not hungry."

My appetite had, indeed, left me. It seemed to me that I wanted nothing else than to feed body and soul on the beauty of that child at the table. It was, to use an old-fashioned phrase, love at first sight—the capture of a boy's romantic fancy. Yet I knew nothing about her except that she was Mimi Le Brun, that she lived in St. Louis, and that her grandfather had a seat in the senate.

CHAPTER 5.

When I got back to the hotel after seeing Mimi Le Brun, I looked into every mirror I passed. I got glimpses of a tall lanky youth, with a rather clumsy use of his feet, a coat that was too short in the sleeves, a rough crop of brown curls, and a somewhat windburned and freckled countenance.

Before this I had not thought of looks. At schools the girls I knew had seemed to thing me handsome enough. I was like the rest of the boys, wearing the clothes which had been bought in our little town. But now I thought a great deal about my self, and when I went down to dinner I observed with interest the young men who sat in the lobby and at the tables in the dining room. My father had given me some money to spend, and while we ate our dessert, I asked my uncle:

He was in a good humor. "You keep your money and I'll fix you up with a good winter outfit. I have just put through a deal that ought to land me on Easy Street."

I protested that I could pay for my own things, but uncle was insistent. He took me on the following day to a place on the avenue and bought with a lavish hand. We were leaving town and he had the clothes sent at once to the hotel. I put them on and went to the capitol. I hoped that I might catch a glimpse of Mimi Le Brun, and that she might look at me and find something in me to remember, as I had found so much to remember in her. But though I patrolled the halls and the galleries for hours, I could not find her. And when I got back to the hotel and saw myself again in the mirror in my new clothes, I knew that if I had met her there would have been nothing to remember. I was not her kind or class. I knew, too, that the best thing I could do would be to forget her. But I did not forget her—either then, or ever after.

My Washington experience changed me in this: that I set my Uncle Jerry's life against my father's for comparison. It seemed to me that Uncle Jerry got the most out of it. He could see the world in his own way. He was free to follow the road. My father was tied by his congregation and his conscience. I might agree that my father was the finer man, but Uncle Jerry appealed to my imagination. In my mind's eye I could see him always as I had seen him in the old hotel, with his air of prodigious enjoyment, his gay and gallant bearing. Yes, I wanted to be like Uncle Jerry while I was young. Perhaps when I was old it might be different, but age was so far away that I did not have to think about it.

I found myself restless, wanting things, impatient of my father's point of view.

"Don't you ever long to travel, father?"

"Yes."

"Why don't you?"

"I have my work."

"I should think you would hate to be tied."

"We are all tied, Jerry."

I am sure, however, that he understood what was the matter with me, and tried to find an outlet for my energies.

We camped, I remember, for a week that summer in the woods. The days would have been dull for those accustomed to more exciting adventures, but there were pickerel and sunfish in the little lake, the water was limpid and lovely and swept by the fragrance of pond lilies, and my father in his holiday mood was very good company.

It was one night under the stars that I asked him:

"Why didn't Uncle Jerry marry?"

"He could never settle down."

"I believe I am like him, father."

"I hope not."

"Why?"

He brought his answer out after some hesitation. "He hasn't fulfilled the promise of his youth, Jerry."

"But he is rich."

You see how old-fashioned we were, even then, to talk of souls. But to my father and to me souls were as real as the stars in the heavens or the lilies in the ponds.

I was not willing to admit, however, that Uncle Jerry's lack of soul was a handicap. "He seems to get a lot out of things."

"What things?"

"Oh, well, good times and all that."

"Good times aren't everything. Being good and doing good are important. And I should hate to think you would be satisfied to look upon life as your Uncle Jerry looks on it. He is my brother, and I love him. But I don't want you to be like him."

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY SURPRISES NURSE JANE

"There you are," said Uncle Wiggily to Mrs. Field Mouse.

"Where am I?" she asked in her little squeaky voice.

"At my hollow stump bungalow," said Mr. Longears. "And here is the kindness I promised you."

"Where?" asked Mrs. Field Mouse.

Uncle Wiggily pointed to his old or second best fur coat which Mrs. Longears had put out on the line to air while Nurse Jane was washing the dishes.

"I'm afraid I don't quite understand," said Mrs. Field Mouse.

"Why, it's easy," said Uncle Wiggily, his pink nose twinkling like a rosy star on a Christmas tree at it always did when he was doing a kindness. "You and your little mice children are cold in the stump house where I found you, aren't you?"

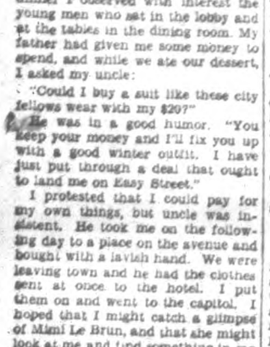
"Yes, if you please, we are," said the mouse lady.

"And you can't afford to buy warm fur coats for your children, can you?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

Too Many

"No, I can't," said Mrs. Field Mouse. "You see there are so many of them, Mr. Longears—"

"No matter—begging your pardon for interrupting," said Uncle Wiggily "Well, here's my old fur coat. I only wear it on stormy days when I am going no place special. So I am going to pull out some of the fur and give it to you that you may take it to your stump house and make warm fur coats for your shivering, little mouse children."



"You are very kind," murmured Mrs. Field Mouse.

"I like to be kind," said Uncle Wiggily. "Besides, my old coat will never miss what fur I pull out for you. Here!"

With that the rabbit gentleman hopped over to his old fur coat hanging on the line and began plucking from it several paws full of the fur. As the coat was old, the fur was loose and came out easily. Uncle Wiggily pulled out so much fur Mrs. Field Mouse could not hold it in her tiny paws.

"What do you want of a paper bag?" asked Nurse Jane.

"You'd be surprised!" laughed Mr. Longears. But he didn't tell Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy and she didn't ask him, being busy just then.

"Oh, thank you ever so much, Uncle Wiggily," said Mrs. Field Mouse as she crept away with the bag full of fur from the old coat. "Now my little mice will be warm for the Winter."

Invitation

"And if you or any of your friends want more fur, just come and get it," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll leave the coat hanging out here."

"Oh, thank you just heaps and heaps!" said Mrs. Field Mouse.

When she reached her stump house and began making fur coats for her mice children many of her neighbor mice asked her where she got the material.

"From Uncle Wiggily's old fur coat," she answered. "You may get some if you like."

"Oh, goodie! Goodie!" squeaked all the other mice mothers.

Soon about 14,237 of them were climbing, creeping and scampering over Uncle Wiggily's old fur coat that was hanging on the line. They pulled out so much fur that nothing but the skin was left. It looked funny.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, aren't you surprised?" asked Nurse Jane when she came back from the store and saw what had happened.

"Not a bit!" laughed the rabbit gentleman.

"Well, I am," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I certainly am surprised."

"I'm glad the mice will be warm for the Winter," said Mr. Longears. "Anyhow, I have another fur coat."

And if the rubber boot doesn't bounce up and tickle the umbrella in the ribs I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's leaves.

TURNER FREED, WIFE'S DEATH SAID ACCIDENT

Never Use Liquor Again, Judge's Parting Advice

WALKERTON, Ont., Dec. 4 (CP) —The death last Feb. 25 of Evelyn Turner, Dresden, Ont., housewife, was accidental, in the opinion of a Bruce County jury which acquitted the woman's husband, Walter Turner, of a charge of murder. The verdict concurred in defence contentions she died in the fall of a woodpile.

After nearly six hours' deliberation, the jury reported to Mr. Justice J. C. Makins in Supreme Court here at 8:56 p.m. last night that Turner was "not guilty of murder." The jury had been instructed by Mr. Justice Makins the case "is either murder—or it was accidental."

The verdict ended a four-day trial in which the defence contended Mrs. Turner was fatally injured by wood from a pile in the Turner woodshed falling upon her as she lay upon the floor. The Crown charged through expert witnesses that some heavy instrument had been used to cause her many injuries.

No Death Sentences

The trial, switched from the Kent County Assizes to Bruce County at the request of defence counsel for a change of venue, was the fourth on a capital charge to be decided here within the past six years. None has resulted in the death sentence being passed.

The first was the case of Harry Lounge, sentenced to seven years in penitentiary on a reduced charge of manslaughter. Melville Milkie of Owen Sound, whose hearing on a murder charge was switched from Grey County to Bruce, was declared insane at the time he allegedly set fire to his home. His wife and child were burned to death.

NOTED GARDENER FRANK WISE DIES

Declining during an illnes of the past six months, Frank Wise, gardener and horticulturist, well-known for his work in Peterborough, died at the home of his daughter in Toronto to-day. He was 72 years of age.

Born in England, he was a son of the late John Wise. A monument to his skill as a gardener exists in the beautiful floral layouts on the Western Clock Company lawns. He was a member of the Oddfellows and a member of the United Church. Until his removal to Toronto three months ago, he resided at 767 George Street.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. A. F. Perkins of Toronto, and three sons: F. E. Wise of Toronto, J. E. Wise of Kent, Ohio, and G. H. Wise of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2.30 o'clock from the A. Comstock and Sons' Funeral Home to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. M. C. Parr officiating.

Wife-Beater Of 75 Gets 3 Months

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 4 (CP). — William Croft, 75-year-old Port Hope resident, was sentenced to three months less one day in jail when convicted in court here yesterday of assault causing bodily injury. In passing sentence, Judge L. V. O'Connor said he felt that if Croft and his wife remained together "there would be murder."

Mrs. Croft, 52, testified that during an argument November 11 her husband hit her on the head with an axe and also struck her with a hammer. The woman suffered serious injuries in the attack.

LAD CUTS JUGULAR

BANCROFT, Ont., Dec. 4 (CP).— Earl Morols, 10, died in hospital here of a punctured jugular vein. The boy was playing with his wagon on a hill in this Hastings County town when he ran off the sidewalk and struck a stump.

CORNWALL CROWD GIVE PROBE HEADS STORMY SESSION

CORNWALL, Ont., Dec. 4.—(CP).—The Ontario Industry and Labor Board to-day was expected to meet in closed session officials of Canadian Cottons, Limited, and a committee of its 1,500 employees in connection with the Board's inquiry into the local and other textile industries in the province.

The Board held a stormy one-hour sitting last night when it returned here to continue its investigation. Catcalls and boos, attributed to company employees, were heard during the meeting. Workers, reportedly discontented at delay in submitting the Board's report, flocked to the meeting expecting some decision in their favor would be announced.

Spectators said there were loud boos when E. J. Young, chairman of the Board, announced an immediate decision regarding local conditions was impossible. The Board is inquiring into working conditions, hours of labor and wages in the provincial textile industry.

Return of the Board was result of a promise last week-end which terminated a week-old dispute which had closed the company's three mills here and forced some 1,500 men and women out of employment. Originally the Board sat here in September, shortly after a five-week strike was settled.

Plant Heads Absent

W. V. Boyd, assistant general manager, and other Canadian Cottons officials were at the meeting, but when it went into open session they were absent. J. L. Cohen, counsel; Arthur Laverty, president of the Cornwall Labor Council, and Alex Welsh, secretary of the National Textile Council, represented workers.

Mr. Young, terming the inquiry

LOANING CANADIAN ART

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (CP)—The national gallery of Canada announced today 70 Canadian watercolors would be sent next week to Edinburgh for exhibition there in January and possibly in other larger cities of the United Kingdom thereafter.

The exhibition, containing works of about 40 artists, will be the second of its kind to be shown in Scotland. The first sent in 1933, attracted wide attention in the United Kingdom.

Search For Longer Life Is Feared Futile

Biologist Claims Fresh Air, Sunshine, Exercise, Good Food Have No True Effects

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel Prize winner, who has kept a chicken's heart beating in a bottle since 1912, reported to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents yesterday that while fresh air and sunshine and plenty of exercise may be all right in their way, they have no true effect upon making man live longer.

He warned the insurance men that a sudden increase in the life span would create economic and social catastrophe.

Prolongation of man's life span, the biologist said, depends upon improvement in the body's tissues and blood, not on hygiene and medicine, which have almost finished their work in longevity.

"Each one of us knows" he said, "that hygiene, comfort, good food, athletics, fresh air, sun baths, have failed to increase the span of life. Senile deterioration will manifest itself in the future at the age of 60 to 65 years, as it does today and did in the past.

Experiments With Mice

"Any true prolongation of life will require, not only protection against disease, but improvement of the quality of tissues and blood. That is, more resistance of the body to wearing out."

Experiments on mice, he related, showed that longevity, although a hereditary tendency, can be modified in a large measure.

It was discovered, for instance, that mice allowed to run free in a greenhouse had 34 per cent shorter lives than mice confined to small boxes, although both were fed the same diet.

"Such was the price of liberty," Dr. Carrell observed. Changes in diet alone, he continued, also had influence. In one group, the percentage of mice reaching extreme old age quintupled.

"Lengthening of life," he said "was accompanied sometimes by the appearance of important characteristics. Two populations were subjected to fasting for several generations. The expectation of life at weaning increased by 17 per cent. The mice became smaller and stronger. They were found also to be much more intelligent than the other groups."

But there is no urgent necessity for prolonging man's life, Dr. Carrel believes.

Ask Double Relief For Christmas Day

Winnipeg, Dec. 4 (CP)

A DELEGATION of Women's Federation of Unemployed members today sought a double relief voucher from Winnipeg relief funds for Christmas, amount to an additional cost of $60,000 to the city. The request is being considered by the Manitoba Unemployed Advisory Board.

FATHER HELD BACK AS WIFE, 4 KIDDIES PERISH IN FLAMES

LAMOTTE, Que., Dec. 4.—(CP)—A young farmer grieved today over the deaths of his wife and four children in a fire which destroyed their home and belongings near here. Lamotte is 18 miles south of Amos.

Neighbors yesterday prevented the husband, Henry Miron, from attempting to rescue his family as the house raged in flames. Sheltered at a neighboring farm today, he was without even his own clothing. There was no time to save a thing as the little frame building burned. A coroner's jury declared the deaths accidental.

The wife, 23 years of age, was trapped in a second-floor room with her children, Martial, five; Henriette, four; Maurice, three, and Helene, one. Miron, his wife's brother, Adputor Fleury, and her father, Arnias Fleury, leaped to the ground from windows of the upstairs room where the group slept.

An overheated stove pipe was believed to have started the fire as the family slept. The crackling of flames raised an alarm but only the men were able to leap to safety. Neighbors said an attempt to go back into the roaring structure when they realized the other five were still inside would have meant death.

Find Too Much Pie In Student Diet

SHELTON, Conn., Dec. 4—(CP).—With the appointment of a housewives' committee to look into the menu situation at the Shelton high school cafeteria, a movement to deemphasize pie as a student diet gained momentum today.

In some quarters the over-emphasis on pie was held responsible for the dismal showing of the Shelton football team which failed to win a game or even cross an opponents' goal line this season.

But Mrs. Mary Wright, in charge of the cafeteria, protested students passed up her sandwiches and asked only for pie and more pie. So she stopped making sandwiches and gave them just what they asked for —pie and more pie.

Chief Officer Killed Passengers Hurt Near Jap-Held Isle

Nipponese Demand Full Freedom of Settlement And Call for No Repetition of Parade Bombing

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The British steamship Siushan was reported today riddled with bullets from an undetermined source while on a mission of mercy to Japanese-occupied Tsungming Island, near Shanghai.

The vessel was attempting to rescue nine French-Canadian nuns marooned on the island for about three months.

Among those aboard the 296-ton Siushan were Rev. Adrien Sansoucy, a French-Canadian missionary, and E. B. Boothby, a British consular official.

Boothby sought to rescue the isolated Canadian nuns but his efforts were frustrated by the machine-gunning.

After more than 200 machine-gun shots had been fired, the steamship's master, Captain N. McMillan, crept on his hands and knees under the spray of bullets to the wheelhouse. He reached the wheel safely and steered his vessel out of range.

British authorities said the Japanese, who have an air base on Tsungming Island, were informed of the voyage in advance.

(Tsungming Island is in the mouth of the Yangtze estuary, between Shanghai and the China sea).

Want Full Freedom.

Japanese today demanded freedom to enter Shanghai's international settlement at will after their armed forces twice encountered foreign resistance.

At the same time a representative of General Iwane Matsui, the Japanese commander, demanded that settlement police prevent any repetition of the "victory march" attack on Japanese soldiers.

After a grenade thrower had scattered a column of 6,000 Japanese soldiers on parade yesterday, a United States marine officer's protest forced a Japanese cordon out of the area guarded by United States troops.

Earlier French authorities blocked five Japanese army trucks from the French concessions but finally permitted them to move supplies into the French area.

The French removed a line of tanks, police and soldiers to allow Japanese trucks to enter their concession after an agreement with Japanese authorities. It averted what had threatened to be another incident involving Japanese and foreign nationalities.

Reports from Hangchow, chief port and capital of Chekiang Province, said Japanese were within 20 miles of the city and had not answered the appeals of foreigners to save the ancient cultural centre from bombardment.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (CP Cables) — Word reached here from Shanghai today said nine French-Canadian nuns, whose rescue was attempted today had been missing for three months from the Immaculate Conception Mission.

This was good enough to give the team fifth place. Playing with Mrs. Faulkner were Percy Sheardown, Mrs. W. M. Anderson, and Donald Farquharson, all of Toronto. They won the championship a year ago.

FASCIST MENACE FEARED ON VERGE GRABBING QUEBEC

LONDON, Dec. 4 (C.P. Cable). — Charging a Fascist Party is rising to power in Quebec Province, The Daily Herald, Labor newspaper, to-day declared the time has arrived for the people to act.

The paper said: "It is indeed an evil day in the history of the British Empire when it has to be recorded that there exists in the Canadian Province of Quebec a Fascist Party with some 80,000 members — many of them uniformed and armed.

"This party, reports show, is using all the demagogic tricks which brought Hitler to power in Germany. Only the people of Quebec Province themselves can resist this attempt to introduce an altogether alien ideology into the free political atmosphere of Canada. Public opinion all over the Empire will back them up in any such resistance."

Egg Hits Policeman Costs Striker $2

Montreal, Dec. 4 (CP)

"YOU certainly couldn't qualify for a baseball team," Recorder Leonce Plante told Petitie Gabrielle Lariviere today when he fined the 21-year-old striker $2 for hitting a constable with an egg she said was meant for an employee entering the Ideal Dress Company Building.

"Was the egg fresh?" asked the Recorder.

"Well," she said, "they cost me 50 cents a dozen and I meant to hit one of the 'scabs,' not the nice young officer."

Strange Disease Kills 10 Babies In One Chicago Hospital

Strikes Without Warning Leaving Physicians With No Known Defence

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP)—Physicians and scientists waged a concerted fight today against a strange disease that has caused the death of 10 babies and imperiled the lives of eight others during the past 11 days.

All of the tiny victims were in the infants' ward of St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The disease, which killed most of the babies within 24 hours, was characterized by violent inflammation of the small intestines and was diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea.

The outbreak, confined to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, began Nov. 23. Four babies died before the symptoms were full recognized. The hospital immediately declined new obstetrical cases and isolated the other infants, but six succumbed and eight others were stricken.

The victims ranged in age from nine days to 24 days. Seven of them were girls.

Autopsies performed on the last two babies to die disclosed both had the same infection. In one, however, marked changes in the brain which apparently had occurred just before death led bacteriologists to believe that the disease is caused by a virus or germ.

No Known Defence.

Dr. Harman Bundesen, president of the Board of Health, said there was no known defence against the infection, that it strikes without warning and that its rate of mortality was about 50 per cent. The only recourse, he said, was isolation.

Dr. Bundesen said the disease may be "a very virulent ultra-microscopic filtrable virus," and added: "No one seems to know what causes it."

Dr. Francis Dulak, member of the hospital staff, expressed the opinion the outbreak was under control.

Rev. John W. Barrett, diocesan director of hospitals, said the malady was not unique in the history of nurseries.

"The cause of the deaths appears to be intestinal inflammation or enteritis, but the staff of experts have not been able to discover the cause," he added.

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (CP)—Buffalo meat, fresh from the Canadian West, will be placed on sale here Dec. 10. The carcasses are being shipped from Wainwright Park, Alta., where they have been slaughtered to reduce the size of the herd.

RARE BLOOD CALLS MET IN SUDBURY

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 4—(CP).—Blood transfusions will be administered to-day to two persons requiring blood of the Group Four type, rarest of the four groups in which medical science classifies the life-giving fluid.

Donors of the right type have been found for the aged Mrs. Susan Burns, mother of the first child born in Sudbury, and Ernest Hill, 2-year-old workman crushed by a truck Thursday. Two other patients, the first injured in an accident and the other a child victim of anemia, received transfusions yesterday.

An emergency developed in the hospital here Thursday when the four, all with Group Four blood, were admitted and it was found they required transfusions. There were not enough persons on the hospital "reserve list" with the correct type of blood for the four and a search had to be made for suitable donors.

BOYS AND GIRLS WELCOME SANTA TO PETERBORO'

20,000 Line Route To Watch Parade

Santa Claus had come and gone in th night, as he had so often come unseen before, but this time the city's childhood, eyes alight with the sparkle of innocence and ecstasy, saw him pass along the street in the grand parade the Peterborough Business Men's Association had prepared for his greeting.

And twenty thousand people, nostalgic spectators, thrilled for the moment to the ineffable and wondrous sentiment inspired by childish faith, their hearts remembering cherished realities of their own nights of Christmas phantasy. Men perhaps repeated the line whose yearning significance has been revealed and deepened with the passing years, "Make me a boy again just for tonight," and others recalled the haunting line from Victor Herbert's song about Toyland: "Once you've passed its borders you can never return again."

An Hour of Gladness

And so that marvellous demonstration of vicarious affection last night seemed only a dream today. The children had their hour of gladness and assurance, and their elders joined in accentuating its beauty and semblance of truth. Nothing like the response of the public has ever been witnessed before in Peterborough, with the possible exception of the Old Home Week parade and its massed people. That occasion, however, was historic, a recalling of the community's past back to the days of the pioneers. Friday night's outpouring of citizens was something finer and more inexpressible, a tribute to eternal childhood and its benevolent patron, because the children dominated the gay show.

The estimate of twenty thousand people was suggested by Mayor Macdonald who rode with a group of business men at the head of the procession. Youth was everywhere, and presumably only the aged and infirm were at home. The evening w: ideal for December, and accounted largely for the great crowd. Several thousand greeted Santa Claus as he stepped from the C.P.R. local at 8.10 o'clock, and with expansive waving of his arm, strode along the platform to George Street.

TWO RACE PILOTS PLUNGE TO DEATH

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Two fire-blackened patches of debris formed mute epitaphs today for two of the most daring air race pilots in the United States as Miami's annual air show entered its second day.

Deaths yesterday of Rudy Kling, Lemont, Ill., and Frank Haines, Detroit, in accidents singular in the annals of American airplane racing, actuated a move to obtain withdrawal of a third pilot from remaining competition here.

Of the three crack riders of tiny and exceptionally speedy machines entered, only S. J. Wittman, of Oshkosh, Wis., remained. The contest committee planned to ask the erasure of his name from the list of competitors.

Versions varied, but it was agreed the dead fliers' plafes struck the ground at tremendous speed within seconds of each other at the first or "scatter" pylon at the north end of a tight, triangular, five-mile course.

Kling's wife and young son and Haines's wife all were sitting in the same field box and witnessed the accident.

Survivor Of 5 Wrecks, Hero 30 Rescues Drowns In Quiet Canal Waters

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 4 (AP)

FUNERAL services were held today for Barge Captain Peter Renskers, who in a lifetime on the water rescued 30 persons from drowning and survived five shipwrecks, but could not be saved when he fell from his barge here Thursday.

The 49-year-old bargeman sank in the waters of the Erie Canal basin as his wife and a bystander made futile efforts to lower a board for him to grasp. The board broke as he clung to it.

Renskers had been boarding up the barge, the Earl Foster, for its winter layover here when he fell backwards into the water.

A Hollander by birth and nominally a resident of New York City Renskers had for 35 years been an Erie Canal bargeman and a Great Lakes sailor, after an early apprenticeship at sea. He had survived two wrecks at sea and three on the Great Lakes, and during the Great War was second in command of a United States troop transport.

Bandit Shoots 3 In Running Police Net, Vanishes In Indiana Swamps

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP)

TRAIL of a desperate bandit-killer who shot to death a deputy sheriff and wounded two other persons in less than 24 hours grew cold today as squads of Indiana and Michigan police combed both sides of the state line.

Hunt for the fugitive, identified as Robert Shaw, 27, centred at Sturgis, Mich. more than 100 policemen and American Legionnaires searched snow - covered swampland near here without finding a trace of the man.

The gunman, trapped in a farm home near this city yesterday, shot his way to freedom, slaying Deputy Sheriff Harry Spice of Lagrange county and wounding in the arm Sheriff Irvin Custer of Noble County.

The officers sought to arrest him in the hold-up-shooting of Earl Eulitt, 23-year-old grocery clerk, at Kendallville Thursday night. Physicians said Eulitt had a chance to recover.

MACAULAY FAILS TO MOVE HEPBURN ON CHORLEY PARK

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (C.P.) — Ontario political circles to-day still buzzed with talk of a possible contract between the Beauharnois (Quebec) Power Company and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission though members of the Legislature were back home to-day no wiser in this regard than when they arrived.

The special session that opened on Wednesday was prorogued 20 minutes after it started its third sitting on Friday afternoon. The House passed three measures that the Government hopes will remove legal snags in the investigation of estates to determine if succession duties are owing to the Province.

The most important of these Bills changes the status of the investigating commissioners. Hitherto under the statute their findings have been registered with the Supreme Court and have had the same force and effects as judgments of the court. Now they become finders of fact only and the Government will sue in the courts if the amount is not paid.

No Power Deal.

The second bill extends to the Provincial Treasurer, his representatives and appointees judicial immunity while acting under the Succession Duty Act, 1934. The third bill provides for the inclusion of the amendments in the revised statutes.

As the House met for its final sitting, Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader, asked Mr. Hepburn if a possible Beauharnois contract had been discussed at the Liberal caucus. The Premier said "no" and would not say more.

Mr. Macaulay said the government had seemingly changed its mind on buying Quebec power. He thought it might change its mind too, on closing Chorley Park, until a few days ago the residence of Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor. The Premier's answer was that he had promised the people to close the place and he would do so.

Mr. Macaulay wanted a non-partisan committee named to study the future of Chorley Park, but the Premier said no purpose would be served.

FIRM UNDERTONE BOLSTERS WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4 (CP).—Faced with its third smallest crop in 10 years and with the grain believed below average quality, Argentina was the chief world market influence in lifting wheat prices from the year's lowest levels in the past 25 days.

Unfavorable southern hemisphere crop and weather conditions, keen export interest in United States wheats and more stable financial markets built sturdy props under futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in the week ended Friday. Strong undertone was expected to prevail as long as unfavorable weather hovered over the Argentine and Southern Australia, where harvesting is underway.

Final prices for the week put futures 5⅝ to 3¼ cents higher, December at $1.16⅛, May $1.13¾-$1.15, and July $1.09½-⅝. Values were at the highest levels since seasonal low points early in November. Chicago and Liverpool also rallied in late sessions from near year-low levels.

Latest estimates of southern hemisphere crops place probable production for both Australia and the Argentine at little more than Argentina's largest single crop of 349,000,000 bushels in 1928-29.

Forecast for the South American country was 194,000,000 bushels, 55,000,000 below last year, and 46,000,000 below the 10-year average of 240,000,000 bushels.

Estimate of the British statistician, G. J. S. Broomhall, placing Argentine exportable surplus at 93,000,000 bushels, had much to do with the week's closing rallies.

FIRING OF TRAIN ANGERS RUSSIA

WARSAW, Dec. 4 (CP-Havas). — The Soviet Union today formally protested to Poland against alleged molestation of the crew of a Russian train and destruction of one of its coaches in the Soviet-Polish frontier zone last Monday.

According to the Soviet version of the incident, a Russian train enroute through Poland was surrounded by an armed guard at Zdolbunow station, about 20 miles from the Soviet frontier. The train was searched and an oiler who tried to resist was maltreated.

Polish authorities then put the train crew under guard in a separate car. At Mohylany station, the Polish switchman threw a can into a passenger coach, which immediately burst into flames. Polish agents tried to force the Soviet engineer to drive the burning coach across the border, but he uncoupled it and continued the journey.

During a call at the Polish foreign ministry, Soviet charge d'affairs Boris Vinogradoff demanded an investigation of the incident and punishment for those responsible. He also insisted upon compensation for damage to the train.

CANADIAN STOCKS PULL AWAY FROM NEW YORK'S LIST

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—(CP).—Canadian stocks pulled away from the New York market this week and registered a net advance of 11.4 per cent. since Nov. 27, as measured by the Toronto exchange indices, compared with a New York market gain of 8.6 per cent.

Strength was general but the base metals and the western oils gave the most convincing indication of a recovery movement. Gold shares looked strong at times but some of the senior issues turned back around the middle of the week under profit-taking, leaving the secondary group to carry along the rally.

Among the industrials, the steels, banks, utilities, beverages and building shares were the leaders in the advance. Volume over the board picked up as prices tightened and the average daily turnover this week of 778,600 shares was the heaviest in six weeks.

Although the immediate outlook for business continues uncertain, Canadian stock markets are currently getting a lift from outside, according to reports in the financial district. Uneasy over the business slump in their own country, United States traders are said to be switching from Wall street to Canadian securities.

Dome Stands Out

Medium-priced issues were favored among the golds and practically the whole list advanced. Dome stood out among the seniors with a gain of $3 to $50, touching the highest price reached since January last. Lake Shore was the one soft spot. It reacted $2.25 but $2 of this loss was due to its going ex-dividend this week.

International Nickel continues to set the pace for the other base metals and the daily volume figures suggest outside participation in the trade. It held a $3.50 gain at $43.50 after reaching the 4 4mark. Consolidated Mining & Smelting advanced $3.25 to $63.75, Noranda $2.50 to $49.75 and Hudson Bay $1.25 to $22.25. Cheaper base metals registered proportionate gains.

Silver stocks played a more conspicuous role than usual and Nipissing, Mining Corporation and Eldorado posted substantial gains.

The western oils had their biggest week in several months and prices pushed upward as trading expanded. Royalite jumped $12 to $47 in that period and other wide gains were 80 cents for Calgary-Edmonton, 55 cents for Foothills, 52 cents for Okalta, 35 for South West Petroleum, 34 cents for Home and 17 to 25 cents for Dalhousie, Vulcan, Davies and Calmont.

Gains in the industrials were spotty. Quite a few issues went ex-dividend this week and the fact affected the price action. International Petroleum weakened $1.50 as it shed the dividend, while British American gained 75 cents and Imperial held steady.

Walkers Common led the beverages with an advance of $2.50 and among the foods Fanny Farmer was prominent with a gain of $2 to $21.90. Brazilian Traction continued to react on the news of political developments in Brazil, losing $1.35 on a drop to $11.

NO GARBO MATCH SAYS STOKOWSKI

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4 (AP). — Leopold Stokowski, single again after two ventures into marriage, waved his baton today towards an operatic Mickey Mouse.

The orchestra leader, divorced yesterday in Las Vegas, Nev., by his second wife, Evangeline, talked of his next movie job.

"This picture," he said, "will be taken from 'The Sorcerer's Apprentice,' a wonderful poem written by Goethe. Dutkas wrote marvelous music for the poem."

He was touched by the thought that children everywhere, and his two daughters, now in Mrs. Stokowski's custody, will hear Stokowski conducting the music for another of Mickey Mouse's screen capers.

"I am very keen about it," the 54-year-old music master said.

He refused to discuss the divorce that Mrs. Stokowski obtained on a charge of extreme cruelty, bringing to an end a marriage that began in New York, January 6, 1926.

As for reports linking his name with that of Greta Garbo, film star—"The lady has denied it. I have denied it, and I am speaking the truth."

CANADIANS CORNER 29 CHAMPIONSHIPS AT CHICAGO SHOW

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (CP).—Dominion farmers and stock raisers demonstrated Canada's agricultural progress in a convincing manner during the eight-day International Livestock Exposition, which ends its run today, by winning 29 championship ribbons and 56 first places.

The victories compared with 21 championships and 50 first places taken by Canadians at the 1936 show. Last year Canada ranked third among the honor winners, placing behind Illinois and Indiana. Their place this year will be determined later but it appeared certain it would be no lower than the 1936 position. Six provinces shared in the glory and prizes that went north of the international boundary.

The main titles were 17 championships and 12 reserve championships. Best known of the honors is the

CHRISTMAS MAIL HEAVY OVERSEAS

"Indications point to an extremely heavy Christmas mail", Postmaster Charles Lacheur remarked after surveying big stacks of outgoing English mail that left Peterborough to connect with the SS "Montclare" sailing rom Halifax on Saturday.

Reiterating the perennial warning to "mail early", the Postmaster suggested the deadline for mailing here to ensure Christmas delivery in other places, is as follows:

Dec. 10—United States (to allow for customs examination).
Dec. 16—British Columbia.
Dec. 17—Alberta and Saskatchewan.
Dec. 18—Manitoba and Maritimes.
Dec. 20—Ontario and Quebec.
Dec. 21—Local delivery.

Christmas or New Year cards containing good wishes expressed in not more than five conventional words may be sent in open covers at the rate of one cent each.

Cards and envelopes smaller than three by four inches may be lost or at least delayed in the mails—ones larger than four by nine inches may have to be folded and thereby damaged. For satisfaction and safety, it is suggested only standard size cards and envelopes be used.

Be sure to address all mail fully and correctly and place return address on all mail.

"If it is worth mailing, it is worth careful preparation", is a slogan that might be borne in mind and put into practice.

and its attempts to reach an equitable minimum wage for all classifications in the textile industry as a "gigantic" task, intimated an order setting minimum wages would be forthcoming by the first of the year. This, spectators said, drew further mumbling and boos.

The crowd applauded when Cohen said: "I ask this board to set up classifications that will apply here, and minimum rates that will be reasonable. It is not reasonable to expect Cornwall workers to wait until the province-wide inquiry had been completed. Their case demands immediate and separate treatment."

Mr. Young said when the board returned to Toronto the mass of information obtained during its inquiry, proceedings for the past three months, would be considered carefully and a report made.

ASKS REVERENCE BE TAUGHT YOUTH

RENFREW, Ont., Dec. 4—(CP).—Judge J. T. Mulcahy of Pembroke said in an address last night "youth will need the inspiration which can be gathered from a familiarity with a reverence for all the best which is to be found in the history of our race and in our democratic institutions if it is to lead in keeping out or to defeat the upsetting forces running wild in the world today.

"All manner of extreme Socialistic doctrines, Communism and other ism's have been and are being put forward as the perfection of human government," he said. "One fallacy amongst others is that they would smother the individual, and they would smother that first unit of society—the family—holding that both are of any value only to be regimented and directed as to thought and action by the supreme power—by the State."

Referring to the home as having become "merely a filling station, a place to eat and sleep, and hang your hat," the Judge said it was the duty of "both youth and age alike to put up a fight against these forces, and we can do it successfully if we restore the family and the home to their former position of importance and sanctity."

Hamilton Blazes Laid To Firebug

HAMILTON, Dec. 4—(CP) —The provincial fire marshal's department was asked to rush an investigation here today after fire early today damaged the Traymore Apartment. Firemen rescued several persons from second and third floor suites. Starting in a cellar locker from undetermined cause, the fire did several thousand dollars damage.

It was the seventh mysterious fire in the neighborhood within eight weeks and residents expressed alarm. Just 22 hours previously, fire broke out in the cellar of the Traymore Apartment, a few feet from the source of the midnight blaze. Although damage was small, the flames affected refrigeration pipes, freeing dense clouds of sulphur dioxide in the building. Firemen had to carry seven tenants down ladders from top suites.

LAD TRIES RIVER TO ESCAPE LAW

TORONTO, Dec. 4—(CP).—Dripping with water, 18-year-old John Volane was arrested near the Humber river and charged with car theft after a York township police car pursued an automobile in a wild race through seven miles of suburban streets.

Five revolver shots were fired at a speeding automobile as it raced ahead of the police car at a 60-mile an hour pace. Suddenly the pursued car slowed down near the river. The driver jumped out and waded into the water.

The driverless car continued, slowing on an up-grade, and then zig-zaged down the hill. Narrowly missing the police car, it rolled off the road and stopped against some trees.

The chase began when police ordered the car to stop. They were investigating a complaint a suspicious character was driving a car slowly along York township streets. Instead of stopping, the car sped away.

After Volane was arrested, police learned the car they had been chasing was a stolen automobile.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4 (C.P.). — Erratic grain trading came back to Winnipeg Grain Exchange in small proportions when wheat futures eased from moderate gains to close ¾ cent lower to ¾ cent higher.

Buying strength earlier sent prices 1½ to 2⅜ cents higher on increasing evidence of the Argentine probable low new-crop surplus for export. However, low ebb in export demand for Canadian wheat and spreading operations accounted for sufficient offerings to lower futures at the close.

G. J. S. Broomhall, world wheat statistician, estimated the South American country would probably have exportable surplus of around 92,000,000 bushels from a crop expected to be 55,000,000 bushels below 1936-37 production of 249,000,000 bushels.

FIND MAIL IN RIVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (A.P.). — Postal inspectors attemped to-day to trace a trail from an apparently looted United States mail truck on a Hudson River ferry to five bags of mail fished from the East River on the opposite side of Manhattan Island.

Seven bags of mail—part of a cargo of 11— disappeared from a guarded truck on Thursday night while en route from the General Post Office in midtown Manhattan to Hoboken, N.J. Four burlap sacks and one regulation mail pouch were taken from the East River last night.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

THE CENTRE OF ATTRACTION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

Jesus saith: "Come unto me; learn of me."—St. Matthew 11, 28.

We are all familiar with the troubles in Palestine. There is strife between the Jew and the Arab. The country is to be divided into three parts. A portion for the Jews, another for the Arabs and the Holy City is to be held under a mandate by Great Britain. There are three great monotheistic religions: Judaism, Mohammedanism and Christianity. They each believe in the one living God. In the providence of the Almighty the Holy Land is to be held in trust by the representatives of these three great religions.

More than two hundred millions are Mohammedans. Mohamet was born about 570 A.D. He professed to bring to his countrymen a better religion. He dictated from time to time certain revelations which he claimed to have come from God. The book that he wrote is called the Koran. The Koran tells us that the revelations which the prophet received were dictated to him by God through the mouth of the angel Gabriel, who read from "The Book of Decrees," which he had with him in heaven. Followers of Mohamet believe in "the literal divine inspiration" of the Koran. It is the one absolute book religion in the world.

Our Lord never wrote a book. Neither did He dictate anything. Our Lord's contribution to the world was not a book but a Life. He claims to be the Life and Light of the world and His appeal is to "believe in Him" and to follow Him. "Come unto Me", "Learn of Me."

On the other hand the Mohammedan is taught to believe "in the book which God has caused to descend from heaven." You will notice the striking contrast between the two faiths. Mohammedanism centres around a book—The Koran. Christianity centres upon a Person, the Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of the Father full of grace and truth.

It is true we are to search the Scriptures. It is Christ's own command: "Search the scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life and these are they which testify Me." Study the Gospels, which are the four pen pictures of the Lord of men who were convinced that He is the Messiah, the Christ, of Whom the Prophets spoke in the Old Testament.

The Gospels are witnesses to the truth of all truths: "Behold, I (not merely a book) am with you all the days, unto the very end of the world."

Many people today are disturbed by higher criticism. They fear the examination of the book of the Holy Scriptures. They have nothing to fear from honest criticism. A certain agricultural district was swept by fire, which destroyed everything. When the inhabitants returned to rebuild they found that the fire which destroyed the trees and the crops had brought them a blessing. The great heat had cracked the rocks and the deep fissures revealed to their astonished eyes rich veins of silver.

Perhaps the searching fires of criticism may destroy some of the traditions and ideas we have received from our ancestors still we have gained a greater and truer knowledge of God and His Christ, Who came to reveal the Father. The Book is more precious to us than it ever was. More thinkers and scholars are studying its pages than ever before.

The Book reveals to us what God is like as seen in the face and character of Jesus Christ. Above all we see God's patience in giving these revelations according as man was able to bear it.

Baron Von Hugel, a saint and one of the greatest scholars of our age, summarizes his lifetime of the study of the Book in these few words: "In the Old Testament the Jewish nation is taught the truth of the One Living God, the unity of the Godhead. In the New Testament through Jesus Christ is revealed the great truth of the unity of mankind. "Ye are all one man in Christ Jesus."

The Son of Man is the representative Man who is to be the head of a new race. This is the great secret of the Gospel. The mystery of His will is to gather up in one all things in Christ. The marvellous secret that Jesus Christ in His human life is the Head of a new and growing Body without which He Himself is incomplete and unfulfilled.

"There is neither Greek nor Jew, bond nor free, but Christ is all in all. Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord.

The Golden Text

Matthew 11:28—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Christian Rest

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 5 is Matthew 11:28-30; Hebrews 4:1-11, the Golden Text being Matt. 11:28, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.")

OUR LORD was one of the most untiring workers the world has ever seen. As a carpenter he had earned his bread by the sweat of his brow and knew what it meant to be wearied with the burdens and heat of the day. In his preaching, teaching and healing ministry he often was thoroughly tired out. A full record of his ministry must have included numerous references to his weariness like that one at the well of Sychor with the woman of Samaria. "Being wearied with his journey, sat thus (as he was) by the well."

The Rest Giver

And yet this Master workman, so often himself weary, stands forth and invites all the wearied ones of earth to come to him for rest. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." Jesus saw men treated as brute strength, and ready to fall under their crushing loads, and offered to give them, not rest from their labor, but rest in their labor.

Burdens of Doubt

This gracious invitation of our Lord grew partially from the experience of his faithful forerunner, John the Baptist, who sent messengers from his prison to inquire of Jesus, "Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?" Here was a man "weary and heavy laden" with doubt and discouragement. But he brought his burden to Jesus, and received a message to reassure him and give him peace and courage. Jesus mas meeting the same "contradiction of sinners" at which John had become discouraged, but he met it with calm confidence in his Father's unfailing love. From his defense of John against John's enemies and his, he turned to pray, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding, and didst reveal them unto babes; yea, Father, for as it was well-pleasing in thy sight." He allowed no bitterness of his enemies to break through into the rest he had through his fellowship with his Father. "Oh what peace we often forfeit, O what needless pain we bear, all because we do not carry everything to God in prayer."

Rest in Service

So from the burdens of doubt and discouragement and the still more grievous burden of sin we may find rest and release in Jesus Christ. But this rest is not one of lazy inactivity, but rather of service with Christ: "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me . . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden with us, and serving with and for him becomes a joy and privilege. "There remaineth therefore a sabbath rest for the people of God. . . . Let us therefore give diligence to enter into that rest." "Lord, Thou hast made us for Thyself, and our souls are restless till they find their rest in Thee."

Buddha To Christ Illustrated Talk

An illustrated address on "From Buddha to Christ" will be given in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday night. There will be over 50 coloured pictures showing different aspects of life in Korea, which is one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Kim Kayem is the central figure in the story, and the narrative relates the tortuous pilgrimage of a soul from gross superstition, into the glorious liberty of Jesus Christ. Kim offered himself for the Buddhist priesthood, and entered a monastery. Whilst there he underwent severe discipline by fasting and prayer, but failed to find peace for his soul. Buddha failed him, and he turned to Christianity and found the gift for which he had vainly sought. Kim founded a Christian home which became an example to others in the district. He dedicated his eldest son to the work of the Christian ministry, and his eldest daughter became a Christian nurse.

In the morning Mr. Young will begin a series of addresses on the Prophecy of Isaiah, and the topic will be "The Great Assize."

PLANES BAG 1,300

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 (CP-Havas)—Japanese planes today again bombed Siaoshan, near Hangchow, killing 700 and wounding 600, Chinese newspapers reported today.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

There are many able thinkers who feel that the western world has so divorced God and man, so separated religion from life by not realizing that faith and works are but two aspects of the same thing, i.e., love that we have reached the zenith of our civilization and that it is about to fall swiftly into decay. They think that the wave of civilization, ever sweeping steadily westward, has nearly completed the circle of the globe and is about to start on a new cycle, a new era. Whether this be so or not, it is as true today as ever that where "there is no vision the people perish." History clearly shows that nations and empires who fall into a hopeless materialism are swept away to make room for others. Jesus said there must needs be evil but woe to them who caused it. Evil is the result of spiritual ignorance and this earth is the school by which this ignorance is gradually dispelled by experience of the results of the law of cause and effect which certainly bring woe to those who suffer them. We have no one to blame for them but ourselves, and the sooner we realize this, the sooner will we awaken from our complacency. Perhaps as never before we need to spiritualize our daily lives, to translate our beliefs into the mechanics of every-day life; to regard heaven as a spiritual state of being capable of being realized both here and now in this world as well as elsewhere in the future. We need to regain the truths that have been degraded and commercialized and restore them in their pristine purity to the place they should have in our lives. In other words, we need to restore the living religion of love that Jesus taught and in comparison to pay little or no attention to the form or dogmas of beliefs, especially those held by others. What one may believe is of very little importance compared to how that belief expresses itself inwardly in love of God and outwardly in love of one's neighbor, for every tree is known by its fruit. Hence the vital necessity of mysticism, which is the life-blood of all religions, for the mystic seeks to go behind the outer form, the outer belief, in order that he may penetrate into the inner truth which the outer form both embodies and conceals, and having made that truth his own, he seeks to identify himself for ever with it in order that he may rise to higher and yet higher truth in his pursuit of the vision of God.

A National Message

Jesus Christ "hath by Inheritance obtained a more excellent name than" the angels. Abraham is the Heir of the world. Israel is God's Inheritance. "Blessed are the meek for they shall Inherit the earth."

This is the foundation of the title to all "holdings" in the Kingdom of God. Nothing of a permanent nature in the Kingdom of God can be obtained by purchase. Neither lands, no persons; all must be subject to redemption, all must go free when the jubilee trumpets shall sound.

Nothing can be obtained by conquest in the Kingdom of God. Such a thing as this is utterly unthinkable within the scope of the Divine administration.

"Come ye, buy and eat"; surely this is the privilege of all in the Kingdom of God, but it must be without money and without price.

So we call to mind in this year of grace 1937 that the earth will not be won by economic competition. Nothing permanent in the Kingdom of God may be purchased for money.

The whole of the treadmill of Babylonian economics has failed to enrich the world by tany permanent contribution. It has succeeded in placing a limit to the output of strength on the part of the nations. King Croesus gathered a treasure which was well-night fabulous. He laid up in his treasuries, and accounted himself the richest king in the world.

Anacharsus, one of our Scythian forefathers, strolled in to visit him. The king took him into his treasure house, and showed him his immense accumulations of money values. Generously he gave Anacharsus the privilege of helping himself to silver, gold and jewels, ad lib. But Anacharsus declined with thanks, saying words to this effect: "I came not to increase my wealth, but to increase my knowledge and virtue. Gold and silver have not value in my land. We do not use such currency."

When, later, Cyrus the king marched against the Sythians and had the benefit of the advice of Croesus to help him, he dashed his forces in vain against the people who were simple sons of the soil, and who lived the simple life, losing his army, his life, and therefore his kingdom. At least, such is one version of the history of Cyrus which has come down to us, and it probably is the true statement of fact.

Wealth brought neither safety nor happiness to Croesus. The addition of both the wealth and service of Croesus to his resources and possessions did nothing for Cyrus. He also was overwhelmed in disaster.

Christian Rest — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 11:28-30; Hebrews 4:1-11.

Jesus knew from his experience as a laborer in the carpenter shop what it meant to work hard and to be tired out from labor. So he sympathized with the "weary and heavy laden" of his day.

As a teacher he often was wearied with his journeying from city to city, and with long hours of teaching and of healing.

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden," he said, "and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart."

The rest Jesus gives us is not idleness, but understanding through which we can give greater aid to our fellowmen. (GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 11:28.)

No Cause For Jubilation

Our employment figures have not yet reached the standing of 1929, but in Ontario our expenditure for beer, wine and liquor has just about touched the 1929 standard.

During the past year we consumed in this province over $54,000,000 worth of drink, and that is more than a million dollars for every week of the year.

And it takes almost a million dollars to pay the tax rate for the city of Peterborough for a year, with a number of our folk unable to do their paying promptly.

We have no way of knowing how much the beer and liquor bill used to be in the days of the open bar, but we are moved to doubt if it would equal the 54 million mark.

The fact that our government gets a revenue of almost $9,000,000 a year does not mean much. We are spending more than we can afford to spend, and we are not being disciplined in the way the word "Control" should operate in the liquor Control Board. We can find nothing at all about which to feel jubilant upon learning that Ontario is spending $54,000,000 a year on its drink account.

It Will Have To Come

Premier John Bracken of Manitoba said plainly his government was in favor of having but one government for the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. He made that statement before the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations during its sitting in Winnipeg.

Mr. Bracken said he knew well enough it would not be an easy matter to arrange, but he was also conscious of the fact that nine spearate governments for a population of 11,000,000 people was entirely too great a load to carry.

It is encouraging to find a provincial premier who is prepared to say plainly he believes in simplification of government when he knows that such a step would also affect his own standing and that of other members of his government. It would mean that a good many members of the legislature of the three western provinces would have to step down and out, and that a great many of the departments of the government would have to be unified. And it would also mean that a number of government employees would be dispensed with. If it did not mean all of these things then there would be no particular advantage in considering the matter or proceeding further with it.

But Premier Bracken is at least in favor of something which will have to take place. We can see nothing else for it but a scaling down of the size and cost of the amount of government which has been heaped upon this country. It has been talked about and written about and when we find a provincial premier agreeing it should be done then there is at least some slight hope to believe that that eventually it will be done. It will come to pass not because people want to do it, but because the strain and drag of financing will force the issue.

Good For Grandfather!

In magistrate's court at London, Ont., Donald Menzies was confronted with settling a case of a grandfather who was charged with having administered a beating or some such thing to a grandson. Grandfather admitted he was 79 years of age, and possibly it would be correct to say he is "going on 80." The grandson who attained that relationship by marriage, admitted he was 27.

A magistrate would need the wisdom of Solomon to get such a case made plain before him. When a man is nigh unto 80 years and when he is not only a grandfather but a great-grandfather, he usually sits much in a chair. No great things are expected of him in the way of service, and people are glad enough to go romping around bringing things to him and making him comfortable.

The grandson who laid the charge said the grandfather struck him with a broom handle, knocked him down and also gave him a beating with a cane and likewise administered a few kicks. Grandfather replied that he could not well have kicked him as he was a trifle too lame, but when the younger man came to his house to call for his wife and daughter, (that would be the great-grand-daughter) he was drunk and grandfather apparently went at him. Court granted suspended sentence but the older man was told he would have to contribute costs as he had been guilty of assault.

If it were possible to do so we would like to see a collection taken to pay those costs. For this reason: So much is said at present of men being too old to work after they reach the age of 45 or 50 that the impression may have gone abroad that men above that age are useless creatures. They can be shoved about or told to go here or there and there is nothing left for them but to obey. So it is rather refreshing to find this London grandfather approaching the 80 mark who is able to trim his grandson of 27 and do it thoroughly when he finds him in a state of intoxication. There is actually more in it than a mere case of assault. It is a victory for men in general who are mounting up into middle age or entering upon advanced years. Rightly or wrongly we think quite a good deal of this rather remarkable great-grandfather in London, Ont.

Financing Our Parks

The suggestion has been made by members of the Nicholls Trust Park Board that the city should take over Nicholls Oval, and the reason for the request is that the Trust Board find the available funds are not going to be sufficient for the upkeep and proper development of both Nicholls Oval and Jackson Park. There was a total of $80,000 given from the estate of the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls for the purchase of park properties for the use of Peterborough. Nicholls Oval was purchased for $13,000 and Jackson Park was secured for $3,000, and that was one of the best deals any Board ever made because Jackson Park, heavily wooded and adjacent to the city is 25 acres in extent and is worth many times the price which was paid for it. Inverlea Park, which was also secured by money from the same source, has been taken over by the city.

Purchasing of property, planting trees and shrubs and erecting buildings and conveniences and building roads has reduced the original bequest to about $48,000. The interest on this money has brought in an income of some $2,650 a year, and that is all the revenue available for the upkeep of these properties. The members of the Board who spend a good deal of time in planning for changes and improvements and in the general management of affairs, receive nothing at all for their services, so in that way all interest money goes back into the property.

Now there is going to be a marked decrease in this income because $25,000 of the funds which has been invested in City of Peterborough bonds at 6 per cent. is coming due, and it is not likely the $25,000 when reinvested will earn more than 3 per cent., meaning a decrease of $750 per year in income. In 1944 more of the invested funds which have been earning 5 per cent. will come due and unless there is a change in interest rates in the meantime there will be another step-down in available revenue for the upkeep of Nicholls Oval and Jackson Park.

For those reasons, and they are sufficient and easy to understand, it seems only right that the city should take over Nicholls Oval. This city has been so fortunate in the manner in which it has secured its park properties that it has spent sparingly when compared with other places where parks systems are being continually developed and expanded and the money raised through taxation. Nor should the trustees of the Nicholls Trust be asked to turn over what remains of their funds, for they will need all the revenue they can secure for the care and development of Jackson Park.

Should Be Changed

George Larion, a man of 54, died in the hospital at Hamilton, and death was the result of injuries received when the man ran into the door-handle of an automobile. His skull was fractured by the impact and he did not recover consciousness.

This is not by any means the first fatal accident caused by the door-handles of automobiles. There have been several similar cases. The door-handles are sharp and they stand out so there is always the danger of people being struck and injured by them. Many of the newer model cars have made a desirable change so there is a curve in the handle which does away with the danger of accident.

When it is found that a door-handle of that kind is dangerous we believe the law should demand a change. We have been told that it would not be a serious matter to have straight handles bent to get away from the danger, and certainly no car maker should be allowed to use any more such equipment.

As It Was On The Tenth

There were but few lines used to record the news from Glencoe, in Middlesex County, telling that "An old-fashioned singing class being held regularly at Crinan is creating considerable interest throughout the district, with an average attendance of nearly 50."

We are glad enough to publish a piece of news like that. It comes as a bit of wholesome information in this troubled age. It is far removed from the bitter remarks of international leaders; separated too from the strife of labor disputes and the noise of war. The folk in the Crinan district are attending the old-time singing school. Fine, say we.

There use to be such an institution held in the basement of the church at the corner of the Tenth Concession and the Broken Front Road. Every Thursday night. It used to taper off in the spring about the time boiling down was being done in the bush or else it would keep going until seeding started. Then the singing school season was over.

It was pretty well organized too. Committees used to take turns month about at getting on a fire in the box stove and seeing that the lamps were filled and trimmed before the professor and the singers arrived. The professor used to drive out from the village some eight miles off where he played an organ on Sundays and through the week gave lessons on the piano, organ, mandolin, guitar, violin or almost anything any person was minded to take a hand at. Just how he came to be a professor no one ever seemed to know. It said so on a glass sign on the door of his house so we just took it for granted it must be so.

But he looked and acted something like a professor ought to look and act. He was artistic and he worshipped sweet music. Most of the folk from the Concession and the side-lines used to go to his singing school: the folk who sang in the choirs around went; the hired men went, and all those who felt an urge to express themselves vocally attended.

The professor always had to contend with the strength of rural vocalism. It was something which above all else was assertive in its full-orbed strength. If a fellow could sing bass then he wanted to sing a whole lot of bass, and if another could work along at the tenor then he wanted to turn in a good night's work. Much the same with the ladies too. The professor always used to give a little address before he began instruction. He had always something to say about striving to catch the spirit of the composer of the music, and about seeking to interpret his varying moods.

There was one piece about the day having died and the sun having sunk and the birds having gone to bed for the night. Into that the professor always wanted to inject feeling; he wanted it soft as mush and as soothing as a teething powder when the child was cutting the two middle teeth in the lower jaw. But when a fellow had been out pitching manure all day, or driving the stone boat up and down the muddy lane to leave out the milk can and bring back the whey he found it kind of hard to get a muffler that would throttle his vocal emotions. He was apt to transfer the strenuous efforts of the day to the business of singing by night. If the day had died he was not going to keep the matter a secret and if the sun had sunk then the folk should be told good and plenty about it so that nothing which was going on could be hidden from them.

It was then that the professor from the village registered artistic disappointment. It came and camped upon his face and a form of mild horror gazed from his soulful eyes. He longed to produce a thing of beauty but he was faced with a creature of size and extent. Like as not he would have gathered together his belongings and hastened back to the safety of his home had it not been for the fact that he had collected his weekly fee of ten cents per head and was afraid to depart for fear of muscular restraint on the part of the hard-framed vocalists. It may be that the folk at Crinan are more flexible in their tastes and more amenable to artistic reasoning. We hope they are. It may be quite true as the professor said that the folk on the Tenth sang too loud. They did like their vocal beef cut rather thick and with a good deal of gravy on top.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Apparently the electors of Lethbridge, Alta., feel that the Social Credit bubble has been very effectively burst.

According to an American authority the recent business slump was not a depression. However, we are inclined to think it was not a boom, either.

The remains of an ancient Indian town have been discovered near Brampton. Located in that district it is probable that some old-time lacross sticks may be discovered among the relics.

Caledonia has been bragging about a temperature of 62 degrees and Montreal harbor is still open. The prophets of open winter seem to be winning the first round.

Jugoslavia has banned a Mickey Mouse strip because of a suspicion that some of the incidents depicted have political significance. Whatever else the Jugoslavian government may have it is apparently lacking in a sense of humor.

DEFEATED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My nieces and my nephews come, when all my work and chores are done, as bright as they can be; they scramble up upon my chair, they sit around most anywhere, or perch upon my knee.

¶ And they crave stories that I know, of things that happened long ago, when I was but a lad; the yarns I heard grandfather spin, of things that happened then to him, mixed joyful with the sad.

¶ And so I start to spin my tale, of nights of snow storm and a gale, of wolves that howled outside; of how they chased grandfather home, for he was hoofing it alone, and hope for him had died.

¶ I tell them of the oxen cart, of homes that were nine miles apart, with bush land in between; how folk would travel on for days, by rough and lonely paths and ways, and not a soul be seen.

¶ They listen while I spin my yarn, of early days around the farm, they tolerate my tale; and then they ask for cowboy stuff, of shooting times and days more rough, they say my story's stale.

¶ I can't compete with movie men, who had three pistols now and then, who always shoot to hit; the yarns they used to long to hear, now fall upon a deadened ear—and so I'll have to quit.

BREAKING LOOSE from Manston airfield, Thanet, a balloon dragged the end of its 10,000 foot cable along the main road near the airdrome and nearly wrecked two cars. Heading out across the Channel in a strong northeaster the air derelict drifted for France. At Audruicq in the Pas de Calais Department the runaway entangled the end of its cable in high tension wires and short-circuited the main electricity station at Bethune. Then leaving citizens for 20 miles around in darkness the balloon disappeared toward Belgium. After 36 hours adrift it dipped its cable into another high tension line at Signeville, France, and blacked out another town and eight more villages. Then the balloon subsided in a field.

A peacock tragedy has momentarily ousted Japan and Spain from Geneva's international gossip. For years a little colony of superb peacocks and peahens, in the park where the Secretariat Building stands have charmed jaded diplomats seeking relaxation from weighty debates. Now eight of them are dead and the remaining four ill. The bodies were found beneath one of the huge cedar trees where they rested at night and Geneva specialists hurriedly held inquests and pronounced that arsenic had killed the birds. Their deaths remain a mystery but it is thought that poisoned grain scattered for rats may have been picked up by the peafowl.

In late October Croydon, Eng. residents reported a case of typhoid and five more cases occurred within the next few days. Within a few weeks the number of cases had increased to over fifty with five deaths.

The cause of the outbreak is believed to be a 300-foot deep well at Addington and somewhere in the district it is believed there was an animal or human being who was a typhoid carrier and had contaminated the water.

Air-minded New Zealand

OFTEN DESCRIBED as the most English of all overseas Empire countries New Zealand is showing itself as about the most air-minded. Beside producing Jean Batten the great woman flyer, New Zealand is preparing to be the most active agent in mapping the skies of the Southwest Pacific.

Just last week there was a big airplane conference at which the British and Australian guests were present to discuss this phase of work. At the same time an air service between New Zealand and Australia is contemplated.

According to Jean Batten one of the most unpleasant cities to fly over is Calcutta, India because it is impossible to land anywhere except at the airdrome. The surrounding country is jungle and swamp, offering no chance for an aviator to make a landing.

In the recent general election in Australia it took three weeks to collect all the votes from the wilderness, so inaccessible are some parts of the country.

Last month in the Salem hinderland in the Madras presidency of India with the villages in festive decoration and Chief Minister Rajagopalacharier officiating a bottle labelled "Drink Evil" was smashed ceremoniously in front of an arrack shop by a man armed with an iron bar. The crowd shouted "Gandhi ki jai," (Victory to Gandhi). It was the inauguration of prohibition in the Salem district. Tea shops replaced toddy shops and tea was served free for the next fortnight while liquor bottles were carried outside the city and buried.

In England many men's jobs depend upon the office of mayor. They are chiefly hall-keepers and mace-bearers. Some boroughs have a beadle and mayor's hall-keeper but invariably the hall-keeper acts as the mayor's marshal and is paid a hall-keeper's salary which in fair-size boroughs is about $1,500 with a small allowance for uniform.

She Has a Big Riding.

MRS. MARTHA LOUISE BLACK who at 71 is a member in the Dominion Parliament for the entire Yukon territory represents Canada's most northerly constituency. Incidentally Mrs. Black's riding is four times as big as England although it holds only 1,805 electors of which more than 1,000 live in Dawson City. It is said Mrs. Black knows 1,500 of them personally.

Mrs. Black was born in Chicago and went to the Yukon with her first husband Will Purdy and two sons during 1898 during the gold-rush, gave birth to a third son in a lonely cabin while her husband was out prospecting. Her husband died in 1900 and Mrs. Black went to work in a gold field, four years later marrying George Black.

When the war broke out she crossed to Europe with her husband and three sons and became a nurse. She gave lectures on the Yukon for the Royal Astonomical Society and was made a Fellow of the Society.

Later Mr. Black became member for the Yukon and in 1930 was made Speaker of the House of Commons. When he retired from public life Mrs. Black became the Conservative candidate in the riding and at the last general election she was elected by a majority of 135 after campaigning through the Yukon in canoe, motor-boat and river steamer. Once she tramped for miles through the waste country to get the votes of three trappers.

It is said of the Yukon member that her home in Dawson City is never locked. Her hospitality and her baked beans and pancakes are famous.

The Editorial Which Aroused Berlin Press

New York Times Spoke Plainly of Position of U.S.; Sees Alliance With Britain As the Only Solution

THE UNITED STATES has lost its leadership in world affairs and to that fact largely can be attributed the impotence of the Nine-Power Treaty Conference in Brussels. The reason for this loss of influence is plain; treaty-breaking governments and dictators have become convinced that for no cause short of actual invasion will the United States initiate or join in any effective movement to assure world peace.

For this conviction on the part of these treaty-breakers the "isolationists" and "pacifists" in Congress and their vociferous supporters in the country are chiefly responsible. . . .

It is the assertion of such groups and their Congressional representatives that, because of the gifts of nature and geography the United States can retain its institutions and live its full life alone in a world where democracy does not elsewhere exist, even though Great Britain and France were shackled by despotisms which turn human beings into machines for conquest and consign liberty to the fallacies of the past.

The power of these groups and their spokesmen has been in the ascendancy, as acts and events plainly indicate. In recent years they have seized upon every occasion when the American Government was seeking to express the scruples of conscience against treaty-breaking and aggression, to proclaim that, in no circumstances, would this people do anything effective to restore moral standards among the nations. Organizing writing pamphlets and using the Congressional Record as their gazette, they gave notice as early as when Japan seized Manchouko that the fixed future policy of the United States would be to keep out of war abroad, and that it would take no steps to prevent it, however clear the threat to our own institutions.

The attitude took form in the so-called Neutrality Act of 1936, with its "declaration of a state of war" and its "cash-and-carry" provisions. By the first named, the President was instructed by Congress, upon discovery of the existence of a state of war abroad, to withhold war material from all concerned, regardless of whether an invaded nation, fighting for its own as in the case of Ethiopia, was left at the mercy of a most ruthless aggressor. By the second named, American vessels were virtually swept from the seas, and only those warring nations which have navies and trade fleets were given access to our markets.

Attempts, in the name of international decency, to distinguish between honest and dishonest governments and to permit aid to nations clearly acting in self-defence against banditry, were beaten down in Congress. The world was put on notice that the United States was out to save its own skin from immediate dangers; and the dictators were informed that the American group controlling policy was prepared to see the world remade on Fascist lines without interference and apparently without understanding that this would mean anything dangerous to us at all.

When the President, recently voicing this people's indignation against the invasion of China by Japan and horror at the butchery at Shanghai, recalled that there still were "quarantines" against governments which did these things, a wholesome fear arose in certain capitals that the Neutrality Act might not represent enduring policy for the United States. And when next day the State Department named Japan as aggressor, the fear spread.

But a little inquiry sufficed to prove that the pacifist and isolationist groups would not thus be led. Their Congressional representatives denounced the expressions as violations of the spirit of the Neutrality Act, which in truth they were, and soon as Congress met, the press cables carried abroad proposals of war referenda and other evidences that the group which framed the act is unchanged in its attitude. The Japanese Ambassador to Washington did his duty, and did it accurately and well when he informed his colleague at Brussels that pacifism was still the American mood. The circulation of this report in the conference capital both tempered the messages to Tokyo and stiffened the rejections therefrom and in its atmosphere the Brussels conference went to its inevitable inept doom.

Meanwhile, on the pretext that a world alliance against Communism is the first essential to peace, Japan, Germany and Italy have signed a treaty. Outwardly it pledges these Governments to stand with force against the encroachment of Soviet teachings and the Soviet form of government. But in some European chancelleries and in Washington the pact is interpreted as a pledge, necessarily not stated in the treaty, that each of these three nations will stand by the two others, defensively and offensively, until each has gained its territorial and other objectives. . . .

And nothing could more effectively give expression to realization of the danger implicit in it than a tangible expression of the determination of this country to stand by the other democracies should the need arise.

This is not a preschment for war measures. The people of the United States are set against military expeditions, and rightly so. But there are effective peace measures, the most recent illustration being the decision of the British and American governments to negotiate a trade treaty. This should be supplemented by every possible kind of private and public cooperation between Britons and Americans and others who speak, if not the same language, at least the same spiritual tongue. Understandings on trade, money and credit will serve as certain weapons against treaty-breakers.

In such a manner can this nation restore, a will for peace in the world and re-establish its lost leadership in international affairs. By such means the ravishers of small or weak neighbors and the enemies of democracy will discover that the United States has not become so timorous and so stupid as to abandon its responsibilities and imperil its greatness and its freedom. It will be wiser to put them on notice at once.

EXPENSIVE HONOR.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

IT SEEMS clear that less should be demanded of the Lieutenant-Governor in the shape of activities which mean a draining of his private resources or that, if these activities are to continue he should be in receipt of larger allowances to finance them. It is, of course, very much of an honor for any man to represent His Majesty the King in any Canadian province. But when the honor has to be paid for to the extent of thousands of dollars annually, it loses some of its lustre.

DESTRUCTION OF CHINESE IS AIM OF JAP FORCES

Frank Millican of Chemong Road has received from his sister, Miss Maud Millican of the Methodist Mission hospital at Yungchow, Hunan, China, a letter that comes from the fringe of the war area. It intimates that few people in the country are escaping the effects of the war which are expected to be intensified if peace is not soon restored.

The following is a quotation from Miss Millican's letter which was written about the middle of October:

"At the moment all is peaceful here in Yungchow and we hope it may continue so. You will have heard that the enemy planes got to Hankow a fortnight ago. We had a letter today from one of our missionaries there. She says the sight of those poor wounded people being admitted to hospital after the raid was too terrible for anything. They were operating from 7 p.m. one evning until 9 p.m. the next. Four operating theatres were on the go all night, and the operating staff worked in relays. Our hospital and church in Hankow had many windows smashed to smithereens, and the folks thought the hospital had been hit, but it was only the reverberation of the bombs.

"We are busy sewing shirts for soldiers these days. At the Dorcas meeting this afternoon we were all given a suit of sleeping clothes to make. I make two pairs of trousers on the machine, so mine got done quickly, but I might tell you they wouldn't stand close inspection. Any way we'd be glad to have a dozen suits for hospital made as well. These are bought and made with money we collected last week in response to the British Consul General's appeal for help in Hankow. The air raid quickened things up a lot and there has been a wonderful response since. I think they gathered $23,000. I heard they sent down to Hong Kong to try to buy $5,000 worth of drugs, etc., for the hospitals in central and west China.

"I read in the paper the Japs have been using Chinese colors on their aeroplanes and in one city they let the enemy planes circle low over the city several times, thinking they were their own. Then the planes just opened their bomb racks and rained death and destruction on the people. It is too horrible to think about. I don't know where humanitarianism has gone these days. The Japs think of the most dastardly things imaginable to destroy Chinese lives and on top of it all war has not yet been declared.

"Yungchow is away on the southwest border of Hunan, a good way from any railway, aerodrome, or military activities of any kind, and it should be fairly safe here, but now the Japs seem to have got their war madness deeper into their minds nowhere is safe, so we must take our chances with the rest. It doesn't look as if the League of Nations is going to do much else than talk and that won't help China now.

Foreign stores are just about unbuyable at the moment, there have been so few ships bringing them to Shanghai, and if the Japs muck up Hong Kong and Canton we are done in that way too. Prices are almost prohibitive, so we are managing with the stores we have, and when those are done shall have to 'go Chinese'. Butter is five shillings a pound. We are on our last twenty-one pound tin and that's all until the war is over. So look out for when I come home next year."

Barnum House Near Grafton Typical Early Architecture

Professor E. R. Arthur Gives Second Of Series Of Addresses In City

"The Domestic Architecture of Ontario," beginning with the earliest rough mud or log cabins, and dealing chiefly with the colonial houses of the early 19th century, was discussed by Professor E. R. Arthur of Toronto University, in his second lecture of the season to the Women's Art Association in the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. on Friday afternoon.

About twelve years ago the University of Toronto allowed Professor Arthur to make a study of old Ontario buildings which he did from the point of view of an architect seeking beauty and interest in the architecture, with no regard to the families that had lived in them. "I knew little of Canada at that time," said the professor, "but enough to find the old settled districts such as in the Niagara Peninsula, and along the Kingston road."

Professor Arthur illustrated his lecture with an interesting assortment of slides. Practically none of the first log houses remain intact, and many of the first colonial style have been added to or altered. A typical early small house of the prairies was made of mud and straw blocks, covered with stucco. Many of these houses were built in Ontario, and there are still whole streets of them in Toronto, unrecognized as such, with their stucco covering. "They are fine houses, cool in summer and warm in winter," said the lecturer. An early French Canadian cottage had a high pitched roof, a style that came from France, and was the only difference between Ontario and Quebec buildings of this period. The French roof was sometimes pitched so big as to permit of two or three rows of casement windows.

A little house built in 1825 on the site later occupied by Snea's Hippodome in Toronto, was one example of the simple Georgian style, meant to be lived in rather than looked at." Windows were composed of many small panes, since larger glass could not be obtained easily. The lack of carving, in contrast to English houses of the same period, was pointed out by the lecturer. "The United Empire Loyalists brought carpenters with them, but few 'carvers,' and also there was a lack of stone to carve in Ontario, the field stone being splendid for building, but it cannot be carved." Examples of old colonial houses had windows brought out to the face of the outer wall, and heavy panelling within, giving a beautiful effect. Fanlights over the panelled front doors were after the manner of the Adams' Brothers in England. In a typical living room were archways on either side of the handsome carved mantle.

Splendid Example

Speaking of the old Barnum house near Grafton, built in 1817, Professor Arthur said, "The house has had a rough time since the war, when it was sold for a thousand dollars, and since then has been in the hands of tenants. It has never been painted, and the bases are rotting, yet I know of no better example of its architecture in all the United States, and there is nothing to compare with it in New England." At times some of the old houses were left with unfinished fronts, and for years smaller taxes were paid, as on unfinished dwellings.

Comparing rows of simple colonial houses, with modern streets of little houses "quarrelling to be different," the professor said, "People thought then of streets as streets, and neighbors were respected. There was such a thing as manners in architecture which has disappeared." The Gothic and later, the Greek, revivals spoiled the Georgian buildings.

A few years ago about a thousand of the early 19th century houses remained, but there are few today, though the Government is working to preserve them. As is also the "Society for the Architectural Conservancy of Ontario formed several years ago by Professor Arthur.

The lecturer was introduced by Mrs. Fred Hooper, president of the Women's Art Association. The passing of the late Mrs. C. H. Barns was spoken of feelingly by the president, who said, "No words of mine can adequately express what Mrs. Barns meant to the Association." The members stood to observe a minute's silence in respect to the memory of Mrs. Barns.

It was announced that at the Christmas meeting on December 17, every member is priveliged to bring a friend. Tea was served in the library at the close of the lecture, with Mrs. Waite and Miss Mathers as hostesses. The tea table was beautifully arranged with a lace cloth, and as a centrepiece, a low Wedgewood bowl held mauve-pink baby chrsanthemums, with long mauve tapers in pretty white candlesticks on either side.

Shaggy Haired Pooch Gives Salesmen A Run

Concentration in salesmanship is one of the essential elements of success, according to the Vash Young school, but in the most attractive equations which result in a buyer's signature on the dotted line the letter "x" should be included to represent more or less moderation.

And that's what a vacuum cleaner salesman left out of his approach in a call at a down town Simcoe Street home yesterday. It might have been Thursday, but that detail isn't important.

The vacuum men put on demonstrations when they get inside a prospect's house, showing how their machine will clean up dust from every chink and corner, upholstery and all the rest of the furnishings, scene.

"Now don't let that dog out," the Simcoe Street woman warned the operator, and went on about some other duties while vacuum motor hummed a pleasant low monotone. The dog was a Scottish terrier, owned by a prominent citizen who from his recent trips could drive to Marmora blindfolded. He left his favorite Scotty at this house before setting out for the east the other day, while the rugs of the same house were yielding dust to the expectant salesman. So intent was he on his demonstration that he forgot all about dogs, and went out onto the verandah for a hammer or something, and the terrier followed him, picking up speed as it dashed for the street and headed off to its west end home. In a moment the salesman was between two fires, the somewhat angry housewife and the dog gone yip-yapping.

In the lexicon of go-getting the customer is always right, and that meant the terrier had to be got back some how or other. So, the salesman started hoofing after it. On the way he yelled for help, and three men joined him. Up past Trinity Church and St. Mary's convent, and down Hunter Street the chase went at top and winded speed into the Street of the Three Corners, and right there Scotty was home, and highly delighted. The salesman spotted him in the back yard, and closed in. Then pursuit took the ring-around-rosy around the house, until a young man called from the door—"Hey, leave that dog alone." Then in the midst of the argument the telephone bell rang inside. The Simcoe Street lady was calling, telling the owners the dog had got loose and might make for home. And the last scene in the rapid fire comedy was the gradual convincing of the vacuum cleaner man that the terrier's home was out in the residential section and not down in the business centre.

And finally the demonstrator meandered back to his job, abjuring Scottish terriers and all their breed, no doubt, and no doubt wondering how he could remarshall his personal forces of dignity before a woman who still laughs when she remembers him running up Simcoe Street after the shaggy haired pooch.

Hastings Oldest Business Man Celebrates 82nd Birthday

Alex. Wilson Has Long Been Prominent In Business And Municipal Life

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 4—Having the distinction of being the oldest business man in Hastings as well as being the oldest resident, native of the village, Alex Wilson celebrated his 82nd birthday on Saturday, Dec. 4. Although he suffered a stroke this past summer, Mr. Wilson is still active in his business which he has operated for the past fifty years. He seems, from all outward appearances to be enjoying his ripe old age to the fullest degree, still retaining all his faculties.

Mr. Wilson was for 44 years clerk of the municipality up to 1934, when he retired from municipal affairs. At the age of 19, (two years under age, he confided to the Examiner) he was tax collector for the village for three years. After which, he was a member of the council for eight years.

Hard work and a good clean life, are what he claims to be the reasons for attaining his longevity. He also believes in a certain amount of sport and insists that young people must have it in order to feel right. He told of walking to and from Norwood in his younger days and if a horse and buggy would overtake him, he would prefer to race the horse to either village, rather than ride.

An Ancient Cane

Among his treasured possessions is a blackthorn cane presented to him by Phillip Kennedy, one time merchant here, for good conduct when he was a boy about 65 years ago and a pocket watch presented to him by the village council, when he retired from the clerkship.

His wife predeceased him three years ago and he now resides with his son Harold, who is a partner with his father in the hardware business. His second son Jack is editor of the Hastings Star. He has four grandchildren and one great grandchild.

At the age of eighteen Mr. Wilson started in business for himself in harness making. After fourteen years at this trade he started up his hardware business, which was bought from his brother Tom. He laughed as he recalled an evening in his boyhood days, when Tom Hopkins and he were driving home in a horse and buggy from Campbellford at a late hour. The horse was totally blind and it was pitch dark and the horse was continually going off the road into the ditch, carrying the two occupants of the buggy along with it. After they had carved a zig-zag path on the road for a few miles (both men being thoroughly disgusted with their plight) they eventually obtained a lantern at a farm house and were able to proceed home without further delay. "Tommie Hopkins will remember the night," he declared.

Interested In Sport

Mr. Wilson, as a young man, took a keen interest in sports of all kinds. Cricket and lacrosse were his favorite sports although he won a good many foot races, one time carrying off most of the prizes at Cobourg fair. He was also identified as band leader here for a good many years in the Hastings band.

He recalled in his boyhood days, that Hastings had a population twice as large as it is now. Several disastrous fires swept the business section of the village and the last one in 1907, which destroyed all business places west of Bridge street, had a tendency to retard the growth of the village, he believes. He also recalled in the spring of 1870, when Front street was flooded for two weeks. While this was on, it was not unusual to see the residents calling for their mail at the postoffice in boats. He states, Front street was much lower then and since that date it has been built up four feet at the main corner and portions of Front street east.

In religion, Mr. Wilson has always been a staunch Presbyterian, taking part in all its activities. He was a member of the choir for many years and at present is a member of the property committee.

The staff correspondent, on behalf of the Peterborough Examiner's many readers, join with Mr. Wilson's host of friends, in extending to him, congratulations and best wishes for many more years of health and happiness.

Sweden has fewer than 10,000 registered unemployed, or less than half the number a year ago.

A Business Veteran

The oldest business man in Hastings, Alex Wilson celebrates his 82nd birthday today. For 44 years Mr. Wilson was clerk for the municipality previous to his retirement in 1934. He also has the distinction of being the oldest resident native of Hastings. He was identified with the Hastings band and a member of the village council as well as his proficiency as a runner in his younger days.

SUCCESS IS SCORED BY JAPANESE PLAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 4. — The glamor of a tea garden in Japan, with its cherry blossoms and bevy of lovelyGeisha girls, was attractively presented before a large audience in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Wednesday evening, when the musical comedy, "Miss Cherry Blossom," with Mrs. H. R. Scott in the title role, was given by the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church, under the direction of Arthur Collison.

The group of American girls, in dainty afternoon and evening gowns, brought the beauty of the Occident in contrast to that of the Orient; and the men from the Western Hemisphere, also in their white trousers and dark blue coats, emphasized the difference in type between themselves and the two characters, Kokemo (Carlos Palmer), the supposedly "honorable parent" of Miss Cherry Blossom, and Togo (Walter Farr), her unsuccessful but politically powerful suitor, who wore distinctively Japanese costumes.

Choruses, solos and duets, after the Gilbert & Sullivan type, clever dialogue, brilliant costumes, suitable lighting effects, together with the threads of romance woven throughout the comedy, kept the audience delightfully entertained for the entire evening.

The concert was under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Church; the rector, Venerable Archdeacon Simpson, welcoming the audience, and introducing the players. After the entertainment, the Guild served lunch to the visitors before they left for home.

BAZAAR SCORES DECIDED SUCCESS

WARKWORTH, Dec. 4. — The annual bazaar and home cooking sale sponsored by St. John's Anglican Guild on Saturday afternoon in the Community Hall was a decided success. The table of fancy work and useful articles was well patronized but the home cooking with its array of cakes, pies, rolls, home-made bread, tarts, etc, and the table of dressed fowl was completely sold out. Several enjoyed the social cup of tea and cake before leaving. The members of the Guild appreciate the support of the community in helping to make their bazaar one of the best in years, the proceeds amounting to $60.00.

Their farm of 395 acres is situated along the shores of Mud Lake, and is well cared for by sufficient and capable hired help. They have many friends who ever enjoy their hospitality.

80 Guests Attend.

Over 80 guests responded to an invitation to attend their wedding anniversary. Dinner was served from 1 p.m. till 5 p.m. in the dining-room, where the color scheme was of old gold and white. A large wedding ring, decorated with old gold crepe paper, was suspended from the ceiling, interlaced with yellow roses, overhanging a beautifully iced five-storey wedding cake which formed the centrepiece of the bride's and groom's table. The cake was made by Mrs. Percy Moore of Warsaw (a niece of Mrs. Scea). Gold flowers adorned the top of the cake. A lovely bouquet of pink and white carnations and potted cyclamen adorned the tables.

The menu consisted of roast goose, potatoes, carrots, turnips, salads, cold ham, jellies, with whipped cream, pies of various kinds, wedding cake, bananas, oranges and grapes. The bride cut the wedding cake which proved to be delicious, with generous servings to each guest and an extra piece taken home "to dream on."

The waitresses were Misses Margaret Brown, Martha Mack, Lena Cowell, B. G. French, Mrs. George Mack, Mrs. Jack Lloyd, Mrs. Gavin Buchanan, Mrs. Charles Houghton, and Mrs. Emma King.

During the serving of the tables Miss B. G. French rendered appropriate old familiar numbers softly on the piano. Rev. S. A. Kemp, the toastmaker, proposed a toast to the King, all joining in singing the National Anthem. A toast to the bride and groom was ably responded to by the daughter, Mrs. Wesley Aulthouse, the company singing "For they are jolly good fellows", and to the guests, was responded to by the Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, pastor of Warsaw United Church.

The guests enjoyed community singing led by Mrs. Wilkinson, with Miss B. G. French at the piano.

Congratulations Read.

During the afternoon Rev. S. A. Kemp read a letter of congratulations from friends signed by Mr. Kemp, Robert Summers, and Percy Moore of Warsaw. Although "no presents" were requested, Mr. and Mrs. Scea were the recipients of many beautiful cards, suitable for the event, also a bouquet of lovely carnations from the Ladies' Aid of Trent River Church.

During the day G. Bailey, photographer of Campbellford, took pictures of the bride and groom with the wedding cake, of the immediate family, and also a group picture of relatives. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson concluded the program with prayer and the benediction.

QUEENSBOROUGH CATTLE GET FLU

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 4.—Several farmers in the vicinity of Queensborough have had serious losses among their cattle from some form of cattle flu, the cows dying in a short time after becoming sick. Very little seems to be known about the disease except that it is very contagious and is supposed to have been brought into the district by western cattle.

Dr. P. T. Bowlby, of Tweed has been attending the sick herds and vaccinating them which seems to be checking the disease some although the farmers have had severe losses and a number of herds are still affected.

Arrested on a charge of possession of a still suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor, Fred Woodcock, Kaladar appeared before a Justice of the Peace on Friday and was remanded in custody for trial. Woodcock was apprehended near his home on Thursday night by the R.C.M.P., following a raid upon his premises, which resulted in the confiscation of an illicit still.

ST. JAMES', EMILY

The regular meeting was held in the hall on Friday evening with an attendance of about 30. The meeting was opened with a hymn and prayer followed by the roll call. During the evening arrangements were made for the visit of the members of Christ church, Omemee, on Thursday evening. Mr. Johnson very kindly introduced the speaker, Rev. T. S. Galt of St. George's, Peterborough. Mr. Galt stressed that the responsibility of the church lay on the youth of today; that successful missionary work would have to be carried on by more modern methods than that of a generation ago.

ST. JOHN'S, LAKEFIELD

The regular meeting of St. John's A.Y.P.A., Lakefield, was held in the Parish Hall on Monday night. Twenty-three members and three visitors were present.

Miss Florence Hutchinson of St. John's branch, Peterborough, gave a very interesting address on the history of the A.Y.P.A. The society was founded in 1902 by Canon Brown, of St. James' Parish, Paris, Ont. It is made up of four divisions, the local branches, district councils, provincial councils and Dominion councils. The motto of the society is "For Christ and the Church" and the fourfold principals are "Work, Worship, Fellowship and Edification."

The social part of the meeting was in charge of John Marshall of St. John's, Peterborough. It opened with a very enjoyable sing-song, followed by solos by Miss Rose Puddick, of St. John's, Peterborough. A number of interesting games and contests were played. Following refreshments Miss P. Earnshaw, on behalf of the local society, thanked the visitors from St. John's Peterborough, for attending the meeting and helping very materially in making the evening such a success.

Seven tables of euchre were played at the card party held in the Parish Hall, under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. The prize-winners were Mrs. J. Hayes and M. TROOP LEADERS RECEIVE CARDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 4. — "One of the most important things in the world to-day is to save our boys; our work is mainly preventive," E. T. Jones, Toronto, field secretary for the Boy Scout Association of Ontario, told an enthusiastic gathering of nearly one hundred and fifty Scouts at a banquet held in the Parish Hall, Rear Street, on Friday evening. Addressing the boys of the Campbellford troop he said: "You are quite young in this movement, and you will learn a great many things to your advantage." Scouts must try to learn to do things and do them in the right way. "Boys will be boys." It is true, but we must not forget that these same boys will be men. We are dealing in the Scout movement with the material which will take our places in the years to come—"boys who are now at their most critical ages."

Although boys' work is often discouraging, it is a source of great satisfaction to the leaders of this movement, "no matter how discouraged a leader may become," to realize that he is dealing with one of the most important things in the world to-day, the "work of saving our boys."

Cub Work Interesting.

Referring to the Cub work which he claimed the leaders found most interesting due to the pliable nature of these young minds, the speaker stated that this work was quite different from that done by the Scouts, where the work was more advanced. Cubs are divided into sixes with the leader of the other five being known as the Sixer, which he referred to as a great little man. Mr. Jones urged the Cubs not to neglect the small things as the big things would take care of themselves. A good Scout is a fellow who knows how to play the game.

In closing, the speaker paid a tribute to Scoutmaster Charles Collard, whom he commended to the boys for the work he was doing among them in their fast-growing group.

An interesting feature of the meeting, which was presided over by Dr. Hugh R. McLaren, was the presentation of Registration Cards to the troop leaders, scoutmaster, and his assistants by N. Alex. McColl, secretary of the Troop Committee, who referred to the Scout work as a most valuable field which gave the boys a most important foundation for their lives. Mr. McColl then presented the registration cards to Scoutmaster Collard, Assistant Scoutmasters Hilton Beatty and Ronald Hazel, and to Patrol Leaders J. M. Bell, W. Phillips, and Jim Seguire.

Prizes Awarded.

The prizes awarded to the Scouts who had turned in the most money on Apple Day were awarded by Hilton Beatty to Jack Tinney, Gibson Bradbury, and Dick Nesbitt. Mr. Beatty drew attention to the fact that although the group was not completely organized it was a source of great satisfaction to those taking an interest in the work to see the number of new boys enrolling each week.

Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ Church, a former member of the 34th Toronto Scout Troop, introduced the speaker of the evening.

Rev. B. Simpson Black proposed the toast to the Scout Movement of America to which Scoutmaster Collard replied, saying that it was his hope that the troop would be one of which the citizens of Campbellford could be proud and "judging by this large gathering I am led to believe that the citizens are really behind the Scouts."

Other guests at the head table were Scoutmasters George Brown, Frankford, Shaw McEwen, Trenton, and Don Craighead, Norwood. Captain D. Sharp of the Salvation Army led in prayer, and Messrs. R. C. Ramsden and Albert Hazel assisted in the community singing.

Mrs. W. Houghtalling had something new in contests. The contest called for poetry writing ability. The prize went to Mrs. L. Sherwin, Mrs. A. Nill and Missea Jean George and Alma Thackeray.

During the business period it was decided to hold a party in January, and a committee was appointed to arrange details.

The meeting was held in the town hall. Mrs. J. W. Pacey was the hostess and the president, Mrs. B. Thackeray presided.

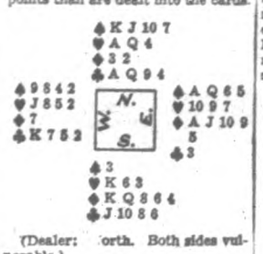
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

A LUCRATIVE DEVICE

BUSINESS doubles of doubtful overcalls constitute the most lucrative point getting device in the game. In fact, they give you the principal means you ever can have to obtain by your own action more points than are dealt into the cards.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

This deal came up in a recent duplicate and various results were obtained. At one table North started with 1-Club, East overcalled with 1-Diamond, South bid 3-Clubs, North 3-Spades and South 3-No Trump.

At another table North bid 1-Club, East 1-Diamond and South doubled. This North-South pair scored a plus 800 for their side.

Where the 3-No Trump was reached 3-No Trump was made at some tables and 4-No Trump at others.

The best score on the board, however, was earned by the South player who figured his side could earn much more by doubling a vulnerable opponent, even at the level of one, than by going on to a game. His reasoning was correct and as a result he was rewarded with a top score on the board.

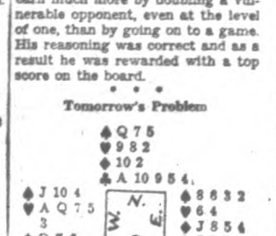
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What play should South try to make his contract of 3-No Trump, after the lead of the heart 5, and what play by West can prevent him from doing so?

GETS SEVEN DAYS FOR ASSAULTING MOTHER-IN-LAW

LINDSAY, Dec. 4— Sniping at your mother-in-law is dangerous business, especially when the latter invokes the law for her protection. At Friday mornings session of the police court a young married man from Fenelon Falls, named Tipling, was sentenced to seven days in jail for assaulting his mother-in-law. According to the latter's evidence, she visited the home of the accused to see her daughter, who was ill. In a fit of anger, she declared, the accused seized her about the waist and throat. The accused in giving evidence, charged that his mother-in-law had nagged him and had thrown a loaf of bread.

Charles McLean, of Woodville, the young man who is charged with attempted suicide, appeared before Magistrate Gee Friday and was remanded for a week on his own request.

An Obstruction Charge.

Roy Teel, of Kirkfield, was charged in police court with obstructing police officers in discharge of their duties. Teel was one of the men found in the Fitzgerald home by the police last week when a raid was made and a quantity of liquor seized. He threw away a bottle of beer when the police arrived and this constituted an obstruction. County Crown Attorney Anderson remarked that a great many people in this district think they are smart. In future if any person attempts to destroy evidence in the manner referred to, they will be charged with an indictable offence, said the County Crown Attorney.

A Raid Aftermath.

Six persons faced Magistrate Gee to face charges following a raid on the home of T. Fitzgerald, of Victoria Road. Mrs. T. Fitzgerald with having liquor illegally and was fined $100 and costs; Chas. McNarney, who was found in and having liquor illegally, was also assessed $100 and costs; Clement Cunningham paid $25.00 for consuming, and Dennis McNarney $10.000 and costs for a similar offence. C. G. Frost appeared for the accused and protested against the severity of the fines.

Church Problems Subject Of Series

Wilfred F. Butcher, M.A., of University College, Toronto, and a member of the graduating class of Knox College, who was a delegate to the World Conferences on Faith and Order at Edinburgh and Oxford, will be in the city on December 13th to give a series of addresses, representing his reaction to these momentous gatherings of world churchmen. He will address the Ministerial Association in the forenoon on the subject: "What is the Oecumenical Movement?" Then he will attend Rotary, and speak on "Personal glimpses of Leaders of the World-Church". For the people of the city and vicinity, a public meeting will be held in St. Andrew's United Church, where he will review the proceedings of both conferences under the heading; "The World Church in Conference". It is hoped that the members of the churches of the city will avail themselves of the opportunity provided to acquaint themselves with the issues confronting the Christian Church all over the world.

Disliked Cruelty So He Kills Man

FLORENCE, Ariz., Dec. 4 (AP).—Curly Fipps loves horses.

When somebody told him a rancher named Henry Towner had mutilated a horse, the 19-year-old cowboy brooded.

A few days later Towner was found shot dead. Joe Flieger, another rancher was arrested. County Attorney Virgil Chandler theorized the shooting was another chapter in the bloody "haunted coral" feud.

Then Curly—his real name is Cecil—confessed he had killed Towner in a quarrel over the horse. Flieger was released.

Yesterday Curly pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to 20 to 90 years.

BEATEN TO DEATH

Because one of the persons he had treated had died, Mguni, a witch-doctor, was beaten to death when he went down into a mine near Glenroe, South Africa, to collect fees.

Run Down—Tired Out Only Weighed 96 lbs.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are what weak, nervous, run down men and women need to help make them strong and well again.

They are a well balanced tonic for the treatment of those whose nerves are shattered, and for those feelings of faintness, weakness and dizziness caused by an overworked, run down constitution, or whose health is not up to par.

They help to infuse new life and energy into depressed, health shattered men and women who have come to think there is no relief for them.

Mrs. P. Broughton, Fenwick, Ont., writes:—"I was so run down and tired out all the time I did not care whether my housework was done or not.

I only weighed 96 pounds, but after taking three boxes of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I now weigh 122 pounds, and do my own work for eight in the family.

Collegiate Notes

THE BIG GAME

Rugby has been the talk of the school for the past week. For the third consecutive year the P.C.V.S. senior rugby team captured the C.O.S.S.A. title and the Dr. Neal Trophy when they defeated Barrie seniors 12-6 last Saturday morning on the back campus of the Toronto University.

This afternoon Runnymede Collegiate of Toronto played the P.C.I. squad in a sudden-death game for the Ontario championship. The student body set no limit in demonstrating their enthusiasm over the team's fine record and the final game of the season. The teams were given a fine send off by scores who paraded from the school to the gridiron, with colours flying and the school flag supreme, the parade was headed by Hugh Davidson and the school brass band. A fine school spirit was shown by the students' loud united cheers from the side lines directed by cheer leaders Gwenie Bond and Ted Clarke.

Theatre-goers gave the rugby team a fine reception when they were introduced by David Brown from the stage of the Capitol Theatre Friday evening.

LITERARY MEETING

A pleasant program was presented last Friday afternoon by the Literary Society, forms 4B, 3A, 3B, 3C, and 3D participating.

"The life of Handel" was vividly dramatized by a cast of 44 pupils, assisted by Eileen Wild and Isobel Graham at the piano. Fine costumes were worn, effectively portraying styles and customs of that time. The roles of Handel at three different ages, were taken by Wray Mathews, Rae Borland and Meredith Miller. The play was conducted by Miss Muir, the music by Miss MacGregor and the scenes were introduced by Betty Kirn.

MOVING PICTURES

An interesting selection of moving pictures was presented by V. R. Henry in the school auditorium Monday after school. The program included pictures of the West Indies, Fishing on the Nipigon, the Gulf Stream, bears of Jasper National Park, and a comedy "Felix the Cat." This was the last group of pictures of the season.

CHRISTMAS EXAMINATIONS

Lower school students are not very happy these days since their Christmas examinations began this week. The examinations have been shortened to one hour, and will not alone decide the pupils standing. The marks of the Christmas exams will be averaged with the marks of several tests, which were written at intervals throughout the past three months. Middle and Upper School pupils write no Christmas examination but will have a set early in the new year.

Apparently the seats in the assembly hall are too comfortable. During a study period Thursday morning, the presiding teacher found a student quietly enjoying a morning nap. After being awakened, he explained that he was getting a little sleep lost in the late hours of the previous evening "doing homework" (?)

SHORT ENDS

School Christmas cards arrived Thursday morning and are being distributed among the pupils . . . Capt. Mary McPherson and her fifth form ball team won the senior volleyball pennant by defeating 3 Commercial, the runners-up in the finals, ... 2B Commercial captured the junior inter-form title . . . . . The boys' and girls' Glee Club held daily practices this week in preparation for the Commencement Exercises Friday afternoon . . . . The octette chorus did not introduce a new song this Friday, but has planned something special to be presented next week.

Prices of Japanese textiles are rising in India and buyers there are turning to Indian products.

Had Monster Tapeworm

This is my little girl's picture about one month after being relieved of a 15-foot tapeworm by Mulvaney's famous tapeworm remedy. She had been under medical care for months and was treated for bronchitis. Finally it was discovered she had tapeworm. After taking one dose of Mulvaney's famous tapeworm remedy she was relieved of the tapeworm, head and all. I cannot speak too highly of this remedy. . . From one that is very grateful.—Mrs. M. L. B., Sackville St., Toronto, Ont.

OTHER TYPES OF WORMS.

People will also have round worms, whip worms, awl tail grubs, spike worms, pin worms, thread worms and even lizards. Only too often children as well as adults are given salts, magnesia, cod liver oils, salts, pain pills, tonics, pin remedies, bed-wetting remedies, etc., when their true need is a worm remedy. Mulvaney's "MOTHER'S FRIEND" is available at most drug stores; this remedy expels those different types of worms, it is also a laxative and it is very soothing for the nerves, cools fevers and tones the entire system. That means that it is bound to do you good in many ways, even if worms are not your trouble. Every one should take a worm remedy just as a precaution. It is impossible to prevent worms, as the invisible eggs gain access to the intestines through leafy vegetables, fruits, meats, fish and impure drinking water. Flies also carry these tiny eggs. They are also on pets. Don't wait for the more serious symptoms. Make sure that worms are not your trouble. Go to your family druggist and purchase a bottle of Mulvaney's "MOTHER'S FRIEND." Take according to direction and if you have worm trouble you will see them as they pass out into the exterior. If you think you have tapeworm, write us direct, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for quick reply. The tapeworm treatment can only be purchased direct from us. The Mother's Friend can be supplied to you by your druggist. He can always get it for you. Try it today. R. L. Mulvaney's Remedies Limited, Dept. B-16, 311 Ossington Ave., Toronto, Canada. If you happen to be in Toronto call and see us. Telephone LI. 7338.

Soviet Polar Camp In Danger As Ice Floe Drifts

Wireless report from the Soviet Arctic camp near the North Pole to Soviet authorities in Moscow, indicates the party of four Russian scientists is in peril because of drifting ice according to London sources who reported picking up the message. The party, living in the shadow of the pole since last May, is on an ice floe which has rapidly drifted 600 miles from the pole towards Greenland. The men who landed on ice 15 miles beyond the pole are living in tents, and the camp is shown in the upper photograph. In the lower centre is a map showing the Arctic area with an arrow indicating the direction in which they are reported drifting. Leader of the scientific group is Ivan Papanin (LEFT). Radio operator Ernest Krenkel is shown next to Papanin with Pyotr Shirshoff, hydrobiologist and Eugene Federoff magnetologist at the (RIGHT).

Risks Life, Saves 2, Gets Medal

DETROIT, Dec. 4—(AP).—An 11-year-old school safety patrolman who saved two pupils and then flattened himself between railroad tracks while a train thundered over him on October 16, was awarded an American Legion gold medal last night for valor.

The medallist, William Chundrlik, was hustling the two pupils across the track when his heel became caught in a railroad tie. He pushed them to safety, pulled out of the shoe and "pancaked" into the roadbed just ahead of a train. He was unhurt.

"Sure I was scared," he said. "I knew the train would hit me if I didn't get under it right. I just kind of made myself thin, and prayed."

Parking Royalty Not Privileged

LONDON, Dec. 4—(AP).—Royal prerogatives do not embrace special parking privileges, King George has decided, weeks after taxi drivers, police, and the Duchess of Kent brought the problem into the limelight.

On October 14, police forced taxi drivers to desert their stand in front of a West-end restaurant because the Duchess of Kent, dining inside, had her car parked outside. The cabbies protested by driving slowly around the West-end, slowing down traffic.

The King, it was disclosed to-day, held that members of the Royal Family will have to take their chances on finding parking space unless they are on official engagements.

BAYER PROTECTS 'ASPIRIN' MARK

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—The Bayer Company Limited having brought actions to restrain infringement of its registered trade mark "Aspirin" the Exchequer Court of Canada has given judgment against its five defendants. In each case the Exchequer Court perpetually restrains the defendants Ivan Lambert, Joseph Nosik, Standard Bottlers and Packers Ltd., B. Neuman and Joe Beckman from using the trade mark "Aspirin" on preparations put out by themselves and awards the Bayer Company costs and damages.

The defendants were marketing the infringing product under various names including Pioneer Sales Co., Western Sales Co., Western Distributing Co., Advance Specialty Co. and Acme Specialty Company. The tablets labelled "Aspirin" were not of Bayer manufacture and were packed in small envelopes, each containing three or four tablets, and mounted on cards.

Old Custom Fails In Court

DETROIT—An old Maltese custom of choosing a bride by photograph backfired in the case of Albert Seguna of Detroit, and led to a suit which brought $50 back. Seguna gave Charles Camilleri $50 to bring Camilleri's sister from Malta that he might marry her. Seguna became ill, decided not to marry. Camilleri refused to refund the $50, so Seguna sued.

LEADING PUPILS ARE ANNOUNCED FOR COLLEGIATE

Diplomas Are Awarded At P.C.V.I. Exercises

Wilda Saunders, special commercial and Ronald Dick, fifth former were acclaimed head girl and boy respectively at Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School commencement exercises on Friday afternoon.

They were singled out for honor by Principal Dr. H. R. H. Kenner for their scholarship, character, leadership and interest in sports. Miss Saunders who received a special prize awarded by Mrs. R. F. Downey, B.A., is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saunders, Dennistoun Ave., and Mr. Dick who received the Melville C. Robinson Memorial prize and the principal's special prize is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Dick, Rubidge street.

Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman of the Board of Education presided at the function, being accompanied on the platform by Harold G. Walker, chairman of the property committee; Public School Inspector K. S. Wightman; Charles Shaw; and Adrian Macdonald, M.A., who delivered the address to the graduating class.

Inspiring Address

In an address that was packed with inspiration and sound advice and which sparkled with humor, Mr. Macdonald reminded the graduates they were about to go out into the world of business and industry. But he counseled, "Be determined to go out and look at life as it really it, with the firm resolve to do something to justify your existence and make a few people glad you were born."

He also gave them a six point code on which they might base their future, urging them not to be narrow-minded; to be decisive; to be happy without making happiness a duty; to cultivate a proper self-respect; to dream dreams but to do something about them; and finally to be courageous.

Peter Demos, an undergraduate at Queen's University and son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Demos of this city delivered the valedictory address. He reached Peterborough from Kingston by the "hitch-hike" route just a few minutes before he was due to appear on the program and urged his former fellow students, "Let us on this day of commencement uncover and bring to the light our elusive ambitions and determinations and set forth with typical P.C.I. spirit to conquer the future, come what may."

Tribute To Teachers

Mr. Demos paid a tribute to the teaching staff at the Collegiate who guided us through crucial years, and acknowledged, "We have been moulded by careful hands that our best qualities, both intellectual and physical might be brought forth. A greater service can never have been done anyone. Now equipped with ideals and vigor, it is our duty to go forth and uphold the trust placed in us."

A special prize for "loyalty," which was in the nature of a surprise item on the program was awarded to Haig Kelly, captain of the school rugby team. Dr. F. C. Neal presented the Neal trophy emblematic of the C.O.S.S.A. championship.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

Christmas trees gave a seasonable touch to the market this morning. Several truckloads were to be found on the Market Square.

VISITED PETERBOROUGH.

G. Macintyre (correct) of Toronto Chief Supervisor of branches for the Bank of Nova Scotia was a visitor to Peterborough on Friday.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The last regular monthly meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday night, although there will likely be another session about the middle of the month.

PLAYERS INTRODUCED.

The players of the Peterborough Collegiate rugby team, C.O.S.S.A. champions, were presented to the audience of the Capital Theatre from the stage on Friday night, the squad being introduced by W. E. Jackson of the Collegiate staff.

COUNTIES COUNCIL MEETING.

Reeve Fred G. Waterman of South Monaghan informed the Examiner today the concluding sessions of the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham will open at Cobourg next Tuesday.

CITY PAYS ELECTION BILL.

The provincial elections cost the city $1,500, and the bill was passed by the finance committee of the council with Mayor Mcdonald's comment, "It is just too bad the municipality has to pay the cost of a provincial election."

BIGGEST CROWD YET.

Citizens this morning were commenting upon the size of the crowd which turned out to see the Santa Claus parade on Friday night. Fred Tuggey remarked today that he thought there were more people on the streets for the parade than he had ever seen at any one time here since he came to Peterborough, and others expressed the same opinion.

CHINESE LILLIES AVAILABLE.

Despite reports from the Far East that the Sino-Jap war is to deprive Canadians of their beautiful Chinese lillies, the bulbs which produce these beautiful plants are still to be bought in Peterborough's Chinese cafes, it was noted today. Whether present stocks will be replenished when they are exhausted is doubtful.

AIR MINDED ALDERMAN.

Alderman Dutton's proposal to the Board of Works that some steps should be taken to obtain a federal airport for Peterborough has been noted for further consideration. Transportation by air, he said, will develop more rapidly than did the general use of the automobile, and this city should endeavor to secure a place on the air lines the federal government is planning.

STEAL 50 POUNDS OF BUTTER.

Another robbery was on the record to-day to add to the total of recent unsolved break-ins throughout the city. When employees of the Sunshine Dairy went to open the premises for business this morning they discovered entry had been forced to the building and fifty pounds of butter stolen. The break-in was accomplished by the breaking of a pane of glass on a door at the rear of the premises, being the identical method used in previous recent burglaries.

PUNCHBOARDS ARE NUMEROUS.

The practice of securing some extra money for Christmas shopping through the medium of pocket punchboards, offering varied prizes to lucky customers, seem to have developed into a craze. These travelling gambling devices are so plentiful that one waggish citizen suggests that the operators should wear badges so they would not be wasting time trying to sell punches to each other. Some of the youthful proprietors of these boards have been unlucky enough to attract the attention of the police, and some explanations will be in order.

12 PASS EXAMINATIONS.

Twelve employees of local factories were successful this week in passing examinations of St. John Ambulance Association, which followed a two-month course of lectures and practical work under the auspices of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. Dr. R. K. Magee was lecturer, and E L Tomkins instructor in bandaging and transport. The examinations were conducted by Dr. G. Murray Fraser. Successful candidates were A. Ball, J. Baschianno, P. Constable, W. Devlin, D. F. Gardiner, S. B. Hope, J. A. Segar, H. Sellon, A. O. Phillips, B. Robertson, and A. Stanley.

Pork appeared on the Farmers' Market this morning in large volume as farmers began their early winter killing. Front and hindquarters brought 12 and 14 cents a pound generally, some asking 13 and 15 cents. Lamb was 15 and 17 cents and beef 8 and 10 cents.

The trio escaped in a truck. Lockport is about 30 miles south-west of Chicago. The clerk wounded in fire from pistols was John West. Police Chief Fred Lindner was assaulted by the robbers.

DUKE WAS MADE THE VICTIM OF SILK INDUSTRY

Wore Red Silk Tie To Promote Sales

A story of how the Duke of Windsor as Prince of Wales was used as the innocent tool of smart American advertisers in promoting the sale of a huge surplus of red silk in America was told for the first time by Jules Livingstone, internationally known advertising counsel, as he addressed the Friday Night Supper Club last night.

Withholding the identity of the principals in the unusual affair, Mr. Livingstone related that one year before Edward's accession to the throne, big United States silk manufacturers guessed wrong in anticipating a big demand for red silk in women's styles in the coming season. The manufacturers could see nothing but a complete loss on the great stock so called in certain advertising counsellors for advice, he said.

Tough Problem

"It was a tough problem but after a couple of weeks the counsellors went to the manufacturers and said they had an idea they would try," the advertising man said. "They sent a couple of men over to London and the men went to one of the Prince of Wales' secretaries. They asked if it was true the Prince of Wales was greatly interested in the support of a certain hospital. Being told that was true, they asked the secretary if the Prince would mind if they contributed $10,000 to the hospital."

Mr. Livingstone told of the ashtonishment of the secretary in assuring the men the Prince would have no objection.

A Red Tie

"The only thing the Prince has to do for that contribution is to wear a red silk tie when he appear at Ascot next week," the men informed the secretary. In due time the secretary conferred with the Prince and the Prince agreed to fulfil the simple requirement."

The speaker related that the Prince's appearance at the most fashionable race meet of the world wearing a red silk tie was flashed by wire throughout the world within a matter of hours. A heavy demand for similar red silk ties sprang up in both Europe and America immediately, he said.

"In 20 days the entire surplus stock of red silk was gone and the silk manufacturers had to start manufacturing more red silk to make more red neckties."

The speaker told the story to illustrate a point that the man whose business it is to sell goods to the public must know human nature. The men who induced the Prince to wear the red tie knew human nature through and through, he remarked.

Be Yourself

"If you know people you can be a success at whatever you want to be," he continued. "One way to know people is to yourself without pretence or affectation. Following that simple formula you cannot help but attract friends."

He warned against following slavishly such books as Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People." All the reader should do is adapt some of what he reads to his own personality, he said.

Warning against the tendency of business men to "put on their high hat and false whiskers and take up a cane" when they sit down to write a business letter, the speaker said more and more informality is the rule. The up and coming business man of tomorrow will write his business letters in the same way he would talk to the recipient of the letter if her were face to face with him."

Brought to Peterborough by the invitation of Charles Shaw, club chairman, Mr. Livingstone was introduced by Elton Johnson, prominent Toronto advertising man.

Anti-Nazi League Revives Boycott For Max's Fight

Promoter Jacobs Can't Understand Why The 'Pick' On Schmeling

(By Central Press Canadian)

The anti-Nazi boycott which led to substitution of Joe Louis for Max Schmeling in the heavyweight championship bout against James J. Braddock last June, has been revived for Schmeling's 15-rounder against Harry Thomas at New York on Dec. 13.

A member of the non-sectarian Anti-Nazi league has been dispatched to parade up and down in front of Promoter Mike Jacobs' offices at the New York Hippodrome, 6th Ave. and 43rd St., bearing a sign boycotting the contest.

Jacobs Can't Understand

Although the action is not expected materially to hurt ticket sales, the manoeuvre is getting on Jacobs' nerves.

"Bicycle riders, tennis players, automobile racers, and other sports notables from Germany compete in events in this country and they aren't disturbed," Jacobs said. "I can't understand why the league picks on a fighter."

The reason is obvious in the case of Schmeling. President Samuel Untermyer of the society, under whose direction the campaign against Schmeling is being conducted, believes that after the match, German Max will leave the country with a large purse.

The syndicate is striving to prevent German citizens from taking American-made money out of the country.

Gets $139,483 for Beating Louis

Schmeling received $139,483 for his knockout conquest of Louis in 1936, which was 30 per cent. of the

Max Schmeling . . . not perturbed

$547,175 gate at Yankee stadium. He'll be paid 45 per cent. of the receipts from his forthcoming contest with Thomas. Inasmuch as the proceeds may amount to $100,000, Max' end will be sufficient to make the trip from his home in Bad-Saarow worth his while.

The Garden is scaled to net $121,000. Top price for admission tickets is $16.50.

Picked from Among Five

Max refuses to guess the result of the conflict, pleading that he's never seen Thomas perform. Nevertheless, the former title holder was among those who picked Slugger Harry's name from a list of five eligibles as the first of two men he'll fight before he meets Champion Louis next June. The others were Nathan Mann, Al McCoy, Jimmy Adamick, and Izzy Gastanaga. Therefore, Max must know something about his 192-pound antagonist from Eagle Bend, Minn.

Max is to make a second appearance against Ben Frood at Hamburg, Jan. 30.

Fans are of the opinion that Thomas will be given a boxing lesson by Schmeling.

Thomas is working out at his establishment at Pompton Lakes, N.J. The drills are supervised by his representative, Nate Lewis of Chicago.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, this is being wrote of course Friday and I don't remember meeting so many mad folks as I been bumping into today. With 2 football teams in the finals for Ontario championships you wouldn thought the Peterborough rugby fans would be about the happiest bunch of birds in Canada and they was to the time this week's tangle developed and left us with the crazy position of having 2 final games scheduled here for the same day. A guy can't be in 2 places to once and as most of the folks here has been following both local teams all season and is dead anxious to see them battle in their final tests for the title the lads and lasses all feel like they bin robbed when they gotta miss 1 or the other. How the situation was ever allowed to get into such a mixup I can't see nor can I see how the O. R. F. U. authorities which handles both series kept passing the buck all week instead of unravelling the tangle. Another mystery is how P. C. I. whose turn it was to play at Riverside Park got shunted out of there. It looks like the Orfuns pulled a sleeper play on that 1. The whole mess has left a bad taste and put a large-sized blemish on what has been one of the best football seasons yet.

For the 3rd Time

Last Saturday, Mac The P. C. I. won the Cossa title for the third time in a row by beating Barrie 12 to 6 in Toronto. The Bamforth brigade was in front all the way; in fact Barrie did not score until the P.C.I.'s anti-pass defence forgot to function in the last minute of play and the Northerners tossed theirselfs a touch down. Outside of this Mister Dyte—the hockey fans can't of forgotten that guy—the P. C. I. lads had a big edge and win without trotting some of their Sunday plays outa the cupboard.

Orfuns go to Town

Here the Orfuns went to town in a big way by beating Toronto city club by 27 to 0. The local gang pulled all kinds of razzle dazzle stuff on a muddy field to run up a big score and while the Toronto gang showed some effective football at times they had nothing to match the kinds technique the Orfuns was dishing out all the way. The gang from Toronto, a talkative bunch, had a lotta things to say about the officials and the field but they failed to talk theirselfs into any points and that is what they pay off in.

Sour Judging

I was up to the bix fites in the Brock St. arena Wed. nite and the local club deserves credit for putting on a fine show. I wish I could say as much about the judging but that aint possible. To my mind they was 3 decisions that was about as far off the mark as any set of judges could get. Everybody likes to see home boys make good but when visitors win by a city block they aint no satisfaction in having the local talent handed a win on a tray. It would have been bad enough to have called them a draw but to give decisions to fighters what was many points down on the score cards is no way to build up the game here or make it easy to bring good boys in. A pug which thinks anything of himself don't like to be taken for a ride by a bunch of hometown judges and the Toronto gang here the other nite was plenty sore—and no wonder.

Well, Mac that is about the works. By the way did you hear about the fair rugby fan who was so dumb she thought the deadline was where the football victims was piled until the ambulance called for them. More anon.

Sportfully Yours,
A. Wise Cracker.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'uckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BALMY BREEZES blow around the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool, and will continue through the cold spell. And refreshing summer activities go on regardless of wintry blasts up and down the main stem. Gord Minty, "Y" swim director, was telling us that there is much aquatic interest there these days. Some 30 men, who couldn't swim a stroke ere Oct. 1st, are in it up to their necks—taking the special instructions in swimming—and some have already passed the Beginners' Certificate. And 71 men and 110 boys are taking a series of five intermediate grade swimming tests, and so far 106 first, 67 second, 35 third and 22 fourth grade certificates have been given out—a total of 230 or so. Alex Carlisle and Bill Ferguson are the first to complete the five grades. Advanced swimmers who have been studying life-saving for the past two months will try the "Y" test next Wednesday. Jim McClenaghan is examiner. Included among 'em is the "Unknown Man" of the Y.W. examinations of last month.

SOMEONE WALKED off with three pairs of boxing gloves Wednesday at the Brock. One set, a yellow pair, cost the Riverview A.C. $18, and the other set did not belong to the club. While some of the boxers were laying the canvas in the ring, the gloves were taken. It is hoped that any person knowing anything of this matter will get in touch with the writer or one of the club officials. Incidentally, the Riverview A.C. did well with its first show financially and cleared a big part of its organization debt.

ANNUAL MEETING of the Southend Hockey League will be held next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Sacred Heart rink. All those interested are invited to attend. They hope to elect officers, take entries and make general plans for the season. This is a lively circuit for young fellows—the intermediate section being formed later—and some fine puck fixtures are dished up every winter for southend players and fans. King Edward School won the bantam section last winter. Canucks took the midget series, and P.C.I. won the juvenile class. No entry fee in this loop and goal-pads and goal-sticks are supplied by the circuit.

IT IS just 30 years ago since Peterborough won an Ontario rugby championship. Quite a spell back, in 1907 to be exact. And the local team that year copped Provincial honors on Nov. 9th—whereas the present O.R.F.U. final series will not be completed until Dec. 11th, quite a difference. The oldtimers went on into Dominion playdowns, but let us draw the veil over that! Suffice to say, they lost out in Montreal on a snow-covered field while fur-wrapped fans (a few of 'em) drove to the contest in cutters over icy roads. Looks like history may repeat if Orfuns win late this year and meet Montreal in a sudden-death Canuck final.

* * * * * *

THAT OLD crew was a pretty fair one at that. They used no subs but lined up 14 huskies in the Ontario final fixture here. Manager Crowley handled the team and also played. The lineup was: Back, Mulhern; right half, Quinlan; left half, Crough; centre half, Colledge; quarter, Lundy; scrimmage, Deannard, O'Brien, Clarke; inside wings, Dilion, Dickson; middles, Hurtubise, Fitzgerald; outside wings, Crowley, O'Connor. Just 13 players are used nowadays, a flying wing, three halves, a quarter, snap, two insides, two middles and a pair of outsides. But a dozen subs are carried now, too.

* * * * * *

THEY DREW 550 fans at their final fray here in Peterborough back in '07. Guys with long moustaches and ladies with long skirts tramped the wooden sidewalks and over the low-lying Hunter St. bridge to cheer their heroes on. And when the gas lamps were lit at eventide, many a tavern resounded to the glee of the husky gladiators and their admirers. A glass of glee was but a nickel back in them thar days! The day after the game, many of the players jogged up and down the dirt road on George St. with the gal friend in a shiny buggy behind a high-steppin' livery horse. With or without a chaperone. The only players of that day left in town are Jack Deannard and Gene Hurtubise. Four or five have died and the rest have long left Peterborough.

* * * * * *

WE HOPE by now that some of the hard feelings between local rugby teams, P.C.I. and Orfuns, and local followers of these squads, have died down. There was a bit of bitterness apparent yesterday over the fact that both playoff games were being staged here the same day. The Runnymede-P.C.I. tilt at the Oval and the Dundas-Orfuns' scrap at Riverside. Officers of both clubs took verbal raps at the other, and the City Fathers hurriedly washed their hands of the matter of the awarding of Riverside Park to Orfuns instead of P.C.I.—putting the onus on the O.R.F.U. for settling matters. Well, the O.R.F.U. certainly did ball things up in a big way. They pulled one of the boniest (a new word) of boners—and this is the second time within a month they mixed grid dates in Peterborough. Time somebody was told something and with no stops pulled on the blast! Well, we hope both our teams win here today and peace is restored gradually. It sort of spoils a good gridiron season here, though, to have this sourness creep in at the end with two of our teams in Ontario finals.

* * * * * *

UP AND down Sports' Rialto: P.C.I. players got busy yesterday and sold a flock of tickets around town for their tilt at the Oval today . . . . Coach Bill Turnbull of the Orfuns told us yesterday: "I hate to see this trouble come up and I don't intend to make any enemies over it—not for any football game in the world!" . . . . He and the P.C.I. coach aren't battling at all—it was between the club officers . . . . What Orillia lacrosse star has been thinking of moving here? . . . . Church Cage Loop tilts tonight at the "Y": St. Andrew's Bantams vs. St. John's at 6.30, and St. Paul's Juniors vs. St. Andrew's at 7.15 . . . . Watch such junior grads as Bun Kingdon and Eddie Starr hustle the intermediate puckists for berths with the Petes this month . . . . Jim Dorris is better again but doesn't expect the senior ball club will meet for a little while yet to re-organize . . . . A little give and take by both sides and this whole rugby playoff mess might have been straightened out okay . . . . Hockey prospects are advised that P.T. drills continue nightly at the Y.M.C.A. till there is ice . . . . 'Tis said Westclox gals won't be in that Central Ontario ladies' cage loop . . . . Friends, Romans and people from the country: You can fool some of the people some of the time, and some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool some of the people some of the time!

Up-Surge Of The Black Hawks Due To Return Of Doc Romnes

Among Most Efficient Yet Under-rated Players—Truly An American Forward

It looks as though Lionel Conacher, himself a Chicago Black Hawk ace when that team won its only Stanley Cup, and Tommy Gorman, who piloted the Chicago team that year, were not so far wrong when they termed Elwin "Doc" Romnes one of the most efficient yet underrated centre-ice players in the National Hockey League.

The up-surge of the Hawks this season into a very definite factor in the fight for the American division leadership has been marked by the return of Romnes, who missed a great many games last season through knee-injury. When Hawks, on Nov. 16, won their first home-ice game of the season, beating Detroit 3-1, Romnes scored two of the goals, figured as the pivot in the other.

Romnes has the distinction of being a truly-American forward. Several players now performing in the big loop first saw the light of day in the United States, but learned their hockey in Canada. Romnes never played for a Canadian team. Born at White Bear, Minn., on New Year's Day, 1909, Romnes learned his hockey in his native state, and his first professional engagement was with the St. Paul team of the American Association in 1928, from which club he went directly to Hawks in 1930.

He quit a St. Paul medical school to join the hockey ranks.

Until he turned out with the St. Paul entry in the association, this crack pivot man never had a pair of real hockey gloves. He learned deadly accuracy in his shooting by knocking the tops off jars in the basement of his home.

Romnes originally joined the Black Hawks in 1930 and was hailed as a comer by Dick Irvin. However, Irvin was released and the new manager, Emil Iverson farmed him out to Pittsburg. When Tommy Gorman took over the Chicago Hawks he was impressed with Romnes' playing, but thought he lacked aggressiveness. Romnes fashioned his fame after that of Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers, who played the puck and got results without getting penalties. Later, though, Gorman was convinced Romnes had class and skill.

"Doc" is one of the cleanest players in hockey. In 1935-36 he broke Frank Boucher's run of Lady Byng cup captures, this trophy going to the player considered most sportsmanlike each season, coupled with efficiency. Romnes suffered only three minor penalties that entire season, and annexed 38 points, via 13 goals, 25 assists, which enabled him to finish third among the scoring leaders of his section. He had only one penalty last season, in the brief period he was able to play.

FIVE EASTERN GRIDDERS ARE ALL-AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (A.P.). —The All-American swing back to the East, which cradled this foundation for annual football argument, reached a peak during the spectacular campaign of 1937.

To that battle-scarred sector today goes the distinction of placing five players on the national all-star eleven selected by the Associated Press on the basis of a nation-wide survey of expert opinion.

The East placed four teams in the nation's mythical "first ten," and soared to an intersectional prestige it has not known in a dozen years. Pittsburg's Rose Bowl champions placed two men on the all-star teams —Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg at half-back and Tony Matisi, 224-pound tackle. Yale, Cornell, and Fordham each contributed one player.

Notre Dame, with Charles Alexander Sweeney at one end, captured one of the prized places for the first time since 1922.

From a sector rarely enjoying the spotlight came Byron Raymond (Whizzer) White, ace half-back of Colorado University. White and Goldberg, the sparkplug of the powerful Pittsburg array, shared the backfield posts with Yale's renowned Clinton Edward Frank and California's Samuel Blake Chapman, the quadruple-threat man of the Pacific Coast championship team.

Nowhere was the argument hotter than on the subject of centres and ends. Among the ends, the pair finally selected — Notre Dame's Sweeney and Cornell's Jerome (Brud) Holland — enjoyed no great margin over a half-dozen rival wingmen. Holland is the first negro to make the All-American since Paul Robeson of Rutgers was picked at end in 1918.

The choice for centre, Carl Columbus Hinkle, Jr., of Vanderbilt, starred for the third year as a ground-coverer and durable Trojan.

The all-star guards, Joe Routt of Texas A. and M. and Leroy Monsky of Alabama, stood out clearly, and for the tackles it was impossible to go wrong by picking from the two stoutest lines in the East such stalwarts as chunky E. Franco of Fordham and rangy Tony Matisi of Pittsburg.

May Play Again

BILL BRYDGE

Word comes from the Kirkland Lake, Ont., district that Bill Brydge, former National Hockey league player, may return to the hockey wars. Bill recently was reinstated as an amateur by the Ontario Hockey association, and "might" play amateur hockey this winter with Lakeshore in the Nickle Belt league, if he can get into condition.

Expect Van Mungo Be Traded At Chicago Baseball Session

Rumored Chicago White Sox Bidding For Rudy York Of Tigers

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 4.—(AP).—Major league baseball traders marched on Chicago yesterday ready to touch off a blast of selling and buying "fireworks" which failed to explode with more than a mild "pop" at the minor league's thirty-sixth annual meeting.

There was plenty of activity as the convention wound up its business, but it wasn't of the "ivory" market variety. Big league managers, owners and scouts poured out of hotels in a mass movement toward Chicago and the American and National League sessions which open Monday.

Expectancy prevailed that the Van Lingo Mungo deal would break before the leagues held their joint session next Wednesday. Throughout the minor sessions reports were rampant the Brooklyn Dodger pitching ace would change uniforms—going either to New York Giants or Chicago Cubs. Another rumor heard to-day was that Manager Jimmy Dykes of Chicago White Sox wanted Rudy York, young Detroit catcher, but it was deemed unlikely Mickey Cochrane would dispose of his hard-hitting backstop.

Three all major league transactions were completed:

1. Chicago sent Vern Kennedy, Dixie Walker and Tony Piet to Detroit for Marvin Owen, Gerald Walker and Mike Tresh;

2. St. Louis Browns traded Joe Vosmik to Boston's Red Sox for Buck Newsom, Buster Mills and Ralph (Red) Kress;

3. Washington traded Pitcher Ed Linke to the Browns for Southpaw Elon Hogsett.

Judge W. G. Bramham was re-elected President of the National Association of Minor Leagues for five years with a salary increase from $12,500 to $20,000 annually. The offices of President and Secretary were combined and J. H. Farrell, Treasurer since 1901, will draw salary through 1938 and then receive an annuity.

The first actual cash valuation placed on a player was heard as the convention ended. Donald Barnes, St. Louis President, said he had asked Chicago's White Sox for $250,000 for Harland Clift, young infielder. The White Sox were after Clift before obtaining Owen from Detroit.

Charlie Gehringer Best In The Game

AYLMER, Ont., Dec. 4 (CP).—Billy Rogell, shortstop for the Detroit Tigers, was the guest speaker at the Aylmer Rotary Club banquet here last night to honor the players and executive of the Straffordville Baseball Club, Ontario Inter-County baseball champions. Fifty from Straffordville and 100 from Aylmer were present.

Rogell said he began baseball at 16 and signed his first professional contract in Kansas in 1923. His regret is that baseball has so many classes. Young players should be permitted to play beside older men and thus profit from their experience in the game.

From his knowledge of Canadian baseball, (he played with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1930), he said there are many players in this country good enough to play in the major Baltimore, and Tony Ciaccio, 158, of the Tigers was the best player in the game today.

$500,000 Addition To Palmolive Plant

With the mortar scarcely dry on the $250,000.00 extension built in 1937, Colgate - Palmolive - Peet Co. Ltd., have started work on a second quarter-million dollar addition, to be completed in 1938.

To take care of the greatly increased demand for Colgate-Palmolive quality products, and to meet anticipated future increases, $86,000 will be spent to increase the floor space of the present daylight plant at 64 Natalie Street, Toronto.

This latest addition will be constructed of reinforced concrete, with two stories above ground level and one below. The dimensions will be approximately 90 x 110 feet, providing a total extra floor space of about 29,700 square feet. The foundations are designed to provide for future extension to six stories.

THE TUTTS By Crawford Young

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, looks back upon his first romantic episode. As a boy of 12, he had kissed a young Italian girl. A few years later, Jerry goes to Washington for a brief visit, with his wealthy uncle from Colorado. In a restaurant the boy sees Mimi Le Brun, a senator's granddaughter of about 18, and she makes a deep impression on his young mind. Back home Jerry talks with his father about his uncle who, as the boy observed on their Washington visit, enjoys life to the fullest.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

He brought out the last sentence with the passionate force which made him such a compelling preacher. I have often thought that if he had had a church in some big community the world would have heard of him. His sincerity was absolute. He believed what he spoke. His life was narrow, but his mind roamed in broad spaces, and as for his spirit, it touched at times the far horizon.

We fell then, I remember, into a long silence. I broke it to tell him what I had never told before, of that night in Washington when Uncle Jerry had taken the little blond woman to supper.

I think one of the great marvels of my relation to my father was that with him I had no reticences. However stern he was with himself, he was never stern with me. And he tried always to help me find the truth for myself.

He tried to help me find it now. He made no comment except to say: "I pray that you may love and marry a good woman, Jerry. It is a great safeguard."

Suddenly into the night under the stars, and through the perfume of the pond lilies, stalked a white wraith of remembrance—of a girl with a peacock feather in her hat . . . I wanted to love and marry her. I had seen her only once, but I wanted her for love and marriage.

"A great safeguard," my father was saying. "If Uncle Jerry had had a good wife, she might have saved him."

Yet try as I would to get my father's point of view, I could not feel that my gay and gallant uncle needed saving. I think that, subconsciously, I believed he could have his cake and eat it—that eleventh hour repentance would offset the scarlet of his sins.

I tried to saw something of this. I argued there in the perfumed dark as I had heard my Uncle Jerry argue. That a man had his right to his life. That being good was, in the final analysis, monotonous.

It came to this at last from my father. "Your Uncle Jerry and I used to lie as you and I are lying here tonight under the stars, and dream of our futures. Neither of us has fulfilled them. Did I ever tell you, Jerry, that I was going to study law—maritime law? Queer ambition for a country boy, wasn't it? But our ancestors were sea-faring folk, and the subject fascinated me. I used to read about ships, and of the strange codes which govern vessels on the seas. It wasn't easy to give it up."

"Why did you give it up?"

"God called me."

CHAPTER 6

I felt something in my throat when my father told me God had called him. I wanted to weep over that boy who was my father—that free-souled lad who had longed for the sea, and who had been cast high and dry by conscience on the shoals of a village pastorate.

"But couldn't you have gone on with your law even if you were converted?"

"The call was for other things. It was your mother who prayed that I might be led to preach—and I loved her."

It was hard for me to visualize my mother as moving a man romantically, as I was moved, for example, by the thought of the girl with the peacock feather. My mother was so cool and self-contained and colorless. Yet it seemed it had been her religious fervor which had swung my father from his wordly ambitions. She had prayed for him; had set before him the goal of consecration and self-sacrifice. Old-fashioned phrases! Yet you must remember that they were country folk, and that modern skepticism had not touched them. Even now I am not sure my mother was right to sway her lover from his first choice of a profession.

My father would have been himself under any circumstances—passionately idealistic, a force in the lives of those about him. Yet, right or not, I can see the fineness of it all—as I did not see it that night by the lake.

"I shall never preach, father."

"Who knows what he may do? The house of your life is your own to build, Jerry. And you've got to live in it until the end. So look out for rotten timbers."

It was when we returned from our trip to the lake that we found a letter from Uncle Jerry which was to change in every way my future. He wanted, he said, to send me to college. Not as my father and mother had planned, to one of the cheap small colleges where I could help by my work to pay my way, but to Yale. He would meet all expenses, giving me, besides the cost of board and tuition, a generous allowance. I was his namesake, and what he had he would leave to me. The deal which he had tried to put over in Washington had been brought successfully to a finish. It would be fine to have a Jerome Chandler to carry on the name.

It is not difficult to imagine what this meant to me—emancipation. In a moment the narrow life in the parsonage receded, and I saw myself sweeping out toward the broad seas of adventure.

I was flushed, excited. I read the letter twice aloud. "He says I am to have the ranch!"

"But not until he dies, Jerry."

That brought me up. I didn't want my uncle to die. Indeed, it seemed to me as if he ought to live forever, as if the red and white of him, his strength and vigor, gave him a sort of deathless immunity from the common lot.

"Well, of course," I stated, "I didn't mean that. But it is fine of him isn't it?"

My father answered: "Very fine."

My mother was not so sure. "I don't know about it. Money is the root of evil."

My father laughed. "Poverty is the root of evil, too, sometimes, Eleanor."

"Well, the Bible doesn't say that."

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LEAVES

"Wiggy! Wiggy, my dear!" called Mrs. Longears to her rabbit gentleman husband in the hollow stump bungalow one day.

"Yes, my love, what is it?" answered Uncle Wiggily as he twinkled his pink nose over the top of his newspaper at his wife.

"When are you going to rake up the leaves and put them over my flower beds so the roots won't freeze, now that Winter is here?"

"Oh, the leaves? Yes," said Mr. Longears. "I'll rake them up today and pile them on the flower beds for you. I'll make big, deep piles to keep the flower roots warm so they will blossom next Spring."

"You have been promising that every day the last month, Wiggy," said the rabbit lady wife. "But every day you go adventuring and you don't rake up the leaves. Soon the wind will blow them all away."

"Oh, there are plenty left," said the bunny gentleman.

"Not so many. You may have to borrow some from Mr. Twistytail next door," said Mrs. Longears.

Later, He says.

"Well, Twisty will be glad to give them to me. His wife hasn't any flower beds," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll just hop away for a little short adventure, and when I come back I'll rake up the leaves and cover your beds."

"Msw! Msaouw! Fitzt-wow!"

"Thank you," said Mrs. Longears.

But she did not trust her husband. When he had gone and when she saw Mr. Twistytail, the fat gentleman pig, raking up his leaves Mrs. Longears said to him:

"If you don't want your leaves would you mind spreading them on my flower beds?"

"Glad to do it!" grunted Mr. Twistytail most politely

So he raked his leaves over into the yard of Mrs. Longears and when Uncle Wiggily came back from adventuring and saw what had been done the rabbit said:

"Well, I my as well rake up my own leaves anyhow. They are only a bother blowing around. I'll put them on top of those Twisty piled on my wife's flower beds. It was kind of him."

So Uncle Wiggily raked up his leaves into one big pile and when his wife, looking from a window, saw what he was doing, she called:

"You are too late, my dear. Mr. Twistytail covered the flowers."

"Then what shall I do with these leaves, my pet?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, leave them there," said Mrs. Longears indifferent like and casual. And really not intending a joke.

Trick on Bobbie

"Ha, no! That would never do," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I will burn them and they will not blow about to make the bungalow messy. I will go in and get a match."

Dropping his rake, Uncle Wiggily went in to get a match. While he was gone the Bob Cat, who, hiding in a bush, had been watching the rabbit, sneaked out, mewing to himself:

"I'll hide under the leaves. When Uncle Wiggily comes out again to finish piling them up—as he will do for he left his rake—I will get him."

"Tweet! Tweet! Tweet!" whistled Uncle Wiggily as he struck a match and lighted the pile of leaves. Soon fire and smoke arose.

"Mew! Meaouw! Fitzt-wow!" howled the singed Bob Cat as he scatted out. And Uncle Wiggily, seeing him go, laughed and said:

"I thought I raked up only leaves, but I must have raked up a Bad Chap as well. Ha! Ha! Ha!" But the Bob Cat didn't laugh. Some hair was burned off his silly little tail.

And if the bread knife doesn't try to shave the cocoanut cake thinking it has whiskers, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Ki-Oodle's shoe.

And from the railway crossing up George Street, and around by Charlotte and Water Streets passing the Empress Hotel, then along Hunter and up Aylmer and so on by way of the route to Murray Street and Victoria Park, the entire course of the parade was lined deeply with people.

Parents and Children

Most conspicuous were the mothers and fathers with the children they held in their arms to see Santa Claus himself, in person, especially the little one of two, three and four years. The others could adventure for themselves, although most of them were within parental vision. At every street intersections the crowds were greater, with the hub of assembly at George and Charlotte Streets. That crowd of Peterborough people surprised itself, in its numbers and possibly in its sentiment.

Summary of Parade

So many people saw the parade, it is hardly worth describing again. It was headed by four traffic officers on motorcycles, Constables Menzies and Clark of the city police and Provincial Constable McClure and Broughton. Mayor Macdonald as first citizen was in an automobile with J. W. Geraghty, president of the Business Men's Association, F. J. Overend, president of the Chamber of Commerce and J. H. Jamison, chairman of the parade committee.

Chief Gimblett of the Fire Department in his own car was followed by a fire truck piled with toys made by the firemen for distribution at Christmas. The Lions Boys' Band with their director Wm. Stuart rode on one of the Hamilton-Peterborough transport trucks, and played bravely for little fellows, especially the old tune "Jingle Bells." It was their first parade, and they will probably always remember it.

The Examiner Newsboys' Harmonica band occupied another truck and were under the care of H. B. Cowan, Jr., circulation manager who provided a fine luncheon for them afterward.

Santa Claus sat high on a beautifully decorated float with Miss M. E. Dean accompanying him as Mrs. Santa Claus. Another float represented a house, a winter scene suggesting the chimneys of Santa's magic entrance to hearths and Christmas trees and beside it were three lovely young girls. Girls of the Y.W.C.A. in various popular costumes such as Mickey Mouse and Bunny Rabbit created a great deal of interest, and deserved a special word of commendation.

Ski Club Attractive

Thirty or forty young men and girls of the Peterborough Ski Club were an attractive group in their sports apparel. The band of the 57th Rangers, in civilian dress, provided the main musical feature, and there were also Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, and groups of clowns and other fantastic figures, including some dressed as monkeys, who added a broader carnival note to the parade. Balloons and candies and gum were tossed into the crowd all along the route, but the sharpest impression that remains of the great welcome to Santa Claus was the delight of the little boys and girls in blue and red winter suits, with the city's parenthood in the background. Some of them waited at the station, others along the route, and still others romped in Victoria Park. Two of them sat for awhile at the foot of a big tree near the top of the Court House slope. They were typical of all the others. A beautiful flaxen haired little girl waited for the parade at the big window of the Grand Hotel, and a charming little boy in blue who doesn't know much about Santa Claus yet because he was three only a short time ago, this little chap waited with his mother and sister near the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets.

Of the other youngsters from seven to twelve, the parade was a grand lark, and their objective was to gather up as many of the candies as they could, and to grab floating balloons.

The candies were wrapped in paper, "kisses" is the trade name. In the crush at the Charlotte-George corner a girl in her early twenties said to a companion about her own age, "Let's get out of here I don't want to get trampled on for a kiss." Certainly it was a most successful community gathering, and probably the clowns had more fun out of their liberties along stretches of the glamorous inner fringe of the lanes of people than any one else.

At Victoria Park

The concluding episode of the evening, planned as the climax of the parade with the introduction of Santa Claus from the band stand in Victoria Park and an official welcome by Mayor G. A. Macdonald, virtually became an anti-climax. Its details clicked according to schedule, but the brief speeches were muffled by the gay spirits of the boys and girls. The main body of the parade turned south at the corner of Water and Murray Streets, and only the police escort, the Mayor's automobile and the feature float bearing Santa Claus climbed the Court House hill. Their coming was announced by the wave of cheering from the hundreds of young people who followed Santa Claus to the head of the steps leading down into the park.

Accompanied by the welcoming committee, Santa Claus descended the steps with the troop of boys and girls following him with the complete surrender of the children in the Pied Piper legend. Meanwhile, the choir of St. John's church, directed by Frederick G. Mann, had sung a series of Christmas Carols for the waiting crowd of a thousand or more, and the People's Chimes in St. John's tower had carilloned their festival tones in music of the season.

Dick Lush was master of the brief ceremony at the band stand. His call for attention was amplified by the Johnston sound truck that had proceeded the parade, but his voice carried only over a narrow range of hearing. Finally Mayor Macdonald went ahead with his official duty of welcome which some of the audience may have heard.

"Santa Claus," His Worship said, "on behalf of the young boys and girls and also of the older boys and girls it is a great pleasure for me to welcome you to Peterborough. When we heard you were to visit us, we all decided to be good boys and girls until after Christmas, at least. We hope you will come to see us again, and that the boys and girls of Peterborough will be remembered by you. May I also congratulate our business men on making your welcome such a splendid success."

Mr. Jamison, Mr. Geraghty and Mr. Overend also spoke a few words supplementing the welcome to Santa Claus and thanking the people for their splendid co-operation in greeting Santa Claus. The personable Mary E. Dean who rode with Santa Claus on his float in the improvised role of Mrs. Santa Claus was also introduced. Then with the distraction of a shower of candy for the young folks Santa Claus disappeared up the Court House slope to his car and was gone with a train of children accompanying him with their cries of gladness until his automobile pulled away.

One Whiff Of Skunks Enough To Convince

Ottawa, Dec. 4 (CP)

THERE were skunks in the Court House today—seven of them. They were dead, but still skunks.

Game Warden Wayne Robinson took them to court as evidence against Percy Sadler, North Gower farmer, convicted of possessing an unlicensed gun.

After the second whiff of skunk, the windows were thrown open, and finally the game warden was ordered to take his evidence away, the smell was enough.

And now Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier is afraid to open the back seat of his car—he took the game warden to the Court House and didn't notice the parcel shoved under the seat.

LONGER LIFE IS FEARED FUTILE

"The importance of human life," he explained, "depends on its quality, not on its length. If, for instance, our duration could be increased by a lowering of metabolism, as Loeb succeeded in doing with the fruit fly, the existence thus obtained would not be worth living.

"Today, the prolongation of life for a great many people, would profit neither themselves nor society. If a sudden increase of only ten years in the life span occurred, a social and economic catastrophe would follow."

But, he added: "Rightly or wrongly, humanity will never stop searching for the secret of eternal youth."

Dr. Carrel suggested creation of "an institute dedicated to the study of the process of aging" and pointed out that, "although men hold life to be supreme good, there is no laboratory in this country or in Europe where psycho-biological investigations of the mechanism of aging and of the means of lengthening life can be undertaken in appropriate manner."

No This Is Not The Leaning Tower Of Pisa

This isn't the leaning tower of Pisa. It is a 225-foot brick smokestack at the Illinois Central Railroad shops in Chicago, caught by the camera in the middle of its tumble. Built in 1907, it was struck by lightning in 1935 and began to crack. Dynamited last week, its 700 tons came crashing to earth. Note the flying festoon of bricks at the top.

WIFE'S DEATH SAID ACCIDENT

father, Philip Stroh, was acquitted. A year later young Ressler was sentenced by Mr. Justice Makins to five years in penitentiary on a public mischief charge when, after giving a statement to police that his grandmother had killed Mr. Stroth, confessed to the murder of which he previously had been acquitted.

Accused Is Calm

Turner displayed no emotion when the jury returned its verdict. He was immediately discharged by Mr. Justice Makins who said. "Only two would know what took place, yourself and your Maker." Turner left within a few minutes for Dresden, 140 miles south-west of here, with his seven-year-old son, Elwood, who had attended each court session during the week.

Expert medical testimony both for the Crown and for the defence was heard. Witnesses for the defence said the Turners' 10-year married life had been happy and agreeable, defence counsel Goldie Elgie, K.C., contending in his address to the jury a motive for murder had not been proved.

Chief witness for the Crown, Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, said that in his opinion the three-inch fracture in Mrs. Turner's skull had been caused by a strong, upward blow from some object, possibly a pick or an axe. He said falling wood would not have caused such an injury.

Advised To Shun Liquor

Dr. E. Henry Bottrell, University of Toronto, said for the defence that in his opinion neither an axe nor a club could have caused the woman's injuries. It was quite possible, he said on the stand, that Mrs. Turner had been killed by falling wood from the pile in the Turner woodshed.

Evidence early in the trial showed the Turners frequently had beer and other liquors in their home. In discharging Turner, Mr. Justice Makins advised him to take his son back with him to Dresden and never again drink liquor nor allow his son to do so.

CAIRN TO SNOWDEN

COWLING, England—(CP). — A large cairn of moorland stone is to be built on Ickornshaw Moor, near this Yorkshire town, to mark the resting place of the ashes of Lord Snowden, who died in May.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

"Aren't you glad to have me go to college, mother?"

"Yes, Jerry. But Yale, it's so far. And you've never been away from us."

I felt the grip of my father's fingers on my shoulder, and looking up into his face, I saw that he was deeply moved. I think he knew then that things would never again be with us as they had been; that when I left home the bond would be broken. And presently he said:

"I thank God that my boy is to be given the best. And I pray God that wherever he goes he may still be in our hearts."

I was thrilled by his emotion, and swayed by it. My voice broke. "There will never be anybody like you and mother—you know that!"

I learned in those first days in New Haven that I was not like most of the other students. I had come from simple people whose social horizon was bounded on one side by the Ten Commandments and on the other by my father's black coat. At Yale many of the men I met had been prepared at privte schools, and had inherited traditions of family importance. There were others, too, who were rich and without traditions. But all of them had something that I did not have—a sort of sophistication which made me feel an outsider. Their attitude toward me was, I decided, somewhat like my own attitude toward the European immigrants in our town. They went their way, and I went mine. And I was conscious always of my awkwardness, my lack of manner, the archaic quality of my ideals.

I was to know later that I had misjudged my classmates, that I might have won response had I been less self-conscious, but at the time I thought them snobs, and I kept to myself, watching them, however, with eager eyes, and wishing that I were like them.

I shall pass quickly over my first three years at college. The history of them is not different, I fancy, from that of any boy who finds himself in an utterly new environment and has to adjust himself to it. I did some foolish things, and perhaps some wise ones. I loved books, so that in my studies I satisfied certain of my teachers, and I had great physical strength and endurance, which brought me conspicuously to the front in athletics.

Yet I had always that feeling of being an outsider until in my senior year I made a friend who changed the world for me. His name was Lionel Clark, and he lived in St. Louis. I had first been attracted to him when a theme of his was read in class. It was a short sketch of fur-trading in the early middle west, and his pen had caught all the color and movement of the days when the Mississippi was a great highway. He wrote of trappers and priests, of Indians and of French gallants, of gay ladies transported from all the luxuries of aristocratic society to rough and primitive surroundings yet losing none of their elegance or insouciance in the process.

I walked beside him as we left the room. "That was a dandy write-up," I told him. "Is it all true?"

I had never spoken to him before. He was a dark, thin-faced lad, with a cool, bright glance and an ease of manner which marked him as one of the inner circle from which I was shut out.

Tobacco Road Saga In Fifth Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (CP). — "Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's saga of the Georgia Red Clay Hills, will begin its fifth year on Broadway tonight at the Forrest Theatre.

The play opened at the Masque Theatre in 1933 and has occupied three houses altogether, one for each Jetter Lester, the main character. Henry Hull played Jetter first, then James Bell and now James Barton.

"Tobacco Road" now enjoys the statistical distinction of being the runner-up for long-run honors on Broadway. In the 204-year history of the American theatre only "Abie's Irish Rose" has done better. The score is: "Abie's Irish Rose," 2,532 performances; "Tobacco Road," 1,716.

PHENOMENAL GAINS IN CANADIAN TRADE

Sound reasons for constructive optimism with regard to the future of Canadian business is provided by "The Canadian Market," a graphic book of statistics compiled and interpreted by John R. MacMillan under the direction of the Research Committee of the Canadian Daily Newspapers.

The record of progress during the past few decades is an augury of future greatness, it is pointed out in the book. Canadian production and trade have made phenomenal gains since the turn of the century.

Between 1900 and 1936 the net value of manufactures increased 570 per cent; hydro-electric turbine installations were increased from 238,902 to 7,946,590 h.p. or 3,226%; mining production gained 449 per cent and forestry production 320 per cent.

Each phase of the development of these industries has increased the purchasing power of the nation and opened new markets for every conceivable kind of goods and services.

The growth of trade has kept pace with the development of Canada's resources until today she ranks fourth among the trading nations.

These facts become all the more remarkable when it is considered that the population of Canada has increased by only 100 per cent in the period under review.

CANADIANS CORNER 29 CHAMPIONSHIPS AT CHICAGO SHOW

wheat crown, virtually a permanent award for Canada, won this year by 13-year-old Gordon Gibson of Ladner, B.C.

The spread of the victories was significant. Canada scored most heavily in the international grain and hay show, a department of the exposition, but its winnings in cattle and sheep were very important. The Dominion made its weakest showing in horses and swine.

A Real Showing.

B. H. Heide, general manager of the Exposition for more than years, spoke of Canadian exhibits in glowing terms.

"Canada has made a marvelous showing," he said. In the face of competition which grows keener every year, they have taken more honors than ever before.

"This year's show was the best quality show of them all—there wasn't a tail-ender in competition—and it required real top quality to win.

"The show is becoming more and more international, too. This year 16 nations were represented in the grain exhibits. It shows that farmers over the world are watching the Exposition."

The Dominion championships were in these classes: Wheat, oats, field peas, field beans, barley, flax, rye, alfalfa seed, Aberdeen-Angus bull, carload of lambs, wether lamb in grade nad cross-bred, Cotswold Pat Lincoln Shropshire and Breeding Lincoln breeds, and milking Shorthorn bulls. First places were scattered through all these divisions.

AVOID FASCISM BY STOPPING OF COMMUNISM

Lt.-Col. George Drew Addresses Open Forum

"The way to avoid Nazism and Fascism is to stop Communism which breeds the other movements," Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, noted soldier, writer, world-traveller and political observer, told a large audience at the George Street United Church Men's Forum Sunday afternoon on his first visit to Peterborough. "There is a threat of Fascism in Canada today, centered in Quebec. The argument for it there is that it is a way of preventing Communism."

He condemned "woolly thinking" on the subjects of the totalitarian epidemic in Europe and of world peace. "Every man who served his country during the Great War though he was doing the finest thing he could for his country, fighting to preserve democracy. Yet in almost all the countries of Europe democracy is now gone and individual freedom a thing of the past. We are now awaiting a new world war."

All through Europe today there is fear, Col. Drew continued. The people do not know at what moment out of the sky will come sudden, unannounced death, he said. "One of the amazing developments of the past few years has been that there will be no more declarations of war. Airplanes have made declarations of war impossible."

Little Difference

He urged that it is neither the challenge of Fascism to Democracy or the challenge of Communism to Democracy which should be given

IN OCEAN 5 HOURS GIRL IS RESCUED

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The sketchy outline of a five-hour search for a young woman who had gone overboard in black tropical seas and her eventual rescue from the shark-infested waters was disclosed today at the offices of the Luckenbach Line here.

The woman, Miss Eleanor Offut, of San Francisco, was reported to be "severely shocked but recovering."

She was one of four passengers on the freighter Lilian Luckenbach, bound for New York from Los Angeles. Early Sunday Captain Gilbert Brown wirelessed his company here, Miss Offut had gone overboard as the ship was proceeding north at a point above Cuba.

The woman's cabin-mate, whose name was not revealed in the message, came to the bridge, crying out the alarm. The ship was stopped and turned around while seamen switched on searchlights that swept the creamy wake.

An hour passed, another ticked away. The coming of dawn made the search easier.

Finally, Captain Brown reported, one of the men espied Miss Offut, keeping afloat desperately. The boat made for her and she was dragged aboard. The ship is due in New York Wednesday.

Leave Family in England, Stay Hinted to Be Brief; Pair Take Seclusion of Guarded Morrow Estate

ENGLEWOOD, N.J., Dec. 6—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are home from a two-year exile abroad but the guarded Morrow estate close by the Hudson River hold the secret of why they have come and how long they will stay.

The hero of American aviation and his wife Ann, who has shared many notable flights with him, slipped unheralded into New York yesterday aboard the United States liner President Harding.

They had sailed from Southampton Nov. 27 under the incognito of "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory" for their first trip to their native land since they went to Great Britain in search of the seclusion they felt they could not find here—just 16 days short of two years ago.

A waiting car whisked them from Manhattan dock to the estate of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's 64-year-old mother. Only word of authoritative status concerning their plans came from a ship's officer who said: "The visit will be brief. They plan to return abroad immediately after Christmas."

Many Theories

Other than that, there was a bubbling spring of conjecture in a desert of fact: opinions that the Lindberghs' trip might be a prelude to ending the exile self-imposed in an effort to rebuild the lives shattered by the kidnapping and death of their first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.; theories that he might have come on a mission connected with the expansion of American aviation; even suggestions that he might be on an errand of science connected with development of the artificial heart of which he is co-inventor.

Whatever the purpose that impelled them to return, their secret was well kept. Telephone inquiries at the Morrow estate, brought not even an acknowledgement that Colonel and his wife were there.

Guards patrolled the gateway to the quarter mile of winding driveway that led to the home. Every caller, was stopped, turned back. Messenger boys delivered literally bushels of telegrams.

POLICE PUT CRIMP IN "LOVE PARTIES" COBOCONK MISSION

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 6.—(CP)—There were no "love parties" in the rear seats of the Masonic Temple at Coboconk Sunday as the Apostolic church services were held, Rev. R. A. Dawson, pastor of the Lindsays Pentecostal Assembly who aided Evangelist Dureau there, reported to-day.

Peace brought by the police Friday night prevailed Sunday, said Mr. Dawson. Previously attendants at Coboconk mission had been disturbed by various means.

"It had got so bad that boys and girls, young men and young women would enter the meeting place during services and hold love parties in the rear seats of the churches," said Mr. Dawson. "On one occasion the door of the hall was wrenched from its hinges. Everything is in order again now."

Two provincial policemen went with Mr. Dawson to the mission Friday night. The police hid themselves in the basement before service started, hoping to catch those who had been throwing rocks and boulders against the side of the hall and beating the wall with clubs while service was on.

Friday night a group of young men appeared and were about to begin the nightly barrage when police appeared. Police collared the ring leaders and warned them. Names of juveniles were taken and police visited their parents with warnings.

Five Brothers Dicker With Gang To Cut Ransom

Sand, Gravel Fortune Heir Vanishes Saturday; Search Reveals Car in White Plains Next Day

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Reports that Arthur Fried, 32, member of a wealthy sand and gravel family, had been kidnapped and was being held for $100,000 ransom, brought federal agents to White Plains today. Fried vanished Saturday.

The reports said that Fried's five brothers had made a contact with a gang, believed to be holding the young man, and were trying to argue them into reducing the amount of ransom.

Telephone calls to the home of Fried's mother, Mrs. Emma Fried, were being intercepted at the Central Telephone Exchange and the caller's numbers relayed to police headquarters.

Fried attended a motion picture show Saturday night with his wife, a brother-in-law, and the latter's wife. On the way home they dropped him at his mother's house to get his automobile, which he had parked there. The others went on to Fried's apartment.

His relatives waited for him and when he did not return they became anxious. At 1.30 a.m. Sunday an alarm that he was missing was flashed over the police wires and two hours later his car was found at the edge of the city.

Denies Note Received

Harold Daniels, Fried's brother-in-law and a New York building financier, denied a ransom note had been received so far as he knew, but the report was confirmed in county police headquarters.

Fried lives with his wife and eight-year-old son, Arlen. He is a son of the late Joseph Fried, head of the Empire Sand and Gravel Company and of Joseph Fried and Son, Bronx Cinder Company. Fried is manager of the Bronx office of the Colonial Sand and Stone Company.

At the new York office of the federal bureau of investigation the agent in charge said he knew nothing of reports that Fried had been abducted. He added that the bureau, if active in the case, would issue only what statements it deemed necessary.

Members of the Fried family, meanwhile, were reported willing to pay the ransom to obtain Fried's release.

WOMAN IS INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE TOPPLES OVER BANK

Mrs. C. W. Nixon, 57, of Selwyn, sustained undetermined injuries when a motor car driven by her son George Nixon, 28, of R.R. 4, Peterborough, toppled over a fifteen-foot embankment into Burnham's Creek. The accident occurred three miles east of Peterborough on Highway 7 around seven o'clock on Sunday evening.

Plunging into four feet of water with the wheels pointing skyward, the car sank at the nose into the creek. The hapless occupants of the vehicle were trapped for fifteen minutes before Mr. Nixon was able to effect their release. With doors and windows closed they had only an air space of eight inches.

Holding up his badly injured mother so that her head was clear of the water that was oozing around them both, the driver of the car struggled in vain to open a door. Finally, he was successful in lowering a window. Through the tiny aperture he squeezed, afterwards opening one of the doors from the outside through which he released his mother.

Dragged From Car

In the pitch darkness and with a fall of snow just commencing, Mr. Nixon dragged the now unconscious form of his mother to the top of the embankment and sought aid from Osmund Fenton, 313 Simcoe Street, who stopped his car when called on for aid.

Mr. Nixon and his mother were rushed to the home of a relative—a Mr. Hall of Park Street. They were attended by Dr. J. M. O'Brien, and Mrs. Nixon was stated to be suffering possible internal injury and severe shock.

Relating details of the accident to reporters, Mr. Nixon declared with conviction: "I saw eternity staring me in the face, but God saw fit to spare me and mother."

He said he was driving his car from Trent River towards Peterborough and when at Burnham's Creek he was blinded by the headlights of an oncoming car. When attempting to regain the pavement after his wheels had slipped off the surface of the road on to the unfinished shoulder his car went into a skid.

Out of control the car slid to the top of the embankment and then made a somersault dive into the water 15 feet below. The embankment was not protected by a guard rail, though one of the posts designed to carry the protecting cable was snapped off when it was struck by the car.

Mr. Nixon said, "I thought at first we had no chance of getting out of the car, because it continued to sink as we struggled to get out of it". He believed their escape was an act of God.

Information Sought On Driver Of Auto

HELD on a nominal charge of vagrancy, a 20-year-old youth refuses to give city police any information about himself. He was arrested in the early hours of this morning at a local restaurant in possession of a car believed to have been stolen, bearing license number 30-R-45. Detective Sergeant William Meagher has reason to believe the youth has been recently boarding at an address in Peterborough, and requests information which would verify this belief.

NANKING IN SIGHT JAPANESE INVADE PREMIER'S HOME

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.—(AP).—Japanese said to-day the vanguard of their forces was within sight of the ancient walls of Nanking and had occupied the country home of Premier Chang Kai-Shek in the hills outside the capital.

They announced capture of the village of Kaochiaomen, 2½ miles south-east of Nanking, toward which they were driving on a wide front.

Japanese correspondents with the forces reported Japanese troops had entered the park surrounding the mausoleum of Sun Yat-Sen, father of the Chinese Republic.

Dr. Sun, who died in 1925 after launching the Nationalist revolution, was buried in a magnificent tomb on the slopes of the purple mountains just outside Nanking.

The causoleum is the shrine of modern China, generally considered the growing architectural achievement of the Nationalist regime which made Nanking its capital in 1928.

The Japanese also announced they had broken the boom across the Yangtze at Kiangyin and that naval vessels were steaming upstream to bombard Chinkiang.

A 15-year-old girl had taken the baby for an airing, parked the carriage for a few minutes and then forgot where.

'INTIMIDATION' CLAIMED USED IN TRUCK GAME

Aimed to Block Unions Says Transport Head

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—(CP)—There is "considerable intimidation" by motor transport employers in Ontario to prevent growth of labor unions in the industry, L. G. Fabian, general representative of the automotive transport section of the automotive transport section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, told the Chevrier Royal Transport Commission today.

Cross-examined by Arthur Roebuck, counsel for the transport workers, Fabian said hours of work were "almost disgraceful" in the motor transport industry.

"Some operators have made every effort to provide satisfactory working conditions for their men but the greater majority have not and the situation is chaotic," he stated.

Fabian said he was recently connected with the Ontario Provincial Police as special investigator of highway conditions.

Better Regulations.

"There has been a great improvement in traffic regulations in Ontario during the last two years but there is great scope for more, witness said.

"Are rules and regulations well-enforced?" asked Roebuck.

"There is considerable laxity in enforcement at present in connection with public commercial vehicles," Fabian replied.

Questioned concerning hours of work, Fabian said he knew cases where truck drivers worked 20 hours at a stretch.

"This is the case for driver of public commercial vehicles and for private hauls the hours are sometimes longer.

Ontario government regulations that state hours of work for truck drivers should not be more than 10 hours a day are "being broken all the time," Fabian said.

Knocked Down, Taken In Car Woman Is Later Tossed Out

ST. JEROME, Que., Dec. 6 (CP).—A 70-year-old Montreal woman told police last night she had been picked up and dropped into a ditch near here after an automobile knocked her down.

The woman, Mrs. A. Gagne, suffered a broken left leg in the accident at Shawbridge, about five miles from here.

Mrs. Gagne said the automobile stopped after hitting her, and a man came over and picked her up. Then she was dragged to the side of an automobile in which the driver, guiding the auto with one hand, held her half in and half out the opened front door.

After they had gone about 800 feet, she said, the car swerved to the side of the road and she was allowed to slip into the ditch.

Convicts Eat Meals To Swing Music

Folsom, Cal., Dec. 6 (AP)

"IT'S never been done before," the surprised guard said.

So the guard rounded up four convict "swing" artists, and the 2,800 convicts — all two-time losers—have music with their meals now.

"My idea is that it may be a good incentive for the musicans and help prison morale," said Plummer, successor to Clarence Larkin, who was killed in an unsuccessful break attempt last fall.

Author Who Wrote Two Million Words At Ouija's Dictation, Dies

Los Angeles, Dec. 6 (AP)

MRS. John M. Curran, 54, who wrote verse and prose at what she said was dictation through the ouija board of the spirit of a 17th century Englishwoman, died here Friday.

Mrs. Curran said the name "Patience Worth" was disclosed to her in St. Louis in 1913 when the pointer spelled out: "Many moons ago I lived. Again I come . . . "

Casper S. Yost, St. Louis newspaperman, wrote in 1916, that the communication marked the beginning of an "intimate association . . . and a series of communications that are virtually without precedent" in the chronicles of psychic research.

In the year from 1913 to 1920, Mrs. Curran said the spirit of "patience worth" dictated more than 2,000,000 words, much of which was published.

"Patience Worth," Mrs. Curran said, was born in England in 1625 and was killed by an Indian in New England without ever transmitting a written word for posterity, but in 1913 the ouija board began work.

Milk Shakes Become Medicine As Vermonters Seek To Dodge Ancient Laws

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The "sins" of their forefathers today weighed heavily upon the shoulders of Windham county residents.

A blue Monday found at least 100 persons caught in the toils of a law laid down by Vermont's early settlers to ward off the "skulkink redskin" and the "devil."

Investigators yesterday scribbled down their names as they enforced a blue law banning on Sunday "any secular business or employment except works of charity."

Enforcement of the law revived memories of prohibition days.

Celebrate Victory In Collegian Style

Students of P.C.I. celebrated their 11-3 victory over Runnymede in true Collegian style on Saturday night.

After snake-dancing downtown and tying up traffic and tangling with Christmas shoppers, gleeful students trooped into Zeller's Store and taking complete possession for a few minutes gave lusty vent to their school yells.

Acknowledging the tolerant attitude of the store management and staff, they gave a yell for the store shouting out the words "Z-E-L-L-E-R-S-Rah, Rah, Rah."

Seeking other diversion they next visited Eaton Court. Icy Roads, Snow Cost 3 Of 9 Deaths In Weekend Toll

Traffic Mishaps Kill 6, Injure Many Others; 2 Boys Drown Through Ice—Man Falls Off Bridge

TORONTO, Dec. 6—(CP)—Unfavorable weather that left much of Ontario blanketed with snow was blamed today as a contributory cause in three of the province's nine accidental deaths during the week-end. Motoring was made hazardous in many sections as snow and sleet restricted visibility and made highways sloppy.

Bad weather was general throughout the province. Rain and dense fog prevailed in Eastern Ontario, snow and sleet in central, western and northern sections. And no improvement was in sight. For most of Ontario, the weatherman forecast strong north-west winds or moderate gales with snow, becoming colder by night.

Six traffic accident fatalities were in the last of dead, three of them the result of unfavorable weather. Two boys drowned when river ice broke under their weight and a man was killed in a fall from a bridge. Four persons were injured when two automobiles collided near Bradford on an ice-covered highway one of several accidents caused by weather.

CLEVELAND GAINS TWIN VICTORIES FOR 11-POINT TOP

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6 (CP).—Cleveland Barons, who had too many left feet at the start of the season, are in step now and on a steady march toward the top of their division in the International - American Hockey League.

Sergeant-Major Bill Cook had quite a time drilling the boys into a working unit, but he did it. Hardly spectacular in battling for the first few weeks, Barons really hit their stride during the week-end as they outshone every Int.-Am. team on parade.

First they humbled Providence Reds, 3-1, Saturday, and then whipped Syracuse Stars by the same score Sunday. The two victories left them with 11 points, one behind the leading Stars in the Western section.

WARNING ISSUED BY RAILWAY HEAD

TORONTO, Dec. 6. — Merchants, manufacturers and other shippers cannot expect to continue to enjoy the long haul market protection provided them by low railway rates if they continue to patronize motor transport to save on the freight charges of their short-haul business, S. W. Fairweather, Director of the Bureau of Economics of the Canadian National Railways, told members and guests of the seventh annual Toronto Railway Club banquet on Saturday night.

Outlining the system which had built up a structure which permitted railways to be underbid by motor operators on short hauls, thereby weakening the economic structure of the country, Mr. Fairweather emphasized the necessity of developing a method of educating the public and the nation's business along the lines followed in Great Britain. Not till then, he said, would legislation to rectify the present uneconomic state be passed.

ELECTORS CROWD POLLING BOOTHS IN MANY CENTRES

TORONTO, Dec. 6.— (CP) — A week of campaigning over, candidates for office in Ontario municipal administrations concentrated to-day on getting out the vote.

"Unfavorable weather might complicate their task because rain and snow were in prospect at many points. The weatherman Sunday night hoisted the "somewhat colder with snow" warning.

Most cities have a contest for Mayor, but in scores of towns, villages and townships acclamations were given at nomination meetings Nov. 26 or when rivals failed to qualify the following day.

One woman seeks the office of a city's mayor—Miss Ezra Saunders, St. Thomas lawyer. Miss Saunders, prominent in the last Provincial election campaign is the only opponent to Mayor Ernest Duckworth, and the single feminine aspirant for anything higher than a council post.

North Bay, Sudbury, Hamilton and Windsor had no mayoralty campaign. Robert Rowe received an acclamation in North Bay, John Rudd in Sudbury and William Morrison in Hamilton. Windsor elected its mayor last year for a two-year term.

Milk Shakes, Medicine

Said a physician to a soda clerk: "So I can't get a milk shake, hey?" —and then promptly wrote himself a prescription for one and sipped with a smile of satisfaction. Milk shakes became medicine.

Here and there in the county, churchgoers toted guns, heeding Berry's warning that under the old law "menfolk" were required to carry guns to protect women from Indians.

Theatre Manager Raymond A. Kiniry shut down his two theatres last night for the first Sunday since his fight against the blue law began a month ago.

Current blue law crime wave broke out when Ernest F. Berry, state's attorney, started enforcement of the statute against Kiniry. The theatre manager's retort was a petition demanding general enforcement. Berry took heed.

Nab Land Clearers.

Southbury, Conn., Dec. 6.—(AP).—Grand Juror Alric E. Nelson and a squad of constables marched on the site of a proposed German-American bund camp here and used a Connecticut blue law to halt work on the project.

Charged with breaking the Sabbath after the "raid" yesterday were Richard Koehler of Mount Vernon, N.Y., and Gustave Korn of New Rochelle, N.Y. The warrants said they "did with force and arms do manual labor, the day being Sunday."

The men were clearing land, Nelson said. They were held under $75 bail for a hearing Saturday.

The arrests marked Southbury's latest move in opposition to the establishment of Camp General Von Steuben. Town citizens already have held one open protest meeting and another is scheduled for Friday night.

Veterans' organizations and other groups throughout Connecticut have passed resolutions against the proposed camp, claiming the bund is un-American and pro-Nazi in its aims.

2 QUEBEC FIRES CLAIM 7 LIVES OVER WEEKEND

Six of the Victims Are Children Under 16

MONTREAL, Dec. 6 (CP).—Fire wrote seven deaths into Quebec Province's weekend tragedy list. One fire took five lives—a mother and four children perished—and another brought death to two sleeping youngsters.

The hardest blow was struck at a farm family in St. Michel de Wentworth a village in Argenteuil County. Pinned in their bedroom, four children of Mrs. Albert Gagne died in flames. Their mother died later in hospital.

Her husband, two other children, and a cousin, Roger Gagne, saved themselves as the fire raged through the $10,000 home early yesterday. A son Rover, 16, and a five-year-old Baby girl were the only children to survive.

In Montreal, a smoky fire in a bedroom cupboard killed Mitchell Steine's two tots. While their father was reading in another room, Myrnie, 4, and Carol, 18 months, died without awakening. Smelling smoke the father ran into the room too late to help the youngsters. Origin of the fire was not known.

Stove Overheats.

Apparent cause of the St. Michel fire was an overheated stove that set a woodpile in the kitchen ablaze.

Gagne helped get his wife and the baby out, but then the men found it impossible to get back in after the four remaining children. Carille 15, Geraldine 12, Gabrielle 10, and Fernand 8, were carried into the blazing lower floor as the floor of the bedroom collapsed.

The woman was taken to hospital in Hawkesbury, Ont., across the Ottawa River, where she died. The survivors, none of them seriously hurt, were housed by neighbors.

It was the second fire to take five lives in Quebec within three days. Last Friday, Mrs. Henri Miron, 23, was burned to death at Lamotte with her four children when their farm home was burned.

Jap Bid Refused On Leviathan

New York, Dec. 6 (AP)

REJECTING a Japanese bid for the 22-year-old Leviathan the United States Lines announced tonight the sale of the world war-time troopship to Metal Industries, Ltd., of London, for about $800,000.

Basil Harris, a Vice-President, said the Japanese bid, one of seven, was not accepted because "we did not think it advisable at this time even to consider an offer from Japan."

The 48,942-ton liner, seized from Germany during the Great War and later sailed as the flagship of the United States merchant marine, will leave shortly for England under her own power, to be broken up into scrap metal.

BRITISH AIRLINER CRASHES, KILLING 2 AT ITALIAN PORT

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP).—One passenger and one member of the crew were killed yesterday when the Imperial Airways flying boat Cygnus, en route from India to London, crashed in the outer harbor of Brindisi, on the southeastern Italian coast, with thirteen persons aboard.

The eleven rescued, including Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, a Government director of Imperial Airways, all were injured. The dead were a steward, M. Stappani, and Captain William MacDonald, an Australian.

The Cygnus, one of the latest type 20-ton Empire flying boats, had landed at Brindisi Saturday night. She crashed at 9 a.m. and sank in the outer harbor after taking off. The cause was not determined.

Sir John, returning from a tour of Imperial Airways' Far East Services, received a cut on the shoulder. He retired as Chief of the Air Staff in 1933 to represent the Government on the Board of Director of the Imperial Air Service.

One of the passengers suffered a leg fracture. Other passengers and members of the crew all were slightly injured. Some of the mails the Cygnus carried from Australia and India were salvaged by divers. All the passengers were British.

The Cygnus, commanded by Captain Roger Pierre Mollard, was one of the Imperial Airways' "C" class flying boats costing $200,000. The crew of six was housed on the upper deck and passengers were on the lower deck, where there were ample sleeping accommodations.

SILENT FIFTY YEARS

AUDUBON, Ia., Dec. 6.—(CP).—Left at the altar by a girl 50 years ago, William (Silent Bill) Perry, now 76, made a vow never to speak again until his girl returned. Since that day Perry has shunned society, and stuck rigidly to his promise.

During the last 27 years, he has been at intervals an occupant of the Audubon county home. The suit of clothes which was to have been his wedding suit is now put away carefully and is only brought forth on Sundays when he walks two miles into town to attend church.

Worm Czar Is Sadly Perturbed As Combine Cuts In On Him

Forced To Abandon Long Night Crawlers And Specialize In Select Pink Shorts

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (CP)—It's a sad thing, the bottom has dropped out of the worm market and Henry Ernst, metropolitan worm merchant who is known as the "worm czar" in this wriggly business, is perturbed.

Ernst apraised the market today and said he could see nothing but gloom in the future for worming. He blamed wholesale importations by a Philadelphia combine, activities of the works progress administration, and unscrupulous wormers bent on quantity production at low prices.

The worm czar said he deals largely in tubifex, the red worms used by acquarists to feed tropical fish. He went to great pains to make it clear to newspapermen that he dealt only in the "pink grade" variety of tubifex.

He used to operate heavily in earthworms (both longs and shorts), Ernst said, but a recent influx of longs (known as "nglht crawlers" in the worm trade from upstate New York left him unable to meet new low prices.

Now he confines his earthworming to a pale-tinted variety of choice shorts and sells only to preferred customers at quoted prices.

Hard Hours for Fruit Men.

Fabian urged regulation of both public commercial vehicles and private trucks. He said conditions among private haulers in the fruit industry were "very bad during the fruit season."

"In some cases truckers are required to drive from the Niagara Peninsula to New Liskeard without sleep. Some work day and night for $10 a week. And in the wholesale grocery business conditions for private haulers' employees are in some cases very bad."

Witness produced a photograph of a wrecked fruit truck. He said the driver went on duty at 3 a.m. on September 9 near Hamilton and arrived at North Bay at 11 p.m. He started off again at 3 a.m., intending to drive to New Liskeard, but ran off the road at 6 a.m., after travelling 75 feet on the wrong side of the highway.

"Hours like that create a serious menace on the highways and the men can't stand it," Fabian said.

Wages Far Too Low.

Generally speaking wages were not satisfactory, and were not "commensurate with hours of work," he said.

"Do evil conditions exist only for public commercial vehicle operators?" asked Roebuck.

"They also exist in many cases among private haulers," Fabian said.

Some drivers for the Kingsley Transport of Orillia worked for $1.00 a day, Fabian said. Drivers were advised by the company manager to tell highway inspectors if they were stopped, that they were paid $10.00 a week.

Worst conditions exist in "D" and "P" classes of transport, witness said. Milk and cream are transported by "D" class operators while "P" class transport live stock

Benefits Of Co-Operation In The Buying Farmers Do Outlined To Milk Producers

R. J. Scott Of Belgrave Addresses Banquet Held By Peterborough Association

Economic benefits of co-operative buying were emphasized by R. J. Scott of Belgrave, Huron county, a past president of the U.F.O., director of the Ontario Chamber of Agriculture and executive of various other farm organizations, in an address to a combined after dinner audience of members of the Peterborough Milk Products Association and of the Manufactured Milk Products Association in the Sunday School of Mark Street United Church, Saturday afternoon.

Nearly as many women as men were present at the dinner of which Edward Butler was chairman, and among the guests were Mayor George A. Macdonald, J. J. Duffus, M.P., A. D. Runions, V. S. Milburn, who introduced Mr. Scott, G. A. Gillespie, H. B. Cowan and others.

Speaking in terms of investment, Mr. Scott emphasized as the theme of his address: "We must reduce the cost of production by buying an efficient marketing machine. Obviously I am not speaking about buying a cultivator or a harvester, and I can tell you that a dollar invested in the kind of marketing machine I have been telling you about will pay you as farmers bigger dividends than any dollar you spend."

Mr. Scott expanded his subject by reviewing some of the outstanding accomplishments in co-operative activities by farmers in the United States and Canada.

Nova Scotia Enterprise

"One of the finest jobs on this continent is being done by the Nova Scotia Co-operatives, farmers, miners, lumbermen and so on. It is reaching extensively throughout the maritimes infusing among the people a new and brighter outlook on life. In Newfoundland the government had fallen so far behind that it actually went into a receivership, and control had to be taken over by Great Britain. The co-operative movement there has instilled a spirit of self-help. Farmers and fishermen have been known to get to a meeting. The people have begun at the bottom and are building for themselves again a proper and decent society. This movement is heading toward us in Ontario.

Across the border in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and other States where farmers have joined into wholesalers they are doing the best job I've ever seen."

Reviewing four major depressions since 1894, Mr. Scott said the farmers had led the way out in 1896 and 1913 with the successive opening and expansion of the west creating surges in buying that exceeded the normal demand.

"In 1921 for the first time agriculture did not lead the way out. Industry did, by building new factories and equipment, radios, automobiles, and many other things that required capital expenditure on a great scale. In the depression of 1930-32 the farmers were the first to get into it, and they will be the last to get out. Rearmament in Europe, building in the United States have created a heavier demand for products other than those of the land.

"Do the Job Ourselves"

There is no way of improving our position than by doing the job ourselves. We require experienced and trained leaders, and especially your confidence."

United States farmers went into automobile insurance on a co-operative basis with $10,000 capital, and in six years they showed a surplus of $5,000,000. Since then they have bought insurance and fire insurance companies, and now after nine years they are the seventh largest insurance company in the United States. They turned to the gasoline business, and after four years they handled 60 per cent. of the total volume sold across the line. In two States they put the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey out of business. The National Co-operative Association went into the spark plug business, placing their first order for 100,000 at 13¼ cents, and they found out the actual cost of the plugs was 3¼ cents, Mr. Scott said.

Own Oil Fields

"The farmers of the United States are finding out what the people of Sweden and Denmark found out, and we will have to find it out in Canada in the same way. They have just built their own oil factory, and they now have an international refinery in conjunction with the co-operatives of Great Britain, Denmark and other companies, buying their own oil fields for an assured source of regular supply."

In Canada the co-operative movement is going into the business of manufacture for use and not simply for selling, and they have an annual turnover of $125,000,0000.

"The farmers of Canada must do what the farmers of other countries have done, and that is concentrate their buying power in the cooperative movement, build up their own marketing machine. Look at the main corners of nearly every city and town in the country, and you will find the old type of private merchandising gone from them. In their places are stores that are managed by hired men. That change came about by enlarged buying power, and as farmers that is what we need, and what we can do in the co-operative movement."

A vote of thanks to Mr. Scott was moved by C. E. Moore and seconded by Clarence Mann.

Soil Management

J. J. Duffus referred to last week's series of soil management meetings, saying they were well attended by farmers who were becoming more and more awake to the importance of the problem of soil deficiency. Mr. Scott enlarged upon Mr. Duffus' remarks, saying soil management and weed control were two major problems of agriculture in Canada. Both problems were aggravated by the problem of the prices of chemicals, and farmers were realizing that they should be able to buy at moderate prices the elements they needed to restore the mineral balance of the soil.

In extending a welcome to the members of the joint associations, and also expressing his appreciation of their invitation, Mayor Macdonald said he was always glad of the opportunity to be associated with farmers "because they have a quality we in the city need to cultivate. They are a steady-going people, not easily stampeded or carried away with new ideas. We absorb some of the steadiness, and in turn perhaps you are influenced by some of the extra activity we have in the city."

Mac Gordon conducted a short period of community singing and also contributed a solo "Cockles and Mussels."

TRENT RIVER

Rev. S. A. Kemp conducted the meeting Friday night at the church, giving an interesting talk on the Baptism and the temptation of Jesus.

The play "The Valley Farm", presented Thursday night at the church by a character cast from St. James' church, Peterborough, was attended by a large crowd, and was much enjoyed by all. The door receipts amounted to nearly $30, half of which goes toward the South Group of the Ladies' Aid funds.

MRS. S. WHITRED CHOSEN PRESIDENT

(Examiner Correspondent.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 6.—A successful meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society was held on Monday evening, in the basement of the church, when the president, Mrs. Stewart Whitred, presided over the devotional exercises and the business which centred around the Shanty Tea, to be held next Monday evening, December 6th. Committees were appointed to make arrangements for the program and the admission will be 25c.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Hon. president, Rev. D. K. Perrie; president, Mrs. Stewart Whitred; 1st vice-president, Mr. Francis Kennedy; 2nd vice-president, Mr. Stanley Fife; secretary, Mr. Philip Ford; treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Gillespie. Speeches by the newly-elected officers added to the interest of the meeting.

Social Evening Held

A social evening was held by the members of Trinity United church on Monday evening, following the devotions led by the president, Mrs. F. W. Newell. An impromptu debate, "Resolved that modern invention is an asset to civilization," proved very interesting. As the speakers were only given a few minutes' preparation they did decidedly well. The affirmative was upheld by Marvyn Preston and Grant Sine and the negative by Mrs. C. M. Baker and Miss Helen Collins. The decision proved in favor of the affirmative. While the debaters were preparing their debate, the singing of "Down by the Old Mill Stream," proved enjoyable as each one made suitable motions to accompany the song.

Mr. Sine then supervised the games, including bean games, and a baseball spelling match, after which lunch was served.

YOUNG'S POINT

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Woods of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Richards and little daughter, Ruth, of Windsor, visited from Wednesday to Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson and their sisters and brothers.

The many friends of Mrs. Robert Freeburn will be pleased to know that she has recovered from her illness to be able to leave Nicholls Hospital and she is now convalescing at the home of her daughter, Lottie, in Peterborough.

Miss Lulu Darling of Lakefield has been a guest at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Darling, for the past week.

The friends of Mr. Robert Mace will be sorry to hear of his illness in St. Joseph's Hospital. We hope for a safe recovery.

The ladies of the W.A. of St. Aidan's Church entertained the ladies of the W.A. of St. John's Church, Lakefield, when a very happy afternoon was spent together on Tuesday afternoon. Eight tables of progressive euchre was played with the winners being Mrs. David Darling and Miss Florence Attwood of Lakefield; Mrs. Andrew Wilson winning the lucky chair prize.

A dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge from a table covered with a white linen cloth. In the centre of the table on a reflector was a beautiful bouquet of white chrysanthemums with lighted red candles in white glass holders on each side. Mrs. Wm. Scollard poured tea and Mrs. Robt. Johnston poured coffee.

Rev. E. C. Moore had lunch with the ladies and in a talk which he gave he spoke of the close relationship which we felt to St. John's church, Lakefield, and the love which we held towards Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Creighton.

On Tuesday evening, December 28, there will be held a card party and dance, under the auspices of the W.A. of St. Aidan's church, in their new parish hall. Five good prizes will be given, and good music for dancing supplied.

Christmas Tree "Industry" Speeds Up

RALLY IS STAGED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

OMEMEE, Dec. 6.—One Wednesday evening there was a rally of young people's societies in the Trinity United Church. Representatives of Queen St. Lindsay, Bethel, Cambridge St. Lindsay and Dunsford attended. Mr. Robert Lillie, president of the presbytery, officiated. The Omemee Young People were in charge of the worship service which began with quiet music and the call to worship. The hymn, "Breathe on Me, Breath of God" was followed by the scripture reading, read by Miss Verna Gardiner.

Mary Faulkner, Doris Vaughan and Jean McTavish sang a trio, Marion Rea spoke for a few minutes on the subject "The Carpenter of Nazareth" and followed this by a prayer. The hymn "O Master Let Me Walk with Three" closed the worship period.

The young people then divided into their different groups Consecration, Missionary, Citizenship and Christian Culture and the Administration Group. Interesting discussions in the various groups followed and reports from each were read. Refreshments were served.

Quints To Be Trained For Public Stare Same As "Royal Family"

Ottawa, Dec. 6. (CP) CALLANDER'S famous Dionne quintuplets will be trained to withstand the public stare like a "royal family," Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the world's most noted children said early today as he paused enroute home from Montreal.

The quints, Dr. Dafoe said will be educated to understand they are unique and to grow normally, notwithstanding, just as children of royal families are trained to disregard the great public attention they attract.

The doctor, going home to North Bay after a brief visit to Montreal on what he described as "private business," said the quints were "worth" about $500,000 now and added: "The only privacy they will ever get will be what they buy."

Dr. Dafoe said that on his recent trip to New York he had not done his Christmas shopping early, at least as far as the quints were concerned.

"Sure," he said, he had bought them presents, but he always bought them things when he was away from home. His real Christmas shopping for them "will be all in Canada."

Not Length, But Quality

Dr. Alexis Carrel, himself a Nobel Prize winner, talked sensibly to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at the annual meeting in New York, and his theme was actually a review of all the efforts which had been made to prolong life. That is, to cause people to live longer. He was certain humanity would never give up its search for the secret of eternal youth, and he seemed to be just as thoroughly convinced that it would never be found.

Such things as hygiene, comfort, good food, athletics, fresh air, sun baths, have all failed to increase the length of life. The secret referred to experiments which had been made with mice, and those which had been allowed the freedom of running about in a large greenhouse had 34 per cent. shorter lives than those which were confined to small boxes. The mice paid for their greater liberty with shorter days.

Turning to something of greater importance Dr. Carrell stated:

"The importance of human life depends on its quality, not on its length."

And when the doctor said that he said a great deal. A man may live for many years and waste most of them; he may have missed entirely the idea or reason for living; he may be the cause of sorrow and grief to a number of people. And yet he has succeeded in living for a long time.

Another whose years may be shorter in length may well have been a blessing; he may have been full of good works and his faith of great and deep anchorage. Along his path he may have encountered those who found the journey too hard and he stopped and helped; those in need may have appealed to him and from such he did not turn aside. His years may not have been many but he actually lived in the full-freighted meaning of the word.

We Must Commend Him

A story from Ottawa tells us about William Brady, now a youth of 16 years in the third form of the technical school. It is related that William started to school when he was four years of age and during the twelve years that have run between not at any time has he been late or absent according to school records. So they have given William Brady what they call a perfect attendance certificate.

Possibly one should rejoice upon hearing such news. There are adults who go about their business in much the same way. They are never late for work. Neighbors can with safety and assurance set the family clock by the coming and going of these regular folk. It is possible that William Brady of Ottawa will join that class in after years.

We have no idea of where William lives or of what course he takes in going to and from school. Perhaps he walks only along city streets where everything is regular and where the change of seasons come and go with nothing much but the varying degrees in the thermometer to attract his attention. It may be he does not pass a creek where the suckers start to run when the ice breaks up in spring, and perhaps there are no willows near him which start the pussy business early in the season. And it may be there is no temptation about this time of year to go and see if the frog pond has frozen over yet with a sheet of rubber ice which dares and challenges the lad to slide.

Whether William Brady has a favorite swimming hole we know not, and it may be he has never dug and furnished a cave in the bank that sloped up from the side of the creek, which place seemed to call for visitation and inspection even to the peril of being required to explain to the teacher next day the cause of absence. Perhaps William has exactly the right idea, and no doubt it would be better for us to try and make little boys in general believe that he has. We should commend him and we do so. Even to the point of offering congratulations. But with the mild mental reservation that perhaps William has been missing something as he went his studied way.

His Popularity Remains

There is one thing certain beyond the chance of a good argument. Peterborough believes in Santa Claus. It would not be possible to say who stayed home and kept house when he came to this city on Friday evening. There were people everywhere. Babies some of them; others who had just passed that stage slightly. There were thousands of the age where the firm and unshaken believers are found. And the scoffers and the skeptics were on hand too. All of them.

Come to think of it few of our public men ever attain the standing of Santa Claus. We changed the Lieutenant-Governor only a few days ago. People in general if not the children could tell one that Col. the Hon. H. A. Bruce was the man who had just stepped out of office, but we do not know if many could tell that Hon. W. D. Ross held the office prior to that change and that prior to him was Col. Cockshutt. Or if the question were asked in a general way regarding the men who had been premiers of Ontario in the last 20 years we do not know how accurate would be the answer.

But with Santa Claus it is different. He always stays in office. Even if he had to stand for election now and then he would go back with a tremendous majority. If he threatened to quit there would be a protest the world over.

And it is a good thing he comes because it starts so many people thinking in terms of what they can give rather than about what they can get.

Not A Serious Complaint

There was a report in a Toronto paper telling what went on at a Liberal caucus, but such reports may or may not be informative. Reporters are not admitted. But it was stated that John Glass, member of St. Andrew riding, complained that Toronto ridings were not getting their fair share of patronage. That is, the Toronto people were not in a position to hand out enough jobs, and handing out plenty of jobs is what keeps a political organization working nicely.

We find it difficult to see why there should be many jobs handed out in Toronto or elsewhere just because there has been a change in government. It is not done in any other line of business, nor is it the British system of attending to public business.

The transaction of public business should be a calling which will attract men and hold them. They should enter the service with the expectation that they are going to remain there. They should prepare for it and as opportunity comes they should advance.

There is something about a man losing his job through a change in government which people cannot like. He depends on his employment for a living; if he has children they are going to school, and all his family life is centred in the place where he lives and works. To take that from him merely because a new government has come into power is not right, nor is it manly or British. It means that the discharged man has to get out and start all over again. He may have to pack up and leave for another community, and he may have to enter employment where he occupies the at times unenviable position of being the last man on and the first man off. So it is we do not regard seriously the complaint of the Toronto member that there is not sufficient patronage being made available for that city. Rather we would look upon it as something which was rather favorable to the existing government.

A World Lesson

There was a story in the papers a few days ago telling of the trouble passenger and commercial planes have in making their way over Europe. The planes are good and safe machines and the men who run them are competent, but the trouble is there are so many places where the planes are not allowed to fly.

The reason? There are so many areas where they have military fortifications on the frontiers of European nations that the authorities fear if planes were allowed to fly overhead they might contain spies from other nations who would take photographs and thus reveal military secrets. We learn there are often places where in hundreds of miles there are only a few open spaces through which planes can pass without being challenged. So it cuts off the intercourse of one country with another and restricts very greatly the freedom of movement.

That has probably made it all the more interesting to read of the completion of a 90-foot concrete bridge, part of the great span which will eventually cross the St. Lawrence River in the Thousand Islands district, and afford another method of crossing from Canada to United States or from that country to ours. We know it is an old thing about which to talk—the freedom of passage between United States and Canada. There are thousands of miles where their land runs into ours, and at other points where there are rivers in between we have placed tunnels and bridges to facilitate crossing. No person experiences any feeling of dread or of danger, and we will sleep just as securely at nights when the new Thousand Island bridge is completed as we do now.

It is a much better system and idea than they have in Europe, but Europe stubbornly refuses to learn one of the greatest lessons in the world, and that lesson is one which is plain to see in the boundary line between Canada and United States.

The Magician Fights Back

Those delightful people, the magicians who cause rabbits to jump out of silk hats and who can bring eggs out of the air, are having trouble. And much of it. There have been inroads made in their business and the magicians are banding together to see what the courts can do about it.

Horace Goldwin was the inventor of the trick by which a lady is placed in a box and then when a saw is applied she is apparently being cut in two. But always instead of being taken out of the box in two sections the lady emerges unharmed. Within recent times it is charged a tobacco company in a series of advertisements exposed this trick, and being exposed it has lost its worth to the magicians. For that reason the inventor of the trick is asking for $50,000 damages. Action has also been taken against a man who recently published a book showing how to perform a number of parlor tricks. It is claimed such a book is taking the bread and butter away from the magicians, and apparently they need all they can get of it.

There are magicians who have developed or extended their own art, but their number is few. The average man who gives a performance has purchased his tricks and paid a good price for them and he knows that others entering the entertainment business have to do the same thing.

After having purchased them he is apt to find they have been used and exposed in some advertising scheme and therefore the value has gone from them. So the magician, whom we have been accustomed to see in fine raiment and with magic wand in hand, is now moving toward the court to try and protect his existence. We have a feeling that he should succeed, because there is something quite harmless in fooling people who know they are being fooled. It is quite different to fooling people who believe they are not being fooled.

¶ When Aunt Lucile comes here to stay, she always seems so bright and gay, as though she felt so fit; it takes a half day on the train, but she is looking just the same, she's never tired a bit.

¶ I know she gets sciatics bad, she's had them since I was a lad, at times that leaves her flat; but when she comes to visit here, she's like a wave of sunny cheer, she never mentions that.

¶ I know her heart is none too good, and doesn't work like how it should, she flushes in the cheeks; the thing runs fast, and then runs slow, about that one would never know, of it she never speaks.

¶ I know Lucile is none too strong, and can't keep going so very long, she's getting on in years; I never yet heard her complain, for when she talks it's much the same, of pleasant things she hears.

¶ She does not sleep well all the time, and yet I never heard her whine, nor talk like she's distressed; when she gets up at break of day, the only thing she has to say, she's had a splendid rest.

¶ Perhaps that's why we like her here, she seems to radiate her cheer, we're always glad she came; though she has troubles of her own, she never takes the time to groan—nor bother to complain.

THERE ARE districts in Canada where there are still too many deer; at least that is the opinion of folk down in one section of Nova Scotia. The King's County Farmers' Association — its membership made up of farmers of the famed Annapolis valley has passed a resolution to be forwarded to the Nova Scotia government asking for a change in the protection laws. The farmers claim that the deer have been protected to an extreme extent, increasing to a point where they are doing considerable damage to farm crops and young apple trees.

Quit Work So He Might Be Able to Work

Story of a Man Who Worked Two Shifts Each Day Was Certain He Could Get Through the Winter

(Albert L. Ross, in the Commentator)

I MUST stop at four o'clock and go to work," came through my window one hot day last summer, from a man who had been cutting down a big shade tree in my neighbor's back yard.

I stopped writing to make sure that I had heard correctly, because chopping wood on a summer day is work to me.

Sure enough, the wood chopper was gathering up his saw and axe as if preparing to leave.

"Been hot this afternoon, hasn't it?" I remarked, as he came toward my window en route to the street and his parked car.

"Yes m, but it will be cooler when I get to work, ma'm."

"What is your work?" I asked, still thinking to myself that he had been working very strenuously all afternoon.

"I'm on the night shift at the foundry. I'm doing this little job to get some more stove wood for this winter. They say it is to be colder than last year, so I'm putting up all the wood I can get for the cuttin' as again' that time."

"Is that good stove wood you've been cutting this afternoon?"

"Yes'm, those regular lengths piled near the kitchen door will keep fire all night in the heatin' stove, and that small stuff missus can use for the cannin'."

"What is she canning?"

"Tomatoes and beans. Corn will be ready next week. She's got 100 quarts of tomatoes now, part bear as many beans, and wants 50 quarts of corn. All got from our own garden, truck-patch. That with the 'taters and the plums and pears and apples from our own trees, and with my work, we ought to make it through next winter right well I'd like to stay and talk with you but I got to get to work on time. Good day, ma'm."

Municipalities Can No Longer Take Fees

That Will Be the Result of Slot Machine Finding; Criminal Code Provisions Have to be Recognized.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A KINGSTON bylaw governing the licensing and regulation of slot machines has been quashed at Osgoode Hall and Chief Justice F. R. Latchford, in giving judgment, declared the city's bylaw an attempt to legislate on matters already covered by the Criminal Code of Canada. Slot machines, he held, are "as definitely gambling devices as roulette wheels."

There has been no claim as to the right of municipalities to license or otherwise legislate regarding gambling machines. The imposition of license fees, prohibitive in Guelph and a few other cities and low enough elsewhere, as in Woodstock, to permit operation of a limited number and yield some revenue to the municipality, has been carried out on the theory that vending machines are not necessarily gambling devices. Most municipal councils say, in effect, "If proof can be obtained of illegality, then there should be prosecution for breach of the Criminal Code, but in default of such proof we are bound to regard these machines as within the law, and we may as well get some revenue from their operation."

"Divested of camouflage," the Sentinel-Review commented last January, "the point is that these machines may be used for gambling purposes. To argue otherwise is to recognize such an amazing appetite on the part of the public for mints that an operator is able to pay $350 from his profits for the privilege of having one machine running."

But evidently recognizing the theory that vending machines are not necessarily gambling devices, Mr. Justice Hogg in September of last year upheld the right of Ingersoll council to impose a license fee. Incidentally, he ruled that the council could refuse to accept such fees and refuse to issue any licenses.

Now the Chief Justice of Appeals comes out flat-footed and says the machines are gambling devices, contrary to the Code, and consequently cannot be made subject to municipal license or regulation. The implication, which seems to be generally overlooked, is that in such case operation of the machines is unlawful. Of course his lordship's pronouncement does not automatically make all slot machine operators subject to penalties without due process of law. It will not even serve, we submit, as prima facie evidence. If and when operators are brought to court there will have to be specific evidence of contravention of the law before a magistrate will convict. But in event of conviction, the penalties for violation of the Criminal Code are sufficiently severe that they will not need to be often repeated.

The immediate result, however, of the quashing of Kingston's bylaw, is that the municipalities cannot expect to collect any further license fees.

Kitchener Resents Pro-German Charges

Record Says Only Part of the Facts Have Been Stated; Calls It Unsolicited Interference by the Outsiders.

(Kitchener Record)

THE RECENT address before a Kitchener audience by a Toronto Rabbi on Nazi activities in this community together with a series of special articles by Ken. W. McTaggart in the Toronto Globe and Mail has brought to the front the question as to what extent pro-Hitler propaganda is being actively conducted in Kitchener.

The Globe and Mail writer describes the various local German organizations and speaks in detail of the work of the Deutche Bund. Unfortunately he gives no information as to the membership in this city, though this information is easily obtainable.

The Record has made the investigation which the Globe and Mail writer neglected to make as to the membership of German social and political clubs here. As a result it is definitely established that the Concordia Club Ltd., a strictly social body, has a membership of 250 and provides instruction in the German language for 25 to 30 children every Saturday. The Sachsen-Schwaben Club of Kitchener is a sick benefit organization with about 150 members and provides language instruction for about 75. In Waterloo there is an Austrian Club with 75 members.

The only political body is the Deutsche Bund referred to by the Globe and Mail writer. This group has 90 members, some Canadian naturalized citizens and others of German nationality. The Bund provides German instruction for about 40 children.

The Record in company with the decent citizenship of Kitchener and Waterloo regrets and resents all this unsolicited interference by outsiders as well as the veiled suggestion that Kitchener is the centre of pro-Hitler propaganda. The local community is fully able to look after the maintenance of sound civic ethics. Any efforts directed towards national German propaganda are not going to be tolerated, but the people of the Twin City do not want any outsider with a scant knowledge of the facts to come here and spread ugly insinuations.

Conservative Party Needs to Take Stock

Election in Victoria Another Indication of Trend; Bennett Not Strong Enough to Challenge King Ministry

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE LIBERALS are naturally jubilant over the return, by a large majority, of a Government candidate in the Federal by-election in Victoria on Monday. This is the first time in 31 years that a Liberal has been elected in that city and the fourth time since Confederation. The election of a Liberal in a traditionally Conservative seat indicates that the tide has not yet set in against the King administration. It is significant that in 15 by-elections which have been held since the general election in 1935, the Liberals were successful in 12 and the Conservatives in only three.

It is true that by-election results are not always an infallible indication of how the country is likely to go in the next election, as often the issues are chiefly local. But the fact that the Conservatives have been victorious in only three of the 15 by-elections would seem to indicate that the party's strategists have not yet devised a winning campaign.

In the Victoria contest there was a mixture of local and national issues. The victorious candidate, R. W. Mayhew, emphasized that he was seeking election because he felt "it is time Victoria had a business man to handle its affairs in the House of Commons." No doubt this contention played a part in securing the election of Mr. Mayhew, who is an aggressive and successful business man, quite capable of representing the city in a business-like way. Then the fact that Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, spent considerable time in emphasizing the principle of Pacific Coast defence, helped materially, no doubt, to swing a considerable number of electors Mr. Mayhew's way, as coastal defence is an important matter in a coast city.

But the trade question, upon which the next general election promises to be mainly fought, also entered prominently into the Victoria by-election. Ministerial spokesman defended the Government's desire to participate in the expansion of international trade as the best means of promoting peace and economic recovery and stability. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, who delivered several forcible speeches in the campaign, maintained that such a policy would promote discord among the nations.

The upset in Victoria, following the smashing Conservative defeat in the Ontario general elections, has renewed the demand for a thorough reorganization of the party, federally and provincially. The rank and file of the party should have an opportunity of declaring whether Bennett's trade policy is too nationalistic and too imperialistic, and whether, while safeguarding Empire trade, it is not desirable to extend trade in other directions. In the meantime, it would be suicidal for the party for Mr. Bennett to urge an early election since the electors seem to be of the opinion that as yet he has shown no compelling reasons why the King Government should be turned out.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

NOW PETER and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple; who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms. And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them. Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.—Acts iii, 1-8.

HELP THE LIVING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: On the 11th of Nov. the memorial in a nearby village was decorated in honor of our soldiers.

But just a short week or so before that a fire broke out in the home of a returned soldier only two minutes walk from the village limits. It was in that village not the township he lived who took credit as one of their recruits. His father also his grandfather had given honest trade for years to that village. And was asked by a neighbor of the fire department but refused to give any help for fear a couple of the men would not receive their hour's wages. Had the people a chance or a telephone they could and would have willingly paid and guaranteed whatever was asked but no, the house was burned to the ground. Most of the fire brigade men came to give what aid they could without the engine. Why not honor our dead and help the living soldiers,

ROMANCE HINTED IN KING LEOPOLD'S VISIT TO ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP) — Britain wondered today whether a British-Belgian royal romance was being unfolded.

Unexpected, private visits of Belgium's King Leopold III, Queen-Mother Elizabeth and Prince Charles, the King's bachelor brother, had most persons puzzled and guessing.

There were official denial of rumors the Belgian King's visit to the Duke of Portland's Welbeck Abbey estate indicated a romantic attachment for the Duke's 21-year-old granddaughter, Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentinck.

Baron Capelle, the King's secretary, described the rumors as "childish fairy tales." The Count de Grunne, chamerblain to the Queen Mother, declared when he was asked if the widower King had come to choose a bride: "No! No! No! I can not tell you anything. We denied those rumors before we left Brussels."

The Baron explained that Queen Elizabeth had planned for some time to visit the Duke and Duchess of Portland, and that the King, "Having several days free," had decided to accompany her. The Duke was a friend of the late King Albert of Belgium.

Just A Call On Friends?

He commented on Prince Charles' unexpected arrival in London yesterday by saying he was "persuaded the trip was unconnected with his mother's and brother's visit." He added that "Charles is a frequent visitor to England, where he has a number of friends."

The name of Prince Charles was linked with that of Lady Anne in 1929 in reports that they were engaged, but her father, the Marquess of Titchfield, denied the reports.

The 36-year-old King's name several times has been connected with various European princesses since the death of Queen Astrid in an automobile accident two years ago. On each occasion the reports were denied.

With The Boy Scouts

No Scout news can be expected this week, seeing that all the lads were in full force, if not in full uniform, at the Santa Claus parade on Friday night. I received a report that the Scouts did their good turn when the Santa Claus Special arrived in town. The crowd of excited boys and girls, large and small, crowded around the train, giving room to no one eager for the fun; the Scouts, under command of L. Grant, made an endless chain from one end to the other between the standing train to the crowd, then slowly pushed the crowd back, giving Santa Claus and his staff lots of room to disembark.

Sacred Heart Cub Pack were busy on Thursday practising dances and songs for their second anniversary that is being held to-night (Monday). All other Cub packs join hands in wishing Peter and his pack a happy birthday and good hunting.

The Sacred Heart Troop are also celebrating a Parents' Night on Friday next, and extend a cordial invitation to all troop committeemen and scoutmasters to be on hand. Also they request that every troop send a Scout down as their official representative for this gala occasion.

The St. John's Rover Crew were busy building models with willow canes on Tuesday. The Adam Scott patrol are building a replica of the log cabin, the home of their namesake, Adam Scott, one of the first settlers in Peterborough, then known as Scott's Mills.

The St. John's Cubs passed several tests on Friday during a short meeting held on Friday. Games of Air, Fire and Water, and Kelly Says were played. Next Saturday the pack is holding a paper collection, and any friends of the pack having papers, please phone 3067 during the week and 2701 Saturday morning after 8.30 a.m.

On Thursday next, December 9, the Scouters' Club will hold its regular meeting and also its Christmas party. All Scouters and assistants are requested to be on hand and bring a small gift nicely wrapped and not to cost more than 15 cents. Let us make it a good one for the closing year.

On Tuesday night at 7.15 sharp a meeting of the Rover Council will be held in the 1st Peterborough Rover Crew headquarters. Members are requested to be on hand sharp.

Activities for the week.—Monday, Sacred Heart Cub Birthday. Tuesday, Rover Council, 7.15, at 1st Crew Headquarters. Thursday, Scouters' Club at St. James' Church, 8 p.m. Friday, Sacred Heart Troop Parents' night, 7 p.m. Saturday, St. John's Cubs' Pack Paper Collection.

ONE PATH LESS

A (Burlington) Railroad asked permission to abandon a 20.5-mile branch to Booth's mousetrap factory. Booth said the road carried only about a third of his product anyhow.

While most clergymen confine their efforts to fighting the fires of the hearafter by depriving said fires of potential fuel, the Rev. Delbert L. On two occasions fires interrupted his Sunday sermons, for it is the reverend smoke-eaters' slogan that "sermons can wait. Fires can't".

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.

Miss Phyllis Twindy, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

PROFITABLE YEAR AT SELWYN PLANT

SELWYN, Dec. 6—The annual fall meeting of the Selwyn Cheese Factory was held on Wednesday evening in the factory with a good average attendance present. The president, Gilbert McIlmoyle, was in the chair and the acting secretary for the meeting was Bruce Fitzgerald.

The total pounds of milk delivered to the factory was 906,236 pounds; total pounds of cheese for season, 80, 374 lbs.; total pounds of butterfat, 31,497 pounds. Number pounds of milk to 1 pound of cheese, 11.27 pounds. Number pounds of cheese to 1 pound of butterfat, 2.23 pounds. Total amount of money received for cheese, $11,254.-97. Average price of cheese for season, 13 15/16 cents.

Total expenses for season were $1,598.08.

These were given in detail by the secretary-treasurer.

There were 36 patrons sent their milk to the factory and on the whole the past season was a very profitable one both for the farmers and the cheese-maker. Rex Wilson, the latter, was very successful when he exhibited his cheese, both at Peterborough and Lakefield exhibitions, as he carried off some valuable prizes both times.

The cheese factory has now completed its operations until the spring when everyone is looking forward to another good season.

MARY MOORE'S HELPFUL HINTS TO THE HOSTESS

With Your Cookie Crock Full You Are Always Prepared For Unexpected Visitors

Christmas Holiday Fare In Cookies Offered By Mary Moore

By MARY MOORE

If it is ordinary cookies you expect to find you must look elsewhere for these are definitely Christmas holiday fare. Some of them you may carry over for other high spots in the year, but unless you are watchful you will be setting too rich a standard for the everyday food that is good for us.

The high potentate in our house claims that in the cookie field genuine Scotch shortbread is supreme—but he also claims that cashew nuts are best in theirs—so that is why I ventured to combine the two in a cookie and herewith follows the method I used and if you will try it too (being faithful to my smallest details) you can walk away with all the honors.

Emem's Cashew Shortbread

At the nut store ask for uncooked Cashew Nuts. They will be about 50 cents per pound.

Force one cup of uncooked cashew nuts through the medium fine knife of the food chopper. Add these chopped nuts to 1¼ cups best butter, and cream them together with wooden spoon (or use the bare hands if you prefer) until they are thoroughly mixed, then while you beat add ¾ cup sifted icing sugar gradually, until they are all mixed well. Last add 4 cups sifted bread flour, using the hands this time to mix them thoroughly. As I have said before this may now be pressed into layer cake pans to ½-inch thickness and baked very slowly (first pricking the top with a fork) but we think to do it justice it should be made into little cookies. To do this roll out on slightly floured board with slightly floured rolling pin—the edges of th dough will crack—press these together with the hands after every rolling until dough stops splitting. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness. Cut out with fancy cutters, star and crescent shapes and bells are nice for Christmas, and place on unbuttered cookie sheet and bake slowly at 275 to 300 deg. Fahr., never more or the high butter content in these cookies will burn. Do not brown them, merely let them become biscuit colored— about 1 degree creamier in shade than when they were made. They are done when they are crisp to the touch of you finger nail.

NOTE: A little salt, and a little vanilla, and an egg yolk are all addition that may be added to the above recipe, but we think they detract from their purity of flavor.

Aunt Bess' Mincemeat Cookies

One cup butter, 1½ cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 1½ tablespoons hot water, 3½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup mincemeat. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, add beaten eggs, soda dissolved in the hot water and half the flour mixed with the salt. Then add broken nuts and mincemeat and the remainder of the flour. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr., until light golden.

The above cookies keep very well, and are fruity enough that when served with tea or Hot Spiced Grape Juice no other accompaniment is indicated.

Because I am patriotic I listed those two thoroughly Scottish recipes first. Of course they had to be excellent in flavor for even my patriotism to predominate.

But the middle Europeans do have a way of creating cookies that will keep indefinitely (but who wants a cookie to keep indefinitely?) and I'd like to think that the flavor of Anise, both seed and oil was more popular with Canadian cooks, instead of the monotonous vanilla.

You do not need a Springerle Board or rolling pin to make these little goodies, but if you are ever near a counter containing them snap it up quick for they are hard to find in this country.

Springerle (keeps very well)

Four eggs, 1 teaspoon aniseed, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 cups sifted all purpose flour, 1 teaspoon butter 2 cups berry or icing sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat the egg yolks until thick and light, at least five minutes, then add the sugar gradually while beating. Mix and sift together the flour and baking powder. Sift the flour mixture into the yolks alternately with the milk adding ½ cup flour and 2 teaspoons milk at a time. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites, then the anissed and melted butter. Mould into Springerle mould or roll with Springerle roller or use plain rolling pin and let stand in cold place overnight. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr, until light yellow. These should be made 4 weeks before needed for use, and stored in airtight tin boxes with quartered apple.

Chokolade Platzchen are little chocolate drops similar in texture to angel food, but not quite so temperamental to make.

Chokolade Platzchen

Three-quarters cup sifted sugar, ¼ cup sifted flour, ¼ lb. of grated chocolate kept cold, 4 egg whites.

Beat the egg whites until frothy then gradually begin to add the sugar and when sugar is all added beat the whole until stiff, then sift in flour and add chocolate which has been grated on medium fine grater, and stir in.

Drop on well greased cookie sheet by teaspoonfuls and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. (never hotter) until firm.

Almond Macaroons

One-half pound almond paste (same as grocers sell at Christmas time for icing Christmas cakes), whites 3 eggs, ¾ lb. powdered sugar, 1 cup very finely shredded blanched almonds. Work together the almond paste and sugar with a kneading motion, using the bare hands and when thoroughly mixed add the unbeaten egg whites first using the hands then a spatula, which not only mixes it well but keeps the board or marble slab clean. Shape into rosebuds with pastry bag and tube, or drop into high piles using teaspoon. Sprinkle top of each macaroon with shredded almonds. Macaroons spread during making so must be placed about 2 inches apart, on buttered paper. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until dried out enough to handle, about 25 minutes. After removing from oven invert paper, and wet with cloth wrung out of cold water then macaroons will slip off easily.

Next week watch for Christmas candy recipes. These recipes will be selected for their adaptability to Christmas gift packages. If you want some special Christmas recipes write now for them. Do not wait until the week before Christmas.

Tested Favorite Recipes

(By MARY MOORE.)

One Christmas eve I found myself shopping not frantically for a last-minute gift for a forgotten friend—but for individual earthen ramekins—so my beloved husband could have individual turkey pie for dinner the day after Christmas. I found them too. And they have been staunch little friends ever since, for with the aid of a puff paste crust they glorify many a little dinner that would otherwise be mediocre.

Fact is the recipe herewith was inspired because I wanted to put my little ramekins to greater use.

Emem's Beefsteak and Mushroom Pies

(Use either large casserole or individual ramekins.)

Order one pound of shoulder or shin beef from your butcher and have him put it through the coarse knife of his grinder. 15 cents per pound is enough to pay for this cut of meat. Saute this in 5 tablespoons butter or cooking oil with half-pound mushrooms, scrubbed clean and sliced in six lengthwise, for five minutes slowly, then add 4 tablespoons flour, and stir into the fat, then 2½ cups boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon white pepper. Pour into buttered casserole, drop quartered potatoes into it—4 medium sized should be enough, cover with puff paste or rich crust. If using individual ramekins, 2 quarters of potato are enough for each dish. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. (very hot) for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 to finish baking. (If you can make good pastry without butter this is an economical and delicious guest supper.)

Buy the quantity you need for your family and parboil it by covering with boiling water and just bring to boiling point—then let simmer for five minutes. Remove from liquid and force through meat grinder. To it add one grated onion and ½ cup dried crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt (to a pound of meat) some pepper, and catsup. Form into patties and fry, turning once. When done remove from pan and if necessary add more fat to fry ½-cup finely chopped onions for five minutes, then add 2 tablespoons flour, stir well, and then stir in 1½ cups of the liquid in which liver was parboiled and stir until thick adding a little salt and pepper. Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question: Will you please send me the recipe of drop dates. It is made with dates, whites of eggs and cocoanut. Thanks for the trouble, Mrs. A., Sherbrooke Street.

Answer: Thank you for your letter.

DATE DROPS

Thoroughly chill the whites of three eggs and then add to them ½ cup of fine granulated or berry sugar and beat with rotary beater for about 10 minutes or until mixture is stiff and full of fine bubbles. (When sugar is beaten into whites this way the meringue is fine and will not fall when baked.) To the stiffly beaten meringue add 1 cup of stoned and quartered dates, and 1 cup of dessicated or grated cocoanut and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls on cookie sheet covered with wax paper and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes—a long slow cooking is necessary.

Question: Thank you so much for recipes I requested, that you printed a few weeks ago. Unfortunately I have not been able to use them as I had difficulty in getting the required ingredients. Poppy seed especially seems a rarity in these parts. The grocers have tried to sell me everything from bird seed to flower seed. Have you any idea where it may be purchased? You inquired if poppy seed was responsible for turning black bread black. I am more inclined to believe that it is the fermenting process that does it, though I am not an authority on the subject, having never made it.

Have you any space on your valuable page to give us hints on preserving and keeping Christmas cakes, puddings and cookies for an indefinite period of time. At home my grandmother made this year's cakes and puddings for next year's consumption.

I am enclosing a recipe for an Un-Cooked Fruit Cake that may be of interest to someone, though it does not keep being really an ice box cake.

UNCOOKED FRUIT CAKE

(submitted by reader)

Combine and let stand for 1½ hours 1½ cups seedless raisins washed and sliced, 1 cup candied cherries, cut in quarters, 1-3 cup finely cut preserved orange peel, 1-3 cup fine cut preserved lemon peel; ¾ cup finely cut citron, 1½ cups puree made from cooked apricots (dried unsweetened), 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup orange juice unstrained, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, allspice, nutmeg. Heat to boiling point and remove from fire.

Moisten 4 tablespoons gelatine in 6 tablespoons water and dissolve in the hot fruit. Cool. Whip 1¼ pints whipping cream until thick, not stiff, and whip the cold fruit into this cream. Chop 1 cup nut meats. Sprinkle nuts over bottom of 10-inch tube pan. Pour cream mixture over nuts. Place in refrigerator over night but do not freeze. Slice to serve. Serves 18 to 20 slices. I have served this with great success instead of a steamed pudding on other holiday occasions.

I will close wishing you and family all the best that the holiday season can bring you.—(Mrs.) A. L.

Answer: Thank you for a delightful letter and for this cake—we made up a quarter of the quantity and think it had some fine points.

Poppy Seed may be procured from any Jewish Grocery stores or bakeries. Jewish bakers use it constantly in their break and cakes. And if this does not suit you you may write to Young Winfield Ltd., 89 Cannon West, Hamilton, Ont., and they will send it to you by mail.

Past generations used to wrap Christmas cakes in heavy cloths dipped in wine to keep them from year to year. Christmas puddings were kept in the cloths in which they were steamed—which had been saturated with flour before the uncooked pudding was placed in them before steaming. This was immediately made into a sealed coating as soon as the pudding was thoroughly soaked with steam.

The ingredients of cookies are responsible for their keeping qualities—cookies such as shortbread, ginger snaps, and the European Christmas cookies (see elsewhere on page) are all famous for their long keeping quality, but must be kept in air-tight tin cans.

Hoping these hints help you and that you like our Christmas recipes this year, and that we can help you constantly.

Question: Could I trouble you for a recipe for Plain Onion Soup? Also a recipe for Christmas cake that is nice and fruity and also with plenty of nuts—one that would weigh about 3 lbs. I find your page very helpful and look foward to it every week. Thanking you, for your trouble.—M. E. H.

Answer: Thank you for your letter.

ONION SOUP

Three large onions, 1 cup dry bread crust broken, 1 carrot, butter, 2 stalks celery, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup milk, salt and pepper. Peel and slice the onions and saute in butter until nicely browned, stirring constantly. Place in top of double boiler with 1 quart boiling water, the broken dry crust, add pepper and salt. Add the carrot and celery which have been chopped finely. Let this mixture cook over boiling water for 2 hours, then strain. Ten minutes before serving beat the egg yolk into 1 cup milk and pour slowly into the soup stirring, letting it come almost to boiling point, then serve immediately.

This may be made to simulate French Onion soup by adding Bovril or Oxo and serving with croutons and grated old cheese.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Tuesday, December 7.

According to the lunar transits, this should be a day of fair activity, with much gainful effort and reward for industry, application and sound judgment. Real possessions should increase and solid investments thrive, possibly because of the advice or support of elders. Be wary, however, of duplicities or schemes. Social, domestic and affectional relations should bring happiness and new friendship.

Those born on this day may have a rather active year, with definite returns for fidelity, hard work and through increased property values and wise investments. In private affiliations, much happiness, possibly a desirable new friendship, is presaged.

A child born on this day may be talented and versatile in business as well as in social attributes, also in art or literary ability. It may be industrious and have good judgment, winning the benefices of its elders.

Christmas Tea
Peter Robinson Chapter.

The Green Room and library at the Y.W.C.A. were converted into a Christmas fairyland on Saturday afternoon, when the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. held a most successful and charmingly planned Christmas tea, and sale of gifts.

The many guests were received by the regent, Mrs. C. A. Sollitt, and the 1st vice-regent, Mrs. I. H. Keefer.

In the Green Room iridescent light from many colored bulbs among cedar boughs and little Christmas trees, combined with the flickering firelight and lighted tapers to show the unusually unique and lovely tea table with charming effect. Covered with cloths of Italian cutwork, the long table was centred with an oblong mirror reflector, around which soft blue bulbs glowed, and in the centre of which was a modernistic Christmas tree with spiky silver branches. Colored tinsel balls surrounded the base of the tree, and reflected in the mirror. Crystal candelabra holding Royal blue tapers, were placed diagonally with delightful "star sprays," and at either end gleamed the silver tea services. Between the Green Room and the library, bulbs glowed with silver-blue light against a "whitened" tree, and around the walls, and on tables Christmas decorations were arranged with beautiful effect.

Assisting as hostesses were Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. W. Belleghem, Miss M. Jory, Miss C. Clarke and Miss H. Anderson. Tea was poured by Mrs. S. J. Learn to Read Dreams and Understand Yourself

What an amazing dream Ken interrupted!

Desperately, Marjorie was clinging to a great iceberg. Inky-black water menaced her on one side; a polar bear growled threateningly from the other.

Soon Marjorie will be laughing at her Arctic adventures. But if she understood dream symbolism, she'd take them more seriously.

Perhaps she merely had what psychologists call a "somatic" dream—caused by a current of cold air touching her as she slept.

On the other hand, that menacing polar bear may represent an important problem she refuses to face when she's awake.

Many dreams are important warnings from our unconscious mind. Others reveal personality flaws we could remedy if we were aware of them.

In our 32-page booklet an eminent psychologist tells how to recognize significant dreams, how to use dream interpretations to develop your personality.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of THE MEANING OF DREAMS to The Examiner's Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

MEN LOVE PEPPY GIRLS

IF you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. If you are lively, they will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross and lifeless and always tired out, men won't be interested in you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. Men go to parties to enjoy themselves. They want girls along who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

thought so much as the preservation of simple individual human freedom and liberty. The line distinguishing Fascism from Communism is so thin that little actual difference exists. Both systems are totalitarian and both exist by oppression and suppression, he said. He warned that both systems grow out of the breakdown of democracy.

Telling his large audience that the Italian Fascist system is an excellent example of what happens when democracy breaks down and gives way to such an opportunist as Mussolini, he declared: "Mussolini today is drunk with his own power. He is a madman in a high position. Yet I believe the people of Italy are behind him for he brought organization and order out of chaos." He suggested that the new Italian dream of empire building is an extremely dangerous one for the rest of the world.

Col. Drew described Germany as much more formidable an enemy to world peace than Italy but a nation not as likely as Italy to go off half-cocked.

Might Start War

"One man rules Italy. If he has a bad night he may wake up and start a war. I mean that. Not even Count Ciano knows what Mussolini is going to do. In Germany you have a distribution of authority over a large group."

Canadians should know well that Nazism arose out of a hatred of Communism, the speaker said. "And we must not forget that Hitler was elected to power by a popular vote at a time when the ballot boxes were controlled by his enemy."

Turning to the broader aspect of the question of world peace, Col. Drew declared: "Peace or war lies in the hands of seven nations of the world. Peace could be assured if only seven nations could agree—Germany, Italy, the British Empire, the United States, France, Russia, and Japan."

Although the people of the totalitarian nations are allowed to read and know only what their dictators want them to know, no hypocrisy regarding such foreign ventures as those of Russia, Italy and Germany in Spain at the present times existed, Col. Drew said on a recent visit to Europe he noted in Italian and Russian papers pictures of the war dead in Spain openly published.

Visit Museum

"Those of you who are inclined to sympathize with the Russian teachings should go to Russia and visit the museum of the Revolution," he continued. Describing the reminders of the Revolution on display in the museum, glorified for all Russians to see, he said: "Never let yourself forget that Communism holds for bloody revolution."

He said the Communist system tends to bring down civilization rather than raise its standards. The tendency is to destroy all the ethics governing personal relations between human beings in life. Every effort to destroy religion was being made and even were efforts being made to destroy the age-old idea of a civilization centered on home life.

"It is not possible to destroy all faith and to destroy decent standards. They still exist somewhere in Russia. Something will come out of the mess. The museum of the Revolution does not contain the exhibits of the last revolution Russia is to have.

"We do not want to see repeated in Canada anything of a similar nature to what has occurred in Italy, Germany or Russia for it is the impact of those dictatorships that has brought on the tragedy of Europe."

There are people in Canada today in the pay of the Russian government whose object is to foment revolution here, he said as he warned that the Russian system is the cruelest of all the totalitarian systems. He warned against such "stupid" tolerance as that which saw Tim Buck welcomed to the pulpit of an Ontario church recently. If Buck is really a Communist he does not believe in Christianity and he believes that the Government of Canada should be overthrown by bloody revolution, Col. Drew said.

Col. Ackerman

Col. Drew was introduced by Lieut.-Col. Charles Ackerman as a distinguished Canadian citizen, a pioneer, author, political observer and public servant. He said the speaker was able to come to Peterborough with an absolute independence of thought and action.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).

STANLEY Martin Jr., who strangled his sweetheart, and then lost his nerve and failed to kill himself in their suicide pact, was described in court today by Judge Thomas Downs as a "coward" who "welshed." Judge Downs sentenced Martin, 29-year-old salesman, to serve 10 to 20 years in Sing Sing for first degree manslaughter, saying: "The defendant and the unfortunate woman entered into an unholy pact. She went through with her part. But he, the coward, welshed."

Dickens' Christmas Carol

ADAPTED BY C. D. VORMELKER

Illustrated by Alfred J. Buescher
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

THE COLD BECAME MORE BITTER AND PIERCING. THE OWNER OF ONE SCANT NOSE STOOPED DOWN AT SCROOGE'S KEYHOLE TO REGALE HIM WITH A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

BUT AT THE FIRST SOUND OF "GOD BLESS YOU MERRY GENTLEMEN, MAY NOTHING YOU DISMAY!" SCROOGE SEIZED THE RULER WITH SUCH ENERGY OF ACTION THAT THE SINGER FLED IN TERROR.

AT LENGTH CLOSING TIME ARRIVED. SCROOGE DISMOUNTED FROM HIS STOOL AND SPOKE TO THE CLERK, WHO INSTANTLY SNUFFED HIS CANDLE OUT AND PUT ON HIS HAT.

WITH CONSIDERABLE ILL-WILL SCROOGE ALLOWED THE CLERK TO BE ABSENT ON CHRISTMAS—THE NEXT DAY—AND WALKED OUT WITH A GROWL.

LINDBERGHS BREAK TWO-YEAR EXILE

The Lindberghs' two children did not accompany them and it was assumed that they either were at their parents' home in England or in Wales with their aunt, Mrs. Aubrey Morgan.

Mrs. Morrow, widow of a partner of J. P. Morgan, who has seen her husband and a daughter die and her family scatter in the last six years, never has seen the younger boy, Land Morrow Lindbergh, who was born on May 12.

Jon, now five years old, was in his father's arms two years ago on the trip that ended with the leasing of a rambling 14th century farmhouse, "Long Barn," in Kent.

Recognized By Cameramen.

Reporters and photographers met the President Harding expecting to find nothing more exciting than the members of the Czechoslovakian Trade Treaty Commission. A photographer recognized them as they walked down the third-class gangplank.

An echo of the Lindbergh kidnapping—most famous crime in American history—accompanied the Lindberghs' return. From New York, the Citizens' Protective League, a German-American organization, claiming 50,000 supporters, sent telegrams to Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, and to Lindbergh asking that payment of the reward for apprehension of the kidnappers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., be "suspended" because "the real culprits have not yet been caught."

Disposition of the $25,000 reward by the State has not been settled. There are 30 claimants.

Press Breaks Silence.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP).—British newspapers broke months of comparative silence on the doings of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Linbergs to-day in New York dispatches announcing their arrival in the United States.

Some of the newspapers expressed pride the Lindbergs had found in England the peace and seclusion they had been unable to find in their native land.

They printed New York accounts of the hundreds of automobiles which blocked roads about Englewood, N.J., where the Lindberghs were staying, and of the special police precautions about the estate.

The fact their sons—John, five, and seven-months-old Land Morrow—were left behind, was taken as an indication that the surprise visit to their homeland would be a brief one. The children were believed to be either at the Lindbergh estate, "Long Barn," near Seven Oaks, Kent., or in Wales with Mrs. Lindbergh's sister, Mrs. Aubrey Morgan.

Since the taciturn flier arrived in England Dec. 31, 1935, he has had no cause to complain of his treatment by the British press or public. As he wished, the Lindbergh family has been left strictly alone.

ICY ROADS CAUSE 3 FATAL ACCIDENTS

William Fach, 74, was killed near Kitchener when struck by an automobile. David Matlow, the driver, said he did not see the man who was walking along a highway with his son during a snowstorm. The son, middle-aged Reuben Fach, was injured seriously and was taken to a Kitchener hospital.

Car Skids On Snow.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCart, 53, was killed; Norman Bone was critically injured and three other persons were less seriously hurt when two cars collided Sunday in North York, Toronto district. A car driven by Bone skidded on a pavement made slippery by snow and rain and struck one driven by David McDowell, Toronto.

Nine-year-old Marion Groves died in a spectacular 135-foot fall into a ravine off a small truck driven by her mother, Mrs. Ada Groves, 34, who was seriously injured when returning from church at Hamilton. Two young brothers of Marion also were hurt. The crash followed a light snow that made the highway slushy.

In other traffic accidents, Harold Koepp, 14, died at Durham after being struck by a truck. Walking in a Toronto suburb, Mrs. Laura Barwick, 47, was killed when a car leaped a curb after a collision with another machine. Three others were injured.

Lorne Tuck, 30, was fatally injured near Burlington when two cars collided. Three others were hurt. Harold McGuire, Rochester, N.Y., was charged with manslaughter.

Ten-year-old Joseph St. Michel drowned in the Bonnechere River at Renfrew when the ice broke as he played with two companions. A woman on shore sought unavailingly to reach the boy with a pole and rope. Cycling on the ice of the Thessalon River at Sault Ste. Marie, Ralph Fullerton, 15, was drowned on Saturday when the ice gave way under his weight.

Falls 90 Feet To Death.

Police investigation of the death of 22-year-old Roy Manley was under way today at St. Catharines. Manley's body was found Saturday night beneath the Burgoyne Bridge. Indications were that he had fallen 90 feet from the bridge to a concrete pavement. A widow and two children survive.

Heavy falls of wet, clinging snow were reported from many Western Ontario points. At London, the fall measured 3½ inches, with a half-inch of rain also officially recorded during the weekend. Two inches of snow covered Kitchener; a two-inch fall also was reported from Guelph, with lesser falls at other points.

The 400-foot grain carrier, Bricoldoc ran aground on a shoal at Goderich Saturday, while trying to make her winter berth during a blinding snowstorm. Loaded with 250,000 bushels of wheat, the vessel was fast on the bar until Sunday, when refloated without damage.

23 Graduates Get Certificates At School Commencement

Successful Play Features Closing Exercises at Campbellford High School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 6. — The final presentation of the comedy, "And Mary Did," attracted a capacity audience to the High School commencement on Friday evening, when twenty-three graduates were awarded certificates by W. Roy Loucks, chairman of the School Board.

Filled with humor and action the play which was divided into three acts, was of the type which required speed of action as well as ability on the part of the players. The cast was well chosen and reflected as much credit on the actors as it did on the staff of the High School, which was in charge of its direction.

Briefly the story was of a girl and boy in love. Constance McKelvie played the part of a modern Joan of Arc who (Mary Sterling) was in love with Laurence Grey, played by Joe O'Sullivan, who took a dual role. Mrs. Sterling (Vera Wood) is weighed down with the duties and responsibilities of looking after her family of three with Mary the oldest and Willie (James Farrell) and Betty (Marjorie Mills) just at the adolescent age. Daniel Grey (Arthur Howe) is more than a little interested in his son's matrimonial and financial career and is the only thing that stands in the way of the early marriage of Lawrence and Mary. It was Mary's suggestion to the none-too-eager father of Lawrence that she should run his mayoralty campaign while he (Lawrence) was sent to the south for a vacation. If she sould succeed in winning the campaign for him she was to have the father's blessing and the son's hand in marriage, and if she failed Lawrence should be free to marry the girl of his father's choice, Dressa Rand (Patricia Cryderman), who has just about everything but Lawrence's love.

"Gentleman From Georgia."

The campaign is being conducted by Mary, who seems to be winning favor for her candidate who is supposedly in Georgia, but who returns disguised as the "Gentleman from Georgia," and his real identity is unknown to all but Edith Smith (Dorothy Redden), who is Mary's closest friend. Assuming this disguise Lawrence goes out on the hustings and succeeds in winning the campaign, but not before he is rescued from the clutches of Dressa Rand, who induced him to attend a wild party at a roadhouse with her, having previously planned to have the police stage a raid which would so damage Lawrence's name that the election would be lost for him.

The climax is reached when Henry (J. M. Kelly) discloses to the household that he had been bribed by Dressa to tell police of the supposed wild party and Mary rushes to the scene rescuing him before the raid, and he arrives on time to make an important campaign speech. Lawrence is elected and Mary decides to leave believing that her love is not returned when she has received no answer to her letters to him while he was supposed to be in Georgia. It is while Edith is prevailing upon Mary to remain that the Gentleman from Georgia comes on the scene and reveals his true identity.

Mrs. O. G. Whitaker, an exponent of feminine freedom (Madeline Lisle) and an opponent of the Grey political views, plays a difficult part, while Matilda the maid (Merle Black), who is in love with Henry, add much humor to the play with their love affair.

Scholarships Awarded

At the conclusion of Act I, Mr. F. C. Bonnycastle awarded the Board of Education scholarships to Florence Ranney and Jack Stephens who stood first and second in Form I and to Madeline Lisle who was highest in Form II while Gwendolyn Neal and Gladys Elmhirst who were tied for second place were given duplicate awards. The J. A. Loucks Memorial Medal to the student standing highest in Form III was awarded to Elizabeth Free and the A. L. Riendeau Memorial Cup to the student standing highest in Middle School Latin and French to Margaret Black. Both were presented by Mr. A. J. Armour. Mr. W. Roy Loucks presented the High School graduation certificates to the following: James Anderson, Gertrude Bibby, Margaret Black, Gerard Black, Grace Blackledge, Jack Carr, Irene Curie, Marjorie Forestell, Claudine Hoard, Mary Hoey, Gordon Hutcheon, Austin Huycke, Kenneth Kingston, Robert Linton, Muriel Milne, Paul O'Sullivan, Gladys Poulton, Lloyd Richardson, Lillian Stanbury, Harold Taylor, Uerlen Thompson, Sadie Trotter, and Viola Stuart.

At the conclusion of Act II, Mr. E. H. Greig, principal of the High School thanked the orchestra and Mr. Chas. Allan for their assistance and also extended an invitation to the audience to inspect the two rooms in the school which were used in connection with the two new departments added to the curriculum this fall namely domestic science and manual training, and also invited the visitors to sign the visitors register.

AFTER DRIVERS OVER 65

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 6.—(CP).—Re-examination of automobile drivers more than 65 years of age is being considered by the Ontario Department of Highways, C. W. Kirkpatrick, secretary of the Hamilton Motor Club, said Saturday. He said reports showed that elderly drivers are the cause of many accidents.

WOMAN IS HURT CARS COLLIDE ON ICY STREET

Margaret McMurray, 136 Robinson Street, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital early on Sunday morning, suffering a fractured left arm, and a broken collar bone and shoulder blade, which she sustained when the car in which she was a passenger was involved in a collision at Aylmer and Westcott Streets.

The car in which Miss McMurray was riding was reportedly driven by Edward Moore, 43 Frank Street. He was proceeding south on Aylmer Street shortly before midnight, when he was involved in a crash with another car driven by Edward Vinette, 40 St. Claren's Avenue, Toronto.

Both cars were badly damaged. The accident was attributed by the drivers to the icy condition of the road surface.

Overturn In Ditch.

Walter Curtis of Peterborough was driving his car on Highway 28, near Watering Trough Hill, on Saturday night, when it overturned. The driver and five passengers escaped injury. Fred Dyer of this city was the victim of a similar mishap near Fowler's Corners on Highway 7, but no personal injuries were reported.

Early Sunday evening, the motor-cycle patrol investigated a 3-car accident on Highway 28 near the Cavan turn. John Athey, 16, of Canton, Ontario, allegedly attempted to pass a car driven by Lawrence Oliver, R.R. 4, Peterborough, on a hill. He reportedly met head-on with a car coming from the opposite direction owned by Miss Rose Williams of this city, and driven by Carol Wiklund of Maitland Avenue. In attempting to pass Athey sideswiped the Williams car. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

A Mystery Case.

City police were believed to have a first class mystery on their hands when shortly before the Belleville-Lindsay freight train was due early Sunday morning an abandoned car was found stalled on the tracks at Lake Street level crossing. There was a quantity of blood in the rear seat of the car, it was learned on reliable authority.

A citizens noticing the car on the tracks flagged the train, and the train crew helped push it off the tracks and into a ditch. Subsequently it was stated, the owner of the car reported to police the vehicle had been stolen. Police investigated. They say the mystery element was lacking, but declined further comment.

Turkeys sold from 25c to 30c a pound; geese were 20c and 22c; ducks, 25c; chickens, 18c to 25c. Butter was 30c and 32c a pound; eggs sold from 32c to 40c a dozen, according to size. Pies, cakes, buns and home-made bread were selling in great style. One lady who brings two dozen loaves every Saturday, as well as quantities of buns and muffins, was practically sold out before 11 o'clock; pies were 25c, 30c; or small ones, 10c-15c; buns, 15c-20c a dozen; bread, whole wheat and white, 10c a loaf; cakes, all kinds, (including an upside-down pineapple cake, with cocoanut frosting, which this reporter couldn't resist) were 25c, 30c, or sections at 10c, 15c or 20c; muffins, doughnuts, cookies were 20c a dozen; carrot puddings were 35c a pound, or 10c to 15c for little ones; jams, jellies and preserves sold from 10c to 35c a jar; dill pickles were 2 for 5c; roasted chickens were 25c a pound, baked beans, 15c-10c; honey, white, 13c a pound, light amber, 10c, buckwheat, 9c; jars 25c and sections, 15c.

Trio Of Twins

TOYS HAVE GONE STREAM-LINED

Peterborough children are highly stream-line conscious if the managers of the city's various toylands have guessed right in stocking for this year's Christmas trade. Streamlined cars and stream-lined tricycles predominate.

Scarcely a toy display in the entire downtown section fails to offer exact models of one or more of the famous American stream-line trains. And apparently the toy manufacturers believe children of today follow closely the scientific trends in automobile body design for stream-lining is eminently the feature in this field. One representation of Sir Malcolm Campbell's 300-mile-an-hour Bluebird even exceeds the wildest dream of the Bluebird's designer in rakish stream-line advancement.

Of course, all the standard toys of other days are available — dolls by the score, children's tea sets, mechanical cranes, top pianos—but they seem to bear little resemblance to the old-time models. In almost all quarters the current trend in the direction of strict realism demonstrates itself. No longer do dolls merely look like dolls for the designers have striven mightily to make them look as much like living babies as possible. Mechanical toys such as spring-motored ships are no longer just any ships but exact representations of the Queen Mary, the Normandie or the Manhattan. Most models of pleasure automobiles, in addition to being stream-lined to the last degree, have stream-lined trailers in tow.

No youngster with ambition to become a G-Man or anything of the sort need wait beyond this Christmas to start his active training for the job. G-Man outfits complete even to handcuffs are offered in almost all stores. Pistols, automatics and Tommy guns which go with the sets are strict miniatures of the real thing in each instance.

The militaristic trend in toy selections reported from other corners of the world this Christmas does not seem to have reached Peterborough. If local toy departments have stocked the miniature soldiers, tanks, machine guns, warplanes and artillery pieces featured this year in New York stores, they are not affording notable displays.

FOOTWEAR DISPLAYS.

Displays of rubber footwear and galoshes were the regular thing up and down the business streets today, merchants seeking to capitalize to the fullest degree on the wintry turn. Sales were reported very heavy, as citizens who had long been putting off the purchase of their winter footwear were forced suddenly into the market.

AN OLD STAR.

Ross Craig, former Peterborough rugby player, who rose to the heights as a member of the Hamilton Tigers afterward, accompanied the Dundas team to Peterborough on Saturday. He was doubtless interested to learn that another championship game was being staged at Nicholls Oval, for it was there that he himself played his first game of organized rugby thirty-four years ago this fall.

QUESTIONS SUBMITTED.

A novel idea was tried at the Y.M.-C.A. Friendly Hour song service Sunday night, when young people in attendance were invited to hand to the secretary in writing the problems with which they would like guidance and assistance. With the intention of answering one of the problems in the minds of modern youth, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr discussed the question, "Is salvation divinely inspired or is it socially acquired?" at the service.

EXTENSION LECTURE

Professor E. A. Allcutt of Toronto University will speak on the subject, "Mass Production and Its Consequences" as he addresses the second extension lecture gathering at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening of this week. The topic was selected by the committee in charge of the series on the suggestion of some of the engineering graduates of the city.

STIMULUS TO BUE.

The interiors of local stores presented typical Christmas aspects today as Christmas buying went into high gear. Merchants report that the celebrated arrival of Santa Claus last week proved a powerful stimulus in suggesting to the public that the time for Christmas shopping has again come around. Apparently the public is taking to heart Post Office "Mail Early" pleadings, for the Christmas card counters in the stores are already crowded.

NAME OMITTED.

The name of Wilfred Jones was omitted from list of successful candidates at last week's St. John Ambulance Association examinations.

CHILDREN MOURN DOG.

TO PRESIDE AT SESSIONS.

Judge D. B. Coleman of Whitby will pay his second visit to Peterborough as presiding judge at a regular County Court sitting when the General Sessions open Tuesday afternoon. Four criminal matters, two jury civil actions, and two non-jury actions are listed.

PLENTY OF BUMPS.

Dinted fenders and bad language were the principal results of a number of the lesser car crashes which occurred on Peterborough streets over the week-end. Off the knack of handling cars on slippery pavement after the dry, sure footing enjoyed all summer, motorists had to learn all over again the tricky art. One unfortunate driver skidded against the curb and clipped off a wheel at the east end of Hunter street bridge this morning.

OTONABEE LODGE'S ANNIVERSARY.

Wednesday will mark the 55th anniversary of the resuscitation of Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F. The lodge was originally formed on March 13, 1846, but lapsed into a state of inactivity after some years. Finally it was revived on December 8, 1882, when officers were elected, Wm. Cluxton being chosen as Noble Grand. W. F. Green, the present secretary and a veteran among veterans, was elected as organist at that time.

GOD THE ONLY CAUSE AND CREATOR

"God the only Cause and Creator," was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard." Selections from the Bible included the following: "The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved. "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following: "CREATOR. Spirit; Mind; intelligence; the animating divine Principle of all that is real and good; self-existent Life, Truth, and Love; that which is perfect and eternal; the opposite of matter and evil, which have no Principle; God, who made all that was made and could not create an atom or an element the opposite of Himself."

LAST COUNCIL MEETING.

The last of the city council's regular monthly meetings will be held to-night. Mayor Macdonald may have to call a special meeting later in the month, but it is possible that the civic affairs may be wound up for the year to-night.

PUPILS PURCHASE LANTERN.

At a meeting to-night the Queen Mary Home and School Association will try out its new lantern projector, bought mainly by funds which pupils of Queen Mary raised in waste paper collection efforts. The Association has never in the past possessed a projector.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-third anniversary of the Church of the Immaculate Conception was celebrated on Sunday. Bishop O'Connor attended in the evening with a number of visiting priests, and the sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. McCarthy of Douro.

OFFERED PRESIDENCY.

Louis Yeotes, proprietor of a local cafe, has been tendered the office as president of the Ontario Greek community for 1938. He will have several weeks in which to consider his decision, but has not up to the present revealed whether or not he will accept the high office. The community includes about 6,000 Greeks of Southern Ontario.

CONSIDER PETERBORO IDEA.

A report from London, Ont., says: "Middlesex County Council will be asked, when it meets to-morrow to approve a resolution which might lead to the City of London or any municipality losing the right to put daylight saving into effect. A campaign started by the County Council at Peterborough has been presented to Western Ontario counties, Middlesex among them, asking indoration. The resolution would call upon the Provincial Government to enact legislation forbidding any municipality from changing standard time to daylight saving time during the summer. It seeks to make the whole question one for Provincial Government, to end the confusion caused every summer when some cities have daylight saving and others haven't."

Wants To Spend Christmas At Home So Case Adjourned Until January 4

THE Christmas spirit made itself felt in magistrate's court this morning.

When Mrs. Johannah Murphy appeared on demand to answer charges of intoxication and wilful damage, she obtained an adjournment until January 4, after urging, "I want to be at home for Christmas to take part in the holiday festivities".

Granting her request, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., reminded the defendant, "You will be here on January 4".

"Yes Your Worship, if I live that long", Mrs. Murphy replied. She added, "But you couldn't kill me with a brick anyway".

On her original appearance a few days ago before Magistrate A. E. Gee, Mrs. Murphy had the court in jovial mood when she gave expression with a typical Irish appreciation for the humor of the situation.

CITIZENS' MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

A representative of the Ontario Department of Labor is scheduled to address a citizens' meeting in the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday night at eight o'clock, when the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program is to be explained. All citizens interested in this program are urged to attend. The program in short is the providing of a 13 weeks' course for young men and women in factories or in several other lines of trade. This course, which is paid for by the money set aside by the governments, is hoped to start the young man on the way towards learning a trade.

In Peterborough an active committee has been organized and this committee now seeks the support of the organized workers, citizens and industrial heads.

Along with the address the Peterborough Symphonic Orchestra and a quarette from the Male Voice Choir will render several selections.

BLAME WESTERN CATTLE

TWEED, Ont., Dec. 6 (CP)—Western cattle, brought from the drought area, are blamed by farmers in the Queensborough district near here for an outbreak of a contagious form of cattle influenza. Several cows died shortly after becoming ill. Innoculations seem to be checking the spread.

Says Women Equal Men In Pulpit

TORONTO, Dec. 6 (CP)—Women may not make better ministers than men but they are at least as good in the opinion of Rev. Lydia Gruchy, first woman to occupy a pulpit in the United Church of Canada. Miss Gruchy, a former school teacher and now assistant pastor of a Moose Jaw, Sask., church, was ordained shortly after the United Church let down the bars against women ministers about a year ago.

While men are better able to handle a church's business affairs, she said in an interview here yesterday, women "have many advantages over men." For one thing women could "get right into the homes and do our ministering there."

BARRETT OPPOSES FREE ENTRY OF WORSTED YARNS

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP)—Free entry into Canada, under the British preference, of certain types of white worsted yarns was advocated and opposed before the tariff board today, Col. W. B. Evans, of the St. Johns, Que., Textiles Ltd. advanced the request, and was supported by P. B. Hart, appearing for Thomas Ambler and Sons of Wakefield, England, the opposition came from Henry Barrett, president of the Dominion Woollens and Worsted Co.

The present tariff rate on the types of worsted yarns involved is 10 per cent ad valorem, plus five cents specific. Asserting that Canadian Cloth manufacturers were unable to secure adequate supplies in this country, and that when such supplies were available they varied in respect of moisture and foreign-matter content, Col. Evens urged that both ad valorem and specific rates be eliminated.

Mr. Barrett will present a brief in reply later today.

TRIP TO ORIENT ABLY DESCRIBED BY MISS M. LEES

That China's development along educational lines in the last ten years was the finest job of that kind the world had ever seen was one of the striking things said by Miss Margaret Lees, B.A., of the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School in addressing the members of the Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon today on some highlights of her trip to the Orient last summer. Miss Lees' breezy description of what she and other delegates to the World Education Federation gathering had seen was thoroughly enjoyed by the members.

President Art Runions, who was in the chair for the early part of the meeting, but had to leave early to fill an engagement at Belleville, congratulated Rotarian Dr. Kenner upon the success of the Collegiate football club in winning the provincial interscholastic championship, and Rotarian Dave Diplock upon having a son on the lineup of the victorious team.

Visitors today included former Inspector Richard Lees, father of the guest speaker; Dr. McDougall of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and "Bill" Garner, son of Rotarian H. L. Garner.

Rotary support for the public meeting to be held in the interest of the Dominion-Provincial youth training movement on Thursday night was urged by President Runions. The latter also read part of a letter received from the Rotary Club of Hankow, China, in which attention was called to the need of financial assistance and in which the plight of the Chinese people was stressed. The communication was turned over to the directors and the international committee.

Things Are Different.

Miss Lees was introduced by Rotarian R. F. Downey, and began by explaining that a trip to the Orient was quite different from a trip to Europe, for the people in the East wore different clothes than we did, they lived in different kind of houses from those we lived in, they slept in different kinds of beds and their food in many respects was quite different from ours.

The speaker told some of her experiences in Japan, of the primitive methods of coaling their ships when 2,400 tons of coal was handled by some 800 men, women and children in eight hours, of the huge piles of scrap iron she saw everywhere, and of the dapper little Japanese officer who read her passport upside down. Passing on to China, Miss Lees said that she had fallen in love with Shanghai, because she got to know the city quickly and felt quite at home there. She described the new native centre that had been set up in Shanghai, some of the buildings in which had been opened shortly before her arrival. This section was the first to be destroyed by the Japanese when they attacked the city.

Nanking Is Visited.

The speaker related some of her impressions of a trip to Nanking taken by 26 Canadian delegates, and described the splendid reception given them there and the impression made upon the visitors by the evidence of educational development they found. A complimentary dinner tendered the party was very amusingly described by Miss Lees, who said that the Chinese gentlemen they met on that occasion were the acme of culture and courtesy. Included among them was Dr. Foo of the Chinese Department of Education.

In discussing Japan, the speaker said that the Canadian Legation at Tokio and the officials in charge there had made the party proud to be Canadians.

A vote of thanks was moved to Miss Lees by Rotarian Dr. A. E. Bannister, and on behalf of the club Rotarian Downey presented the guest speaker with a bouquet of flowers.

Vice-President Dutton was in the chair for the latter part of the meeting.

Powerful Dundas Team Takes 15-1 Victory Over Local Orfuns

Locals Lose in First Fixture of O.R.F.U. Finals Before Record Crowd at Riverside

Outplayed by a team of senior calibre football, the local Orfuns dropped a 15-1 decision here to the Red Bombers of Dundas on Saturday afternoon in Riverside Park. A record Orfuns' rugby crowd for this season here—over a thousand fans—saw the fixture. The Bombers will carry a 14-point margin into the return game of the O. R. F. U. intermediate "A" final series in Hamilton next weekend.

Carrying four ex-senior rugbyists and with seven players who had turned down offers to play in the Big Four this year, the husky Dundas gang showed up to advantage over the classy intermediate Orfuns in this fixture. They presented a powerful line, a smart fast backfield, a tricky assortment of plays and good kicking to earn the verdict. Fans saw a team in action which will step into senior football en masse next year. The Orfuns fought gamely all the way but were up against a better squad.

Orfuns Score First

The visitors started slowly and Orfuns got the only point of the first frame. However, the Bombers counted seven points in the second quarter, added one in the third and got seven more in the fourth. They pressed continually, but good kicking by Don Crowe, a few costly fumbles when in scoring position by Dundas and nice line work—with Harry Marsh shining on the secondary—kept them piling up the count. The Orfuns still have an outside chance, with some breaks in the return game, but they are playing a squad that has beaten Hamilton in the senior O.R.F.U. and should be bracketed with Balmy Beach.

The visitors earned their victory with smashing line plunges, tricky end runs and fine runbacks of kicks. They had good booting by Gibb and a powerful line that held the Orfuns throughout. Their outside wings stopped local backfielders in their tracks on Gibb's kicks. Orfuns stuck to straight football most of the way and only a few times made yards. Their forward passes found a defence system that couldn't be beaten.

All Try Hard

There were no local stars. All the Orfuns worked their heads off but they could make little headway against a team like this that outweighed them by a good margin and had it over them on experience. Smilley, Cahill, Gurney, Gibb and Mountain were the big stars for the visitors, three of them ex-Hamilton seniors, while Tedford—an ex-Ottawa Roughrider—also turned in a steady game. The whole outfit looked good.

Fans thrilled to this fixture as these husky men of the gridiron wars met in the Provincial finals and battled it out. Some great football was dished up, especially by the visiting squad. They tallied two major counts, the first one especially being a senior play. Just before the halftime whistle, the Red Bombers tried two forward passes in a row on the Peterborough 40-yard line. Both failed and they were penalized 10 yards. In kick formation, they crossed up the homesters by pulling another aerial pass, Gurney heaving one to McCreadie, a long pass of 25 yards. The latter took it and romped all the way down the field and over the line for a try.

The second Dundas touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a blocked kick, DeMarchi falling on the bounding ball over the line for a major count. Both tries were converted, and there were a dead-line kick and two Dundas rouges. Hendren's rouge in the first quarter was the only Peterborough tally.

Dundas Pressing

After the first quarter, the big Dundas machine got functioning and play was practically all in Peterborough territory. The Bombers would drive from their own 40-yard line to the Orfuns 35 or 30-yard strip beore a desperate home gang would stop them. Crowe would then boot the ball a long way back but the Dundas backfielders would run it up to midfield again. They were continually pressing in the last half.

Early in the first quarter, a short kick by Gibb gave Orfuns the ball on Dundas' 35-yard strip. Mitchell bucked five and Crowe kicked it over the line with Hendren tearing in fast to rouge Smilley for a point, the only count Peterborough got. Crowe got 10 yards around end but they had to boot it again. Play was up and down, hard and even in this heat. Cahill got yards on an end run and later plunged through to move the sticks near the centre Crowe intercepted a long forward pass. Giardino tore around end to move the yardsticks but they were stopped cold later. Gurney made a 15-yard run-back on Crowe's kick, but again they had to boot it. Loucks got six on a tear around left end at the whistle.

Bombers Get Try

Dundas put on a drive of 30 yards to start the second quarter but the local line stiffened and Gibb hoofed it down the field. Play was up and down with both sides sticking to straight football and about even on kicking exchanges. Mitchell bucked for five and later Loucks got four, but Crowe kicked and Smilley ran it back 25 yards to the local 40-yard chalk. Gibb got nine on a buck and Galvin pushed over for yards. As they threatened Gibb fumbled and Weir fell on the pigskin. On Crowe's hoof, Cahill sprinted back 20 yards to Orfuns' 50-yard mark. A Smilley-Cahill extension netted 15 and then Cahill kicked it to deadline to even the score. Smilley ran back a kick 10 yards to the local 40. Dundas tried two forwards which failed and, after being penalized 10 yards, they crossed Orfuns up with a 25-yard forward heave from Gurney to McCreadie, the latter running 25 for a try. It was converted by Gibb.

A short return Dundas kick in the third gave Orfuns the ball on Dundas' 45-yard mark. Loucks got five around end but had to kick when the visitors smeared the next play. Cahill and Smilley ran it up 15 on bucks and Gibb plunged for 10 to Orfuns 40. He got through again but fumbled and Sloan fell on it as the Bombers were pressing hard. Play moved back and forth for a time with Dundas having an edge. A lateral, Smilley to Cahill netted 25 to the local 40-yard line and B. Donald got eight around end. After a penalty they booted it and Crowe runt it out. Later they drove up to kicking distance again and on Gibb's kick, Fleming rouged Kearns for a point just before the finish.

Score Another One

Marsh recovered Cahill's fumble to start the fourth with the Bombers again pressing in Peterborough territory. A local forward fafled and Galvin pounced on the ball at midfield as Kearns fumbled. Play shifted for a time and Crowe got 15 yards around end on a fine run near his own goal-line. Cahill intercepted a forward pass on the local 35-yard mark. Gibb kicked and Moran raced into rouge Crowe for a point. Kearns' end run netted 10 yards to his own 35, but later Pawley fell on Crowe's fumble. Their kick was short. A long local kick started them driving back from their own area halfway through the stanza. They gradually worked the ball up on bucks and end runs but finally had to kick and it was run out. Orfuns started back but a kick by Loucks was blocked by McDermott on the Orfuns' 25-yard strip and DeMarchi fell on the ball over the line for a try. Gibb converted it. Reed bucked for 15 yards lated but they kicked and Magee got 10 back on a neat buck near midfield just before the finish.

Stars For Orfuns

DON CROWE

Orfuns' ace kicker—and local lacrosse star in the summer—whose hefty boots kept down the score as the Red Bombers of Dundas took a 15-1 triumph over Orfuns in an O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" final tilt here on Saturday.

BARNEY ROSS MARRIES.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (UP).—Barney Ross, welterweight boxing champion of the world, and Miss Pearl Siegel, New York City, were married in a private ceremony Sunday. Ross, whose real name is Barnet David Rasofsky, took out his marriage license Saturday under the name of Barney Rasof.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

HAIL, THE champs! Yessir, we have at least one Provincial championship for 1937 here, the P.C.I. gridders getting the senior interscholastic crown Saturday when they took an 11-3 decision over the Runnymede Collegians in a sudden-death final at Nicholls Oval. In Riverside Park, another Ontario final fixture was being fought out, but the big Red Bombers of Dundas copped a 15-1 nod over the local Orfuns. It was the first of the home-and-home series in the finals of the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" class. Return game will be played at Hamilton stadium next Saturday and the Dundas squad will be favorites with that 14-point margin to work on.

* * * * * *

OUR CONGRATS to Coach Bamforth and his boys for bringing a title to Peterborough this year. They earned it all the way with a fine season, not losing a scheduled or playoff game—and deserving the victory here on Saturday. Tough luck to the Orfuns but they were stacking up against a great opposing outfit. Bill Turnbull and his gang still hope to come through on top but they face a mighty tough task. With hard feelings evident between some of the followers of both local rugby teams—owing to the mixup in playing grounds here Saturday—some folks tried to make out that the P.C.I. game or the Orfuns' contest had drawn a much bigger crowd than the other. Rather childish, what? As a matter of fact, they drew just about the same crowd—approximately a thousand at each. Which shows what just one game might have done! Red-hot fans left each game to see part of the other.

* * * * * *

ROSS CRAIG, former star Peterborough player and later one of the senior greats with Hamilton, accompanied the contingent of about 200 from Dundas. We were talking to his son, Ross, Jr., who was the Bombers' ace kicker till he broke his ankle a couple of weeks ago. The 170-pound youth—his brother Jack is with Tigers—told us the Dundas squad would move up in a body to senior company next year. "Four of our players have been in the Big Four already and seven of us had offers to step up this year." They felt confident of knocking off Orfuns after rubbing out the Sarnia Wanderers last week, Ontario champs the past two years. Well, they have a mighty fine team, just about senior calibre, we'd say.

* * * * * *

THE TURNBILL team tried hard but had quite a time holding 'em off after the first quarter. Outweighed by plenty, the locals fought back gamely and made yards several times, but they were playing mostly in their own territory. Stubborn line resistance, some good secondary work and long boots by Crowe kept the ball down toward midfield a good part of the time. But the powerful Bombers would drive back again on ripping line plunges by Gibb, Mountain and Gurney, or slashing end runs by Smilley and Cahill. These guys, really starred. Whereas none of the Orfuns exactly scintillated in this scrap, Dundas had a strong line, a good defence against forward passing, and their speedy ends would stop our backfielders cold on Gibb's punts. We didn't run back a boot all day far enough to start breathing heavily.

* * * * * *

BEFORE LEAVING the sad subject—podden pliss if we weep salty tears in our beverage!—let us mention that dandy touchdown play of the visitors. They tried two forwards on our 40-yard line, both failed and they were penalized 10 yards. On their last down, in kick formation, they fooled the locals something scandalously by tossing a long forward heave, Gurney to McCreadie, which the latter took and tore away for a touchdown. The other try came on a blocked kick deep in Peterborough's area. We got a rouge in the first frame and that's all. Yeah, we hope the Orfuns upset the dope now—after coming so far in grid playoffs this year—but they'll have to play better football than they did Saturday to beat the Bombers in Hamilton.

* * * * * *

TWO TOUCHDOWNS by Al Clark accounted for practically all of the P.C.I. points against a husky gang from Runnymede Collegiate. The classy local backfielder, who plays a lot of shortstop for the Petes and a lot of defence for the Colts, too—really a three-letter man, eh?—starred in this fixture along with Haig Kelly. But the whole gang went well. All season this team, shy on subs, has been turning in some nifty efforts. With Kelly and Curtin the strong men of the line and Diplock, the Clarks and Creighton shining all through, the rest of the gang also starred in this last tilt, as they've been doing throughout. Ascott, for instance, did a nice chore of it Saturday. Clark's touchdown toward the end on Leether's onside kick was a fitting climax. Runnymede made it a real battle, too.

* * * * * *

AND THE P.C.I.-ers had a fine school spirit backing 'em, with the student body whooping her up for several days before the tilt and all the way through it. Such support means a lot to a gang of youthful gridders. When some of the Garnet and Gray gallopers took a gander at several of those big Runnymede gents—a few of whom looked to be almost elderly!—they began to bargain on a real battle. And it was, but the locals had enough class to cop the duke. Again, our congrats to Coach Bamforth and ye P.C.I. squad.

SCULLERS CRUSH IMPERIAL THREAT FOR 10-6 VICTORY

TORONTO, Dec. 6 (CP) — The year's football natural comes up Saturday with Toronto Argonauts pitted against Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian final. For the first time since they won the title in 1935, the Bombers will play an eastern team.

It's a natural for several reasons, but principally because Lew Hayman's Argos are one of the best teams produced in the east in years. Because they are in there against the Bombers, the final is expected to attract a bigger crowd than any previous east-west struggle.

Lives Up To His Name

In a setting designed to eliminate thrills, every "name" player in the contest lived up to his reputation. Booting Bob Isbister, Place-Kicking Annis Stukus, fleet Art West, veteran Ted Morris and the downfield tackling brigade led the way for Argos. Ponderous Clarence Burt marshalled the line force.

Sarnia's great backfield pair, Hugh (Bummer) Stirling and Ormond Beach, lifted the Imperials to within an ace of victory several times. There were moments when it seemed inevitable the smashing line drives of Stirling and Beach would win for the Imperials.

But Argos struck early and with brilliant effect. They sent Morris through a big gap in the line for 37 yards in the first period. On the next play West was on the end of an extension run that gained 33 yards and a touchdown.

A play involving a forward and two lateral passes, with Mike Hedgewick carrying the ball for a 37-yard gain, got Imperials down to the Argo 16 but Stirling missed a place-kick from a difficult angle and the Scullers came back before half-time to score again.

Doug MacPherson, young halfback, made 23 yards on successive spinner plays and from the Sarnia 30 Annis Stukus kicked a field goal. The score was 8-0.

Early in the fourth period the Imperials finally succeeded after having been turned back repeatedly. This time Stirling and Beach led an offensive of 40 yards and the Bummer crossed the goal line from two yards out. He kicked the extra point.

But Argos had the wind in the final quarter and Isbister punted Imperials back in their own territory and kept them there. Two of his kicks went for singles.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 6.—(AP).—Clint Frank, Yale's all-American back, and 137 captain, gained more than 1¼ miles for the Elis' football teams during the past three seasons, Yale statistics showed today. Frank galloped and plunged a total of 2,135 yards, while Booth, now in the ice cream business, compiled a three-year mark of 2,826 yards.

Americans Continue To Amaze With Twin Wins In Week-end; Canadiens Tie Leafs 3 To 3

Stewart - Schriner Get Goals For Amerks At Montreal And Detroit

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—(CP)— Red Dutton's old men of Manhattan have proved the worth of that hockey axiom that it's not the goals you score but the spots you pick to score them.

With the National Hockey League season a month old New York Americans have bagged just a few more than half the goals Toronto's Maple Leafs have piled up. But to-day finds Amerks crowding Conny Smythe's team for Canadian division leadership.

Point Behind Leafs.

A brace of wins in the week-end battling left the New Yorkers just a point behind Leafs and they may switch positions when they go into action again next week-end. And Amerks have done that on 24 goals, compared to Leafs' 42.

Dutton's men were practically reckless with their scoring Saturday night when they defeated Montreal Maroons 3-1, but against the world champion Red Wings in Detroit last night they kept the figures to a neat 2-1.

Two games on five goals is about the Amerk average and Montreal Canadiens did almost as well over the week-end by taking a win and a tie with six. They played Leafs to a 3-3 draw Saturday night and worked out a 3-2 win over Black Hawks at Chicago last night, running their undefeated string to six games.

Canadiens in Third.

Those three points gave the flying Frenchmen third place in the Canadian division, Maroons dropping to the cellar after having shared the runner-up spot with Americans. New York Rangers made the only other move in the standing when they defeated Boston Bruins 4-0 last night and moved into the American division's second spot over the Hawks.

The veterans and the youngsters among the Amerks shared the spotlight in their two wins. After old Nels Stewart had scored the winning goal at Montreal, Sweeney Schriner slapped in both their markers at Detroit.

In the Montreal game Stewart broke a 1-1 tie but minutes before the game ended and then made the play for Eddie Wiseman to get their third goal. Schriner had started them away in the lead early in the game and Herb Cain had tied it in the second period.

Schriner handed Wings their seventh defeat in 10 games with his two goals in the first period. Desperate, Jack Adams tried his forward lines in every combination he could. Finally, the Aurie-Barry-Lewis line he had broken up earlier was reformed in the third and scored, Larry Aurie getting the counter.

Rough Game at Toronto.

The affair at Toronto on Saturday night was one of the roughest games of the season with 13 penalties being handed out. To Blake of Canadiens and Bob Davidson of Toronto were given majors for fighting in the third period and Harvey Jackson of the Leafs drew a misconduct penalty for talking to the officials.

The Frenchmen were flying high from the start and George Mantha and Blake scored in the second before Syl Apps could put Toronto into the running. Jim Fowler tied the score in the third on a long shot, and when Bill Thoms sent the Leafs ahead for the first time Rod Lorrain tied it again. All but two of the goals were scored with men on the penalty bench.

In Chicago Canadiens spotted Hawks goals by Louis Trudel in the first and Paul Thompson in the second before Blake and Lorrain tied it up in the middle session. Polly Drouin gave the Habitants their well-earned win late in the final session.

The Ranger win over Boston was the Bruins' second straight shutout defeat in a spectacular early season record. They had won six and tied two before Canadiens beat them on Thursday.

When Rookie Clint Smith took Lynn Patrick's pass for a goal halfway through the first period last night Boston tossed aside defence and went after goals.

They were unsuccessful and Rangers were unable to take advantage of the open play until the third when Art Coulter, Butch Keeling and Patrick increased their margin.

BOXING TESTS SET FOR THIS WEEKEND

VANCOUVER, Dec. 6 (CP)—Canada's amateur mitt and mat artists cocked a weather eye westward today, set for the end-of-the-week trials to select the Dominion's boxing and wrestling representatives to the British Empire Games in Australia.

Athletes from Halifax to Vancouver will clash next Friday and Saturday in a two-day elimination, bidding for a maple-leafed jersey to wear at the games in Sydney, Australia, in February.

From more than half a hundred aspiring youngsters—Dominion and Provincial champions, runners-up and just plain hopefuls—officials will pick eight wrestlers and eight boxers for the trip.

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By the Canadian Press.)

Sweeney Schriner, Americans, scored one against Maroons Saturday and twice at Detroit last night as Amerks continued to amaze with 3-1 and 2-1 victories.

Nels Stewart, Americans, banged in winning goal and assisted in another to make victory sure at Montreal.

Toe Blake, Canadiens, scored one goal and aided in two as Flying Frenchmen tied Toronto 3-3 Saturday, then started club on way to 3-2 victory at Chicago last night.

P.C.I. Gives Peterboro First Ontario Title In 30 Years of Rugby

1,000 Wildly Excited Fans See Collegians Defeat Runnymede 11-3 in Sudden-Death Game

(By F. D. C.)

A fighting band of garnet and gray sweatered youngsters brought Peterborough its first provincial football title in thirty years Saturday afternoon when Peterborough Collegiate, before more than 1000 excited fans, defeated Runnymede Collegiate, Toronto district champions in a sudden death game at Nicholls Oval for the Ontario interscholastic championship by a score of 11 to 3.

Sparked offensively by Al Clark, who scored two touchdowns and made most of the yardage gains from scrimmage, and defensively by Captain Haig Kelly who, in spite of a badly injured shoulder, played a whale of a game in the secondary slot, Coach Bamforth's gallant squade won a tense, tough football argument against high-grade opposition from a team that was considerably bigger and heavier and had a lot of punch and skill.

P.C.I. were victorious because they opened up the game with an irresistible drive for a major score and then had the fighting spirit to withstand a determined onslaught from a tough crew of battlers, the faculty they have shown all season of settling up a rock-ribbed defense whenever their goal line was threatened, and finally the ability to kick in with a scoring play when they hit pay dirt territory.

While Al Clark and Kelly stood out because of the consistency of their work all through the battle the whole P.C.I. squad earned brackets. The pony backfield, Leether, Thornton, G. Clark, Diplock and Creighton, all made their contribution to the splendid win; Johnston at snap threw strikes all day with a greasy ball; Curtin dynamited the Runnymede line with his plunges, played a bang-up game at secondary and although in trouble with his kicking in the early stages found his punting touch just when it was most needed, and Les Ascott and Bill Turner presented an airtight centre defensively. A special bouquet goes to Steve Csumrick, who was down the field fast under every kick and whose tackling was superb.

Real Opposition

Runnymede presented a big heavy line, a couple of swivel-hipped backfield runners in Carty and Graham, the most dangerous forward pass menace seen here this year in Coulter and a steady punter in Paisley. They were real opposition to the fighting Collegiate.

The Collegiate student body went wild over the victory. They had a noisy cheering section in action throughout the game, with school bugle band in attendance, staged a snake dance at half-time and after the game let the downtown business section know that P.C.I. had won, with a victory parade that made plenty of noise.

Coach Bamforth and his youngsters deserve all kinds of credit. They have gone through all their scheduled and playoff games without a loss and have played consistently good football despite the fact that the injury jinx has been riding them all season and not in one game have they been able to field a full team.

P.C.I. Score Early

P.C.I. lost no time in getting their attack organized. They kicked off and on the first play Paisley punted to centre. Then the garnet and gray machine went into town and in a march of five plays, all worked with smooth efficiency they moved straight up field for a touchdown.

With Al Clark leading the pony backfield P.C.I. used an extension sweep around Runnymede's right end very effectively, varying this weapon with a couple of smashes through the line and the Toronto gang found no way of stopping the attack which culminated when Al Clark rabbited through from the 15-yard line and pivoted over for a try. Ross Thornton's attempt at conversion from placement narrowly missed, the ball striking the crossbar. Following Runnymede's kick-off P.C.I. started another drive, featured by Al Clark's dash around Runnymede's short end on a cutback play for 20 yards and a long plunge by Jerry Creighton. A fumble at Runnymede's 35-yard line stopped the march but P.C.I. line held firm on two smashes and forced Paisley to kick, his partially blocked boot giving P.C.I. a big gain.

However the ball went back to the visitors on another fumble and this time they did a spot of ball-toting themselves. P.C.I. broke through on Carty but the Runnymede back made a daring toss out to Graham as he was tackled and Graham made 15 yards. On the very next play, Carty drew the tacklers to him and again shook Graham loose with a long lateral, this time for a 20-yard gain. P.C.I. then tightened up and forced Paisley to kick and on another cutback play Al Clark dashed down the side lines for 35 yards, carrying the play back to centre as the quarter ended.

Attempting to punt, Curtin kicked into the line as the second period started and P.C.I. were lucky to recover. The next time Curtin's kick went into touch and it was Runnymede's ball at midfield. Carty put them in a scoring position immediately after when he started a sweep around P.C.I.'s left end and then cut in himself, pivoting beautifully and dodging three or four tackles to gain 35 yards before he was brought down from behind at P.C.I.'s 25-yard line. It was a golden chance for Runnnymere but P.C.I. smothered two smashes at the line for no gain and Paisley dropped back to try a placement. His kick was wide and low and did not even score a point. Curtin kicking out of danger on the first play. It was even going for the rest of the period with most of the action in the midfield zone until just before half-time when a long kick by Curtin drove play deep into Runnymede territory.

Runnymede Presses

Runnymede kicked off in the third period and P.C.I. were back on the defensive when Curtin fumbled a low snap as he was set for a kick and the Toronto gang took possession of the ball at P.C.I's 40-yard line. Two plays failed to gain and then Paisley lifted a long one over P.C.I's line where Diplock was tackled for a rouge and Runnymede's first point. Resuming play at their quarter line P.C.I. started to move again and had worked the ball up centre when disaster almost hit them. Runnymede broke through on the third down and blocked Curtin's kick and Monaghan, red and white outside wing, gathered up the bounding ball and broke for P.C.I.'s goal line with a clear field in front of him. He was almost over when Bill Turner, P.C.I's inside wing, running desperately, pulled him down from behind and Monaghan tried to pass to a teammate. He tossed the ball forward instead and Runnymede were penalized on the play, losing ten yards. They were still in a scoring position but P.C.I. stonewalled a smash at the line and Coulter's forward to Carty at the goal line went astray and P.C.I. were out of their worst hole of the day. Al Clark had his ankle hurt soon after this play and had to leave the game, being replaced by Ernie Ward.

Play was still in P.C.I. territory when the last period started and Runnymede were putting on the pressure, although they found the garnet and gray line invulnerable when in pay dirt territory. However early in the period Paisley drove a long punt over the goal line for a rouge and a few minutes later repeated the play, Grant Clark conceding a point by stepping into touch-in-goal.

With the score 5 to 3 it was getting too close for comfort but just at this stage Curtin got away his longest punt of the day, the ball bounding past the Runnymede safety and driving play back to the visitors' 40-yard line. On the first play a bad Runnymede pass gave P.C.I. the ball and they struck quickly to take advantage of the break. Smashes by Curtin and Al Clark, who had returned to the game shortly before, made 9 yards and carried play to Runnymede's 26-yard line. Ab Leether, on the third down, lifted a high kick over the Runnymede goal line and Al Clark, onside on the play, fell on the ball for a touchdown which Ross Thornton neatly converted by a drop kick.

That was the ball game, but P.C.I. still had to stave off a dangerous aerial attack by the desperate visitors. P.C.I. got themselves into trouble by interference on Runnymede's kickoff, giving the red and white possession in P.C.I. territory. Coulter and Cart combined for two 15-yard forward pass gains but the third attempt, a toss over P.C.I.'s goal line, was batted down and Runnymede's last chance was gone, a long kick by Curtin driving play back to midfield.

Terry's Bitter Retort Fans Feuding Flame Among The New York Managers

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Bill Terry, the man who walks alone, and Joe McCarthy, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, were feuding last night on the eve of the annual winter major league baseball meetings.

The two, never friendly, added another note to their differences apparent when the teams battled in the last two World Series when they met by chance at the National League hotel.

McCarthy was chatting with newsmen and members of the Yankee organization when the Giants' manager passed, smoking a pipe.

"How can you manage a baseball club smoking a pipe?" McCarthy asked Terry.

"You blue ribbon guys can talk big," Terry retorted and the rest of his answer was lost as he stalked away.

McCarthy, who made the remark in a jesting manner, was burned up at Terry's reaction. He later recalled how Terry had failed to congratulate the Yankees on their victories over the Giants in the last two World Series.

This incident provided most of the conversation, as all major league managers except Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics gathered for their meetings. Mack was scheduled to arrive to-day.

Negotiations for Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn right-hander, were at a standstill. The Dodgers were asking too much for him.

James Mulvey, Vice-President and Treasurer of the club, insisted Mungo will not go to the Giants unless Terry will include Outfielder Mel Ott, and further asserted the Chicago Cubs won't let him unless they give up Outfielder Frank Demaree.

"Any deal for Mungo will have to send us one outstanding player, or he stays with Brooklyn," Mulvey said.

Since the Cubs and Giants were stymied Pittsburg may step in and dicker for Mungo by offering Paul Waner and Red Lucas, veteran right-handed pitcher.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark, of Ft. Louis, in his senior year.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 7.

But Lionel Clark did not shut me out from the inner circle at Yale. He answered with a quick smile and a turn of his head toward me when I asked about the truth of the theme he had done— of the flatboat era on the Mississippi in the early 1800's.

"Of course, it is true. You easterners seem to have an idea that all the romance of the world is in your Boston Tea Party or in Pocahontas. But we've got it out there."

"Daniel Boone?"

He shook his head. "He is spectacular, of course. But there was an early social background which was unique. My great-grandmother carried her ball gown of yellow brocade in a handbox on my great-grandfather's first voyage up the Mississippi, and she wore it later to welcome Lafayette."

My own grandmothers had never known ball gowns. In their pioneer days they had aspired to nothing finer than a Sunday best of wool in the winter or print in summer. And I am sure that none of them had ever danced with Lafayette. My imagination was fired.

"Why don't you write a book about it?"

"That's what I want to do. I have have a chapter or two on paper."

We parted after a few moments but I was thrilled by the encounter. The fact that he was from St. Louis drew about him a magic circle. I had wanted to ask him if he knew Mimi Le Brun. I felt that even if he did not, he at least knew the places which her presence brightened. He walked on the same streets, entered the same houses.

The time came when I spoke to him again of something he had written for the college paper. He liked my praise, and my interest, I think, flattered him. He offered to read to me the chapters of his book.

"Come over to my rooms tonight."

His rooms were charming, and I thought he must have a great deal of money. I was to learn, however, that his means were moderate. I was impressed by the fact that his belongings, while the best of their kind, gave an effect of exquisite simplicity. Nothing was cluttered up. But he had good books, deep comfortable chairs, a lamp whose base was a vase of old Chinese pottery with a shade of translucent silk showing shadowy Chinese figures. He told me later that his grandfather had furnished his rooms and had given him an allowance, and it was then I found that his grandfather was the senator from Missouri whom I had observed so often in Washington. It is needless to say that the news thrilled me.

"Do you know Mimi Le Brun?" I demanded.

His surprise was apparent. "She is my cousin. Have you met her?"

I flushed. "I saw her once in Washington. And I heard your grandfather speak."

"He is dead, you know."

I had read that in the papers. I wanted to ask more about Mimi Le Brun, but Lionel was keen to get at his story. So I sat in one of the big chairs and listened, much uplifted by the fact of my new acquaintance and his easy acceptance of my friendship.

There was a table well back in the corner of the room, and on this table was a photograph in a standing silver frame. I found my eyes gradually focusing upon it. It showed a girl in a dancing frock and floating ribbons. Her pose was unaffected—charming. I seemed to recognize her, and I felt the blood leap in my veins.

When Lionel finished his story, I praised it. He glowed under my praise. He was, I discovered as I knew him better, always dependent on the opinion of others. He touched the skies or descended to the depths as he was commended or criticized. In later years his clipping bureau kept him alternating between despair and ecstasy. It was, I think, because of my honest admiration of his attainments that he liked to have me near him, and I am sure I was a spur to his increased activities.

Tonight he opened his heart—told me of his ambition. His grandfather's death had left him practically without means. His father was living, but was, I gathered, a gentleman of somewhat elegant leisure. "After mother's death, everybody thought grandfather's money would come to Mimi and me. But just a year ago he married a second wife and left his fortune to her. I think he meant that she should do things for us, but she hasn't."

It was, he explained, much harder for him than for a man who had no expectations. "We have a social position to keep up. Grandfather always made mother an allowance, and Mimi's mother—it leaves us in a deuce of a hole—That's why I want to write books. It is one way to make money, and I think I have a flair for it."

So he talked on, and I listened and sympathized, but all the while I was consumed with a desire to see that shadowy photograph at closer range.

"In a way," Lionel was saying, "it will be harder for Mimi than for me. She must make her debut next winter, and heaven only knows where she'll get her gowns."

I had never known girls who were presented to society. I stole another look at Mimi Le Brun in her dancing frock and floating ribbons. I felt it an incredible thing that I should be sitting here on terms of friendship with her cousin.

"That's her picture, isn't it?" I asked suddenly. I could stand it no longer. I jumped to my feet and studied the photograph.

"Yes. She's getting to be a beauty. She'll marry somebody with money, and her troubles will be over."

It seemed to me astoundingly cold-blooded to parcel her off in such material fashion.

"Do you mean that she would marry for money?"

His cool, bright eyes met mine. "Why not?"

"Well, a woman ought to love the man she marries."

"She can love a rich man, can't she?" was his somewhat cynical rejoiner. "There was Cinderella and the Prince. Most of the fairy tales are mercenary. It is rarely the poor lad who gets the girl."

I had never thought of it that way. It had always seemed that poverty

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND KI-OODLE'S SHOE.

Outside Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one day sounded a loud howling noise.

"Is that some of the Bad Chaps?" asked Nurse Jane, who was washing the faces of the carrots for lunch.

"No, that isn't the noise of Bad Chaps," said Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady wife, who was dressing the lettuce for dinner.

"Who is making that noise?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"It's Ki-oodle, the little puppy dog cousin of Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow," said Mrs. Longears.

"Why does Ki-Oodle howl that way?" asked Nurse Jane.

"I'm sure I don't know," answered Mrs. Longears. "But he seems to be having fun, so we needn't worry."

Playing

Indeed, the little puppy dog, outside Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, was having a very good time. He was playing with something, tossing it up in the air, catching it when it came down, chewing on it and growling at it. Now and again Ki-Oodle would lift up his nose and howl:

"Ki! Yi! Yi! Oodle! Doodle! Boodle!"

That's how he got his name, howling in that strange way.

All of a sudden, along hopped Uncle Wiggily. He heard Ki-Oodle yowling and, thinking the little puppy dog was hurt, ran to help him.

"Thank you, I'm all right, Uncle Wiggily," said the puppy.

"But why do you howl so?" asked the rabbit gentleman twinkling his pink nose. For he hadn't found an adventure yet and he always twinkled his nose until he did.

"I howl because I am happy and having so much fun with my old shoe," said Ki-Oodle. "Look!" He tossed something black into the air, caught it in his mouth and then shook it and growled.

Uncle Wiggily saw what Ki-Oodle had. It was an old shoe, such as puppies often chew and worry. Puppies like to chew on something hard like an old shoe because it is tough and helps them to cut their teeth and sharpen them for gnawing bones later.

"Well, you do seem to be having a good time!" laughed Mr. Longears. "But would you mind, Ki-Oodle," he asked the little puppy, who howled again, "would you mind going over in the vacant lots to have fun with your old shoe. I think your howling may bother Nurse Jane or my wife."

Accident

"I'll take my old shoe over in the vacant lots," said the puppy. "I did n't know I was so near your bungalow, Uncle Wiggily."

Carrying the old shoe in his mouth, Ki-Oodle started away with it. But before he passed the bungalow he gave the shoe a flip up in the air. It landed on the roof of the bungalow back porch and didn't come down. And when Ki-Oodle saw that he sat down and howled:

"Yi! Yi! Yip! Pip! Zip! Oodle! Doodle! Ow!"

"Oh, my goodness Please don't make so much noise because you are happy, Ki-Oodle," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I'm not happy now, I'm sad," howled the puppy dog. "I've lost my chewing shoe and I can't sharpen my teeth! Yi! Yi! Yippi! Ow!"

"Quiet! Quiet, please!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "Hold the wire!"

Then the rabbit gentleman reached up with his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch and knocked the sho down to Ki-Oodle who went to the vacant lot with it, there to chew and toss and howl happily.

And if the dusting brush will keep out of the paste pot until the doormat comes home, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's puff ball.

DOURO FOLK HEAR TALK ABOUT SOIL BY PROF. BELL

DOURO, Dec. 6.—The meeting in connection with soil and soil-improvement took place in Harmony Hall on Thursday afternoon. Professor Bell of Guelph Agricultural school, was the speaker and the lecture was splendid and worthwhile and deserved a large attendance. Those present took a keen interest as evidenced by a large number of questions. A clear explanation of soil needs was given and instructions given for sending samples for analysis to Guelph. Instructions were given for proper care of barn-yard manure. Professor Bell is a foremost authority on his subject and by means of charts and blackboard illustrations made his subject clear. Much credit is due Mr. Duffus for a worthwhile project.

Turkey Stealing

Turkey stealing is becoming a racket in recent years. Two local farmers, Messrs. Walter Barry and William J. McManus, have been victims of this kind of theft this season. Mr. Barry lost thirty birds and Mr. McManus nine. Thieving in the country is a fairly safe business, ninety per cent. are never caught and when caught the short sentences are a poor deterrent.

Mr. Andrew Evans, who resides on No. 7 highway, had the misfortune to have a fine colt killed on the C.P.R. right-of-way west of Indian River. Another colt was probably permanently injured in a wild race of three or four miles in front of the train.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leahy and sons, Olan, Robert and Clare, were in Peterborough for the reeves' banquet to the winners of the recent judging contests.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Coons and son, Clarence, of Smith, were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leahy.

Friends of Miss Sara Miller will be sorry to hear that she fractured her hip in a fall on the cellar steps at her home. She is in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

Mrs. Thomas Miller and granddaughter, little Miss Ruby Staples, visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Millar, of Toronto.

Mrs. Patrick McMurray has returned to her home after a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Cavanagh, of Bancroft.

Mrs. D. Moher, who has been a resident of the village for the past two years, has gone to reside in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. William Forsythe, sons Irwin and Maitland, attended the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

EAST EMILY

Mrs. Vincent Franks spent last week visiting with her daughters in Peterborough.

Some of those who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. B. Thompson in Peterborough last week from this district were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Carew, Mrs. M. McCarrell, Mr. and Mrs. A. McCarrell, Mr. and Mrs. Esmond Storey, Mrs. H. Parker and Mrs. A. McCall.

The members of the south group of the W.A. of Bethel United church held a most successful sale of various articles and cooking and etc. on the market in Peterborough recently. The ladies in charge of the sale were: Mrs. W. Darling, Mrs. C. Bailey and Mrs. W. Howden.

Army Staff Chief

Known as "The Tiger" and winner of the Victoria Cross during the great war, Major-General Viscount Gort (ABOVE), has been named chief of the Imperial General staff to succeed Field Marshall Sir Cyril Deversil who resigned. It was the most important of a series of startling changes following the resignations of three of the four military members of the army council and their replacement by younger men.

British Policeman Searches Arab For Arms

While his comrade stands guard, a British policeman is shown (ABOVE), searching an Arab for hidden arms in Palestine. The procedure was put into practice by the government as a method of preventing further outbreaks of terrorism in Palestine. Numerous Arabs have been arrested and Arab leaders outlawed because of violence and murders which have taken place in the Holy Land.

Default, Manitoba's Only Path Unless Ottawa Steps In

Bracken Sees All Canada Shaken Seriously If Province's Credit Collapses

WINNIPEG, Dec. 6—(CP)—Manitoba's complete brief on Dominion-Provincial financial arrangements was before the Rowell Commission today—with a plain statement by Premier John Bracken that provincial default was the alternative to some such adjustment as his government was proposing.

The province had avoided default in the almost overwhelming strain of recent years only by measures so drastic it was no longer possible to continue them, the commission was was told.

The plan the commission had to consider called for a shifting to the dominion of several responsibilities now borne by the provinces, including a substantial part of the provincial debt, so that provincial duties would be more commensurate to provincial income.

"The question which faces the nation," Premier Bracken said before the commission yesterday, "is whether at a moderate cost Western Canada will be retained as a region which will contribute in the future as it has in the past large amounts of wealth to the nation—for example, wheat to the value of $7,000,000,000 in the last 28 years—or whether credit will collapse, sound government disintegrate and the control of its public affairs be given over to extremists and dominated by the economics of protest.

Affect All Canada

"If the latter course is taken, there is no way of supposing that the remainder of Canada can remain immune, socially, economically or politically, from the inevitable effects of such a choice."

Manitoba's plan, he said, was offered as a reasonable proposal, with neither too much added obligation on the Dominion or too much added assistance to the municipalities, although protests would undoubtedly be heard from both.

It was a double-barrelled plan devised to cope with the accumulated financial burdens resulting from the depression and to give Canadians in this part of the nation in the future a reasonable standard of public service. This last it had been impossible to do on the limited tax base allotted the province by the fathers of confederation and on an income reduced by economic circumstances beyond the average for Canada.

Premier Bracken said the plan sought to "put the province and municipalities in such a position that with continued care in controlling expenditures they maybe expected to meet their responsibilities in a reasonable acceptable maner."

LOSES SECOND GUN

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 6 (AP).—"Two Gun" Bob Watkins grumbled in Police Court that he couldn't understand "Eastern ways."

Charged with carrying concealed weapons, Watkins, fresh from the rangeland of Texas, was deprived of a six-shooter even though he protested that the gun wasn't concealed. He said he carried it in a holster, Western style.

Watkins said Fort Smith, Ark., police took his first gun on a similar charge.

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Take a combination of Natural Salts of the Earth

Back to Nature! If only we could all do that, there would be no more Rheumatic pains to drive their agonizing rapier into the tortured joints of stricken humanity. But Rheumatic pains do exist, as thousands of sufferers know only too well. Nature's job is to drive them out and keep the system free from uric acid that causes so much unnecessary suffering. There is a remedy for Rheumatic pains that comprises a combination of natural Salts of the Earth — Fynnon Salt, Containing Sodium, Potassium, Lithium, and other ingredients with high remedial potency, Fynnon Salt puts up an irresistible attack on uric acid (the cause of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, etc.). It dissolves the acid crystals and washes them away. Get rid of the acid and the crystals cannot form. Absence of crystals means blessed freedom from the knife stabs that torture the very soul of the Rheumatic Sufferer. If you are a Rheumatic sufferer try Fynnon Salt. Take it every day. Even one large 75c package will convince you that in this famous British remedy you have found the relief you have long been looking for. Get Fynnon Salt from your druggist today. HASTINGS C.W.L. WILL SEND BALE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 6 — Final arrangements were made for sending a bale of clothing to the northern missions, at the regular monthly meeting of the Hastings sub-division of the Catholic Women's League, held in the parish hall Wednesday, December 1. A fair attendance was present. The bale weighing approximately 250 pounds, was made up by the women Thursday.

Tickets were given the members for a raffle on a Christmas cake and two turkeys, the drawing to be made at a tea held at the parish hall December 16. Preparations were made for the sending of Christmas baskets to the sick and needy and also plans made for a weekly sewing circle to begin with the New Year.

HARDY'S ORANGE CHARGE DENIED

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP).—Assertion by Senator A. C. Hardy that Orange Lodges in Eastern Ontario "take care to marshal the Tories under the aegis of Orange Lodges all through" brought quick denial yesterday from Stanley C. Hudson, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, Ontario East.

Hudson, replying to assertions in the Brockville Liberal Senator's speech before the Eastern Ontario Liberal Federation, declared: "The Orange Order in Eastern Ontario took no part whatever in the last (Provincial) election and did not marshal its members for the election or defeat of any candidate."

The Deputy Grand Master declared many Orangemen in Eastern Ontario were attacher as individuals to the Liberal party in the last election and added: "As an organization we positively took no part in the last election campaign or the selection of any candidates."

Hard Block to Crack

Senator Hardy told the Liberal Association of "solid Orange-Tory" centres in Leeds, Grenville-Dundas and other counties and said:

"It is a block we cannot break, although occasionally we win one of these Orange-Tory seats as we have won Leeds two or three times in the last 15 years."

The Senator declared a Conservative circle of ridings existed, starting in Carleton County and going through Leeds, Grenville-Dundas and Glengarry and along the St. Lawrence river front as far west as Prince Edward County.

He declared also: Eastern Ontario has always been neglected by the federal and provincial governments. Out of 12 or 13 (Provincial) cabinet ministers we have one from Eastern Ontario, Hon. Paul Leduc (Ontario Mines Minister). He is not representing Eastern Ontario nearly as much as the French-Canadian population of the whole province."

The senator added that "if Mr. Leduc undertook to organize certain counties like Leeds and Grenville-Dundas he would do more harm than good from the fact that he is a French-Canadian."

The idea depressed me. "I'd hate to think that life is that way."

"That money meant everything."

"Money means a lot, and the sooner you believe it the better, Jerry."

It was pleasant to have him call me by my first name. I had told him that I was named for my uncle, and he had asked:

"Any French blood We've a lot of Jeromes in our family."

I had stammered a little over the statement that we were English. As a matter of fact, if we had a family tree I did not know it. Yet I discovered afterward that our forebears were people of whom I need not be ashamed. They had not boasted of rank or title, but they had been men of education and o fideals, and there can be nothing better.

SHORTEN LONG LEG PARALYSIS CASES

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6 (AP)—An operation to control the growth of the leg bones of children suffering from infantile paralysis and restore them to normal activity was announced yesterday before the closing meeting of the Southern Medical Association.

The operation, reported by Dr. J. Warren White and Dr. W. P. Warner, Jr., of Greenville, S.C., consists of chiseling out cores of bone from the long bones of the leg at the knee in much the same way the core of an apple is removed with a paring knife.

It was done, they explained, to stop the growth of these long bones in growing children who have had one leg shorten by the infantile paralysis infection. Instead of attempting to lengthen the short leg the South Carolina surgeons prevent the longer leg from growing so that the two will be equal in length when growth of the bones stops.

Twenty-nine children who would otherwise have been crippled for life have been restored by the operation, Dr. White said. Twenty-eight others have been operated on but the work is too recent to estimate the value of the results, he added.

EIGHT ALDERMEN TO BE ELECTED NEW YEAR'S DAY

12 Lindsay Couples Wed For Relief Is Mayor's Charge

Claims, of 35 After Aid 24 Newlyweds Not Yet 25; Finds Many Young Men Refusing to Learn Trade

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP)—Young people are getting married so they can get relief, Mayor Dr. H. D. Logan told the council here last night.

"Thirty-five new applications have been received for relief and of these, 12 couples were under 25," he said. "They were married for the purpose of getting relief. What can we do?"

"Let them live with their parents," suggested Reeve Alex Horne.

"The attitude of the government in stipulating that no single man would get relief is forcing young people to get married," Ald. W. Thorne said.

Mayor Logan said many young men wouldn't learn a trade. They were the last to be hired and the first to be fired. One had told him the town had to keep him and his wife.

Council decided to ask the Liquor Control Board to sanction a town by-law to make it unlawful to serve men on relief with beer in beverage rooms.

Slot Machines.

Slot machines and pin machines will be allowed in places of business as usual.

This decision was made when the third reading of Ald. Horn's by-law to raise the license to $100 a machine was defeated.

Ald. Langdon thought the matter of licensing slot machines should be dealt with by the Provincial government, and not by the municipalities.

"If they are legal then the license should be the same all over. If they are illegal then none of them should be allowed."

Ald. Claxton: "We either want to eliminate them or make it equitable for all. If we do allow them, then we should make it reasonable."

Chief Lawler.—"The Judge says if slot machines are illegal, then the Council has no right to license them at all."

Reeve Horn— "Gambling comes next to drinking. I believe it is our duty to abolish slot machines. They are not allowed in many towns and cities. We should have courage to deal with the matter. The machines are a menace. The idea of sending thousands of dollars out of town and charging local men $10 is ridiculous."

Mayor Logan—"I interpreted the Judge's decision as meaning that municipalities have no right to pass these by-laws."

Ald. Butler—"$75 will cut all machines out and $25 will allow a few to operate. Make it high enough or let the license stand as it is."

When the motion for the third reading of the by-law as presented it was defeated, only Reeve Horn voting for the motion, for a third reading at a fee of $100 a machine.

WIFE GOES INSANE WOUNDS HUSBAND IN HATCHET CHASE

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP)—Mrs. Carrie Markel was remanded until tomorrow in the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital to-day by Magistrate J. R. Biske on a charge of being mentally ill following a fracas last night at her home. She is alleged to have struck her husband, Nelson, twice with a hatchet, painfully injuring him.

Mrs. Markel is believed by the police to have been temporarily insane due to goitre trouble which has been severe of late.

At noon to-day Markle was permitted to leave hospital. It was found he was suffering only superficial cuts and a deep gash on the cheek. Mrs. Markle is being held at the hospital under police guard suffering minor cuts said to have been received when she dove through the kitchen window at their home early this morning.

Though Markel was not hurt as badly as thought at first, the Markel home showed signs of a severe struggle, with blood plentifully spattered over the walls and floors.

In the struggle Markel finally got the hatchet from his wife after she had chased him round the house three times. Then she went into the house and procured a jackknife which the police took from her when they arrived.

The Markels, both about 60, have no children.

Says Girls Mature At 6, Boys 40

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (CP)—Girls mature at the age of six; boys not until they are 40, says Liam O'Flaherty, Irish author of "The Informer," and to this he attributes the tribulations of mankind.

The tall writer arrived here today from Ireland for a short visit before he heads south "to work."

"I am now 40 and have only just reached maturity," said O'Flaherty. "I have given up drinking, late hours and all that sort of thing.

"Girls start in to play with dolls and doll's houses in their infancy—playing then at what will later be their life's work—but boys never get seriously down to business."

Hermit's Recovery Held Doubtful

BANFF, Alta., Dec. 7—(CP)—Recovery of Billy Carver, 71-year-old hermit of John's Lake, was believed doubtful today.

In an advanced state of starvation, after four foodless days in his primitive mountain cabin, Carver was too weak to speak, Dr. G. M. Atkin, attending physician, said last night.

Ill and weak from hunger, Carver was found in his isolated mountain cabin by hikers Saturday, his iron stove "dead" for days. On a stretcher he was carried over a mile and a half of treacherous mountain trails to Anthracite, a mining settlement, and then brought to hospital here.

Carver, a legendary figure to mountain tourists, had a food supply but was too ill to leave his cabin bunk.

'Snow Horses' Begin Piling Drifts Over Ontario

Ploughs Kept Busy In Many Areas And Motorists Find Driving Hazardous

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (C.P.). — Snow fell generally throughout Ontario to-day with the heaviest fall in eastern sections of the province. Temperatures were lower in Southern Ontario and light snowfalls were reported in many districts.

A near-blizzard was piling snow in Peterborough. Drifts were forming on highways and automobile driving was becoming treacherous. At Kingston, snow was still falling to-day after a three-inch blanket was spread over the ground last night. Temperatures there, however, were mild.

Colder weather was reported in Kitchener, Brantford and Galt where streets were covered with ice and automobile traffic was difficult. Light snowflurries during the night made driving conditions even more treacherous.

Mild weather prevailed at North Bay. Although snow had fallen intermittently for two days there, less than an inch of snow covered the ground. Light snow fell.

Ploughs were still clearing roads in some sections of Western Ontario after a storm yesterday and Sunday. Drifts blocked the Sarnia-London Highway in several places near Sarnia, but the highway was expected to be ready for traffic shortly.

London had its heaviest storm of the year over the week-end. Ploughs were out yesterday clearing away snow from highways and roads in the surrounding country.

4 Oshawa Youths Held For Theft

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP).—Four Oshawa youths appeared in court yesterday on charges of automobile theft and were remanded until December 11.

William Boyd, James Fudge, E. Krawczyk, and G. Obilnsky, arrested at Oshawa, were charged with theft of a car owned by C. P. Ralls, Cobourg. Boyd, Krawczyk, and Obilnsky were also charged with stealing a car owned by W. H. Turpin, Haldimand Township, and Krawsayk and Obilnsky with stealing a car owned by George Taylor, Hamilton. Boyd and Fudge were freed on bail.

HALIBURTON LOSES FRED FREEMAN, 90

HALIBURTON, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP).—Coffin and tombstone Frederick Freeman had prepared for himself years ago were about to be used to-day. The 90-year-old general storekeeper died in this village near Lindsay yesterday.

One of the village's most colorful figures, Mr. Freeman left his heirs a sizeable fortune—hundreds of dollars in coppers stowed in barrels he kept in his store.

His death came after an illness of almost six months, the first serious illness he suffered since he came into this village on an oxcart 55 years ago. He came to Canada from Holloway, England, when he was a boy and later moved to Haliburton.

The casket Mr. Freeman's body will occupy was ordered by himself years ago. Similarly, a tombstone with his name and date of birth carved in it has been standing in the village cemetery waiting for the date of his death to be filled in.

His casket was kept in the attic of the general store. His large collection of pennies resulted from a hobby.

Four of Five Elected First Of The Year Will Not Finish Term

Alderman Gordon to Seek Re-election To Vindicate His City Trust Policy

Four of the five aldermen who were elected last January will not complete half their two year term.

Max R. Sloan retired some months ago to apply for the position of assistant assessor, to which he was appointed.

Aldermen McIntyre, Hamilton and Gordon announced last night that they intended to hand in their resignation to City Clerk Armstrong this week, leaving Alderman Wilson with the only continuing mandate when the year ends on the eve of the election day for 1938.

The five aldermen whose terms are about to expire are Aldermen Stocker, Cotton, Glover, Juby and Dutton. And to round out the almost total eclipse of the council of 1937 at least for the brief interval between regimes at the end of the year, Mayor Macdonald intimated to the Examiner last night that he would have a statement for the press to-day, which will probably herald his retirement from municipal service.

Mayoralty Candidate

Alderman Hamilton is resigning from the council to clear the way for his nomination in the 1938 mayoralty contest.

Alderman McIntyre informed the Examiner that he was withdrawing because the city's business was interfering too much with his private affairs. It was also a strain on his health, and besides he felt that he had given the citizens a long service entitling him to quit if circumstances demanded it. As chairman of the property Committee this year he has given a great deal of time in supervising garbage collection operations at a time of transition from the horse drawn vehicles to motor trucks.

Alderman Gordon is resigning for the express purpose of seeking re-election and thereby vindicating, he told the Examiner, his policy of criticising the administration of the City Trust Commission.

TORONTO ELECTS DAY, VOTES DOWN SLUM CLEARANCE

TORONTO, Dec. 7—(CP)—Ralph C. Day, youthful veteran of civic politics, will head Toronto's municipal administration in 1938, supported by an experienced board of control that will include three of this year's members and a former alderman.

The 39-year-old funeral director, second mortician to be elected mayor of Toronto, was accorded a sweeping majority in yesterday's municipal elections over Mayor W. D. Robbins. Wit hall of the 851 subdivisions reported, Day polled 64,736 votes against Mayor Robbins 50,779. Two other candidates, Carlo Lamberti and Robert Harding, never were in the running.

A by-law authorizing provision of $2,000,000 for slum clearance and housing, conditional upon a contribution of $4,000,000 for the Dominion and Ontario governments, was defeated by an estimated 3-to-1 vote of ratepayers. The election returns also showed the electorate preferred January 1 as the date of all future civic elections; the vote going 64,236 to 50,663.

Controllers Fred J. Conboy, who headed the poll, Fred Hamilton and William J. Wadsworth were re-elected to the board of control. The new member of the four-man board will be J. D. McNish, barrister and former alderman who defeated Communist Tim Buck by a 254-vote majority after a nip-and-tuck battle.

ORDER THIRD TRIAL FOR ST. KITTS MAN, IN "FENCE" MURDER

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—(CP)—William Munchuk of St. Catharines, Ont., will stand a new trial for the murder of Mrs. Mary Seabright, the Supreme Court of Canada decided today. The court dismissed an appeal by the crown against a judgment of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Ontario, directing a new trial.

His Third Trial

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 7.—(CP)—As a result of a Supreme Court of Canada judgment today, 45-year-old William Munchuk will be tried for murder for the third time.

Alleged to have killed William Seabright and Mrs. Mary Seabright, who lived next door to the Munchuk home here, Munchuk first stood trial late in 1936. The jury found him guilty of manslaughter in connection with Seabright's death.

Addressing the jury which reduced the charge, Mr. Justice J. C. Makins said: "So long as we have spineless juries who administer justice in this province, just so long will we have this sort of crime." Munchuk was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Tried in March this year for the murder of Mrs. Seabright, Munchuk was found guilty. He was sentenced to be hanged May 31. The Ontario Appeal Court, however, granted a new trial.

Crown evidence was that Munchuk struck the Seabrights with an axe during a quarrel over a line-fence dispute. Munchuk's wife, charged jointly with the murder of Seabright, was acquitted by the same jury that found Munchuk guilty of manslaughter.

AVERAGE TRUCK WAGE IS FOUND $16.60 - 68 HRS.

Roebuck Gets Figures From 76 Cases Probed

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP).—Investigation of 76 "extreme cases" of low wages paid by some Ontario motor transport companies showed the average employee worked 68½ hours a week for $16.60, Arthur Roebuck, automotive transport workers' counsel, told the Chevrier Royal Commission on Transport today. Average hourly wage was 24 cents.

Ontario Provincial Police lack proper equipment to check infractions of the public commercial vehicles regulation, L. G. Fabian, general representative of the automotive transport section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, testified. He advocated scales on all highways, manned all day.

Fabian, a former highways inspector with the Provincial Police, said that in Northern Ontario he had found trucks licensed to carry 8,000 to 10,000 pounds, carrying 18,000 to 23,000.

Fabian listed further wages he said were paid by transport companies. Picot Transport of Meaford paid a married man $20 a week for 64 hours. This employee was a driver and clerk. Another Picot employee earned $18 working 66 hours a week.

$13 For 66 Hours To Married Man.

Other cases listed by Fabian were:

Wallace Transport, Welland, $16 to a clerk for 65 hours.

Montreal-Ottawa Express Lines, Limited, Ottawa, $13 to a driver for a week of 81 hours; $16.50 to another employee for 71 hours.

Ottawa Transportation, $18 to a driver for 71 hours; $18 to another employee for 60 hours.

"If these hours are correct, they are inhuman," said Mr. Roebuck.

"There is no question of that," said Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, Commission chairman.

Fabian said Martin Transport, Ottawa, paid a driver $16 for 58 hours and a warehouseman $16 for 51 hours. A driver for Alexander Transport, Ottawa, earned $16 for 60 hours.

"So far there has not been a single fair word said for the operators," commented Mr. Justice Chevrier.

"The cases shown are the most extreme cases," said Mr. Roebuck. "They are not supposed to be the general average." Mr. Roebuck said he would put operators who paid reasonable wages in the witness box.

Proposed Schedule

Fabian presented a proposed schedule of wages for motor transport employees. Drivers engaged in

9 ONTARIO CITIES PICK NEW MAYORS

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP).—Nine Ontario cities will have new mayors in 1938 while in five others the present incumbents will remain following a wave of upsets that swept over the province in municipal elections yesterday.

In only three cities — North Bay, Sudbury and Hamilton — did the mayors received acclamations nomination day, but in the others—and in scores of towns, townships and municipalities—there were bang-up fights for the head of the council. Windsor, which elected its mayor in 1936 for a two-year term, had no mayoralty election.

Toronto turned out William D. Robbins, seeking a second term. Other cities to have new chief magistrates either through defeat of the 1937 mayor or his retirement are:

Belleville, Brantford, Guelph, Kingston, Woodstock, Niagara Falls and Chatham.

Ottawa, which kept Stanley Lewis for a third term, Stratford, Sarnia, St. Thomas and London will continue under their 1937 mayors.

Woman Fails In Bid.

Lone woman seeking the mayoralty, Miss Edra Sanders, St. Thomas lawyer, failed in her bid when Mayor Ernest Duckworth defeated her 2,989 to 1,626. Elsewhere in the province women scored several victories.

In Western Ontario, the Hetherington family did pretty well for it-

3 Million Jobs In Du Pont Two-To-10 Year Plan

Would Create New Products, Lower Costs In Investing Of 25 Billions

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—A two-to-10-year plan to create 3,000,000 new jobs through planned investment of $25,000,000,000 by private industry of the United States was proposed today by Lammot Du Pont, president of E. I. Du Pont De Nemours and Co., in an address at the National Association of Manufacturers convention.

1. "Development and popularization of new products."
2. "Vastly broadening the market for existing products through lowering their cost."
3. "Maintaining a rule of fair return for all effort, not excepting capital effort."

Needs A Three Fold Pledge

Industry can put this plan into effect, he said, if given a "fair opportunity" through a three-fold governmental pledge covering these points:

1. "Stabilization of tax rates over a definite period."
2. "Stabilization of fair laboring conditions over a definite period."
3. Immediate stabilization of the "legal rules" under which business must operate, subject only to "unmistakable public demand" for amendment.

He said the actual rate of taxes, or the actual scale of wages or hours, were not as important as stabilization.

Du Pont said he was criticizing

Blizzards Sweep Over Prairies

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (CP)—Blizzards swept the prairie provinces yesterday with heavy snow in southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Roads filled in south Saskatchewan. Four inches of snow was general in southern Manitoba but bus schedules were not delayed. A 40-minute blizzard in Edmonton blotted out the sun.

Algoman Beats Wolf To His Car In 300 Yard "Leap For Leap"

Pal Spoils Live Pet Scheme By Refusing To Ride With Captive

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP)—Algoma's famed Wolf club added to its list of tall stories today with an account of Bill Bradshaw leading a live wolf 300 yards to his car on the club's latest expedition.

Bradshaw had visions of bringing the wolf back to town alive but Doug. Tipton refused to ride in the same car with the malodorous captive.

The wolf was captured after one of the club's hounds cornered it and crippled the animal's leg. J. H. McDonald tied a dog chain to the wolf's neck and handed Bradshaw the free end of the chain.

Bradshaw pulled on the chain while the wolf held back and when he gave a pull the wolf jumped ahead, nearly catching him. The 300-yard trip to the car was accomplished in this same "I leap you leap fashion."

The hunters killed the animal and brought home the hide to collect the bounty.

The Wolf club's records for the current season now stands as follows: Wolves killed, eight; wounded, two; tossed by the tail, one; chained to a tree, one; chained and led 300 yards, one.

Rottingdean, Sussex, Dec. 7

RATEPAYERS of this old town of thatched cottages have protested the introduction of double-deck busses.

"If double-deck busses went up the high street it would mean that people would be able to see inside the second-story bedrooms of the houses on either side of the street," declared a spokesman.

Cold Wave Closes Schools In Miami, Heavy Fruit Loss Feared

Atlanta, Dec. 7—(AP)

WORST storm of the winter sent southern temperatures below those in Chicago and Minneapolis today, caused at least three deaths and threatened widespread property damage.

One weather fatality was reported near Hendersonville, N.C., a Negro was frozen to death in middle Tennessee and another Negro was found dead, apparently of exposure, in his flimsy shack in New Orleans.

Heaviest property damage was feared in Florida's citrus and vegetable growing areas but extensive precautions were taken and it was impossible to determine today how great the loss would be.

Miami public schools were closed until the cold wave passes because school buildings there have no facilities for heating.

JAPS HAMMER UPON HISTORIC NANKING GATES

Use Ladders in Effort To Scale Great Walls

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7—(AP)—Advance of Japanese troops assailed Nanking's historic walls tonight.

Japanese officers who announced the attack said a spearhead of the invaders was attempting to climb the city's massive battlements with scaling ladders—a manoeuvre handed down through the middle ages.

Gates of the apparently doomed city were closed. Chinese had started a final stand which seemed destined to fail.

Japanese asserted their main forces had not yet reached the city but added that they were "progressing satisfactorily and according to schedule."

The spokesman did not say how soon he expected the fall of the one-time fountainhead of Nationalist China.

General Chiang Kai - Shek, China's leader, had left Nanking, Chinese advices disclosed. He and Madame Chiang, head of China's air force, were said to have departed by air plane for Nanchang, capital of the interior province of Kiangsi. The government evacuated Nanking two weeks ago.

Meagre foreign dispatches trickling through from Nanking confirmed Japanese reports that Nippon's aircraft had pounded the city with bombs. These advices, however, did not mention the extent of casualties or damage.

Fires Ravage City.

Fires raged in Nanking, throwing up columns of smoke which correspondents said could be seen for miles.

Japanese planes ranged the countryside bombing objectives in the Nanking area. Chinese reported the village of Sunkwanchen, 10 miles from Nanking, was bombed in eight separate raids, killing or wounding more than 200.

The Japanese spokesman at Shanghai told of heavy bombardment of Chinese troop concentrations on the capital's outskirts. At the same time he announced appreciable advances toward Wuhu.

Great Britain protested against the bombardment of Wuhu on Sunday in which two British merchant ships and a British gunboat were damaged.

The Japanese spokesman at Shanghai said a raid on a hotel in the International Settlement yesterday was not "in defiance" of the Settlement's police powers.

2 TORONTO MEN KILLED BY TRAIN

BRADFORD, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP)—A trip into the country for Christmas trees ended fatally yesterday for two Toronto men, Ivan Ryan, 41, and George Scott, 40. Identification of Scott was not completed until late last night.

Their automobile was struck by a Canadian National Railways freight train at the highway level crossing near here. They had come into this district north of Toronto to obtain a load of Christmas trees in Holland Marsh. A small trailer was attached to the car.

14 RUNAWAY CARS KILL 3 MINERS

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Dec. 7 (CP)—Work at the Princess Colliery of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company halted today while provincial government and company officials investigated an accident which killed three workmen and injured three others.

Nelson Burgoyne, Walter Eveilly and Robert Paday, were killed last night when a runaway string of 14 empty cars crashed into them. With them at the time, Rory and Dan McNeil were injured and taken to hospital. A sixth, Francis McLellan, was struck by the string at the bottom of the colliery and suffered bruises.

The disaster was the worst in the mining fields this year and most serious in the Princess Colliery in 20 years. It was believed the trip broke loose when a coupling slipped or parted.

LANCASTER MAN NAMED AS KILLER OF BONVILLE BOY

CORNWALL, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP)—Daniel Thauvette, Lancaster, faced trial for murder today, named as the killer of 16-year-old Alex Lariviere, Bonville, Ont., by a coroner's jury. In an alleged confession Thauvette was quoted as saying he killed Lariviere because he "felt like killing him."

The confession was read by Provincial Police Sergeant R. P. Labelle at the coroner's inquest yesterday. Lariviere was found dying beside a railway track at nearby Lancaster Oct. 30, his head battered and bearing multiple bruises.

In the alleged confession Thauvette was quoted as saying he had been drinking liquor. "After I got it pretty nearly all drank it came to my head to hit him," it continued. "I had no intention to do that when I left. When I left him he was lying on his stomach. He wasn't dead yet when I left him. Then I went home and went to bed."

The confession said Thauvette hit Lariviere with the bottle from which they were drinking then with a rock. It added that he "wouldn't have did that" if he hadn't been drinking.

Medical testimony showed Lariviere died from a fractured skull caused by "several" blows on the head after being struck by the bottle. Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, testified he found blood on Thauvette's clothes similar to that of the dead youth.

CLUB RAID COSTS BEASLEY $870

BRAMPTON, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP).—Night club owner Bill Beasley paid $870 in fines Monday after he was found guilty of operating a common gaming house and keeping liquor in an illegal place.

Beasley paid a $200 fine on the gaming charge, $100 on the liquor count, and then paid $570 in fines for 38 persons charged with being "found in" when police raided Beasley's establishment near Port Credit, in suburban Toronto, on November 28.

Ten others charged with being found in did not appear, and their cases were enlarged. The others were fined $15 each.

Beasley pleaded not guilty in a courtroom crowded by those charged. roulette table, black-jack tables, chips, and cases of whisky were lined up in front of Magistrate W. F. Woodcliffe as Crown exhibits.

Inspector R. H. Palmer, who led the raid on November 28, said Beasley told him he had lost $10,000 the night before the raid and $40,000 since he opened the Port Credit "Luxury House" some time before.

The raid took place 15 days after a search warrant was issued, the inspector said. He did not say what caused the delay.

20 Forced To Flee Fire In Hotel

TORONTO, Dec. 7—(CP).—Twenty guests were driven from their rooms in the Atlanta Hotel early today by fire that started in the basement. A dozen firemen were effected by ammonia and sulphur dioxide fumes that escaped from the refrigeration system. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

The hotel manager aroused the guests and all had time to dress before leaving the building. Firemen were unable to approach the cellar blaze until they were supplied with gas masks.

The firemen received inhalator treatments after returning to the firehall. After effects were not expected to be serious. Firemen from one station were affected earlier by fumes from another fire in which celluloid goods were burned.

pick-up-and-delivery work within a radius of three miles from a municipality, village or city should receive $28 a week.

Highway drivers operating straight trucks beyond this three-mile radius should receive $30 a week, the schedule said. Highway drivers operating tractor and semi-trailer units beyond the three-mile radius should be paid $35 a week.

A weekly wage of $26 should be paid warehousemen, checkers, platform men and scalers, the schedule continued.

Eight consecutive hours, exclusive of meal periods, should constitute a day's work and employees generally should not be expected to work more than six days a week.

William L. Bentley of Toronto, formerly employed as a truck driver by Joseph Farbstein of Toronto and now working for the National Fruit and Produce Company of Toronto, was called as a witness by Roebuck.

One Low Wage Example

He said while he was driving for Farbstein he worked from 100 to 110 hours a week for five weeks and was paid $15 weekly along with an allowance for meals and hotel expenses while on the road. He testified that he did not get more than six hours off his truck at a stretch during that period.

"I figured it out and found I was working for about 7½ to 10 cents an hour for Farbstein," said Bentley, who is married and has five children.

He said his run was from Toronto Montreal and return. On one trip, he said he started from Toronto Sunday morning, arrived in Montreal with a load of grapes early Monday, rested three hours and then drove back to Toronto arriving Monday at midnight.

Witness said he then had to leave for Vineland in the Niagara Peninsula and did not get back to Toronto until Tuesday night when he was able to get some sleep.

"Are these long hours necessary?" asked Roebuck.

"You have to put them in to keep your job," Bentley said. "If you don't there are plenty of others on the streets who will take it."

Under the housing by-law, $6,000,000 would have been expended, provided the provincial and federal governments co-operated, upon a slum-clearance and housing program. The money was to have been expended over a period of years. The vote: For, 14,350; against, 36,753.

The battle between buck and McNish for the fourth position on the board of control see-sawed throughout the night.

Secretary of the Communist party of Canada, Buck began to publicly favor Communism in 1919. In 1931, he was sentenced to a five-year penitentiary term upon conviction of being a member of an unlawful association. He was released in 1934 and in the following year was defeated in Winnipeg North in the Dominion general election.

BALBO SHAPING UP BIG LIBYAN ARMY

ROME, Dec. 7—(AP).—Libya, Italy's North African colony, is concentrating a huge colonial army for Premier Mussolini under the rule of its Governor, Marshal Italo Balbo.

Military circles estimate that within a short time 120,000 troops will be established on Libyan soil. Most of this force will be men actually under arms, supplemented by a reserve of trained Fascist militiamen who have settled in Libya and who may be recalled to the colors at a moment's notice.

Several weeks ago Mussolini began transferring the 20th Army Corps to Libya. The corps, numbering about 42,000 men, now is garrisoned in Libya.

Military sources said a second army corps, the 21st, is being transfered to North Africa, and that the vanguard division already has arrived. Two other divisions are to follow shortly.

In addition, Italy has a division of colonial troops, three aviation regiments and two other aviation groups in Libya, responsible primarily for police work.

Some regard the Italian troop concentration as a threatening gesture against neighboring interests of Great Britain and France. As such it would strengthen Il Duce's hand in European diplomacy. Others believe that Mussolini is equipping the colony for independent defense in case communications with Italy are severed by a war in the Mediterranean.

MANITOBA URGES OVERLAPPING END

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (CP).—Heads of two Manitoba government departments were scheduled to appear before the Rowell Commission today to discuss duplication of federal-provincial efforts.

Several department heads discussed overlapping duties Saturday with one of them, D. J. Allan, assistant deputy minister of mines and natural resources, proposing realignment to increase efficiency and economy. Saskatchewan sittings will be opened at Regina Wednesday.

Mr. Allan contended the same forest conditions prevailed from the Great Lakes to the mountains and forestry experimental work was better handled by the Dominion. He said there was no conflict as to fisheries but under the present awkward set-up the Dominion passed legislation and the province administered it even though legislation varied in different provinces.

The natural resources official urged administration of inland fisheries be left exclusively to the province with the Dominion confining itself to research. No overlapping existed regarding water resources, he said.

Mr. Allan's only criticism of mines department work was that the Dominion should speed up its geological and topographical work. Little had been done in that direction for years, he said, until provincial government efforts led to opening up of a fruitful mining area.

Sixty-three died of accidents in which they fractured bones; 328 suffered fatal injuries in falls from bed, downstairs, on the street, off chairs, on ice and from high places. Twelve men stumbled and fell fatally; 40 women did the same.

38 Drown At Home

More Farm Mishaps at 5-14

In the group between five and 14 farm accidents increased as boys started working. One boy was strangled when he was suspended by the neck as a horse's tail became wound around him. Drownings were up sharply.

Industrial accidents which claimed four lives in the 5-14 group jumped to 256 in the 15-29 group; drownings increased, as did shootings; one man died of a cod bite; seven died of exposure in the bush; electrocutions rose; athletic competitions claimed 11.

Acute alcoholic poisoning appeared first in the 30-49 group, killed nine men, one woman; industrial accidents rose to 406; five drunks drowned and 10 fell while drunk; 43 were shot; 11 died of exposure to cold, including Herman Magill of Toronto at the bottom of Moose River mine in Nova Scotia as the world waited for his rescue and that of two companions.

In the 50-69 group 94 died from falls; one had a fight with a dog; 12 died of frost bite.

While he suggested no detailed plans for a $25,000,000,000 financing program, a task he described as "staggering," comparable to the government's great war financing which was managed by co-operation of all agencies, Du Pont, whose financial ability is respected in Wall Street, said "it is neither hopless nor impossible."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Disappointing action at Liverpool and Buenos Tires discouraged grain buyers on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Wheat futures, lower throughout the session, closed 1¼ to 1¾ cents down, December $1.18¾, May $1.14⅝ to ⅞ and July $1.10½.

Prices were irregular within a one-cent range in early dealings. After dipping around a cent at mid-session trading turned quiet. Only a scattered export business in Canadian wheat, estimated at 102,000 bushels, was reported.

Liverpool, influenced by lower Australian freight rates and slightly higher sterling exchange rates, eased 1d to 1½d at the close. Buenos Aires at noon was unchanged to ¼c down.

The Rev. G. S. Easton Addresses Queen Alex. H. & S.

A large number of members were present at the regular meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held in the kindergarten of the school on Monday evening, and presided over by Mrs. L. M. Richardson, the president.

Speaking of the League of Nations, the Rev. G. S. Eason, as guest speaker of the evening, showed how the welfare of all nations is influenced by the conduct of each one. The difference of the League from any other peace society attempted, reason for its failure, and steps that might make for more effective functioning, were discussed by the speaker.

In a short talk on 'Civics,' the Rev. Mr. Easton stressed three points: namely, that "no man can live to himself alone," that he is responsible for good government in his city to the extent of his vote at least, and that he is responsible for the moral health of his city.

Mrs. J. S. Reynolds gave a detailed report on Dr. Murray Fraser's recent health talk to Home and School representatives on "Scarlet Fever," its symptoms and treatment of them.

E. Frost, vice-principal of Queen Alexandra School, displayed two silver cups recently won by pupils of the school. They represented the Junior Horticultural Society prize for this district, and the Y.W.C.A. trophy for the girls' swimming team.

In the period devoted to Child psychology, Mrs. R. Parnell gave a short paper dealing with the religious training of a child. Three pictures by Canadian artists, bought for the school by the Home and School Association, were displayed and explained by the principal, J. E. R. Munro. A reading on Mother Love was given by Mrs. L. M. Richardson. Two delightful musical numbers were much enjoyed, and consisted of vocal solos by Betty Mather, accompanied at the piano by Adele Fitzgerald. The meeting was closed with the singing of "Silent Night."

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY of doubtful, if not precarious, conditions is the augury based on lunar and mutual aspects of ruling planets. While employment is under fair promise, yet there are certain signs of disruptive matters, suddenly precipitated, which would prove disastrous if managed with rashness, haste and lack of careful consideration.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the propitious outcome of unsettled events depends on cautious, diplomatic and sagacious grasp of devastating situations. Reckless, hasty, impetuous and quarrelsome behavior would prove decidedly hazardous.

A child born on this day may have diversified talents, being original and practical, but it may be too energetic, impulsive and aggressive. It should succeed in constructive work.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SHARP EYES NEEDED

DEEP LAID plots of canny declarers are hard to detect. Only the sharp eyed observer can fathom what he is up to. Most of his clever thrusts succeed. Once in a great while, however, a vigilant foe will manage to analyze his plan of attack and thwart him by some unexpected parry.

(Dealer: South. Neither side culnerable.)

Against South's contract of 3-No Trumps here West led the heart 5 and the declarer won the trick with the heart 10. This deal arose in a duplicate tournament, all declarers ending in the same contract and all receiving the same opening lead.

It was immediately apparent to each South player that, in order to make his contract, the club suit would have to be run and the East player must be kept out of the lead.

Where the contract was made, the club K was cashed and, when West played the Q on the second round of the suit, all declarers ducked that trick in order to keep West in the lead.

One clever West, however, realizing that he needed his partner to to lead hearts, casually dropped his club Q on the first round of the suit, figuring that it was useless to him if South also held the J and that it might be a winning maneuver if East held the J. This play made it impossible for 3-No Trumps to be made.

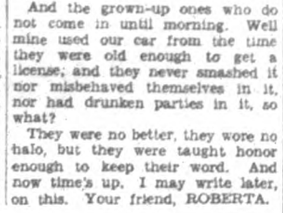
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What play by South enables him to make 6-No Trumps after the lead of the spade Q?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"It is not work that kills men; it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust on the blade. It is not the revolution of machinery that destroys it, but the friction. Fear secretes acids; but love and trust are sweet juices."
Beecher.

Dear Friends:

A few of us were talking the other day and it was about work and worry. We were all tired and disgruntled, a heaviness was upon us, and we sat and gloomed together.

On said, stretching herself, "I can stand the work, that doesn't bother me. But it is the constant snooping around of my boss that gets on my nerves." I said, "why should that get you down? Don't you do your work right? What are you afraid of?

She indignantly denied any fear, so another spoke up and said, "I can go ahead all day working and singing, until the thought of what that man of mine may be doing, what more trouble he may be getting into which I will have to clear up, comes into my mind, then I lose all pleasure in what I am doing."

Another said, "my children play with some children at school of whom I disapprove, and if they are a little late, I am uneasy until they come home, and can't do a thing."

And another chimed in, "wait until they grow up and borrow the car and you don't see them until morning. I can't sleep, I can't rest, can't even lie still, so that both my husband and myself rise irritable and unrested in the morning."

So I said this calls for a showdown. The whole thing back of all this is FEAR. They all very hurriedly said they trusted their husband or children, they weren't really AFRAID, but it just got them so bad they were no good for anything else.

But later it came out that it was fear and worry. They were storing up acids and we all know what too much acidity does. I know it is easy to talk when a body is worrying, tell them to throw it off, forget about it, everything will be alright. Oh yes? Maybe.

Yet there is a way to get rid of some of it anyway. Take it out and examine it. If the girl who does not like her boss snooping as she calls it, is doing her work alright, he can snoop all he likes, so she can cast that fear aside.

If the woman who gets her husband out of messes would let him get himself out of them, she would not have so much anxiety, and the trouble he has getting himself clear will be better then any talk she might give him.

If the lady who is bothered whether her children will learn to steal or swear from these other children, will teach them clearly the difference between niceness and nastiness, honesty and dishonesty, show, also her belief in them, she may not only save her children's morals, but may be a help to those children she is so afraid will corrupt them. All children are copy-cats, and those others may copy her children.

And the grown-up ones who do not come in until morning. Well mine used our car from the time they were old enough to get a license; and they never smashed it nor misbehaved themselves in it, nor had drunken parties in it, so what?

They were no better, they wore no halo, but they were taught honor enough to keep their word. And now time's up. I may write later, on this. Your friend, ROBERTA.

Like tender, young BEETS the choice, young TEA LEAVES are rich in FLAVOR

Blended and packed in Canada

WHEN beets are overgrown, tough and woody, they have lost most of their flavor. Yet these same beets, if pulled when young and tender, are rich in flavor and sweetness.

There's a lesson here for tea buyers. Like most other plants, the choice, young tea leaves are rich in flavor. As they grow older, this flavor changes—or escapes.

Choose TENDER LEAF TEA. In every package you get the choice, young tea leaves—picked at the peak of flavor. No coarse, heavy leaves are included for bulk.

The difference was shown when a new scientific instrument was used to measure the amount of aroma in 14 brands of tea. Tender Leaf Tea—and one other, more expensive brand—came first. Some of the remaining brands had as little as one-sixth the aroma of Tender Leaf Tea.

Your grocer has this tea in two convenient sizes. Try "Tender Leaf Tea"—the name suggests how much you'll enjoy it!

Apologizing For A Surplus

Mayor E. S. Hogg of Red Deer, Alberta, was giving a review of the financial standing of his community, and in doing so explained that expenses had been so greatly reduced that the town now had a balance in the bank of $16,080, compared with $3,369 in 1935.

His worship was moved to say: "I must apologize for a so large a bank balance." It may be there is no set procedure for civic officials in general to follow when they want to announce that the community has lived within its means and has a goodly sum left over. There have been a good many forms of government where the announcement regarding the financial standing commenced with the words: "I regret to report," and that has been used so frequently that it can be accepted as standardized and proper enough.

Perhaps Mayor Hogg of Red Deer did not know of any other way to proceed when he wanted to announce the existence of a good surplus. So he merely apologized for it. With the return of better times it might be well if some authority on such matters would tell definitely just how a satisfactory surplus should be announced. Apologizing for its existence hardly seems the proper way to go about it.

When People Drive Well

There was fog at the week-end, and there was snow and rain. There were times when driving conditions were about as bad and difficult as could be. There were drivers who had to stop now and then and get out of the car and find how far they were from the ditch at the side of the road.

And while all this was going on many of the pavements were slippery, just the condition which would result in skidding and trouble enough if brakes were put on hurriedly.

People who had occasion to drive through such conditions report they saw no accidents where many might have been expected. When one car was about to meet another the drivers almost came to a dead stop to make sure there would not be a crash or a slip into the ditch. And when a car was proceeding with no other car near, it went at a pace where it could probably have been brought to a stop in its own length at any time.

It's strange, but it's a fact that when driving conditions are admittedly bad and perhaps a trifle dangerous, people take so much care and caution that accidents seldom happen.

A Reasonable Suggestion

Owen Sound Sun-Times gets credit for turning an old phrase into something new. Apparently convinced that "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early" has become somewhat played out, the Owen Sound man makes it read "Do Your Christmas Shopping Locally."

One might spot that and remark it is nothing but an advertising trick. But it is well worth thinking about. Local merchants in every community prepare for the Christmas trade, and in so doing they have to place in stock a large amount of merchandise which they know cannot well be sold at any other season. In that way they are taking a large risk in order that local people can have their Christmas shopping made comparatively easy for them.

When you do business with your local merchant you are not taking any chances. If what you purchase is not satisfactory he is close at hand to make it right. There is no delay. If the article purchased does not happen to be the right size or the right color then it is a simple matter to have that adjusted.

So there is a good deal of common sense in that new slogan about doing your Christmas shopping locally.

The Woman Pays

A woman sat in Criminal Court at Hamilton with her child on her knee, and listened to the sentence which directed that her husband should serve two years in Kingston penitentiary for shop-breaking, theft and receiving. Upon hearing the sentence the woman collapsed and required attention before she recovered. The thing had gone hard with her.

It works out that way often enough, not merely in the court room but afterward. That wife and mother will probably for a long time pay the price for what her husband has done. When he goes to prison she will have to get along as best she can. There may be some place where she can leave the child if she desires to go to work; whether she can and will receive relief is something we do not know. But in the main it will be her own concern to try and keep going while the husband is in prison.

When the man is locked up he is sure of a place to spend the night and his meals will come regularly, but we do not make similar provision for the wife nor for the children.

When he is through with his prison term the going will not be easy, because the wife will have to depend then on the earnings and work of a man known as an ex-convict and the way is generally hard enough for the best of them. The woman who collapsed in the court at Hamilton was then only beginning to pay the price for what her husband had done.

Their Own Celebration

The Senior Interscholastic Rugby championship rests in Peterborough for the year 1937. Winning such a title is something which takes a lot of winning. Here and there throughout the province there are other good school teams which have been winning and they have all to be rubbed out before a championship is decided. There is not much guess work about winning a rugby championship. It is something which has to be earned. And it takes a lot of earning.

One noticeable thing was that the collegiate folk wanted to celebrate the victory which their team had won. They immediately invaded a good deal of the down-town section at a busy hour on Saturday and they made known in no uncertain way their team had won. The players too seemed to feel about the same and therein is the great difference between professional and amateur sport.

One has on accasion watched the professional, and although he was a skilled and a finished performer in whatever field he had entered there was that feeling and demeanor that it was all in the day's work. If he won he did not throw a hockey stick or a baseball bat in the air nor did he cheer. That feeling of exuberant combustion seemed to have gone out of him. It is not so with the amateur. It was not so with the Peterborough Collegians. There is something contagious and priceless about the manner in which youth celebrates.

They Stay On The Road

There was a transient in the office today and he was of the talkative sort. He had just come from North Bay, and before that he had been in a good many of the mining centres to the north. He had come on a freight from North Bay to Orillia and had then turned over to the line which brought him through Lindsay and across to Peterborough. There were seven riding the freight when it left North Bay.

We asked this transient if there were more men on the road now than this time last year, and his answer was: "I can't see much difference. Now and then you miss one of the old fellows but there is generally a few younger ones coming to take the place of those who fall out." This tourist was at least honest because he admitted he had not made much of an effort to find work. He is 54 years old, but apparently is strong and has plenty of outdoor color on him. When asked how long he had been roaming about he answered: "A little more than five years and two months. In that time I have been at the Pacific coast twice, and this is the eighteenth time I have been in Peterborough." He was keen on statistics.

In some centres there has been a slight falling off of transients. In Peterborough in November of 1936 there were 150 who applied at the police station, while in November of this year the total was 127, a drop of but 23. In Aylmer, a town in Elgin county on No. 3 Highway, there were 81 transients staying a night in November of last year, but this year the figure had risen to 130. The youngest in Aylmer was 17 years and the oldest man reporting was 75. So far in Peterborough this year there has been about a one-third decrease and the falling off is credited to the difficulty now experienced in securing free meals. When that is shut down on in any community then the transients are apt to look elsewhere.

But will they quit tramping? Our transient informant did not believe they would. When asked if he knew many of those who were continually on the road he said he seldom went into a town or city without meeting some one he knew. He said too they generally exchanged information as to the best places to go and the people on whom to call. "Once you've been at it for a while the thing gets easier, and the longer you stay at it the harder it is to quit even if you get a chance." As though seeking to pose as a reformer in the ranks he added: "When I meet up with a young fellow starting out I always tell him to snap out of it and quit being a bum, but some of the young fellows on account of their youth find it easier to make a go of it than the older ones, and I guess that is why they keep at it. People seem to feel sorry for them."

We were also informed there were several towns where it was known a person applying for a night's lodging at the police station would be expected to saw or split wood before getting breakfast in the morning. Our visitor did not entirely believe in this nor did he approve of it. "We all know where those places are," he explained, "so we just keep away from them." He was quite certain though that those who had been on the road for a few years would not quit.

Defeating Mr. Aberhart

The candidate who was running under the standard of Premier Aberhart and Social Credit in the by-election in the Lethbridge riding was defeated, while that same riding had gone Social Credit at the time of the provincial contest. It is quite well known there is no more Social Credit in existence or operation in Alberta today than there was when Mr. Aberhart was elected in 1935. In that direction he has made no progress whatever.

The result of the election in Lethbridge may be gratifying enough to those who are opposed to Social Credit or to any change in our system of doing business, and there will be those who say the result in Lethbridge is a sure indication that the charm has cracked and Mr. Aberhart is on the way out.

Before being too sure of that it is well to look carefully at the manner of the defeat of the Social Credit candidate in that by-election. We find the successful candidate was backed by Liberals, Conservatives, United Farmers and a new party called the People's League. The old-line political parties had to bury their differences and the United Farmers joined with them. That is, it was necessary to hook up all the voting force there was into one unit and concentrate on one candidate in order to defeat the Aberhart nominee.

Whether it would be possible to bring about a similar united front in all ridings against Premier Aberhart is something on which there is no definite information. It is one thing to bring all political parties into line for one purpose in one riding, but a much different and more difficult matter to extend such a fusion to cover the province. With all the failures which have been chalked up against Premier Aberhart and his government the spell which he was able to cast over the people of his province in 1935 does not appear to have been entirely broken. He is still a power in the land to be reckoned with when it comes to voting day.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It takes a good deal of faith on Christmas eve to hang up a stocking in front of one of those electric grate fireplaces.

One of the best things we can think of to say about the special session of the Ontario Legislature is that it is already over.

According to a Paris designer the latest styles in dress are very skimpy and we assume she is referring to the material and not to the prices.

There is a liquor price-cutting battle in New York and thirsty consumers are undoubtedly hoping that it may be a long war with no armistice.

Italy is setting up a big army in Libya and the trouble with that arrangement is that now Mussolini will probably be looking for an opportunity to use it.

Cleveland has telephones that chime, instead of jangling. That makes things a little more pleasant when you happen to be called by mistake.

Voting in Russia seems to be a comparatively simple matter. All the elector who cares anything about his own safety has to do is to vote for the Soviet candidates.

Manitoba students have protested to Premier Duplessis against the enforcement of the padlock law. It is, however, the students with votes in Quebec that the premier is concerned about.

General Hermann Goering, Nazi chieftain, solicited funds for charity on the streets of Berlin the other day. We imagine most of the population proved to be Yes men.

Canton, China, has ordered three American fire engines. Evidently the folk of that city are going to put out fires even if they can't put out the Japanese.

British Columbia is looking to the Ottawa government for aid in looking after transients. And the Ottawa government is busily engaged in looking the other way.

BOASTING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I used to tell the boys some time, when I was young and in my prime, of tricks I used to do; when I lived on Concession Ten, I used to jump a broomstick then, and that indeed was true.

¶ I never had a bit of dread, when I would stand upon my head, it was an easy thing; I'd whistle on my fingers too, and make a noise like what birds do, when they come back in spring.

¶ And now they ask me if I'll come, and have with them a bit of fun, and romp about the floor; if I will get the broomstick out, and show them just what 'twas all about, and jump the thing once more.

¶ And foolish like I try the thing, and find I've lost most all my spring, for I can't jump at all; I take the thing the way I did, but then I sort of slip and skid, and sprawl upon the floor.

¶ Nor can I whistle like I did, when I was but a country kid, it fills me up with grief; my whistle doesn't seem to blow, the cause of that of course I know, I've lost a dozen teeth.

¶ And then I feel like some old rake, because my bones and joints all ache, I almost need a crutch; 'tis then the truth comes home to me, it's easy for me then to see—I've boasted far too much.

LORD HALIFAX who was chosen as Britain's envoy to visit Hitler is known as the peace maker of the cabinet as he has been the peacemaker of India. He is known to hate strife and dissension and his main policy in life has been to create a peace atmosphere wherever he has been able to do so.

A system of handicapping for the selection of children for secondary education has recently been put into force in the West Riding of Yorkshire England. The idea is to make an allowance for marks in accordance with age and good results are claimed for the system. Under this plan 1.3 per cent. of marks over and above what are actually earned are given to a child for every month by which he is below the maximum age for the group. There are certain slight adjustments but a boy of ten years of age would get 14.3 per cent. more marks than if he were ten years, eleven months.

Owns a Lot of Land.

THE EARL OF Harewood whose rent office at Loughres, County Galway, Ireland was recently wrecked by an infernal machine owns about 29,000 acres of land in various parts of the country.

The property which all the trouble is about was left to him by his wealthy uncle, the last Marquis of Clanricarde and has a long and troubled history behind it. Lord Clanricarde fought compulsory purchase right up to the House of Lords and the quarrel did not end until a greater part of the estate was purchased in 1915 under the powers of the Congested Districts Board.

The Air Raid Precautions department of the British government has been experimenting, according to Mr. Hore-Belisha, on new types of fire engines, the object being greater mobility. The idea is to have the machines patrol the streets and be able to visit a principal centre of population every ten or fifteen minutes. It is proposed that the government should provide these emergency machines and supply them to local authorities in all cases where necessary. They would be manned by the local authorities and for that purpose a certain nucleus of whole-time personnel would be required with a large body of auxiliary helpers.

Poison Chalk.

THE GREATEST poison hunt ever known in the district took place recently in the Red Bank district of Manchester England, when it was discovered that about three pounds of sodium cyanide tablets, used for fumigating purposes had been removed from a motor-car which was standing in the slum quarter of the city.

The grave anxiety at the disappearance of the tablets was heightened by the fact that they had the appearance of peppermint creams. Warnings of the danger were flashed on the screens of picture-houses where films in progress were stopped for the purpose. A radio warning was sent out by the B. B. C. and scores of uniformed and plain-clothes policemen were engaged in a systematic search for the missing tablets.

Crowds of people joined in the hunt and all children in the danger area were brought indoors. One by one the tablets were recovered and they were taken to a policebox which was turned into a temporary clearing station.

"It is the greatest good fortune that there was no rainfall" an official of the city health department declared. "If rain had fallen it is almost certain that a large number of persons would have been asphyxiated, since sodium cyanide immediately becomes effective under the action of water. The deadly fumes given off would have permeated into houses and overcome the inhabitants before they realised what was happening."

Girl Not Afraid of Burglar; But Real Mad

Chased Him Down the Street and Searched for Him; On Finding the Second Her Feelings Were Different

WHILE PROVINCIAL police were combing the district for the burglars who terrorized Huron County in a series of five raids Saturday night and early Sunday morning, Exeter, Ont., was praising Miss Jean Sheere, plucky 22-year-old stenographer, who routed two of the burglars from her home.

"I wasn't afraid. I was just mad, when I saw a man in the house, and when he ran out, I chased him down the street but he disappeared in the bushes," the pretty dark-haired girl said.

But it was a different story with the second encounter. In the act of preparing supper for her father and herself, after her first conflict with the intruder, the 118-pound stenographer heard noises in an upstairs room, but at first believed it was a window rattling. When the noises persisted Miss Sheere went to investigate.

"When I got upstairs I saw that the blind was down in my bedroom, but to turn on the light I had to go half way across the room. Just as I was about to turn the switch, I felt somebody. I screamed. I guess it was a loud scream, because I scared myself. The fellow was scared too, and raised something in his hand as if he was going to hit me. I think it was a flashlight. I shouted, 'Don't you dare do that,' and he ran from the room."

In attempting to get to the lower floor the intruder slipped on a mat on the polished floors and slid along the hallway. Regaining his feet, he fled to the lower landing and then leaped, landing on a second rug which also sent him sprawling to the floor.

By this time Miss Sheere was almost upon him, but leaping to his feet the burglar opened the front door and ran out to the street, taking the same route as his partner. Undaunted by the possibility that she might come into contact with both men if she ventured too far, Miss Sheere poked around the bushes on adjacent property in her attempt to capture them.

Meanwhile, Bryan Rowcliffe, 56-year-old farmer, residing just outside of Clinton, accidentally walked into one of them in the act of ransacking his home.

But he says "I wouldn't do it again."

In fact, he said, "I believe I would have gone the other way for help if I had known there was a burglar in the house."

Rowcliffe battled for more than five minutes with one of the burglars in the darkened living-room of his farm house. Clutching at each other's throats, they struggled out the front door and on the verandah where, losing his hold, the intruder made his escape into a waiting car left in the laneway, while his confederates were seen racing across the fields towards the provincial highway, where the car was slowed up while they leaped in. It then sped off in a northerly direction.

"If I had known it was a burglar that was in the house, he wouldn't have got off the farm alive," the stocky farmer said.

"I was just going over to visit G. Hanley, a neighbor, when I saw a car pull into my driveway. I thought it was my daughter returning home from London. So I walked back and right into the house, where somebody flashed a light in my face."

The burglar whom he described as a well-built youth, about 23 years old, said he was looking for a party when first disturbed.

"You are looking for no one here," Rowcliffe says he told the youth, and then they began to fight as the aged farmer attempted to hold the intruder, who was edging for the open door.

Speed of Birds Is Not So Very Great

Some of Them Do Not Make Twenty Miles An Hour; Most of Them Show Little Exertion When in Motion

(From the Milwaukee Journal)

"O THAT I HAD the wings of a dove!" sighed the psalmist a few thousand years before man was able to make reservations in a passenger plane. "Swift as a swallow" was considered the ultimate in flying speed in the old days.

It is disheartening to those of us who cherish traditional beliefs, even when those beliefs are wrong, to read the ruthless expose of the slowness of birds given by S. F. Aaron in the Scientific American.

Mr. Aaron has appointed himself traffic cop for our feathered friends, scientifically clocking their flight over a given course. He reports that few, if any, birds violate the speed limit. "It is high time," says Mr. Aaron severely, "to correct some of the traditional assertions. Nothing offers a wider chance for miscalculation, and many oft-quoted statements by writers of scientific acumen indulge the very common and eagerly received notions that are exaggerated. Audubon by no means always accurate, yielded to the same tendency."

Determined that no bird should put anything over on him, Mr. Aaron established a test-flight course on the bluff bordering Corpus Christi Bay, some five or six miles below the City of Corpus Christi, on the southern Texas coast.

The first flyer was an egret. Speed, "a little less than twenty miles an hour." A freight train would be ashamed if it couldn't do better.

Another egret, a young one. Same speed.

A black skimmer. He evaded the test (wise bird.) approaching the course at an angle and making a wide turn.

Four blue-winged teals, probably mated, in a big hurry, but making only thirty-one and a half miles an hour, "by no means phenomenal."

Mr. Aaron admits that all these birds probably could have done better if they had exerted themselves. He says:

"All birds commonly fly with the least possible effort, and when necessary they can and do improve their speeds. But I think the birds which we observed indicated that they were at least in somewhat of a hurry.

"The speeds of waterfowl have been tested by airplanes. One statement makes the heavy, comparatively slow canvasback duck fly faster than the pintail, which is generally considered swift; it also gives the canvasback a speed 25 per cent. faster than the mallards, which is altogether absurd.

"Automobiles, the speedometers of which are quite accurate, meet the need of even more convincing tests if, by rather rare chance, while touring country highways, birds will fly parallel with the road, even for short distances.

"On a road at over forty miles an hour we kept right along with a lone duck, probably a black duck, flying overhead."

To the Editor

NO DISCUSSION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I attended the George St. Open Forum on Sunday afternoon. I would like to use the privilege of British free speech through the columns of your paper.

I must state it was one of the most un-democratic meetings I was ever at. Open Forum—the name seems to imply freedom of speech, but there was no question or discussion allowed at the end of the lecture. I wonder if the people in charge of these meetings could trust democracy far enough to allow questions and discussion at the end of the lectures.

Col. Drew, the speaker on Sunday is a fine physical type of Canadian manhood. Unfortunately he marred his physical abilities by giving a lecture, that was not based on facts and contained very little truth.

Just to mention one mistatement. Col. Drew said the government in power in Germany, before Hitler came to power, was a communist government. This statement is false and misleading. If the mass of our citizens would go up to our public library and get books on Germany and read them, they would find out that Germany never, at any time, had a communist government. Germany had a social-democratic government and was a republic before Hitler was put in power by Von Hindenburg. Of course this is the British source of information. Where Col. Drew gets his information—well it is not from a British source.

Col. Drew's lecture sounded very good, but if we would stop to think afterward, we would see what Col. Drew was driving at.

Hitler mis-led the people of Germany. Drew may mis-lead the people of Ontario.

I am not defending Communism. I am trying to defend the British principle of free speech, of British democracy, of our freedom. The padlock law of Premier Duplessis in Quebec is a beginning of the attack on British principles. Col. Drew paves the way in Ontario, by his mis-statements.

A personal attack by Col. Drew on another Canadian, Mr. Buck, from the platform of a United Church is NOT the way to build a united British Empire.

It is my humble opinion that British fair play be shown to Mr. Buck, and he be invited, to speak at one of these meetings in George St. United Church. We heard one side from Col. Drew. Let us hear what Mr. Buck has to say. Then I believe we surely have the ability to come to our own conclusions, and be mis-lead by no one.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

HAPPY IS HE that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God; which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever . . . The Lord shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the Lord. . . .

Praise ye him, sun and moon: praise him, all ye stars of light. Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens. Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created. He hath also stablished them for ever and ever: he hath made a decree which shall not pass. . . . Kings of the earth, and all people; princes, and all judges of the earth: both young men, and maidens; old men, and children: let them praise the name of the Lord: for his name alone is excellent, his glory is above the earth and heaven...

Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: let the children of Zion be joyful in their King. . . .

Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord.—Ps. cxlvi: 5, 6, 10; cxlviii: 3-6, 11-13; cxlix: 2; cl: 6.

WAR BEAUTIFUL!

(Chicago Daily News)

WAR, it would now appear, is not the destroyer but rather the creator of rich colors and exquisite designs. As high priest of this new aesthetics, Vittorio Mussolini, cultivated son of Il Duce, has composed a book hymning the tranquil ecstasies of his Ethiopian adventure.

"War," he writes, "is the quintessence of beauty" and a cavalry column "gave me the impression of a budding rose as the bombs fell in the midst." No less fervently does the fascist senator Marinetti describe art forms which outvie the glory that was Spain—before the Italian airplanes demolished churches and palaces. "War is beautiful," exclaims the senator, "because it creates new architecture . . . the flying geometries of an airplane, the spiral smoke of burning villages . . . because it completes the beauty of a flowery meadow with the passionate orchids of machine-gun fire."

How lovelier, indeed, than sundown staining the quiet heavens is blood crimsoned upon the flesh of women who have been carved by shrapnel into arabesques of purest art! How beautiful, in truth, are the little feet torn from childish bodies by bombs dropped from airplanes! How beautiful is war: war and its brother, fascism.

The Canadian government has no fear that should Anticosti Island be sold to German interests it will become a new Heligoland, according to E. H. Coleman, under-secretary of state. The island, situated in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and owned by the Consolidated Paper Corporation, was rumored being sold to a European financial syndicate which planned the erection of a sulphite pulp mill. Government officials claim sale of the island would in no way affect the authority of the Canadian government which has jurisdiction over the island in matters of immigration, export and policing developments.

Upheaval In Japan Not Stop War

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (CP) — Sir William Hornell, retiring after 14 years as vice-chancellor of Hong Kong University, today said internal trouble would not force Japan to cease her Chinese invasion.

The best British brains in Tokyo "think that there will be no economic collapse or social upheaval in Japan, such as would compel her to cease hostilities," said Sir William, visiting here after his return to Canada.

He also expressed the belief Russia would not intervene at present because of her wish to complete economic schemes in the Soviet Union. However, Russia and Japan eventually would fight over Manchuria.

DROUGHT BRINGS FAMILY REUNION

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—Ending an eastward trek from the Saskatoon district of Saskatchewan, three grown brothers to-day rejoined their mother and three sisters in Belleville and saw their grandparents for the first time.

Born in Saskatchewan after their parents went there from Belleville 35 years ago, Ivan, Leonard and Orville May passed through Toronto with five horses, nine cows and some furniture to start farming again on a 200-acre farm at Consecon, 15 miles south-west of Belleville.

The three said here they thought weather conditions in Ontario pretty tame. They contrasted mild temperatures here with 35-below zero weather in Saskatoon that prevailed before they left. The Mays' father and two other brothers are still in Saskatchewan. They plan to come east next spring after disposing of their western farm. Their mother and sisters came here earlier this year.

Reduction Made In Penalties On Tax Arrears By Council

Tax Prepayment Plan Found To Have Provided Too Much Money

The finance committee's new plan of reducing penalties on arrears of 1936 taxes was approved by the council Monday night. Sale of prepayment tax certificates which was in effect this year is discontinued, and as a substitute for encouraging prompt payment of taxes the following schedule of penalties for next year was adopted.

Penalty of three per cent. to be levied if first instalment is not paid on its due date in July; two per cent. if the second instalment is not paid on its due date in September; and one per cent. if the third instalment is not paid on its due date in November.

However, if payment is not made on the due date of any instalment, but within the calendar month in which it is due, the penalty will be one per cent. only.

This applies more economically to the ratepayer on the two first instalments on which the penalties respectfully are three and two per cent. If payments are made by the ratepayers any time during July and September the penalty shall be only one per cent.

Tax Prepayment Plan

In considering the results obtained from the inauguration of the system of tax prepayments early in the present year, it was found that the total cash receipts from this service were $190,701.20. Of this amount $78,300 was appropriated to pay off the bank loan, leaving a credit balance of $79,446.58 at the end of January, 1937, on the greater portion of which no interest was allowed as interest is credited only on the minimum balance during any month.

The discount allowed to purchasers of prepayment certificates was $4,-898, and the total bank credits for interest during the entire year was $251.68.

This, in the opinion of your committee, is conclusive proof that it is not sound financing to offer discounts for prepayment of taxes when the amount prepaid is going to exceed to such an extent the amount necessary to pay off the bank loans, as it provides funds for which there is no immediate use and at considerable cost.

The Discount Plan

In considering this question it was demonstrated that the only period of the year during which such prepayments would result in a reduction of bank interest were the months of July and August, since after the second instalment is received in September the bank loans are reduced to such an extent that the interest charges are so greatly diminished no appreciable saving can be made in this item.

On the other hand, if a discount of say 1 per cent. only were offered on the second instalment if paid with the first, this discount would amount to approximately $2,700. This would be greatly in excess of any bank interest that would be charged in two months period aforesaid.

Similarly any discount offered on the third instalment would be a direct loss since there is no bank interest after the third instalment is paid as the bank loan is retired in full at this time.

These two students, who, it is understood, are equally proficient in their academic work, are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson, Booth street.

Another brother Angus, who is now in his fourth year in medicine at Queen's, was also a winner of the intermediate boys' cup while he attended the High School here.

HAVELOCK SELLS ITS TIMBER LOT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, December 7. — The Havelock Wood Lot, located in Dummer Township, which has been operated for the past few years by the Village Council in the interests of the unemployed, has been purchased by Richard Sanderson of town for the sum of $140.

The Reeve and Council found that it was impossible to operate the camp this year without deficit, due to the fact that the Government has ceased to share the cost of labor. They have, however, an understanding with Mr. Sanderson whereby the local unemployed will be hired first to cut wood at the lot this winter.

This being the last winter in which the village had to remove the remainder of the timber, they were very fortunate to find a buyer. Mr. Sanderson already has men engaged at the camp, and it is expected the balance of the wood will be removed within a few months.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in finishing the hat stands which the girls had started at a previous meeting. It was arranged that the club should meet again on December 29th at the home of Miss Vera Clark. The roll call is to be "One essential of an efficient clothes' closet." Apples and candy were served and the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

VICTORY PARADE ANGERS BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Eden Monday told the House of Commons that Great Britain warned Japan that last Friday's "victory march" through Shanghai's international settlement was "provocative and uncalled for."

He said the British Ambassador in Tokyo, Sir Robert Craigie, also had been instructed to make clear British opinion that Japan "would have to take responsibility for the trouble which subsequently occurred."

(A Chinese student threw a hand grenade at 6,000 Japanese soldiers marching through the international settlement in Shanghai Friday. Three Japanese soldiers, a Japanese policeman and a British police inspector were wounded).

The Foreign Secretary explained both the British and United States commanders at Shanghai had informed the Japanese beforehand that the parade was contrary to their wishes and that they could not take responsibility for any incidents.

Answering a question on the general Oriental situation, Mr. Eden declared he could not accept the suggestion that British Far Eastern possessions like Hong-Kong "are in imminent danger."

CLAIM MORE DUTY ON FINISHED CARS GIVE 10,000 WORK

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—(CP)—An increase in the tariff on finished automobiles would result in reduction of relief rolls of between 40,000 and 60,000 men, Harry J. Carmichael, general manager of General Motors of Canada Limited told the board of trade here last night.

He said 20,000 United States cars and trucks would be imported into Canada in 1937, from present indications. Had they been made in this country it would have meant employment for at least 10,000 workers with the additional number of dependents removed from relief lists.

"As a result of the present low tariff, one company discontinued operation last year, a second company with considerably larger production has practically ceased to operate in Canada and a third will cease to manufacture here within the next few months," Mr. Carmichael said in advocating higher automobile tariffs. These removals would leave three major car manufacturing companies in Canada.

"A Foolish Accusation"

The motor executive said it was a fallacy to accuse the automobile industry "of hiding behind tariff walls." General Motors would have been richer by millions had there been no Canadian production for the past 10 years and had the entire production of motor cars for Canada been imported from their United States plants.

"There was no occasion for opening the Regina plant," he said. "We have all the production facilities we need. But, we felt that the Canadian west, particularly Saskatchewan needed the help of the east as it never did before. We got permission from our officials to spend several thousands of dollars there."

Mr. Carmichael said the company contemplated "an expansion program in the future because this fine country of ours hasn't begun to hit its stride."

"I run a service station—get a decent living income and have a wife and two kids. The kind of life insurance that will support my family always seemed beyond my reach. But this Life Preferred Policy guarantees them $50 a month for 10 years if anything should happen to me. And if I live to age 65—and I sure hope I do—I'll get a regular income for the rest of my life. And besides that, I get dividends annually, for this is a profit-sharing plan."

AGED SULPHIDE HUNTER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

W. Lucas, 75, Missing Since Last Thursday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 7.—Found covered with snow and lying in a field north of the village of Sulphine, William Lucas, 75-year-old resident of the village, was discovered shot to death near his home by Everett Douglas, a neighbour, shortly before 2.00 p.m. Monday afternoon. Mr. Lucas left last Thursday afternoon on a hunting trip, did not return home, but no posse was organized until Monday, as it was thought he was visiting relatives within the neighborhood.

When discovered, Mr. Lucas was lying face downward, his body being partially covered with the fresh falling snow. A portion of the top of his head was completely blown off and it is believed that death was instantaneous. It is believed that Mr. Lucas, while crossing a small creek, fell, and apparently discharged the rifle accidentally, resulting in his death. The rifle had been discharged and was found lying near the victim by Mr. Douglas.

The late Mr. Lucas was residing with his daughter, Mrs. Caul of Sulphide, but quite frequently visited his son, George Lucas who resides in the Township of Hungerford. No anxiety was felt for the victim, when he failed to appear on Thursday evening, as it was believed that Lucas had gone to visit his son. On learning that Lucas had not visited his son, a search party was organized early Monday and the body subsequently found.

Dr. M. B. Dales, Tweed, coroner, took charge of the body, while Provincial Constable E. Smith of Belleville was dispatched to investigate the accident.

Bad Cold Developed Into Bronchitis

Many people have bronchitis and don't know it. Don't even know the danger of neglecting it.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a neglected cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

Those troubled with bronchitis will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy that will help stimulate the bronchial tubes, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts and loosen the phlegm.

Mrs. R. P. MacDonald, Nappan, N.S., writes:—"Last winter I had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis. I tried different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good.

A friend told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, as she had used it for her children with great success. I purchased a bottle and before it was used I got great relief; the phlegm was brought up easily without any hard coughing, and after using three bottles I was completely relieved of the bronchitis."

Though their matrimonial venture together will be severed, their bridge playing partnership will continue as in the past. Reason for the "break up", according to the couple, centres about Culbertson's temperamental moods which made living together impossible.

NEW ASSOCIATION HAS FIRST DRAW

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 7.—A very large crowd was in the village on Saturday evening, and gathered in front of the Town Hall square at ten o'clock for the initial draw in the weekly contest which the recently formed Business Men's Association is sponsoring until Christmas.

Four Of Five Aldermen Elected In January To Not End Term

will be necessary. And the new council will have to appoint for one year an alderman to take the place of M. R. Sloan.

"This will not offend some, I know," Alderman Gordon remarked as he tendered his resignation last night, but he was reminded that if he followed that course the appointment of his successor would have to be made by the council.

"That is why I am not handing in my resignation tonight," Alderman McIntyre explained, and for the moment the council of 1937 seemed to be falling apart.

Alderman Gordon withdrew his resignation, saying he would place it in the hands of the city clerk today.

When Max Sloan resigned his departure from the aldermanic fold took place at a meeting of the council, and although the seat was offered for the rest of the year to several citizens, among them former Alderman Fred T. Tuggey and Martin Roche, candidate for the 1937 council, none of them would accept it.

Mayor Grateful

"As this is the last meeting," said Mayor Macdonald prior to adjournment, "I wish to thank all the members for their co-operation, and I am sure next year's council will carry on in the same way."

Mayor Macdonald's concluding gesture happened quickly and characteristically. He dodged a compliment as it was being fashioned.

"I'd like to congratulate the Mayor on the way he has conducted things," Alderman Glover said, and Alderman Dutton also on his feet "So would I", but before anything more could be said, His Worship interjected: "We have Alderman Stocker's motion to adjourn," and the mayor immediately announced the adjournment.

Probably Alderman Stocker had moved the adjournment earlier. It is one of his prerogatives, anyway, and Mayor Macdonald could invoke that custom in full assurance that it would not be protested.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same standard of mechanical excellence—on the same 112-inch wheelbase.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same fundamental Ford advantages. For them, we have designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments. De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower Ford V-8 engine. They provide an added measure of motoring satisfaction at low Ford prices.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It is a brilliant, modern car. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors. It gives you the same basic advantages of the 85-horsepower Ford V-8 engine.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an 8-cylinder car with all-round economy. The low prices of the De Luxe and Standard cars make it easy for you to step into the V-8 class.

FIT YOUR CAR TO YOUR NEEDS

With two distinct designs, two body sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your personal needs exactly. Whatever one you choose, you get time-proved Ford V-8 performance. Whatever price you pay, you get a car built soundly to serve you well. . . . That's the Ford way.

Belleville Endorses Daylight-Saving

BELLEVILLE—Belleville voters, by a vote of 2,679 to 1,422, decided on Monday that Belleville would go on daylight-saving time during the summers of 1938 and 1939. Advanced time will prevail from the last Saturday in May until midnight Labor Day during the two-year trial period.

Organized Labor Failed At Cornwall

CORNWALL — Organized labor, claiming more than 5,000 affiliated members here failed in its initial bid for municipal power in Cornwall and Cornwall Township in the elections yesterday. Of 11 candidates endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council none was successful in the voting.

Vote On Daylight Saving Is Ordered By City Council Present Policy Criticized

City Solicitor Corkery Tenders His Resignation

A by-law providing for daylight saving next year from June 4 to September 5 will be submitted to the people at the municipal elections on New Year's Day.

A letter from Maurice H. Ketcheson precipitated the council's decision to test public sentiment on "this vexed question" as Alderman Dutton described it.

"If it is not voted on I believe action will be taken to prevent daylight saving going into effect next year," Mr. Ketcheson wrote. He said he probably called at more homes in Peterborough than any other citizen did, and he had learned that some people did not vote at the municipal elections because the wishes of the people regarding daylight saving as expressed by their ballots had been overridden by the council. With many citizens this question had broadened out into the more general issue "are the people's rights to be upheld."

"There is something in what Mr. Ketcheson says," Alderman Glover remarked, "and I think public opinion should be considered." He moved, seconded by Alderman Juby, that a vote be taken at the polls on daylight saving, and City Solicitor Corkery had to draft a by-law for that purpose at once, retiring to the clerk's office with E. A. Outram, assistant city clerk.

Members of the council expressed themselves personally in favor of daylight saving, but they agreed the people should be given the opportunity of declaring their attitude. Alderman Dutton said the larger cities could take a vote to apply over five or ten year periods, as for example Montreal.

Alderman Gordon explained that Montreal had a different charter, and that Peterborough came within the scope of the Ontario Municipal Act.

Solicitor Resigns.

The resignation of John R. Corkery, City Solicitor, to take effect on December 31 was accepted by a standing vote on Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman McIntyre. Ald. Gordon said the council regretted Mr. Corkery's action. He had carried out his duties in an eminently satisfactory manner, and had the confidence of every member. "We wish to give expression of our goodwill and hope that Mr. Corkery will enjoy prosperity and good health."

"I have always tried to do my share in carrying out the interests of the city, Mr. Corkery said in acknowledging the council's tribute. "I have found out that I cannot carry on my own practice and the city's business. There are simply not enough hours in the day. I thank you for your kind words, and each member individually for the co-operation you have given me for years in the city's service."

Alderman Stocker said he wished to express his regret at Mr. Corkery's retirement. "I was in the council when he was appointed. I voted for him, and I was a marked man for voting that way, but I have never regretted it."

Resolution Defeated.

The following motion by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Ald. Wilson, was defeated:

"That under the provisions of the Municipal Act, R.S.O., 1927, chapter 233, section 267, the Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough hereby passes a resolution requesting the Judge of the County of Peterborough, to investigate and inquire into or concerning the matter connected with the good government of the City of Peterborough respecting the lease of the power house and plant to the Canadian General Electric Company for a period of twenty years authorized under by-law Number 2891 and also to inquire into the circumstances and conduct of all members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission and of the Peterborough City Council and officers of the Canadian General Electric Company, their servants and agents in connection with the granting of the lease authorized by by-law Number 2891 of the City of Peterborough, passed on the 17th day of February, 1930."

Ayes—Aldermen Wilson and Gordon.

Nays—Aldermen Cotton, Stocker, Hamilton, Glover, Dutton, Juby and McIntyre, and Mayor Macdonald.

Ald. Gordon said the power dam lease was not voted on by the people, and was granted at a special meeting. It was worth about $20,000 a year for twenty years, averaging 700 horse-power and frequently exceeding 1,000 h.p., "nearly sufficient to light our streets."

Solicitor Instructed.

Stating that Ald. Gordon had objected to the city being represented before the Court of Revision when Alderman Gordon's questioning of the fixed assessments to the Raybestos and De Laval Companies were considered, City Solicitor Corkery asked for definite instructions for next Monday, when Ald. Gordon's appeal will be heard by Judge Smoke.

"I took the stand," said Mr. Corkery, "that inasmuch as the validity of our by-laws was being attacked, it was my duty to present argument for them. I think I should have the opinion of the council as to the stand I should take before Judge Smoke."

Alderman Dutton posed the question whether the people wanted the news to go abroad that Peterborough does not stand by its agreements. The agreements were honorably made with two companies, and in the present appeal to the Judge the honor of the city was at stake.

Alderman Glover moved, seconded by Alderman Stocker, that in the appeal before Judge Smoke, Mr. Corkery should be present to defend the validity of the De Laval and Raybestos Company assessment by-laws.

"If any other issues are raised we are on the side lines," Mr. Corkery said.

Alderman McIntyre was the only member who opposed the motion. Alderman Gordon was not present at that stage towards the close of the meeting.

GARDENERS ASK COUNCIL TO ERECT MARKET STALLS

Erection of stalls on the outside market was proposed to the council Monday night by a deputation of market gardeners including Norman Moncrief, Bruce Johnston, Melville H. Johnston, Sydney Fairbairn, and James Brown, market clerk. The idea was left to the council of 1938 for consideration.

Mr. Fairbairn said a covered market had been talked of for years, but stalls that would cost about $30 each would be a satisfactory substitute. He suggested they might be eight feet wide with a front that could be easily dropped to form a counter. Rented at twenty-five cents a week they would pay for themselves in two years.

"I have been coming to this market for more than 30 years," Mr. Fairbairn said, "and some of the farmers and gardeners have been coming even longer than that. We have to put up with all kinds of weather, and conditions that are not fit for sellers and buyers. We leave our money in Peterborough and the people get to know us. We could have our names on the stalls so the people would know who they were dealing with."

Bruce Johnston said he had advocated the city and county jointly going into the market question. "We should pay our share, I think, and the city and county should get together and put up a real market."

Aldermen McIntyre and Dutton spoke of the Hamilton market they had recently visited. The revenue from that market is $30,000 a year.

Deter Motorization

The Property Committee's report on proposed motorization of garbage collection was referred to the 1938 council on Ald. Glover's motion, seconded by Ald. Stocker.

"I'd be sorry if next year's council did not avail themselves of the information that has been prepared for them," Mayor Macdonald remarked.

"It is an excellent report," Ald. Hamilton said, "but we can't buy equipment this year, and the logical thing to do is to leave it to the new council.

Pin Game Enquiry

At Ald. Gordon's suggestion Mayor Macdonald said he would enquire about the city's pin game bylaw.

"A recent decision in a Kingston case," said Ald. Gordon "declares those kind of games to be unlawful. They are contrary to the criminal code, and from my information it would seem to be the duty of the Police Commission to deal with the matter in the light of decision."

"We can't legalize slot machines for gambling," Ald. Dutton said, "but I thought we safeguarded ourselves in passing our bylaw."

Ald. Gordon stated that the City Trust had bought a linoleum for the De Luxe restaurant at a cost of $299, although the lowest tender was $365. "The Trust Commission is going beyond its powers, and the chairman of the Finance Committee should enquire about this deal."

SOW LOTS OF GRAIN BUT NEVER A CROP

"We came west to Saskatchewan in 1931 and so far in the whole six years we haven't had a crop yet," reads a letter from Mrs. Donald Hall, a resident of Welwyn, Saskatchewan, one of the many who have expressed their personal thanks to residents of the Peterborough region for the recent relief contributions. "We sow lots of grain and garden seed every year but we never seem to get enough moisture to make them grow. We have never grown carrots or turnips like those which came in that carload but here's hoping next year brings more moisture and better crops to the west."

Miss Annie Johnston was the recipient of the letter.

Having written her name on a can of corn, little Betty Dorsett, 495 King street, recently received a letter of thanks from its western recipient, a little girl in a family of eight. The young westerner has asked Betty to exchange pictures and correspondence with her so friendship may ripen from the unusual contact.

Three Aldermen Resigning From City Council

ALD. JAMES HAMILTON

ALD. MALCOLM McINTYRE

ALD. G. N. GORDON

The three above aldermen were elected last New Year's Day, but they will not complete their second term, and each for a different reason. Alderman Hamilton is expected to contest the mayoralty, Alderman McIntyre is resigning on account of pressure of business, and Alderman Gordon will seek re-election for another second term as vindication of his policy of criticizing the administration of the City Trust Commission.

GORDON HANCOCK HEADS SEED FAIR

Gordon Hancock of Smith township was elected president of the Quinte District Seed Fair at the annual meeting of the Fair organization in Belleville Monday. First man from Peterborough County to head the Fair since it was organized 11 years ago, Mr. Hancock succeeds J. A. Alexander of Prince Edward County to the post.

Mr. Hancock's elevation from the vice-presidency is regarded as appropriate in view of the fact the fair is to be held in Peterborough this Spring. March 22, 23 and 24 were chosen as the dates yesterday, the fair being retarded a week in the hope that heavy snow will be avoided.

Other officers named were: Bruce Cummings, Napanee, vice-president; Garnet Rickard, Bowmanville, 2nd vice-president; A. D. Runions, Peterborough, secretary; Joe Wilson, Stirling, treasurer; and G. W. Michael, Belleville, fair manager.

Directors from various counties were named. Those from Peterborough are: Alex Huston, Otonabee; Ralph Drummond, Otonabee; Howard Quinn, Douro; W. G. Waterman, North Monaghan; W. W. Dawson, Otonabee; and C. E. Moore, Smith.

Mr. Hancock is a director of the Ontario Seed Board and well known in this county as a grower of registered seed.

LIONS' CLUB HEARS WM. McMULLEN

In existence to-day are pipe organs which can reproduce successfully the effects of any known musical instrument, William McMullen of the Canadian General Electric staff told Lions' Club members at their regular meeting Monday night. No imitation from the drums to the complete brass band is beyond the great modern instruments, he said.

Mr. McMullen told the ancient and romantic history of the development of the organ and dealt with its engineering aspects. The recent invention of the small electric organ has been revolutionary in character as the great pipe organ is in turn imitated by a complete range of sound produced by electrical vibration, the speaker explained.

The club heard a report on the Halliburton lecture effort, a small surplus being recorded. It was decided to stage a New Year's eve dance in Hotel Champlain. A contribution of $5 from the Peterborough Business Men's Association to the Boys' Band was accepted. Members also agreed to play host to the members of the Boys' Band at a Christmas dinner this month.

BALL PRESENTED TO DR. KENNER

Proud title holders of the Ontario Inter-Scholastic Rugby Championship, the P.C.I. team captained by Haig Kelly lined-up on the platform at assembly this morning to receive the well-merited plaudits of the teaching staff and student body.

Coach Harvard L. Bamforth, B.S. A., acknowledging the support the team had received throughout the season and particularly last Saturday when it was estimated 2,000 fans turned out to see the team beat Runnymede 11-3, declared, "I have never seen the school spirit so clearly demonstrated as it has been during the past few days, in my five years on the teaching staff here."

Accepting the football used in last Saturday's victorious game, which had been autographed by each member of the team, Principal Dr. H. R. H. Kenner promised it would be given an honored place among other school trophies.

He intimated that a big dance is to be held on Friday night "in recognition of the team's success." Dr. Kenner asserted the rugby team had brought great honor to the school and its members and had demonstrated a fine degree of sportsmanship. He paid tribute to Mr. Bamforth's fine work as coach of the team.

DR. CHAS. SINCLAIR IS COMING TO CITY

Dr. Charles Sinclair will be the speaker at the citizens' meeting on Thursday night in the Collegiate Auditorium when the Youth Training Program will be explained. Dr. Sinclair is the director of the program and the man who is largely responsible for its organization, and his address is being eagerly looked forward to by the citizens who would like to hear the program explained and the industrialists on whose shoulder a large measure of the success of the plan rests.

A musical program has also been arranged, and will be composed of selections from the Peterborough Symphonic Orchestra, a quartette from the Male Voice Choir, and a soloist.

TWEED COUNCIL VOTE VERY LIGHT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 7. — In very light polling due to inclement weather, the citizens of Tweed elected four Councillors for the year 1938. Previously, the Reeve and one member of the Utilities Commission had been put into office by acclamation.

Result of the polling for the position of Councillors is as follows:

G. H. Kerr 380 votes, Ed. Way 356, Tracy Quinn 310, Eli Myles 267, J. McGowan 263.

As a result of the voting the following will hold office:

Reeve—H. Sayers (acclamation).

Council — C. H. Kerr, Ed. Way, T. Quinn, and E. Myles.

Utilities Commission—E. J. Mayes, Joseph Rashotte.

Cobourg Hotelman E. Caughey Dies

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP).—Elgin Y. Caughey, 58, well-known Cobourg hotelkeeper and former resident of Picton, died in hospital here yesterday after an operation.

Only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Caughey, Picton, he went into the hotel business about 25 years ago, operating hotels in Stratford, Napanee and Oshawa before coming to Cobourg 12 years ago to take over the British Hotel.

He was a prominent Mason, being a member of St. John's Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Cobourg; St. John's Chapter, Palestine Preceptory, Port Hope, and Ramascses Shrine, Toronto. He was also a member of the Canadian Hotelmen's Association.

His widow, and one son, Lester, of Cobourg, survive. The body will be taken to Picton for burial.

ALDERMAN COTTON IS RE-APPOINTED NICHOLLS TRUST

Peterborough's fire loss in November was only $7 although the department responded to 37 alarms. Chief Gimblett reported to the council last night. The October loss from 40 alarms was $1260.49 of which $570.49 was damage to buildings.

Preliminary to his forthcoming resignation from the council, Alderman Hamilton retired from the chairmanship of the finance committee, and was succeeded for the rest of the year by Alderman Glover.

The city's relief bill for November totalled $6,772.98 as follows:—provisions $3628.81; milk $491; fuel $907.30; clothing $382.37; medicine $8.01; rent $996.14; doctors $364.36.

Hospital Trustee

Alderman R. S. Cotton was reappointed for four years a member of the Nicholls Hospital Trust on Alderman McIntyre's motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker.

Alderman Gordon objected that the appointment should be left to the incoming council. The position had been vacant since June, and it was not fair, he said, that the appointment should be made in "the dying days of 1937."

Colored Fountain

A request to the Utilities Commission to install a colored fountain in Victoria Park was adopted on Ald. Stocker's motion seconded by Ald. Wilson, but when Mayor Macdonald remarked that the cost would be taken out of the Commission's surplus which they turned over to the city, Alderman Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Dutton that the resolution be let stand until the council obtained some information as to how much it would cost.

Ald. Gordon said the fountain would be worth having in Victoria Park, which Ald. Glover said was "a pretty drab affair at present."

The tobacco license granted John Brownlee, George street news vendor, was renewed without a fee. The usual grants of $25 each for Christmas cheer were made to the Children's Aid Society and St. Vincent's Orphanage. Another grant of $50 was made to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion on Ald. Hamilton's motion, seconded by Ald. Glover; and the Canadian Mothercraft Society was given $25 because of the need of reducing the number of maternity deaths in this country.

For Air Port

A resolution by Ald. Dutton, seconded by Ald. Juby, endorsed the Dominion government's policy in promoting air travel, and also called attention to the importance of Peterborough as the chief distributing, commercial and industrial centre of Central Ontario and its key location as regards air travel between Ottawa and Toronto, and "specifically urges upon the government the need of establishing an airport in or near Peterborough."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Minister of Transport and to J. J. Duffus, M.P. and Rork Ferguson, M.P.

Senior Hockey Only For Ladies' Game

TORONTO, Dec. 7—(CP)—Delegates to the 15th annual meeting of the Ladies' Ontario Hockey Association decided here Saturday night only a senior series would be operated this season.

The decision came after much discussion on advisability of sponsoring an intermediate series, or a senior "A" or "B" section. The idea was that if such a grouping was inaugurated it might induce more teams to enter.

Teams from Markdale, Stayner, Hamilton, Preston, Stratford and Ottawa appear certain, while Owen Sound, Durham, Mount Forest and Gravenhurst signified they might enter eventually.

It was also decided to affiliate for one year with the Ontario branch of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada.

CURLING

Behind The Hog Lines
By HERB MARTIN

SOME OF the boys have been giving us the well known 'run-around' because we have not been doing anything with our curling notes. Well, we plead guilty to the charge. It's like this, we have been so busy following up the rugby mix-up that we have neglected our own sport, but now that the affair is cleared up, we are ready to go right ahead.

THE FIRST winter meeting was held last night (Monday) in the club rooms and about fifty of the 'hard-boiled' attended. Among other things the boys were asked to pray for a little colder weather and while we were not exactly at the meeting we could hear a little of what was going on inside. Some of the boys hit the constitution high, wide and then some but got nowhere. The subject of the touring Scotch players coming to Lindsay was brought up for discussion and some of the boys expressed the desire of travelling north to play with the tourists but that will be dealt with later. The draw for the schedule was discussed at great length and then the whole meeting was adjourned for two weeks.

WE UNDERSTAND that there are some left yet in the rinks and anyone would be well advised to get in touch with Secretary Harry Foote immediately, phone 200J ... Our sport, same as skating, hockey and curling for the want of cold weather, so let's all go into a huddle with the weatherman and see what can be done about it.

Noted Racer Returns To California As Best Four-Year-Old Since Exterminator

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7. — Year after year some horse gallops up from the ranks to prove that there really is a Santa Claus. With the Christmas holidays just around the corner, it is only fair to hand Seabiscuit, the accolade he so richly deserves. In two years, Seabiscuit has paid Charles S. Howard, San Francisco automobile man, a bonus of something like $200,000 on an original investment of $8,000.

This does not compare with the all-time parlay of $332,000, which Phar Lap, the Australian wonder horse handed David Davis on an $800 investment. Nevertheless, Seabiscuit is back at Tanforan, where he will be sent after the $10,000 San Francisco Handicap, after which race he will be shipped to Santa Anita to be prepared for the richest prize of them all, the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, in February. And he has years of stud duty ahead of him. It may be regarded as the veriest misfortune that Seabiscuit did not win the last running of the Santa Anita Handicap. He was beaten in a photo finish by Rosemont, and as later events demonstrated, that probably was the only day of his matured life that Rosemont could have turned that trick.

Hard Tack's Son Good.

Seabiscuit's story is an amazing one. His sire, Hard Tack, was an extremely fast, if unsound son of Man o' War. He was a high-class stakes winner, but his opportunity in the stud came only because most sons of the superhorse were given some chance there. But Hard Tack's chance wasn't much at that. The year Seabiscuit came to the races only three others of his blood represented their mutual sire. Seabiscuit and Grog were stakes winners, albeit they caused only a ripple on the pond.

The Wheatley Stable over which Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons presides, sold presumably down the river. The stable had tried running him to death—he was started 35 times as a juvenile—and probably figured that he would fold up in no time. Seabiscuit was built for hard work, however. In 1936, when he was 3, the colt won $29,000—more than $20,000 more than his purchase price, and went into winter quarters as a California phenomenon. This year he had grossed more than $175,000 in 14 starts. It is taking in a lot of territory, but Seabiscuit goes into the record books as the best 5-year-old since Exterminator, and possibly as the peer of Old Bones. And we are not forgetting Equipoise and Discovery.

None Packed Weight Farther.

Consider that after 10 starts during the season recently closed he was able to take up 130 pounds and set a new track record for a mile and an eighth in the Massachusetts Handicap. If that wasn't enough to establish his claim, note that he carried 130 pounds in the Riggs at a mile and three-sixteenths and clipped three-fifths of a second from the track. Also that while beaten a nose by Esposa in the Bowie Handicap at a mile and five-eighths, he carried 130 pounds, gave the splendid mare 15, and forced her to lower the track record by one and two-fifths seconds. There is no denying that Seabiscuit can carry high weights any distance and do it as fast as horses ever ran. He is honest and game. Little more can be asked of a thoroughbred.

Owner Howard is collecting a choice band of brood mares, and when Seabiscuit has finished his racing career, he will go into stud in California. This perhaps is not ideal, since Seabiscuit will be more than 2,000 miles from the finest outside brood mare. But Seabiscuit has thrived on the worst of it, and it is in the cards that, come each Christmas Day for some years, St. Nicholas will deliver other bonuses to Charles S. Howard.

Badminton

R. O. BENSON

Peterborough Club's intra-mural tournament got under way last Wednesday night, Jim Esson's team taking a fall out of Dr. R. Nott's squad, 8 maches to 6. The winners swept the mixed doubles 5 to 1, got an even break on the men's doubles, each side taking 1, and won 2 of the 6 ladies' matches. Turnout was just fair, absence of several of the team members necessitating quite a bit of doubling up. Players should make an effort to be on hand if their captain is counting on them. Here are the first night's winners: Ladies' doubles: Miss Lenore Lyle and Mrs. Jopling over Jean Howson and Louise Hall; Betsy Scott and Mrs. G. Falkner over E. Wood and M. DeGraw; Mrs. B. D. Hall and Mrs. Falkner over M. Cruthers and Mrs. Wood; Mrs. Howson and Mrs. Scott over Mesdames Honey and Esson; M. Russell and G. Coulter over Mrs. Stevenson and Clara Morris; Mesdames Stetvenson and Hall over Jean Ackerman and Mrs. Robinson. Men's doubles: Ireland and Nott over Esson and Bradburn; B. Hall and M. Comstock over Borbridge and Ireland. Mixed doubles: Miss Lyle and H. Bradburn over Miss Hall and Ireland; Mrs. Jopling and J. Esson over Miss Howson and Dr. Nott; Miss Wood and B. D. Hall over Mrs. Scott and Borbridge; Miss DeGraw and M. Comstock over Mrs. Falkner and Rev. Brain; Mrs. B. D. Hall and Ireland over Miss Cruthers and M. Scott; Mrs. Esson and E. Bird over Miss Morris and Ackerman. Final: Esson 8, Nott 6. To-morrow night it's Falkner and Dickison.

Armouries tourney last Wednesday was a real success outside of an unfortunate foot injury to Johnny Sparrow, one of their top badmintoneers. This strain or sprain may keep him on the sidelines for a while, but we believe it is not really serious. Before long this flashy performer should be stepping around on his toes in accustomed classy style.

Knox Club is getting all readied up for a mixed doubles club tournament on Thursday of this week. Members are expected to flock out, as this night's play will be used to select teams for outside tournaments. Each club should be able to arrange a meeting with at least one other group before Christmas.

Doug. Smith, head of the Lakefield badminton crowd, is anxious to get in touch with officials of the local clubs to arrange something of this sort. Nothing new regarding the league, although something should be done soon if it's to be given a try this year.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'uckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

JACK THOMAS, pro rassln' impressario of Toronto, dropped in to see us the other day. He has been running regular shows, every week or so, in such spots as Oshawa and Lindsay and would like to stage some here through the winter. In the old Opera House or some place similar. We told Thomas bluntly that the pro grapple game had fallen into disrepute around here the past couple of years with fly-by-night promoters staging indifferent shows, counter attractions, etc. "I know that," the ex-matman replied, "these cheap promoters have ruined wrestling in a lot of places. But I have a tie-up with the Queensbury A.C. and the Maple Leaf Gardens of Toronto. I can bring topnotchers here, even big shots like Roberts and Londos! This used to be a good town for wrestle shows and I might build it up again." He is checking over possibilities here.

* * * * * * *

CONCERNING LIONEL Conacher, Thomas told us an interesting fact. Two weeks ago, he advertised Jack Dempsey to referee a rasslin' show in Oshawa. The old Manassa Mauler was touring Quebec and Ontario and packing in the crowds. But Dempsey took sick the night before the Oshawa show. Jack Thomas phoned his friend Conacher, now a political figure but still a great sportsman. The former Big Train of Canadian athletics listened to Jack's tale of woe and finally offered to pinch-hit for Dempsey and fill in on the card. Lionel refereed and had a big crowd on hand cheering his work. And he refused to take a nickel from the promoter afterward. Thomas says Dempsey may resume his tour and might even be brought here.

A NEW system may be used in the Ladies' City Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. this winter, Miss Littlefield informs us. One large intermediate grouping—doing away with the senior—may be adopted, or else start it off this way maybe and then put the first four teams at the end of the first-half schedule into a senior section for the second-half. On account of two of the teams, C.G.E. and Westclox, appear too strong for the rest. Or at least that is what some of the coaches think. A lot of good players line up with these teams, and one or both will be in the L.O.B.A.; also, some players go with the P.C.I. teams in interscholastic competition.

AT ANYRATE, there will be an open re-organization meeting at seven bells next Thursday e'en in the Y.W. and something definite will be known. At present, it is all just surmising, as Miss Littlefield pointed out. Seven or eight squads should be ready for play after New Year's, and maybe more. St. John's expect to floor two squads, Quakers a couple, C.G.E. and Westclox probably a pair each, and the Y.W.C.A. Yeah, they hope to line up a good well-balanced loop here this season so that the gals—those who aren't playing in the L.O.B.A. league—will be sure of fine competition.

* * * * * * *

SOUTHEND HOCKEY League re-organized for the season last p.m. and a dozen squads signified intention of entry, some clubs putting in more than one entry. Some of the teams are: King Edward School, St. Peter's, Canucks, Red Aces, Beavers, Westenders, etc. A few more are hoped for, maybe a return of P.C.I., the C.G.E. apprentices and the East City Aces. Mike O'Brien is president and J. M. Collins the secretary. Phone the latter at 1314-M for any information. The loop will be playing the first Monday after New Year's. Some of the referees include: Kenny Kane, Lou LeBarr, Charlie Rainey, Jim Fleming and Bill Bennett. Classes are bantam, under 14 years by Jan. 1st; midget, under 16; and juvenile, under 18. An intermediate section may be formed later. Next league meeting will be at eight p.m. next Monday at the Sacred Heart rink.

* * * * * * *

LOCAL HOCKEY Club is still figuring ways and means of running an O.H.A. intermediate "B" team as well as the senior "B" and junior "B". Officers say they have plenty of players but three O.H.A. tilts a week here may be too much for the fans. It has been suggested that an intermediate "B" team be run but have some of the home games played away—possibly even in Lindsay. The Lakeshore "B" schedule, in which Peterborough is entered, will be drawn up shortly. Ditto the junior "B" loop in which our Colts are playing this winter. Probably the first of next week, if not sooner. In the meantime, the local executive will meet within a couple of nights now to discuss various matters. Should be some official dope by then.

* * * * * * *

ACCORDING TO the Quinte quill-pusher, the senior "B" group schedule—including the Petes, Fliers, Garrisons and Queen's—will be drawn up this Wednesday. So says Carling-Kelly of Trenton, the convenor. It is reported that the Queen's U. squad isn't at all fussy about being jumped to the senior "B" classification, but the convenor states: "All other clubs in the group are satisfied with the grouping and we are not going to cater to Queen's; if they want to play hockey let them attend Wednesday's meeting and take their chances with the rest of us." The Queen's crew would like to see the Belleville Redmen jacked up to the same class, but the "B" champs of last year have already been boosted to an intermediate "A" rating. Let's all take a deep breath and chant in chorus: "Sure 'A' is for the angles they are taking, 'B' means only that they're not so bad, 'C' is for the classes they are making—and 'A-B-C' proves that we're all going mad!" Okay, ossifer, 'twas only in fun.

* * * * * * *

THREE DAYS have passed now since the Battle for the Gridirons was fought out here by P.C.I. and Orfuns' factions up and down the main stem, in cafes, halls of learning and even the Council Chamber. And by now, many of those rabid grownup grid followers—who had hurled a lot of childish talk hither and thither—look a bit ashamed when the subject of football is mentioned. They realize now that it was hardly a matter of life and death—that the local factories are still operating, that other news is filling the sports pages, and that Xmas is just around that bloomin' corner. They realize now it was only a game, and that sportsmanship took a bad beating for a few days here—but that sports will survive long after hot arguments are forgotten. But, alas, the same guys will blow up again when the next argument comes along! Human nature, we fear.

Dozen Hockey Teams In Southend Loop

A dozen teams signified intention of entry into the Southend Hockey League at the annual re-organization meeting held last evening at the Sacred Heart rink. They were four bantams, five midgets and three juveniles. Mike O'Brien was elected president and J. M. Collins secretary.

In the bantam section are: King Edward, St. Peter's, Canucks and Red Aces; the midgets include: Canucks, Beavers, St. Peter's, Westenders and King Edward; the juveniles are: King Edward, Canucks and St. Peter's. NEW YORK, Dec. 7 — (AP). — Those Chicago pictures showing Burleigh Grimes smoking a pipe with a regulation bowl didn't make a hit with Brooklyn fans.... They fear it indicates the Dodgers are slowly returning to regular baseball form.... The North Dakota school which fired Stub Allison, California's Rose Bowl coach, doesn't know what it is to have a real red face.... The University of Nevada gave the air to Buck Shaw, coach of Santa Clara's unbeaten Sugar Bowl team, not once, but twice—once as a freshman and once as varsity coach. Some of the alumni out there still are looking for the guy who fired Buck.

Tony Galento, the Newark nightstick, visited the six-day bike race the other night and ordered a bottle of beer, neglecting to cough up for same.... "Do you want it charged?" asked the butcher.... "Sorry, pal," apologized Tony. "I forgot I wasn't in my own jernt over in Jolsey."

MAJORS OPEN BIG CONCLAVE IN QUIET STYLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (UP). — All trading activities were at a standstill yesterday as the major leagues quietly opened their usual winter meetings in separate hotels. While the club-owners held their business sessions, the managers dickered back and forth to put over deals without any serious headway.

The most frequently-heard American League rumors had the White Sox trading Outfielder Rip Radcliff to the Browns for Pitcher Buck Newsome, obtained last week from the Red Sox, and Cleveland sending Infielder Roy Hughes and Pitcher Denny Galehouse to the Red Sox for Infielder Eric McNair.

Will Sell Hemsley.

The Browns are also trying to peddle Catcher Rollie Hemsley to Cleveland. They've been offered Catcher Billy Sullivan in return, but want Catcher Frank Pytlak. The adverse criticism resulting from the trading of Outfielder Gerald Walker to the White Sox has caused the Detroit Tigers to start bidding for the popular Beau Bell of St. Louis. The Tigers are understood to have offered Outfielder Chet Laabs, Infielder Flea Clifton and cash for Bell, but got no place with their offer.

The National League re-elected Ford Frick, president, for a three-year term at an increase in salary. Sam Breaden, St. Louis, was re-elected vice-president, and Harvey Traband, secretary-treasurer, each for one year. P. K. Wrigley, Chicago; William Benswanger, Pittsburg; Bob Quinn, Boston, and Horace Stoneham, New York, were named as the board of directors.

A proposal to raise the player limit from twenty-three to twenty-five was voted down by the National Leaguers. They voted to recommend at the joint session of the two leagues Wednesday the awarding of the all-star game to Cincinnati.

Bill Dineen Retires.

Retirement of Bill Dineen, twenty-eight years an American League umpire, was announced by President Will Harridge. Bill Grieve, who worked in the American Association last year, and Eddie Rommel, former Athletics' pitcher, who umpired in the International League, have been added to the American League umpire staff.

Cincinnati announced the sale of Catcher Billy Campbell to the Montreal International League club. Encouraged by their success with their two 30-year-old sensations last year, Lou Fette and Jim Turner, the Boston Bees bought another 30-year-old pitcher, John Niggeling, right-hander, from Newark. He won seven games and lost two last season.

Burleigh Grimes Is Busy Trying To Sell Ace Hurler

But Everyone, It Seems, Has Grown Tired Of Mungo Subject

CHICAGO, Dec 7 (UP).—Burleigh Grimes of Brooklyn stalked through the amber-lighted lobby of the National League's convention hall yesterday trying to unload a valuable bill of goods nobody seems to want.

He cornered Bill Terry of the New York Giants and almost sold him Van Mungo, his ace right-hander.

He cornered Casey Stengel, now field boss of Boston's Bees, and must have tried to sell him Mungo. That's all Brooklyn has to sell.

One by one, Grimes approached the seven National League managers. The black cigar jutting from his lips began to droop as his negotiations failed.

"I'll get what I want for Mungo or he stays with Brooklyn," Grimes declared, and many baseball men conceded Van probably will stay, just as Dizzy Dean stuck with the St. Louis Cardinals last year when every rumor that raced through the winter meetings had Dizzy sold by the Cardinals for unheard-of prices.

Probably the hottest "Mungoism" broke late yesterday, when rumor had the tall fireballer shipped to Pittsburg for Arky Vaughn or Paul Waner. Pitcher Red Lucas and cash. Both clubs denied it, but since the report came from another hotel shortly after Grimes and Pie Traynor of the Pirates disappeared, it was the No. 1 rumor of the day.

The other two Mungo deals, which all but died during the minor league meetings at Milwaukee last week, popped up weakly and subsided almost at once. Grimes still wants Outfielder Frank Demaree of the Cubs in a deal with Chicago or Mel Ott of the Giants before he'll talk business with New York.

"We gotta get somebody good or we won't do business," Burleigh asserted.

Every club which failed to come to terms with Brooklyn appeared extremely tired of the Mungo subject.

As one manager put it, "That guy ain't so hot, anyway."

Mungo's record last season would seem to bear out his statement. Before he quit for the year six weeks before the season ended, Mungo won nine, lost seven, and wound up with a sore arm that may or may not have healed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP).—Note to Van Mungo, Pageland, S.C.: Looks like you're stuck in Brooklyn another summer, Butch, unless you want to stay down there and plough.... How're crops?...It was worth exactly 1,900 potatoes to Max Baer when Mrs. B. presented him a bouncing baby boy...Jack Dempsey had bet the new arrival would be a little gal...Out at Chicago, Burleigh Grimes plumb forgot Bill McKechnie had gone to Cincinnati and asked him if he wanted to swap Lopez...

Clark Griffith, owner of Washington Senators, at 68, has become a red hot football fan...In a pro game at Washington the other week the safety man was playing deep.... "Looky here," Griff said to George Marshall, Redskin owner, "ain't your centre fielder pretty far back?"...

La Didrikson allows as she must be psychic...At a party in Shreveport she was able to call the given name of the mother of every one in the room...Babe says she doesn't use her powers often because it gives her the headache...Some of the meanies are saying it wasn't the flu that sent Travis Jackson to bed in Chicago but the news that Babe Herman had been dished on his ball club...Max Schmeling will be fighting his 13th fight in this country on December 13, when he takes on Harry Thomas next Monday night... Jimmy Braddock has started training for whatever may bob up and it may be Miami in February.

HANSON IS THREAT TO STAR TACKLERS OF TORONTO ARGOS

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP).—Coach Lew Hayman of Toronto Argonauts, who thinks it quite all right for football fans to get their money's worth in excitement, laid plans today to deprive the paying customers of seeing Fritz Hanson spirit Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the Canadian grid title here Saturday.

There seems little doubt in the minds of most observers Argos will have to stop Hanson to win the title. Thus it simmers down to whether the great Toronto tackling brigade, that stopped the stars of Sarnia Imperials last Saturday in the eastern final, can do something no team in the West was able to do effectively—bottle up Flying Fritzie.

So it's Hanson that Argonauts will be out to stop, and Hayman is entrusting this thankless duty to a trio of the finest tacklers in the East—Wes Cutler, Bill Bryers and Ted Morris. Hayman figures if Hanson can be stopped the rest will take care of itself.

SUDBURY TO PLAY IN WORLD SERIES

SUDBURY, Dec. 7—Under the protective wing of Maxie Silverman, a hockey team to be known as the Sudbury Wolves will leave Sudbury on December 14 and sail from Saint John, N.B., on a European hockey tour. They will play in the world championship tournament at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

A farewell send-off game has been arranged for Wednesday, December 8, so that fans from the district will have a chance to see the world tournament team in action. Maxie Silverman says they will lineup on Wednesday as follows: Goal, Mel Albright; defence, Johnnie Godfrey; forwards, Johnny Bruce, Johnny Russell, Glen Sutherland, Roy Hexmer, Johnny Conick and Pat McReavy.

Toronto Leafs' Scoring Aces Retain Lead In Goal Race

Drillon Keeps Honors For High Point Total—Has Most Goals

MONTREAL, Dec. 7 (C.P.).—The big four of the Toronto Maple Leafs, with more than a half-hundred points between them, remain out in front in the National Hockey League scoring race. There's no serious challenge to the top man of the group, young Gordon Drillon.

The Leafs' second-year sniper is credited in last night's official league statistics with 16 points, made up evenly of goals and assists. Behind him follow Harvey Jackson, with 7 and 6; Red Horner, 2 and 10; and Syl Apps, 3 and 8. (The official list gives Apps one more assist than unofficial compilations.)

Drillon's eight goals put him at the head of the league, too, in actual scores. He's one up on Jackson, Nels Stewart of New York Americans and Sweeney Schriner of the Amerks, last year's scoring leaders, who climbed during the week-end.

For assists, the palm goes to Horner, the one-time "bad man." Red has helped out on ten goals, two up on Drillon and Apps.

Point-getting leadership in the United States section switched during the last week from Marty Barry of the slumping Detroit Red Wings to Paul Thompson of the Chicago Black Hawks. Thompson has three and seven, a single point up on Marty, who has five and four.

The penalty leaders stayed unchanged during the week. Baldy Northcott of the Maroons, with 37 minutes on the sinners' bench, is 12 up on Babe Siebert of Canadiens.

Remember When—

Winnipegs, torch-bearers of Western rugby, came east two years ago to-day and defeated the mighty Tigers 18-12 for the Canadian championship. The Westerners took the Grey Cup west for the first time.

REGINA JUNIORS COMING TO EAST

REGINA, Dec. 7 (CP).—"We don't care which team we play, as long as we get a crack at the Eastern champions," was the comment of Coach Paul Dojack of Regina Dales, Western junior Rugby titlists, when informed Windsor Grabs were seeking a game with Hamilton for the Eastern crown.

"If Windsor meets Hamilton next Saturday we are quite willing to take on the winner Dec. 18," he said. "It will give us an extra week in which to practice and collect funds for the trip East."

Dojack said Dales fully intend to go East, paying their own expenses and relying on 60 per cent. of the gate receipts to cover the cost.

LONDON—(CP).—The King will attend the annual Oxford-Cambridge rugby match at Twickenham, December 7.

CRIMSONS LEAD COLLEGE TEAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(CP).—Figured solely on the won and lost records, the United States No. 1 college football team for the last five year stretch is Alabama's crimson tide, prospective rival for California in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

An Associated Press survey of the records for the seasons of 1923-37 inclusive, to-day revealed Frank Thomas' Tuscaloosa Terrors at the head of the parade of more than 100 of the country's leading college outfits.

During that time, Alabama has piled up 40 victories against only three defeats and three ties for a winning percentage of .930 with ties disregarded. The Tide, in fact, has gone undefeated through the last two seasons—18 games without a setback and with only one tie.

But Alabama maintains only a slight edge over its closest rivals, Minnesota's Gophers. Boston twice this year, Minnesota nevertheless has lots only three games in five years while winning 32 and tying four for a percentage of .917.

Veteran Champions In Exhibition Go

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP).—Approximately 40 years ago, a youthful captain of the 21st regiment, Ernest S. Wigle, who was a boxing enthusiast, set up a class for members of the regiment. With William Campbell, one of his early students, he will enact scenes from his old boxing days at a smoker here Wednesday.

Col. Wigle, now serving his second term as Windsor's mayor, and Campbell, a job printer, are relying on the belief they have kept in present trim all these years to give an exhibition round following which they will really "open up" on each other. The mayor was undefeated middleweight champion of Essex county 40 years ago, and his opponent in Wednesday's tussle was never defeated in amateur competition.

WELSH STAR'S FUTURE

BIRMINGHAM, England—(CP).—Tom Griffiths, Aston Villa and Welsh soccer international, will be unable to play again this season through muscular trouble, but hopes to be fit by next winter.

Band Spreading

TUNE IN SHORT WAVE as Easily as Local
Marconi, with Band Spreading, ushers in a new era of tuning ease. You don't have to hold your breath to tune in short wave. You have all the scope in the World to bring in your favourite stations in full, rich, resonant tone, actual "face to face" reception. Think what this means in added entertainment. Think of the fun in store as you embark each evening on a simplified "Marconi Tour" of the World's great radio stations. Remember, Marconi has everything — Ten-Station Automatic Tuning, Electric Tuning, exclusive Exponential Baffle and Band Spreading, the greatest forward stride of the day in simplified tuning. So why be satisfied with less when Marconi brings you so much more at no extra cost.
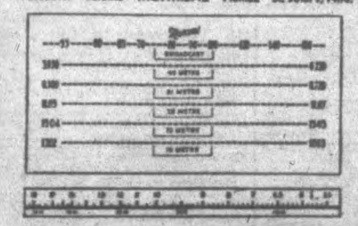
11-tube performance
This sensational set gives you 10-station Automatic tuning . . . "Fan-Spreading" on every short wave band . . . plus the exclusive Marconi Exponential Baffle at an amazingly low price. Gorgeously beautiful matched walnut cabinet. $139.50
MODEL 98 A.C.
6-tube performance
Covers standard broadcast and police band (530 to 1725 kcs.). Metal cabinet in colourful finishes. $32.95



MARCONI
THE GREATEST NAME IN RADIO
CANADIAN MARCONI COMPANY
Vancouver Toronto MONTREAL Halifax St. John's, Nfld.
Actually it is easier to tune short wave on the Marconi band spread dial than to tune your local station on standard broadcast. The reason is simple: on the new Marconi dial the standard broadcast band and each of the five short wave bands have separate scales as shown on diagram, upper left, each clearly marked and extremely easy to read. Old style receivers had one scale for standard broadcast and only one scale for all five short wave bands, shown at lower left. That meant many stations crowded into very short space, making separation and tuning very difficult.

By—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark, of St. Louis, in his senior year. Jerry finds that Lionel is a cousin of Mimi Le Brun, a girl he had admired several years before, while visiting Washington with his uncle. Mimi, granddaughter of a late senator, is about to make her debut, Lionel tells him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 8

I had told Lionel that my uncle was rich and that I was his heir. I had tried to say it modestly, but I had liked the sound of it.

"I am to have his ranch in Colorado."

"You are in luck," Lionel had said; and then we had talked of other things.

I was left, however, with the feeling that I had been a bit bombastic, and after that I was careful not to speak of what I conceived to be my glittering prospects. Yet I think Lionel let it be known among his friends what the future held for me. A good many of the men asked about my uncle's ranch—it seemed to give a sort of spectacular importance to my otherwise inconspicuous personality.

It was then, I am sure, that the fiction of Uncle Jerry's ranch as a sort of shining palace took hold of my mind so strongly that it could only be shaken, in those later days of disillusionment, by the facts. I saw myself as the lord of great acres, surrounded by a retinue of dependents, in the midst of a cavalcade of galloping cowboys, lord of the manor—and, I must confess, in my wildest dreams Mimi Le Brun sat by my side.

In a way, this vision of my future gave me self-confidence, and the intimacy which grew up between Lionel and me increased my feeling of security.

My belief in Lionel's talent was, undoubtedly, the thing which tied him to me. No one else would listen as I listened. No one else believed as I believed. I gave, and he accepted. Yet I know now that I should never have given in such great measure if around him and over him and all about him had not been the glamor of his relationship to the girl whom I had set so high in my thoughts.

Our literary adventures became most exciting, for it was my adventure as well as his. My imagination often supplemented his skill, and he would stare at me and say: "Some day we'll write a play together. You have the sense of drama."

We started a play, indeed, and worked late into the night, smoking cigarets, and putting much ink on paper. I am sure my mother would have felt that my feet were in dangerous paths had she known of the tobacco we burned, but I felt very much a man of the world in my imitation of Lionel's modes and manners.

I was adaptable, and Lionel advised me coolly, taking my need of advice for granted, and also my willingness to improve.

"You've got to learn to dance, Jerry. You tangle up your feet too much when you walk."

So I learned to dance. I learned, too, where and how to buy my clothes. I learned the catch-words and catch-phrases of Lionel's set. These were, of course, the superficial things. But I learned more than that—that the kind of religion my father preached was unfashionable, and that high idealism was unfashionable. Lionel laughed at me for my "cold-bloodedness" where women were concerned. He could not know that it was not cold blood but dreams which kept me from the easy morals which went with the easy manners of my friend.

And ridicule did not change me. I like to think that while I was weak in many ways, I was strong in this, and that when I looked in the clear eyes of the girl in the photograph on Lionel's table, I could meet them with a straight glance.

The girl in the dancing frock with the floating ribbons was not, however, the vision that I treasured. The real Mimi was for me the girl with russet hair, the dark-lined eyes and the burnished peacock's feather, whom I had seen in the small restaurant.

I had brought back from college that fall a bunch of peacock feathers, having begged a half-dozen dropped plumes from a neighbor of ours who kept one of the big birds. They reminded me of Mimi, and I stuck them in a vase in my room.

Lionel observing them, said, "They bring bad luck."

I had heard this. But I did not believe it, and said so. "I like them."

"Queer thing—Mimi likes them, too. She wears their colors. She had a costume once for a fancy-dress affair—green and blue, with a great fan of peacock's feathers—and with her copper hair it was stunning. A famous artist painted her in it; my grandfather bought the picture, and now it belongs to his wife. She won't give it up. She is acting like a pig. Grandfather intended that Mimi should have it. He told her so a thousand times, but Olga has the law on her side. She has grabbed everything, and she holds on to it."

Olga was, I learned, the stepgrandmother. She was only 30, and had, of course, married the senator for the position he could give her.

"Would she sell the picture, do you think?"

"Not to any of us. She's not our kind, and she knows we look down on her. Her father made his money in hams and things, and she's only a second generation from social obscurity. But she's a beauty. That's what caught grandfather. And now she lives all alone, except for the servants, in her great house on Portland place."

This was a grievance on which he always waxed eloquent, so I got him back to the picture. "Someone else might buy it for you."

It appeared, however, that there wasn't money enough for a deal of that kind. Mimi's father had, it seemed, died when she was a baby. Her mother had lived, until her father's death, on the allowance he had given her; then the thing had stopped.

"I'd hate to have the picture go out of the family. The artist called it 'The Proud Lady'. And it isn't just Mimi to me: it typifies all the women of our family, with their high-held heads."

My heart felt like a stone in my breast. What had I to do with such women? My vague prospects for the future seemed at the moment cheap and tawdry. Mimi Le Brun knew

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PUFF BALL

"Look, Unkie Wig! Look!" called Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, in the woods one day. She and the rabbit gentleman had gone for a hop. Bunty had said: "That will make Christmas come sooner."

But just now the orphan rabbit was interested in what she had found. "Such cute little things, Unkie Wig!" she called. Bunty was a cute little thing herself.

"Dear me!" thought Uncle Wiggily as he hopped over to where Bunty stood near a dump of dried bushes. "I hope she hasn't found a nest of little Bob Cats. Bunty might think they are cute, but they are anything but that."

The little orphan rabbit, however, had found no Bob Cats. She was looking at some round, brown balls on the ground where they were lying partly beneath a log and partly beneath a bush.

Different Sort

"Are these some of the balls or seed pods from the sycamore tree, filled with Summer snow?" asked Bunty.

"No, though they look like them," said Uncle Wiggily. "These are also seed pods, but of a different sort. Don't touch them, Bunty."

"Why not, Unkie Wig?" asked

"What did I tell you-Ker Foo!"

Bunty, using all the kindergarten talk she was permitted.

"Because those are puff balls."

"Will they puff at me?" Bunty asked.

"Yes, indeed," said Uncle Wiggily. "They break very easily and then puff out their seeds or spores in a powdery cloud, which will make you sneeze."

"I don't mind sneezing," said Bunty, leaning farther over to look at the puff balls.

Then, all of a sudden, she lost her balance. She would have fallen into the bunch of puff balls only that Uncle Wiggily held her.

As it was, Bunty caught hold of the old log with one paw. She knocked off a bit of bark. It fell on a puff ball. And so tender was the skin of the queer ball it at once burst with a little pop and the air was filled with a fine, brown powder.

"Ker chii! Ker choo!" sneezed Baby Bunty.

"Ker koo! Ker zee!" sneezed Uncle Wiggily. "There, Bunty," he went on, "what did I tell you—ker foo! Ker fee!"

"No," laughed the orphan rabbit, "you told me—ker piff! Ker puff!" and then they both sneezed and laughed.

Be Careful

When they had finished Bunty said: "I wish I could take some of these puff balls to school to show Lady Mouse Teacher."

"You may if you are careful and if she is careful after the puff balls are in school," said Mr. Longears. "Otherwise the whole class will be ker-snitzing."

"I know it," laughed Bunty. "I'll be careful. I'll put the puff balls that aren't popped in my handkerchief and carry them gently."

"That may be a good way," said Uncle Wiggily.

So Bunty put some puff balls in her handkerchief and she and the rabbit gentleman started back for the hollow stump bungalow.

"How many days now until Christmas, Unkie Wig?" asked Bunty.

"Hum. Let me see now. Today is seven and Christmas is 25 and—"

"Oh, let me do it!" begged Bunty who loved number work. So she subtracted seven from 25 and said: "It's 18—but it's really only 17 days and then it will be Christmas. Hurray. I wonder——"

"Hark!" suddenly called Uncle Wiggily. Bunty stopped talking. A noise was heard.

And if the tooth brush will stop biting the end off the candy cane I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's present.

Parents Offer Baby To Science In Effort To Save Others

Chicago Tot Is Eleventh Victim To Die Of Baffling Malady

CHICAGO, Dec. 7—(AP). — The youthful parents of 12-day-old Daniel Ennesser, 11th victim of a mysterious malady in St. Elizabeth's hospital, offered the body of their firstborn today that medical science might seek the cause of the intestinal disease.

John G. Ennesser, the father, said he and his wife, Angeline, 26, "thought it would help the other little babies" if doctors performed an autopsy on their child.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health, said the autopsy would be performed by Dr. William Saphir, chief pathologist of Michael Reese Hospital, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold, bacteriologist of the Illinois department of health.

The Ennesser babe died last night as medical science marshalled its forces to save seven other infants stricken with epidemic diarrhea.

Nineteen babies have been stricken with the disease, diagnosed as enteritis or acute epidemic diarrhea, since Nov. 23 when the first death occurred. One infant, Sandra Traska, six weeks old, was taken home, apparently cured, but will be kept under care of health department doctors.

Desperate Fight.

Hospital physicans, eight baby specialists and health officers were concentrating their efforts in saving the lives of two infants reported in critical condition.

Death of the Ennesser baby came at a time when scientists worked desperately to find the exact cause of the malady which has puzzled medical men for years.

Dr. Richard H. Jaffe, director of the pathological Institute of the Cook county hospital, who performed autopsies on two victims, said he believed the disease was caused by an unfilterable virus.

Every possible source of infection was traced at the hospital over the week-end. Water, milk, food, plumbing, and furniture were given microscopic examination.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said similar outbreaks occurred in recent years in New York, Toronto, Memphis and other cities as well as in France and Scotland.

Franco-Pole Pact One Of Heart

WARSAW, Dec. 7 (CP-Havas). — The Franco-Polish alliance is not merely a written document, but is based on feelings in the hearts of the people, French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos said here today at the conclusion of two days of conversations with Polish statesmen.

Bearing a message resulting from recent Anglo-French conversations in London, Dr. Delbos will next visit Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Canada Orders Six New Airliners

MONTREAL, Dec. 7—(CP). — Trans-Canada Air Lines have ordered six new transport planes for delivery before August, it was announced to-day by President S. J. Hungerford.

Similar to four now under construction (to be delivered to trans-Canada in the Spring) the new ships will be all metal Lockheed 14H machines, capable of 250 miles an hour at top speed, with a cruising speed of 220 miles an hour and a range of 2,125 miles.

Including accommodation for pilots, the planes will have 14 seating places.

CROKINOLE PARTY ENJOYABLE EVENT

PONTYPOOL, Dec. 7.—On Thursday evening a jolly crokinole party was held in the Ballyduff school room under the auspices of the Ballyduff Presbyterian church. Six tables were occupied for a series of interesting games. Miss Irene Mitchell was the winner of the ladies' prize. The gentleman's prize was decided by a play-off between Melville Lathangue and Jimmy Mitchell, in favour of the latter.

A contest of dropping clothes pins into a bottle, led by Mrs. Melville Lathangue, was then held. At the close there was a tie between Harvey Gray and Mrs. W. Gaynor, each dropping three pins out of six. In the play-off for the prize Mrs. Gaynor was the winner.

A sumptuous lunch was then served by the ladies and a social time enjoyed.

Sunshine Group.

On Tuesday evening a social evening was held in the basement of the United church under the auspices of the Sunshine group of the Women's Association.

The evening was spent in playing bingo and corkinole, five tables being occupied for a series of interesting games. At the close it was found that the winners for crokinole were Miss Mable Masters and Mr. Howard Masters. Appropriate prizes were awarded. The winner for bingo was Mrs. James Richardson and a prize was given.

The ladies of the group had provided a lunch consisting of pork and beans, sandwicks, cake and coffee which was then served and a social time enjoyed.

INDIA VOTES 54%

DELHI—(CP). — In the elections for the provincial legislative assemblies this year, 54.55 per cent of the electorate voted. The highest percentage was 71.35 in Assam and the lowest, 40.5 in Bengal.

BRITISH WARSHIP AND 2 STEAMERS HIT BY JAP BOMBS

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7—(AP). — A vanguard of Japanese troops approached to-day within sight of the ancient walls of Nanking, China's evacuated capital.

(Despatches to the Tokyo newspaper Asahi said the Japanese had captured the Trakahashi Gate, two miles from the Nanking walls, and that columns of smoke were visible for a great distance from fires within the capital.)

A Japanese army spokesman announced the advance to-night. He declared there probably would be fighting within the city to-morrow.

The force, he said, carried Japan's rising sun banner to within three miles of Nanking. He said the unit was advancing from Tanyang, on the Grand Canal about 45 miles east of Nanking.

He announced also Japanese had advanced toward Wuhu, Yangtze River port about 60 miles south-south-west of Nanking, and toward Chinkiang, where the Grand Canal and Yangtze merge about 40 miles east of Nanking.

Japanese planes, meanwhile, were reported making heavy attacks on an allegedly bewildered Chinese retreat both from Nanking and Wuhu.

Chinese sources reported the 32,-720-ton Japanese battleship Nagato sunk by aerial bombs on the lower Yangtze between Tungchow and Fushan. Japanese discounted the report.

British Warship Hit.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman acknowledged that British Consular authorities had made a telephonic report on the bombing of a British warship and two British merchantmen yesterday at Wuhu.

He said, however, no question of a British protest or of demands for compensation had arisen. The spokesman added that Japanese authorities had no statement to make about the incident.

The Japanese spokesman disclaimed any knowledge of Japanese air attacks on British shipping at Wuhu, Yangtze River port about 60 miles south-southwest of Nanking.

The commander of the British gunboat Ladybird and two other Britons were injured when Japanese planes raided the Wuhu waterfront yesterday.

Two British river steamers were hit. The 3,770-ton Tuck-Wo, belonging to the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company, was set aflame and was believed to be a total loss.

Officials of the company said they understood the Tuck-Wo had between 2,000 and 3,000 Chinese refugees aboard.

The crew of the other British ship, the 1,560-ton Tatung, owned by the China Navigation Company, beached the vessel on the Yangtze shore after British naval men helped get her out of danger.

Several civilians aboard a launch belonging to the British Asiatic Petroleum (Shell) Company were reported wounded by bomb fragments. Belief some Britons were aboard was not confirmed.

Japanese said only Chinese junks carrying Chinese troops were bombed. They explained the attacks were aimed at between 30,000 and 50,000 Chinese troops said to be retreating across the river in native craft.

A HAPPY SURPRISE

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP)—Miss Carmen Galloway, convalescing from injuries received in an auto accident three weeks ago, had a pleasant surprise. A diamond ring and a sum of money, accounted lost were returned to her with the explanation they had been found in a corner of the ambulance that took her to hospital.

Daughter Is "Eyes" For Blind Cop

While his daughter, Mary Ann, 5 reads his favorite comics to him, Patrolman John V. Hogan, 30, of Detroit, Mich., blinded in line of duty, is shown (ABOVE), reflecting the joy of good news that a New York doctor is confident he can restore the lost sight. Hogan's eyes were seared when a tear gas gun exploded in his hand while he was on strike duty last March. The mayor of Detroit has instructed the police commissioner to go before the city's common council to ask for the $1,200 necessary for the operation. Dr. Ramon Castroveijo of the medical centre in New York city plans to graft the cornea from the eye of a dead person in place of Hogan's seared cornea.

PLANE DRUMS VOTES

TORONTO, Dec. 7—(CP). — Use of an airplane on election day to solicit votes had City Clerk James Somers stymied Monday. An autogyro plane whirled over the city to-day with a banner reading: "Vote Day for Mayor."

Mr. Somers said the Election Act makes it unlawful to solicit votes on election day." "But use of an airplane is something new," said Mr. Somers. "It's never been done before as far as I can remember."

FRENCH-CANADIAN PAINTINGS LAUDED

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (CP). — New York art circles are paying attention —and many compliments—to an exhibition of French-Canadian paintings showing today in the East River Gallery.

The exhibition, mostly from the Murray Bay district of Quebec, are young and essentially "part-time artists." One of the more prominent is Alfred Deschene, a 23-year-old lumberjack and house-painter now working in a bottling factory. Another is Philippe Maltais, gardener of La Malabaie, who began painting to pay for his winter wood. Still another is Yvonne Bolduck of Baie St. Paul, a rug-maker.

Their products contain fearless observations on life and the colors are bold. They hesitate at nothing and escape the rigidity that often creeps into the work of the over-taught "city artists."

"These Canadian primitives know nothing of masters—they know only life—the greatest and final teacher of all."

men with millions. The old town where she lived was one in which great fortunes had been made. There was luxury and a scale of expenditure beyond my wildest dreams. Even my uncle's ranch seemed to shrink into nothingness.

Yet with youth's resiliency I built new castles. Fame would carry me far.

"Lion," I asked, "when are we to get to work on that play?"

He caught at the idea with avidity. We burned much midnight oil; we rigged up a toy theater and used pins for actors; we fancied ourselves incipient Shaws—Pineros in the making. My spirits were at top-notch. Here was something to lay some day at the feet of Mimi Le Brun!

FARMERS HEAR TALK ON SOIL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Dec. 7.—A very interesting and instructive agricultural meeting, sponsored by J. J. Duffus, M.P., Peterborough, was held in the Sunday school hall on Friday afternoon. There was a good attendance of farmers from the townships of South Monaghan and Cavan, and keen interest was manifested in the addresses.

Mr. Duffus welcomed all present and opened the discussion by stating that the purpose of the meeting was to help the farmers realize better results from grain, hay, livestock and dairy products.

He considered the question of soil depletion on the lack of mineral contents and emphasized the fact that farming should be conducted in a more scientific way, and that greater attention must be made regarding the condition of the soil and the fertilizer best adopted for the production of grain.

Regarding drainage he stated the government would send an expert engineer to survey the land for drains. Mr. Duffus said, we are proud of the Canadian farmers who had won the highest prizes in the United States and Canada for the best wheat, oats and bacon hogs.

Howard Quinn, president of the Seed Growers and Plowmans Association of Peterborough county, addressed the gathering and illustrated how a lack of mineral contents in the soil lowers the milk test. He advised the farmers to give greater attention to the cleaning and grading of grain and avail themselves of the use of a machine for that purpose in Peterborough. He advocated the growin of white winter wheat because of larger field and better quality of fur.

Professor Henry G. Bell of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph was the chief speaker. His general subject was soil depletion of its mineral contents of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash.

By means of experiments, charts and blackboard illustrations he showed how vital and important it was knowing just what should be done to get the best results from the farm. The production depended on the fertility of the soil, drainage, organic matter and properly balanced ration of mineral contents.

He urged the farmers to send samples of soil to Guelph Agricultural College, where it would be examined and the farmers will be informed regarding the kind of fertilizer to use to get best results. His address was very informative and several farmers expressed their appreciation of the addresses.

ACCIDENT IS FATAL

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Dec. 7. — (CP).—Struck Saturday by a car as he ran across the highway at Dornoch, 16 miles south of here, Harold Kopp, 14, died last night in hospital at Durham.

The youngster was playing at the side of the road, according to police. He ran in front of the car driven by M. E. McKenzie of Harriston.

WRITER, JAP BOMB LAND SAME TIME IN CHINESE TOWN

NANKING, Dec. 7—(Delayed).—(AP).—I arrived to-day at Kuyung, 30 miles by road east of Nanking, just as a Japanese projectile exploded inside the walled cross-roads of the town.

Unknown to Nanking's populace and surprising to all except China's highest military quarters, a Japanese column striking west from the Grand Canal and the Shanghai-Nanking Road had advanced to within 35 miles of the capital.

I was making a tour of Nanking's outlying defences when I saw the explosion of the missile from a Japanese gun located about five miles from Kuyung.

(Japanese officials at Shanghai reported to-day, Dec. 6, that their forces had captured Kuyung).

Within a half hour columns of smoke were rising from dozens of villages and hamlets in the vicinity, while a few remaining country-folk stoop by weeping as they watched all their earthly possessions go up in flames.

Although the Japanese approach to Kuyung was sudden, there was no evidence of panic among the Chinese troops that have been beaten back from Shanghai.

DOCKMEN REFUSE UNLOAD JAP GOODS

SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 7 (CP Cable). — Refusal of Southampton stevedores to unload 200 tons of Christmas cargo from Japan aboard the liner Duchess of Richmond today was believed to be the first move in a vigorous anti-Japanese boycott.

The Southampton men have appealed to dockers throughout the country to support them, and if a response develops the situation is likely to become acute, with many ships due to arrive during the next few weeks with shipments from Japan.

Officials of the Transport and General Workers' Union said the direct action at Southampton was unofficial and said it was possible the union's national executive would be summoned to deal with the question. Legality of the move may be questioned on the floor of the House of Commons.

Diplomatic representations have not yet been made by the Japanese. The Duchess of Richmond was compelled to carry the cargo back to Canada when the stevedores refused to unload it.

Sisters Join Quints In Carols Mother Laughs Approval

Youngsters Also Tackle Toboggan Slide And Wind Up With Snowball Fight

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP). —The Christmas spirit invaded the Dionne nursery Sunday.

Eight bright-eyed sisters of the famous Dionne family gathered in the playroom. A rehearsal of Christmas songs and seasonal music was the order of the day.

The occasion was a visit to the quintuplets by their three elder sisters, Rose, Therese and Pauline, accompanied by their mother.

Assembled in the nursery, each youngster was presented with an instrument and with Rose and Therese taking turns as leader, the group offered creditable presentations, to the amusement of their mother.

Key Means Little.

The fact that Marie was a little off-key or Annette thumped a loud crescendo in the wrong place mattered little. The elder trio managed to carry the rhythem. Rose, Therese and Pauline joined in the singing of the Quints' nursery songs and then proceeded to teach them new ones.

It was a jolly period followed by dinner for which all feminine members of the Dionne family were seated in the nursery dining room. The Quints' father remained at home to mind Olivia, Jr.

Rose had gone over to the nursery early in the day and spent the outdoor play period with the Quints, helping them pile snow on their toboggan slide and then try out the surface on their little two-seater toboggans. The outing ended in a laugh-studded snowball battle.

REIGN OF TERROR WIDENS

JERUSALEM, Dec. 7 (CP-Havas) —Terrorist bands extended their activities to southern Palestine today as the military tribunal at Haifa imposed life prison terms in swift succession on an Arab agitator and his son.

Police clashed with an armed band near the village of Dahareh, between Beersheba and Hebron, in southern Palestine. After a brisk exchange of gunfire, the bandits succeeded in fleeing to the mountains.

NO ABANDONING OF PREFERENCES HOUSE IS TOLD

Empire Trade Pacts Will Still Remain

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(CP Cable)—Negotiations with the United States for a trade pact do not mean abandonment of Imperial preferences, Captain Euan Wallace, Parliament Secretary to the Board of Trade, declared at a luncheon of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain to-day.

Before a gathering of many leading business figures of the Empire, Captain Wallace paid tribute to the excellent trade relations between Canada and the United Kingdom and attributed simulated business within recent years directly to the Ottawa agreements, and "Canada Calling" campaign carried on in Great Britain by Canadian officials.

Benefit Two Countries.

He deplored as a "fallacious doctrine" the viewpoint that trade improvements effected by treaties between nations had been achieved at the expense of other good customers. It was the gospel of calamity howlers and prophets of doom, who revelled in slump predictions. He said he believed the recent Anglo-Canadian trade treaty would result in tremendous benefits to both countries.

Strongest Pillar of Empire

Sir Geoffrey Clarke, President of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Great Britain, alluded to Canada as the "strongest pillar of the whole Empire," which was in a difficult position in respect to trade due to its close proximity to the United States.

Replying to criticism of the disproportionate balance of trade between Canada and the United Kingdom, Sir Geoffrey remarked it was a logical state of affairs considering the difference of populations.

"I think the proportion of business is perfectly fair," he declared. "We should be thankful for the enormous advantages we have got.

No Sign of Slump

Sir Geoffrey said there was no sign of a slump in British business and that the slumpmongers would find difficulty in undermining the future, which looked particularly hopeful.

Sir Hewitt Skinner, former president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain, said the Ottawa agreements had opened the way to business success. Even today, he added, there were British manufacturers who did not appreciate the importance of the Canadian market, and he urged them to devote personal explorations to its possibilities.

Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, and W. A. McAdam, acting Agent General for British Columbia, were among the guests.

Britain Increases Forces In Egypt

LONDON, Dec. 8 (C.P.-Havas).—It was reported in military circles to-day that the Government's decision to send an anti-aircraft detachment to Egypt in January was due to recent reinforcement of Italian military forces in Libya.

Official confirmation of the reports was lacking.

In addition to the Fourth Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battery and the First Wireless Transmission Section, a Health Service detachment will go to Egypt. Diplomatic circles said the Egyptian Government has been notified of this reinforcement.

Last Minute News Flashes

SHANGHAI — General Chiang Kai-Shek has decided to hurl all available central government troops into a last ditch stand in defence of Nanking.

TORONTO — Toronto evening newspapers reported today a new contract between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission and the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company has been signed by the commission, but not yet formally approved by the Ontario government.

Foreigners Refused Any Protection In Nanking Attack

Japs Reported Driven Back in First Storming Of Capital Gates, With Over 1,000 Casualties

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Japanese authorities tonight warned all foreigners and Chinese non-combatants to evacuate beleaguered Nanking as quickly as possible.

"Hostilities may engulf the city any moment," they said.

Through Suemasa Okamoto, Japanese consul general at Shanghai, the authorities requested representatives of foreign powers to inform their respective nationals of the impending struggle in the evacuated Chinese capital.

The Japanese said they considered the former capital "one large fortification" and therefore could not give Chinese non-combatants and foreigners the assurance of safety in the so-called refugee zone.

Thousands of Chinese, who took no active part in the defence of the city, were huddled in the refugee district.

"Persons therein should evacuate," the Japanese spokesman said. "If war engulfs the area the Japanese cannot be held responsible."

First Attacks Driven Off.

Japanese columns, Chinese asserted, were repulsed in attempts to storm two of Nanking's gates with 1,000 casualties.

One Japanese detachment, it was stated, was driven back from Chilin ("Unicorn") Gate, while another failed in an effort to pierce the city's heavy walls at Sunshine Gate which leads to the impressive Ming palaces.

A third column, the Chinese advices said, was held up at Mulinkwan and failed to reach Nanking. Some 75,000 Japanese were gathered about the city, where approximately 200,000 Chinese faced them.

Level All Troop Cover.

NANKING, Dec. 8 (A.P.). — Chinese troops blew up bridges and levelled village walls in Nanking's eastern suburbs to-day in an effort to destroy all possible over Japanese attackers could use in a frontal assault. The capital awakened to the thunder of artillery.

Despite the imminence of attack, authorities maintained good order. There was a steady stream of civilians to a semi-safety zone. Military defence preparations were far advanced, obviating any possible last-minute panic.

During the night, the British gunboats Cricket and Scarab moved a mile and a half up the Yangtze to avoid the consequences of expected Japanese bombardment of the Nanking Bund. Attacks on British ships at Wuhu on Sunday and almost daily bombardment of Pukow, across the river from Nanking, prompted the move.

Attendance at movie theatres in Portugal jumped 74 per cent. in the last year.

BARRIE TAXIMAN DITCHES HIS CAB AND FOILS GUNMAN

BARRIE, Ont., Dec. 8 (CP)—Police today sought two well dressed men about 35 or 40 armed with automatics, who attempted last night to hold up Donald Scott, 34, local taxi driver, and steal his car.

The pair called for a taxi and asked to be taken to Stroud, five miles south. Nearing Stroud, one of the men, sitting in the rear seat, ordered the driver to slow down and pull into the side of the road. "This is a hold up, take no chances," he said.

With a gun between his shoulder blades, Scott deliberately ditched the car and ploughed it into a snow bank on the side of the road. Later, he was able to escape to telephone at a nearby farm house while the two men were trying to get the car out of the ditch.

After being forced from the car, Scott threw away his wallet on the road.

The men were unable to move the car from its resting place. Their footprints later were traced by police to the Canadian National Railways tracks, half a mile east, and then south a mile to Craigville station, where they were lost in a maze of other footprints.

Duke Of Portland Denies Rumors

LONDON, Dec. 8 (CP-Havas) — The Duke of Portland today denied "silly rumors" linking the visit of Leopold, King of the Belgians, to England with a romantic attachment between Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentinck, the Duke's granddaughter, and Prince Charles, King Leopold's brother.

In opening a church bazaar in Staveley, England, W. L. Stephenson gave an address, then donated $100 "to make up for time spent in speechmaking."

12 Years Of Service

His Worship, Mayor George A. Macdonald announced today his retirement from municipal affairs, vacating the Mayor's chair at the peak of his city hall career. He was first elected alderman in 1926, and altogether received the support of the people of Peterborough at seven elections, five times as alderman and two as mayor. He told the Examiner today the city should have young men coming on for the future, and the best way to attract them was by veterans like himself retiring.

Mayor George Macdonald Announces Retirement

Appeals to Business and Professional Men To Offer Themselves for Service on Council

Mayor George A. Macdonald informed The Examiner today that he will not be a candidate for re-election at the municipal elections on New Year's Day.

With a smile, the Mayor suggested that after 12 successive years as member of the City Council "its about time I began to spend more of my evenings at home".

"I desire to thank the citizens of Peterborough for their friendly co-operation during my two years as mayor," stated Mayor Macdonald. "They have been two very busy years for me, but I shall always remember them with a great deal of pleasure. It is a great privilege to be mayor of a city like Peterborough and I have given the office my best abilities in an effort to fill it with credit to myself and the city.

"In announcing my retirement from the City Council, I do so with some reluctance, because it means ending my long association with City Hall affairs," continued His Worship.

Veterans In the Council.

"However, I feel that there are members of the City Council who have given lengthy and valued service to the city and that they should be given an opportunity to serve as Mayor. I am confident that with one of these veterans in the chair the affairs of the city will move forward successfully.

"My decision to retire was also influenced by the fact that being mayor requires the sacrifice of considerable personal time, and I feel that I have made sufficient contribution to the affairs of the city."

Mayor Macdonald spoke of the co-operation extended to him by the City Hall staff, and his appreciation of the work of his fellow-members of the Council. "Peterborough has had efficient service from its City Council for many, many years, and I hope that the citizens will continue to elect men with a sense of responsibility to office," he said. "It is their business and they should take thought of the quality of the men they elect to manage their affairs."

Appeals for Candidates

TRIAL OF WELCH IS SET FOR JAN. 10

Tendering a plea of not guilty, United Textile Workers organizer, Alex. Welch, charged with obstructing Police Chief Samuel Newhall during the Bonner-Worth strike riot on August 10, asked for trial before a judge without a jury when he was arraigned at the General Sessions this morning. Judge D. B. Coleman chose Monday, January 10, for the trial.

Welch appeared alone without his counsel, J. L. Cohen, legal adviser to Dominion Woollens strikers during the long labor dispute here last summer. Trial before a jury had been scheduled for him at the current sittings.

"You have the option of being tried by a judge and jury or by a judge without a jury," Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., informed him.

"I wish to be tried without a jury," Welch replied.

The Crown Attorney informed the court the Crown would be satisfied with renewal of the $1,500 bail under which Welch has been at liberty. Renewal was effected by Tom McMurray, local Trade and Labor Council head, the original bondsman.

True bills were returned by the grand jury as the morning sitting convened, in all three criminal cases they had been given to consider yesterday, a charge of arson against William Hanrahan of Douro, a charge of theft against Hilliard McIlmoyle and a serious charge against George Selmes to be re-tried.

Japan Hints That Four Powers Are Dickering For Peace

Tokyo Surprised China Not Asking Terms With Invaders At Nanking Gates

TOKYO, Dec. 8 (AP)—A Japanese foreign offices spokesman hinted today that four countries were attempting to mediate Chinese-Japanese hostilities.

"Japan is waiting to hear the results," he said.

Meanwhile Tokyo clung to the hope China would sue for peace with the fall of her evacuated capital, Nanking. With Japanese columns assaulting Nanking, Tokyo was surprised that China was still silent on the question of peace terms.

While representatives of the war and navy offices conferred at the foreign office regarding the Japanese course of action when and if Nanking is taken, the foreign office spokesman said:

"The United States, England, Germany and Italy who have large interests in China may well be working toward peace.

Japan is waiting to hear the results.

"Whether such action is concerted or individual I am uninformed. However, any friendly nation's endeavor to bring China to take the initiative would be welcome."

The spokesman reiterated that all Japan desired was China's abandonment of anti-Japanism. He said Japan had no territorial designs "but if the situation changes I do not know what steps will be taken. The situation is now liquid, hence Japan's policy must be the same."

The embassies of the nations mentioned as possible mediators did not comment on the spokesman's statements.

$50 Repays Man Giving Youth Meal

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 8

A $50 cheque repaid Arthur Cote today for the 25-cent meal he bought a hungry stranger.

The cheque, accompanied by a note of gratitude, came from an unidentified youth who approached the Sherbrooke man on a Montreal street last summer, asking for "a quarter for a bit to eat." Though skeptical, Cote took the youth to a restaurant, bought him a meal, and forgot about it.

"The stranger's note said: "I have just come into $25,000. Have a good time on the enclosed $50."

Anti-Big Apple Society Planning To Halt Dizziest Of Modern Dances

Toronto, Dec. 8.

THE Anti-Big Apple Society of the University of Toronto, not, as might be supposed, an organization of medical students, plans to get into action tonight. Set-up of the Campus Club was completed yesterday.

The society is pledged to the elimination from the university scene of the newest and dizziest of modern dances—the Big Apple. Tonight a Big Apple party is being held for university addicts and Douglas Elliott, vice-president and publicity director of the antis, announces his society will be on hand to halt it.

"There's one part in the routine where the partners separate, pause and goggle at each other," said Elliott. "Well, tonight when a couple starts this posing, one of our members will just get between them and block the view so they can't leer at each other. That'll take the fun out of it. They'll quit then.'

Give Gunmen 'Slip' In Trip To Vault For $30,000 Payroll

Lock Bandits Out of Bank as Pair Follow Them From Rooms After Tying Wives, in Midnight Raid

CONISTON, Ont., Dec. 8.—(CP)—Attempt by two masked gunmen to steal the $30,000 International Nickel payroll and other money from the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch here was foiled early today by Bank Manager John Graham and a guest, Rev. A. P. Addison. Coniston is seven miles east of Sudbury.

Armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, the two gunmen burst into the Graham apartment above the bank a few minutes after midnight. "It's a stick-up," one of them shouted to the two couples in the apartment. Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Addison were tied up and their husbands herded down the stairs to the bank office.

The bandits told Graham they were going to force him to open the vault with the Nickel payroll as well as the bank's regular funds in it. The manager and his clergyman guest were a few steps ahead of their captors when the door at the bottom of the stairs was approached.

Slam Door In Gunmen's Faces

As the door was reached, Graham suddenly swung it open and he and Addison darted through it. The door slammed and locked behind them. Addison dashed to call police and the bandits retraced their steps up the stairs, through the room where the two women were tied up and out a back stairs.

Sergt. J. Angove, of the Nickel company police at Coniston traced the bandits several miles down the Canadian National Railways tracks until their tracks were lost in the falling snow. The bandits were believed to have hiked through the fields to Wahnapitae, 10 miles away.

Fire Two Shots In Flight

As they hurried through the living-room, one fired a revolver shot that passed through an overcoat owned by Mr. Addison. And as they stumbled going downstairs, another shot was fired. Neither shot was directed at anyone.

It was considered doubtful that the robbery would have been successful even had the bank manager taken the holdup men into the bank. J. Paul Taillon, manager of the bank's Sudbury branch and under whom the Coniston branch is administered, said Graham would have been unable to open the vault.

"There is a time lock for the morning and, in addition, a manager living on the premises is never given the combination of the vault," Taillon said. "This is a precaution adopted by the bank in the event of such an attempt as that early today."

Clearly marked in new-fallen snow, the footprints of the escaped robbers were followed by police for several hours. One trail led to the

COLD, MORE SNOW SAYS WEATHERMAN AFTER 2-DAY BLOW

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (CP) — Snow lay deep over Ontario today, piled high in drifts over country roads by chill northerly winds that sent temperatures down to zero or thereabouts at many points. And just in case citizens doubted whether winter really was here, the weatherman forecast continued cold weather, with more snow.

The weather was made to order for sports-loving youngsters. Throughout the province the kids gleefully lugged sleighs from basements, took skis from the pegs where they had hung for months and months and hied themselves to the nearest hill. The cold snap that came after three days of blizzards made conditions just about perfect for sport.

But the men whose job it was to keep highways open didn't take it so lightheartedly. Reports of snow-blocked roads came from eastern Ontario, western Ontario and from points 100 miles north of Toronto. Scores of automobiles and trucks were marooned throughout a night of bizzard in the Barrie district, 56 miles north of Toronto.

Ploughs Kept Busy

Almost every section of Ontario reported snow. Eight inches fell upon Ottawa yesterday. A mild blizzard swept the Kingston district. Five inches fell at Goderich, in the western part of the province where snowploughs were busy during the week-end attempting to keep roads open.

The Barrie district speared hardest hit. Police there said last night scores of motorists were marooned in snowdrifts with side roads, concession lines and some highways blocked. Drifts closed in behind snowploughs almost as fast as a path was cleared. The number of vehicles forced into ditches was undetermined.

A 20-mile-an-hour west wind piled snow into deep drifts in Middlesex, Lambton and Huron counties. Side roads in North Middlesex and northern Lambton were closed last night. Provincial highway routes in western Ontario remained open but

Unification Of Railroads Is Inevitable Beatty Says

Day Will Come When Canada Will Have Government With Sufficient Courage

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 8.—(CP).—The day will come when there will be in Canada a government with courage to effect unification of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, Sir Edward Beatty, C.P.R. president, said in a luncheon address at the Windsor Chamber of Commerce to-day.

Unification is inevitable and it is just as inevitable that the transportation issue will become so grave some government will realize it can be no longer side-stepped, Sir Edward said. He urged speed in unification, saying it will be easier to solve railway difficulties in 1938 than 10 or 20 years later.

Sir Edward held unification to be inevitable "because conditions of public finance are daily forcing this more strongly upon us. He criticized argument of those who say unification is desirable but political considerations make it impossible.

Means Democracy Has Failed.

"Do you realize that to argue that a Canadian government will not have the courage to do what is right is merely to argue that democracy has failed," he asked.

Claiming business men in increasing numbers are coming to support his unification program, Sir Edward called on these men to help the government to find the necessary courage by making their voices heard in unmistakable language.

He prefaced his railway discussion with a tribute to Windsor as a "natural centre for the development of Canadian manufacturers, which represents our attempt to keep our economic life on something like a par with that great nation which adjoins us."

"Transportation costs were too much in Canada and it can be made

Shot At A Pheasant Is A Costly Affair

Hamilton, Dec. 8

ONE shot at a pheasant proved an expensive proposition for Gordon Green. In magistrate's court today he was fined $30 and costs or 30 days and his shotgun was ordered confiscated following conviction on a charge of hunting game in the township of Saltfleet without a license on November 20.

"The authorities in this county are making a strenuous effort to preserve pheasants and I feel a drastic penalty is needed when a person is convicted of hunting them out of season," commented Magistrate H. A. Burbidge. "Hence the fine of $75 which I imposed in the last case of this kind."

Bespeaks For Successor Co-operation of Members

John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society here for twelve years, tendered his resignation at a special adjourned meeting of the directorate on Tuesday afternoon. He bespoke for his successor, "The support of the Board which I feel I did not receive."

Accepting the resignation, the Board named a special committee to deal with the situation and to consider details for re-organization of the Society along lines recommended by H. V. Helsey, provincial superintendent of Children's Aid Societies for Ontario.

Coming to the city at the request of the Society two weeks ago, Mr. Helsey at a meeting closed to the press was understood to have explained why Peterborough Children's Aid Society had only a "D" rating and to have urged reorganization of the society executive and employment of a fully qualified social service worker.

Calls Meeting to Order

Calling Tuesday afternoon's meeting to order, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, president, explained, that at the last meeting a representative of the Department of Public Welfare "presented a certain matter to the Board and left it to the consideration of the directorate." He suggested that Superintendent Edgar, who was not admitted to the meeting when administration of the Society was under fire of the Departmental official, "be requested to come in and offer any explanation he wishes to make."

Alderman Walter Stocker moved that Mr. Edgar be heard. There was no immediate seconder to the motion and a discussion ensued.

Alderman James Duton felt the directorate should first decide what they were going to do. "If Mr. Edgar comes into the meeting he should be informed of what has been recommended. Certain reflections were made on the administration of the children's Aid Society. We invited the representative of the Department here. The Department accepted. Their representative came realizing the Department was on the spot. But today the situation is somewhat changed and we have an individual on the spot."

Should be Given Chance

"What Mr. Edgar does might affect what we might say, I feel it he comes before the meeting and makes an explanation we are giving him the chance to do what he wants to do first." Dr. Barr urged. He believed Mr. Edgar should be given a fair chance to "defend" himself.

"You say bring Mr. Edgar in to defend himself. How is he to know on what he has to defend himself?" Mayor George Macdonald asked. "He was not present at the last

Ten Hotels Are Under Suspension

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Liquor Commissioner E. G. Odette announced to-day suspension of licenses of the Royal and Venice Hotels, Hamilton, bringing the total of hotels under suspension to 10.

Dr. W. D. Smith Is Given Gov't Job

TORONTO, Dec. 8—(CP).—Dr. W. Davey Smith, former Liberal M.L.A. for Dufferin-Simcoe, defeated in the October 6 general election, has been appointed chief medical officer of the Department of Health with a commission to study administration of and conditions in all Ontario mental hospitals. He will serve for a time as assistant to the superintendent at Whitby.

It is reported Dr. Smith is slated for the superintendency of the new Ontario hospital now being constructed outside St. Thomas.

Proposals To Train Dull Pupils Separately Termed Undemocratic

Philadelphia, Dec. 8

PROPOSALS by educationists to train dull Johnny separately from brighter pupils were termed "undemocratic" today by the American Federation of Teachers.

Mrs. Freda Ehrenreich, chairman of the professional problems committee of the Teachers' Union, said a brief had been filed with the city board of education opposing a works survey committee recommendation that pupils be segregated according to academic ability.

The works committee report asserted the lower fifth of the school population, on the basis of intelligence ratings, "have always been the hewers of wood and the drawers of water" and that trying to educate them in the present way was "sheer waste."

"The works plan," Mrs. Ehrenreich said, "would divide Americans into sheep and goats at the early age of eight. It would be difficult for a person to escape at any time from this early classification."

RIVAL AIR RAIDS TAKE HEAVY TOLL IN SPANISH TOWNS

MADRID, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Barcelona and other towns of government-held eastern coast of Spain and Palma, Balearic Island air and naval base of the insurgents, sifted the debris of shattered buildings to-day for victims of rival air raids reported to have taken hundreds of casualties.

While 15 insurgent planes swept in from the Mediterranean yesterday to bomb Barcelona, capital of the Spanish republic, 24 government air raiders spanned the 150 miles of sea between the eastern coast and Mallorca to strike a devastating blow at the insurgents' base at Palma.

A heavy toll of dead and injured was reported from Barcelona and other coastal towns caught in the insurgent bombing.

The Government airmen reported they dumped thousands of pounds of bombs on military objectives at Palma.

The island city, one famous as a Mediterranean resort, was characterized in the government communique as the seat of considerable "Italian resources" in support of the insurgents.

Four Planes Shot Down.

The communique said three insurgent planes and one government craft were shot down in the air battle. No details of the damage at Palma were available through government channels.

In Madrid several persons were killed by artillery fire in the populous Puente De Toledo quarter, site of one of the city's principal markets.

There were other casualties in the centre of the former Republican capital from yesterday's battering by the siege of guns. The shelling of the Puente De Toledo section caused a minor panic.

The first company of the British battalion of the International Brigade was named Monday in honor of Clement R. Attlee, Opposition leader in the House of Commons, who has just completed a trip to the Madrid front.

EGG PRODUCERS RECEIVE CHARTER

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (CP) — The "O'Pep," otherwise known as the Ontario Poultry Farm and Egg Producers Co-operative Association, a commercial poultry producers organization sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has completed its marketing arrangements and has been granted a charter as a co-operative under the Ontario Companies Act, it was announced at Queen's Park today.

The association has been operating since September under a provisional board of directors and has already marketed for its 36 members some 80,000 dozen high quality fresh eggs. At the present time the "O'-Pep" members are marketing 9,000 dozen eggs a week, mostly in Toronto, through produce brokers.

The board of directors, elected at a meeting of members in the Ontario Department of Agriculture board room are: F. H. Schuits, Brantford; F. E. Ellis, Woodstock; W. H. Peel, Port Perry; W. L. Whyte, Seaforth; R. H. Carter, Port Hope and C. F. Luckham, St. Williams.

$1 FOR A DOUGHNUT

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 8—(AP).—Loss of a doughnut to Grocer W. H. Martin 30 years ago was like money in the bank—interest included. He read to-day an anonymous letter which contained $1, and said:

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 204

Sock On Nose Calms Actress' Party

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)

PAUL E. May cheerfully admitted today that it was he who took a sock on the nose during a night club controversy at the ringside table of the opera and movie star, Grace Moore, who was celebrating her thirty-sixth birthday.

"Miss Moore is a friend of mine, and I admire her," said May. "I wasn't going to stand for any one hissing her. So I got up from my table and walked over to see who was doing it. The next thing I knew I saw a whole lot of fists, and it was all over."

Others in the club said today that the hissing May heard wasn't the first that festive night, intimated members of Miss Moore's party were responsible for interruptions that may have annoyed other guests.

VICEROY TO REVIVE POMP IN ETHIOPIA WITH ROYAL COURT

ROME, Dec. 8 (A.P.). — The Italian cruiser Zara, escorted by four destroyers, will steam out of Naples on December 15, carrying a new Viceroy and princely pomp to Ethiopia.

Plans for the departure of the Duke of Acata, cousin of King Vittorio Emanuele and newly appointed Viceroy of Ethiopia, were announced in Rome to-day.

The 39-year-old Duke will have a little court of his own at Addis Ababa, where legend says dusky courtiers once wailed upon the glamorous Queen of Sheba and where late Haile Selassie moved among his retainers with his umbrella carriers.

The court will be viceregal, if not royal, with a prince of the blood, the scion of 40 Savoian sovereigns at his head. There will be gentlemen-in-waiting to the Duke and ladies-in-waiting to the Duchess, the former Princess Anne of France, daughter of the Pretender and herself the descendant of 40 Bourbon kings.

Premier Mussolini's chief idea in selecting Aosta to succeed Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was to bind Ethiopia, whose conquest still is unrecognized by a large part of the world, more closely to the House of Savoy and the prestige it enjoys in Europe.

GUNMEN GIVEN SLIP BY BANKER

Canadian National Railways tracks, the other to the Canadian Pacific tracks.

Find Abandoned Gun, Liquor

Behind the bank, police found the sawed-off shotgun carried by one of the men with two shells in the chamber. Near the C.P.R. tracks they found a flashlight, 17 shotgun shells and a bottle of liquor, partly consumed. Later a fur cap, similar to that worn by one of the men, was found.

Graham, Addison and their wives had finished playing bridge and were having lunch when the robbers came into the room from the back stairway.

"Mr. Graham went to the door and the two men burst into the apartment," Mrs. Graham said. "They told him they wanted the payroll out of the bank.

"When he said the payroll didn't arrive until this morning, they said 'We know it is in the bank'."

"They came into the room and upset the bridge table. Dishes flew everywhere and there was no need for it. They tied Mrs. Addison and me up with a rope and gagged us. Then they put us on the floor."

Mrs. Graham said the robbers were very brutal with Mrs. Addison, kicking her." The wife of the Coniston United Church pastor was not injured, however.

"They knew us because they told me to keep quiet or they would 'drill' my husband and 'take it out on the kid'," Mrs. Graham related. "The baby was asleep in the bedroom so they must have known us.

"After they threw us on the floor they ordered my husband and Mr. Addison downstairs to the bank. They said they were going to have him open the vault, but he couldn't have opened it because he did not have the combination. The teller has the combination."

Mrs. Graham said when they hurried through the room on their way out, the men "must have been angry, for they fired a shot which struck Mr. Addison's overcoat on the couch. They fired again as they left by the back stairs."

Australia has a cycling craze. Sweden has a building boom.

Miss Caron was picked as Canada's queen in this year's contest.

Separate School Plea Is Laid Before Manitoba Probe

Threaten Strong Protest If Call For Same Treatment As In Saskatchewan Is Ignored

WINNIPEG, Dec. 8 (CP).—Manitoba presentations to the Rowell Commission were expected to end today with Saskatchewan sessions scheduled to open tomorrow in Regina.

A brief submitted yesterday "on behalf of the Catholic minority" in Manitoba urged the Commission recommend Manitoba Catholics be granted the same status regarding maintenance of Catholic schools as existed in Saskatchewan.

In Saskatchewan separate schools share in the Provincial school grant and the individual taxpayer specifies which schools he desires to support. The tax rates for Roman Catholic and Protestant schools are computed separately in each municipality.

The Manitoba brief charged discrimination against Catholics. "If you ignore it we shall certainly be disappointed and compelled to make a strong protest which we believe may have Dominion-wide repercussions," the brief said.

After F. W. Russell completed reading the brief, signed by two men from each of 14 Winnipeg parishes, Commissioner Dr. Joseph Sirois asked: "Have you any special reason for believing that the Commission would not receive and study your brief as with others?"

"I think certainly it will," replied Mr. Russell. At Mr. Sirois' suggestion Mr. Russell said that he wished to have the sentence beginning: "If you ignore it..." deleted from the brief.

Gay Colors To Deck English Engines

Doncaster, Eng., Dec. 8 (CP)

BLUE body with red wheels is the color scheme in Great Britain's initial move to give the drab railway locomotive a gayer appearance.

The striking color scheme was used for the 100th Pacific type engine of the London and North-Eastern Railway, which recently left the Doncaster works. Future engines will be painted in silver, bright green, chocolate, maroon and red.

business and professional men of the city to offer themselves for service on the City Council. "Some of us have carried along for many years, and it is about time that younger men with the proper background should accept some responsibility in the city's management. A few years of service on the Council will be valuable to them, giving them an insight into municipal affairs and responsible government."

First elected to City Council in 1926, Mayor Macdonald served as chairman of the Legal Committee and later the Manufacturers Committee. In 1932 he took over the important office of Chairman of the Finance Committee, and served as Chairman of this Committee until his election as Mayor in 1936. He was returned as mayor this year by acclamation.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Large United States corn exports and higher Chicago wheat prices induced eastern and seaboard buying on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Wheat futures rallied from one-cent low points to close 1⅝ to 1⅝ cents higher, December $1.19⅝, May $1.16⅝ and July $1.17⅞ to $1.12.

Earlier prices eased in sympathy with lower Liverpool and easier Canadian cash wheat prices. Volume of selling was light and the market had little difficulty in making headway when buying power from outside sources appeared.

Sales of Canadian wheat for export were estimated at 150,000 bushels, but the most influential market factor apparent was reports of a 1,000,000-bushel business in U. S. corn.

Air Chief Hurt

Rescued from an Imperial Airways flying boat which crashed in the harbor of Brindisi, Italy, killing two persons, Sir John Salmond, former air marshal of Great Britain, was found to have sustained a cut shoulder. The 11 passengers rescued, including Sir John, all suffered injuries.

Rail Shares Lead In General Rally

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Prices advanced fractions to 2 points or more in today's stock market as rail shares led a rally in which virtually all divisions joined.

Mixed just after the opening, the market advanced as buying appeared in increasing volume. Trading was about 1,500,000 shares.

Higher and actively traded were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Westinghouse Electric, Texas Corp., Allied Chemical, Johns Manville and Eastman Kodak.

Confident of Canada's Capacity for Recovery

BANK OF MONTREAL'S 120TH ANNUAL MEETING

Sir Charles Gordon Sees Continuance of Better Times If Dominion Not Unduly Affected by International Disturbances.

Jackson Dodds, General Manager, Presents Strong Financial Statement, Showing Substantial Increases in Loans, Deposits and Assets.

Declaring that Canada had been demonstrating in the past year a remarkable resiliency in productive enterprise, Sir Charles Gordon, in his presidential address to shareholders at the recent annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, expressed confident belief in Canada's ability to carry on with success the recovery that had been in progress for the last twelve months. The meeting also received the financial report of the bank, presented by Jackson Dodds on behalf of himself and his fellow general manager, G. W. Spinney. The statement showed substantial increases in commercial loans, in deposits, and in total assets, which latter stood at $829,600,000, the highest figure since 1929.

In viewing business conditions over the wide territory in which the bank operates, Sir Charles said that these had much improved and were a happy contrast with the conditions of but two years ago. The one really serious handicap was in those portions of the Prairie Provinces where drought caused total or partial loss of the crop.

Canada, he said, had been demonstrating in the past year a remarkable resiliency in productive enterprise.

As instances of the latter he referred to the remarkable growth of gold production and of the output of industrial metals, remarking that with the exception of iron Canada was now the world's largest exporter of base metals. He spoke also of the growth of the exports of lumber, asbestos and gypsum, of newsprint and of bleached sulphite pulp, saying it was this resiliency in industrial enterprise which endowed Canada with so great a capacity for recuperation.

Canada's Manufactures Worth Three Billions

He further pointed out that whereas Canada was until quite recently regarded as a country devoted almost entirely to agriculture, today agriculture provided 35 per cent. of the exports and other forms of industry the balance. Canada now employs 600,000 people in 30,000 workshops, mills and factories, and the annual value of its manufactured products amounts to more than $3,000,000,000.

Canada's foreign trade, he said, had grown by leaps and bounds and for the calendar year would attain a total approaching two billion dollars, of which some $320,000,000 would represent a favourable balance.

Biggest Trade With U.S.

He pointed out that four-fifths of this total trade was with Great Britain and the United States, adding that due to the fact that Canada bought more largely from the United States than Great Britain, the trade with the United States for the 12 months ended September 30 last was around $395,000,000 greater than the trade with Great Britain.

At the same time he noted with satisfaction that neither the Government nor the business men neglected opportunities to further trade with other countries. In the past two years formal trade agreements had been concluded with no less than 15 countries, and today Canada was one of the few countries in the world which employed no trade quotas, no exchange restrictions, and no embargoes other than those associated with the traffic in arms.

"If the remedy for world-wide civil and international strife," he said, "lies in international economic co-operation, as I believe it does, then Canada, I think it can be said, is doing its full share along that line."

Heavy Drains on National Revenue

He spoke of continuing losses on national railway account and of excessive taxation as two factors draining too large a proportion of the national revenue into unproductive channels. He found some hope in the greater general understanding of the railway problem as bringing nearer the inevitable remedial measures, and regarding taxation said the national finances had so greatly improved that Treasury officials now hoped for a balanced budget at the end of the fiscal year in March next.

"We may hope," he remarked, "that in due time the improvement will be reflected in a decrease in taxation; it certainly will be reflected in the strengthening of the whole credit structure of this country."

In concluding his remarks, Sir Charles, while not attempting a forecast on the Canadian business outlook, expressed his confidence in Canada's "remarkable capacity for recovery", which, if not unduly affected by international disturbances, would, he felt, mean a continuance of the better times which Canadians had experienced during the past year.

Commercial Loans Show Increase

One of the most important features of the financial statement presented by Mr. Dodds was the increase shown in current loans in Canada of more than $23,000,000 to $182,500,000. For the year ended September 30, the current loans of all the banks had increased by $75,500,000. While the increase was welcome, he said it was not commensurate with the growth in the volume of business and the improvement in commodity prices.

Pointing out that the ratio of the Bank's investments to deposits was 60 per cent., Mr. Dodds said: "This is much higher than we would like it to be; we would prefer to have a larger proportion of our funds out in loans for productive and business purposes. But it is beyond the power of a commercial bank to increase at will its total of safe loans; the initiative lies with the borrowers. A commercial bank cannot afford to have idle money on its hands beyond the amount required to meet ordinary withdrawals and for cash reserve purposes."

Many Factors in Loans Situation Not Temporary

In considering the various factors which had contributed to the reduced demand for banking accommodation, Mr. Dodds said that it must be recognized that many of them are not of a passing nature.

"On the other hand," he pointed out, "thanks to invention and scientific research, new industries are always coming into being, resulting in new sources of business for the banks.

"During the past 120 years the Bank of Montreal has kept abreast of the changing times, consistently taking its full part in aiding basic productive pursuits, old and new industries, trade and commerce. Banking is an essential part of the intricate machinery of industry and business — in addition to supplementing capital employed, commercial banks provide many other necessary facilities and services, at a cost to clients which represents relatively their smallest item in operating expense.

Bank's Assets 79.58% Liquid.

The assets of the bank, standing at $829,600,000, were the highest since 1929. Of this amount $599,000,000 represented quickly available resources, equal to 79.58% of liabilities to the public, amounting to $752,736,000.

"This extremely strong position", said Mr. Dodds, "is beyond ordinary needs and reflects the fact that the demand of our customers for loans for commercial purposes is still considerably below normal."

Profits Show Moderate Increase

The profit and loss account showed net earnings, after deducting Dominion and Provincial taxes, at $3,408,328, as compared with $3,181,501 in 1936 — an increase of $326,827.

In commenting on profits, Mr. Dodds pointed out that Dominion and Provincial taxes for the year, without taking into consideration taxes paid to municipalities, amounted to over 27 per cent. of the bank's net profits, or over 32 per cent. of the dividend.

Deposits Higher

Among other highlights, the statement presented by the general managers showed that deposits by the public had increased by $28,000,000 to $681,000,000. Commenting on this item, Mr. Dodds said: "Despite all that is written and said nowadays on the subject of 'loans creating deposits', 'fountain pen money' and 'monetizing' assets, including what is described as 'our cultural heritage,' it is safe to say that not one of our customers, whose balances make up our total of deposits by the public, has any doubt whatsoever as to how his or her deposit came into being."

Lindberghs Surprise America With Sudden Return

Almost with the bombshell suddenness of their departure, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the United States, leaving their two children in England where they have sought seclusion. Their arrival from Britain was unheralded and "leaked out" only after the liner on which they crossed had docked. This picture made during the voyage, shows the colonel and his wife, who travelled under assumed names as Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, at dinner at the captain's table with Capt. James E. Roberts. The famed flying couple shunned public appearances during their trip and were whisked away to the Englewood, N.J., estate of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother upon their arrival at New York.

ALLEGES RULERS MISUSE ROYALTY

LONDON, Dec. 8 (CP).—A charge that British royalty had in the past few years been used for political purposes has been made by Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor left-winger.

"I do not impugn the impartiality of the Crown, acting as it must on the instructions of the government of the day," declared Sir Stafford, addressing the Fabian Society. "But I do assert, what is, I believe, obvious to anyone with an objective outlook, that political parties and governments, as a means of perpetuating nothing more important than their own power and privileges, can, and often do, make a very dangerous and wrong use of the traditional and semi-feudal loyalties still surrounding the idea of kingship in the minds of the common people."

He asked if anyone had the slightest doubt but that "unprecedented" displays of the last few years in connection with royalty had been deliberately staged by the ruling class to advance their own political interests.

He was nauseated to hear the phrase: "For God, King and country," used to rally workers to the assistance of a class absorbed in the maintenance of its own property, wealth and privilege. This class publicly abused the bishops if they dared to point the application of Christian truths and deposed the King if he endangered their power. They also would risk the safety of their own country if they thought their own interests might be preserved.

Time Rolls Back 2,000 Years In Yuletide Pageant

Astronomers Seek To Explain Mysterious Origin Of Star Of Bethlehem

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Awe-eyed spectators were carried back across the centuries today to witness age-old events in the story of Christmas.

The yule-tide pageant, performed annually at the Heyden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History, whisked them from 1937 New York to far-off Palestine in the year eight B.C.—a journey of thousands of miles and nearly 2,000 years, in exactly six seconds.

In startling realism, time turned back and across a star-strewn sky the visit of the three wise men to the manger of the little Christ child in Bethlehem was dramatized. Inter-woven with the pageant were depicted explanations given by astronomers in their efforts to solve the mysterious origin of the start of Bethlehem—a graphic visualization of the celestial spectacles that may have been the uncharted star.

Five versions appear. First comes a nova or exploding star, whose brilliant sky-streaking flare may have been seen by the three wise men and led them to the birthplace of the humble carpenter's child who lived to die in torment on a hill called Golcotha.

Meteors, Fireballs

Next, meteors and fireballs flash across the sky. They, too, may have been taken as heralds of important events.

Third, the planet Venus is shown close to the horizon as a morning star—another theory for the mythical star of Bethlehem.

Fourt, Savants believe it may have been a comet that the wise men saw. Records kept by Chinese astronomers indicate that a comet was in the sky in four B.C.

Lastly, the planetarium shows a triple conjuncture of Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, which occurred at the time of the nativity.

"The light of the three planets, brought together in a close triangle, could easily have been interpreted as a heavenly sign, and it is highly possible that they may have been regarded as a symbol," said F. Trubee Davison, president of the museum.

FORCED OUT OF GAME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Mrs. J. A. Faulkner of Belleville, Ont., said today she was recovering from a cold that developed during her playing in the national contract bridge championship.

The cold settled in her sinuses, causing fever and she was forced to drop out of the tournament.

She said the fever had subsided today and she was well on the way to getting well.

WEATHER BOOSTS BRITISH JOBLESS

LONDON, Dec. 8—(CP-Havas).—The war in China, continued unfavorable weather and excessive supplies of goods on hands in the textile industry here described today as the most important factors in the increase registered in unemployment figures for the period between October 18 and November 15.

The increase was 108,954, one of the biggest in recent years, and it brought the total number of unemployed in Great Britain to 1,499,203.

The accumulation of excessive stocks of goods on hand has resulted in considerable unemployment in the textile industry itself and also in associated industries which are suffering from a lack of new orders.

Inclement weather has blanketed all of the United Kingdom almost continuously for more than a month and has retarded outside building work. "This also swelled the number of unemployed.

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 8 (CP)—An inquiring reporter asked Stratford people if wives should vote the way their husbands do. Only one woman was found who admitted she did as her husband said on election day.

FRENCH MINISTER ARRIVES.

MONTREAL.—Count Robert de Damphierre, newly-appointed French Minister to Canada, arrived here today from New York and entrained a half-hour later for Ottawa. He was accompanied by the Countess and their two children.

GLOUCESTER AIMS AT CANADIAN TRIP

LONDON, Dec. 8 (CP Cable).—The Duke of Gloucester last night told a Canada Club dinner he hoped he and the Duchess might be able in the near future to go to Canada.

He recalled a brief visit he made to the Dominion in 1929, when he suffered an accident while playing polo.

A fortnight's holiday on the east coast of Canada, he said, would give better value for the money spent than a month in many overcrowded continental resorts.

The Duke recalled that he broke his collarbone in an accident at Vancouver, five hours after landing on Canadian soil.

"What I heard and saw during that all too brief visit has remained with me ever since as an incentive to go back there."

Since 1929 he had followed "the fortunes of the Dominion, her many problems and her peculiar genius for surmounting them, with an interest that I know will increase as the years go by."

The Duke said that Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, mentioned the large number of Canadians who came to England last summer for the Coronation.

"He has told us Canada would welcome a greater reciprocity of visits," the Duke continued. "I should like to endorse this suggestion with all the power at my command."

The dinner was a brilliant gathering of Canadian and British notables —Canadians from all walks of life in London attending.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1937

This Should Be Done

A number of market gardeners told Peterborough Council they would like to see something done toward securing a covered market. And we dare say there are a number of folk who were not represented in that delegation who would like to say the same thing. There was nothing approaching serious objection on the part of the civic body, and no doubt the question which remains to be settled is the financing of the scheme.

Truth is there is a situation which ought to be attended to. There are fine days when the open market is all right. There are other days when there is rain and sleet and snow and hot sun when the open market is all wrong.

We do not believe the farmers' market here should be run with the expectation that it will become a good revenue producer. We want the people of this district to feel that Peterborough is ready to make it as comfortable and convenient for them as possible when they bring their produce here for sale.

Votes of Husbands and Wives

Some person in Stratford made the remark that women generally voted the same way as their husbands, and that caused the Beacon-Herald of that city to send its native runners out to find if there was truth or a falsity in that claim.

Most of the people who answered the question leaned toward the belief that a wife did not necessarily vote the same way as the husband, and that if she went forth on polling day and killed the vote registered by her spouse then it would be quite all right. Nor is it likely that many will quarrel with that belief.

Reference was also made to husbands telling their wives how they should vote. To what extent that is done we have no way of knowing. It would seem a bit strange for the man of the house on voting day to leave instructions of that sort. It would make the little woman in the house feel small indeed. And if she did not feel small after receiving instructions of that sort then she should do so.

One woman in Stratford said plainly she depended on her husband to tell her about public affairs, and she took it for granted that he knew more about such matters than she did and she could safely trust his opinion and advice on the ticklish subject of the great outside world in general. Ah! There's a woman for you. We have not the least doubt she still feels something like a thrill as she points to him in the company of others and says "My husband." She fortifies him with victuals in the morning and again at noon and sees him stride forth to battle with the world and wrest from it what honorable gain he can. He it is who has learned by being buffeted about what men are good, what are bad and what are of no account. So he becomes the Gamaliel from whom she can learn firm in the belief that he will speak wisely and well. And the candidate who seemeth good to such a husband has also won the ballot of the wife. If they are victorious in their selection then they rejoice together, and if defeat awaits their selection at the polls then they can share a mutual grief. There's a whole heap to be said for living and voting that way.

Let Us Begin At Home

When we read addresses which advocate the opening of the doors and the bringing of more people to this country, there is always something coming along in the news of the day to show why it should not be done. And right now it should not be done until we have solved the problem of looking after the people who are in our country. We have a large number of our own young men who have not yet made a start. They have been coming through our secondary schools for a number of years and going out into a country where industry has not been running to capacity. The result is that the supply of our own young people has become greater than the demand for them.

From Sudbury comes the report that the number of young men who are arriving there looking for work is approaching alarming proportions. The impression seems to have gone abroad that the mines and bush there can absorb a large number of workers, but that is not the case. An average of 30 men seek shelter in the police station there every night. Some of these appear in police court the following morning on the open charge of vagrancy and their addresses on a recent day ranged from Ottawa to Alberta.

One young man from Ottawa, 21 years of age, told the magistrate he could not find any work and was starving. The solution which he suggested for his own case was that he be sent to jail for four months. So he was fined $2, which he could not pay, and the alternative was four months in jail for which he had asked. So there you have it—a young Canadian of 21 years desiring to go to jail for the winter so he would have a place to sleep and keep warm and something to eat. And the price he will pay is that at 21 he will be known as having served time.

If he were alone the thing would not be serious, but he is one of a large number, and these young fellows are our own folk. We can see nothing else to it—we must look after them first before we talk seriously of throwing open the doors and inviting a rush of immigration.

Another Example

Another case has come plainly to the surface showing there is in existence some agency whose business it is to have stories published in newspapers for the purpose of making trouble.

This time the newspapers in Italy are annoyed and troubled because a report came from Vienna concerning the existence of what was described as a secret British naval document.

The document was said to be sent out from "the British first lord of the admiralty to the British naval command" saying that Britain intended to seize Palestine and annex it at the first opportune moment, and to occupy the Portuguese-owned Azores Islands by force to keep her Atlantic lines of communication open against any foreign threat. Palestine is now administered by Great Britain under a mandate from the League of Nations.

Admiralty officials in London say the report is so ridiculous that it is not worth denying, and undoubtedly that is correct. But what of the people in Italy who read the report in their own papers and also note the degree of wrath which has been stirred against Britain. The Italian readers have seen no denial of the report, and as the papers there are under government censorship the people are apt to believe what they see.

The thing is as plain as a pikestaff. There are agencies in existence which are using the newspapers to serve their own miserable purposes. In this case the purpose is to create as much suspicion and ill-feeling as possible between Italy and Britain. The Italian newspapers, controlled as they are, could easily have secured verification or denial of the story by asking London, but apparently they were as ready and willing to publish the story as the agency in Vienna was to invent it and send it out. The more of that kind of material which is published the greater will be the willingness of people in the affected nations to keep on building greater fleets and storing greater supplies of munitions, and that in turn is good for the armament ring whose business knows no national boundaries.

Should Not Be Allowed

The information which is being produced regarding the wages paid to the drivers of some trucking firms and the hours which these drivers work does not make pleasant reading. It is reported that one driver has worked 115 hours per week for which he received in wages the sum of $12 and that is just a fraction over ten cents per hour. In another case $9 was paid for a 70-hour week.

In 1930 when wages were much better the truckers were receiving an average of 78 cents per hundred pounds first class to 58 cents fourth class, while this year the average ran about 40 cents per hundred for all classes.

Competition to secure business resulted in the cutting down of prices, and the bringing down of prices meant the bringing down of revenue. The bringing down of revenue in turn meant the cutting of expenses, and wages appear to have one place where the process of reduction was felt most sharply.

It has been related that one trucker working out of Toronto is carrying goods at from 12 to 14 cents per hundred pounds and it is reported his trucks are in such condition he is always having trouble with them. All these things were made known to the Royal Commission hearing evidence in Toronto. It was also recorded that some of the companies were paying good wages and keeping their equipment in shape.

In a business of this sort the regulations should be made uniform. Such regulations, if it called for good equipment and good wages, might put some of the lesser concerns out of business, but public interest and public safety must have first consideration. The reason for that view in this case is that all these vehicles and some of the drivers who must be worn out to the point of exhaustion by reason of long hours, are using the public highways and they are doing so continually day and night. There is sufficient hazard there now without permitting it to be added to by conditions which on the face of them are known to be highly dangerous to public safety.

The Snow Is Useful

Toronto policemen found it necessary to pursue four youths some distance before catching up with them. They were wanted on charges of housebreaking. During the chase it was necessary to go over half a dozen roofs, down an eavestrough, over fences and through lanes.

The pursuers, we learn, lost their scent several times, but the track was taken up by other officers who were more successful. We find too that snow had been falling and on that account it was rather easy for the successful officers to scamper along until they had succeeded.

We take it that it must be easier for a detective to do his detecting after the snow has fallen. It is not necessary for him to pause in an alley or on a street corner to come to a conclusion. All that is necessary is that he should go straight ahead following the footprints which have been left for him. Previously we had not looked upon snow as an instrument to aid in the detection of crime, but it seems to work out that way in Toronto.

When Russia Votes

There is to be an election in Russia on the 12th of December, and before it takes place we know how it is going to come out. And so do the people in Russia. It is going to result in an almost unanimous endorsation of the government and its ways. It is not an election as we understand the word because there is but one candidate in nearly every district. If there happens to be a second candidate here and there then an error or plain blunder has been made. The election will not tip the government over. Not for a moment. It will make it appear the government is more firmly than ever entrenched in Moscow.

And that is the reason for having the election. Propagandists—and they are clever enough at it in Russia—cause the people to believe that aggressor nations are ready always to strike at Russia, and therefore the people of Russia must speak and say they are united to the last man. And that is the sort of voice they want to come from the ballot.

"To vote for the same candidate is to prove your discipline and patriotism. It is to do your duty before the enemy within and without. Not to do so is equivalent to sabotage and treason."

Any one who has followed the course of events in the Soviet union knows well enough the result of sabotage or treason in that land. It means "liquidation" of the individual, and that of course is a new and pleasant name for death. So the election in Russia is on these lines: Vote for the government. If you do not then it is possible or likely you will not have another chance to vote.

NOTE AND COMMENT

In view of the mayoralty results some optimists are undoubtedly pointing out that a new Day has dawned for Toronto.

It is to be hoped it will not be necessary to resort to conscription to get enough men in the race to man the city council.

Evidence was given in Toronto of a truck driver getting $12 for 115 hours work. There is one man who has no worries as to how to spend his spare time or invest his surplus funds.

Two Alberta motorists have had the experience of driving their cars into trains and escaping unhurt. It is as well to remember however that most folk who try that kind of thing never read about it in the newspapers afterward.

TOAST

(By A. R. K.)

¶ It is not well to brag or boast, of doing small jobs like making toast, and doing it to a turn; how when the thing is hot and done, it bears a tan just like the sun, and it will never burn.

¶ For if I hasten with the stuff, and leave it there not long enough, I know I'll surely fail; for then it's neither crisp nor brown, but looks anaemic and run down, and it is very pale.

¶ And if the postman comes just then, brings letters from some urgent men, from bill-collecting folk; they threaten how they'll jail me yet, my toasting job I quite forget, and it goes up in smoke.

¶ Not often does it come just so, and wear a touch of amber glow, and crisp as it can be; for if I made such perfect stuff, officials would come soon enough, and pin a badge on me.

¶ And if the folk tell tales and joke, I never notice all the smoke, I sit and answer back; I rescue toast that should be good, but it don't look like how it should, for it is very black.

¶ And so I never talk or boast, about this job of making toast, or how the thing should be; I'd have to sit there undisturbed, with no one saying yet a word —and some one watching me.

One of the world's unique railways is the Cassville and Exeter road operated in the state of Missouri by Dave Dingler, 72. Three times a week President Dingler makes a 20-minute uphill dash from Cassville over his 4.6 miles of wobbly track to the Frisco's main line at Exeter, using from one to five borrowed freight cars. To get home, he merely releases the brakes and coasts backward. The line hauls fruit, livestock, wood and coal and reputedly nets Dingler about $250 a month.

Canada Has Too Much Railway Service

More in Existence Than Can Be Profitably Used Move Toward Amalgamation Should Be Carefully Made

(St. Catharines Standard)

BASICALLY, SAYS A recent issue of "Printed Word," our railway problem, however created, is that we have more track and more equipment than we can profitably use. The excess plant of both the publicly-owned and privately-owned systems was built with borrowed money and the loans continue to bear interest even though the interest is not earned. Refunding of loans has decreased the interest charges, but until the net earnings of the roads are increased so that they become self-supporting, the debt will continue to mount.

The competition of other forms of transportation precludes the consideration of rate increases as a means of raising net earnings. In fact, the railways have more hope of regaining business lost to the motor truck if they decrease rates, or offer more service for the same rates, as in the case of the pick up and delivery system now in force in some cities. The reduction of costs, however, still seems to be a matter for fruitful study.

Already much wasteful duplication of passenger service has been removed through the institution of pool trains. The traveller between Toronto and Montreal now has a better service and nine times out of ten does not notice whether he is travelling in a C. N. R. or C. P. R. coach. If unification of service can be successfully established in this department, is it unreasonable to expect that it would be advantageous in other departments as well?

In fairness to railway workers, unification must proceed gradually. It is a matter of common knowledge that many competent railwaymen have had little or no work in the past few years, and any step that would throw a large number of men out of work at one time would be economically unsound. A gradual reduction in employment could be carried out over a period of years without hardship. The retiring age might be set a few years earlier, thus accelerating the promotion of younger workers, while new men would not be engaged as long as there was an adequate supply of experienced labor.

Some consideration must be given to the shareholders of the C. P. R. as well as to the shareholders of the C. N. R. who are all the people of Canada. The investment of the C. N. R. shareholders has proved to be a liability of unlimited extent under present conditions, therefore they should be satisfied with any plan that will relieve them of a further increase in the national debt. The C. P. R. shareholders would be justified in protesting against any move that would saddle their road with debts which earnings could not discharge in time, but should welcome any plan that offered a fair chance of restoring their almost forgotten dividends.

The public interest is already protected from any fancied dangers of monopoly by the Board of Railway Commissioners and the competition of the motor truck, and lake and river steamer. The shipper or traveller will continue to use the transportation facilities that give him the best service at the lowest cost, and this fact will keep a single transportation system just as alert as two competing systems.

Getting Paid 2 or 3 Separate Places

Supplementary Salaries Help to Bring the Total Up; Several Who Have Spare Time to Sell to Government

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

IN THE PUBLIC accounts of 1935-36 the Hepburn government revived the practice of listing officials in the Parliament Buildings who received pay from more than one source. Their names and the particulars of their remuneration, of interest to earnest students of the blue-book, including civil servants, covered three pages. This year the list takes only two pages, due to the Health Department dropping from 18 to five names. Of the 34 now shown, 23 are names of officials in the Department of Education.

The remuneration additional to salaries ranges in this department from $65 to $1,018. Most of the larger amounts are found under the heading of "extra services of professional and supervising board of examiners." W. A. Beecroft received $200, A. J. Beneteau $400, J. P. Cowles $500, J. P. Hoag $400, A. G. Hooper and A. J. Husband $500 each, W. J. Karr $000, and so on. Mr. Beecroft is a clerk, Mr. Hooper and Mr. Husband are inspectors, W. J. Karr is director of professional training schools and Mr. Beneteau is director of French instruction. Names of nine officials appear in three different places in the accounts, exclusive of travelling and office expenses, which are not listed with "remuneration" but range from $900 to $1,100 in most cases.

The extra remuneration brings one salary of $4,949 to $5,388, and of $4,555 to $5,812 and another of $4,909 to $5,967. And very nice, too. There must be an official vacation of considerable length, during which regular duties are at a standstill and during which period these officials are not subject to call. In other words, they are evidently paid for 10 months of the year, like teachers, or they would not be at liberty to sell spare time to the government. It is an entirely different set-up from the remainder of the "extra remuneration" list, composing department employees who look after more than one job concurrently and are paid in each capacity.

There Should Have Been a War in 1937

Some People Believe in Certain Arrangement of Dates; But the Year is Nearly Through and No British War Yet

(Chatham News)

THE MATHEMATICAL dopster, who manipulates figures to explain the past and fortell the future, is always with us. He came to the front the other day with a most unusual set of dates and additions, to fortell war in 1937—and while it was not convincing, it was at least interesting. This is the way he did it.

First of all, take the date 1880. That was the year in which the Crimean war was declared. It lasted one year. So add one to it and you have 1881. Now add the figures 1, 8, 8 and 1 together and add the total to 1881, and you have 1899, the year in which the Boer war was declared. The Boer war lasted for 3 years, add that to 1899 and you have 1902. Then again add the figures 1, 9, 0 and 2 together and total it up with 1902 and you have 1914, the year in which the World War was declared. Then it gets interesting. The World War lasted four years. Add that and you have 1918. Then add up the figures 1, 9, 1 and 8, and total it up to 1918 and you get 1937.

According to this brand of reasoning we are supposed to have a British war in 1937. The year is almost over, and the chances are overwhelmingly against the British government declaring war within the next month, so it looks as if this particular mathematical dopster, will have to end his figuring along this line on the first of January. However we give him credit for thinking out a list of most peculiar co-incidences—even if it doesn't prove anything.

STRAIN ON REPORTERS.

(Baltimore Sun)

THE COMPLEXITIES of the marital rearrangements proceeding out of the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Simpson are putting a heavy strain on the prose style of the conscientious reporter, who knows that his lead ought to give all the important facts and that even a remote connection with the Duke is always an important fact. The result is that we are beginning to get such sentences as these in a New York morning newspaper of yesterday:

Jacques A. L. Raffray, former husband of Mary H. Kirk, who divorced him to marry Ernest Aldrich Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor, and Mrs. Constance E. de Bower obtained a marriage license yesterday.

It was a brave effort to make commas do their full share of the work, but I still think that a great burden will be lifted from news writers' shoulders when this cycle of divorces and marriages is finally completed.

(The New Yorker)

OF THE countless minor automobile accidents that happened last week, one in particular deserves special mention, because it resulted in a fairly deathless bit of prose. There was a Checker cab on my right and a Terminal cab on my left. We all hit him."

Requests For County Roads Expected To Come Before Council Of United Counties

Council Plans To Honor Reeve Mercer On His Election To Legislature

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Dec. 8. — Two deputations are expected to ask for county roads at the final sessions of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham which opened here on Tuesday.

Ratepayers of Manvers are going to ask the Council to assume the road from Pontypool to Millbrook, and a delegation from Ainwick Township wants the counties to assume the road running west from Alderville Memorial corner to Hamilton Township and Harwood.

Reeve Percy Stinson of Millbrook reminded the Council of the political honors won by Reeve Cecil G. Mercer of Hope Township in his election on October 6 as the representative of Durham to the Provincial Legislature. Mr. Mercer was not present on Tuesday.

"I don't know of any other member of this Council who was elected to the Provincial House while he was still in office here, Reeve Stinson said. "Men have gone out of the Counties Council to win seats in both the Federal and Provincial Parliaments, but Mr. Mercer has apparently set a precedent, and I think it is very fitting that we should consider while he is not here what recognition we will give him when he does come."

Warden R. O. Jones, Bowmanville, named Reeve Ray Mallory of Percy Township, Reeve Leslie Wilson of Cobourg, and Reeve Stinson, as a special committee to draft a resolution of congratulation to Reeve Mercer. It will likely be presented at Wednesday night's session.

Shadow Over Session.

The Council postponed their usual afternoon session to-day to enable them to attend the funeral of Elgin Y. Caughey, proprietor of the British Hotel, the Council's extra-mural headquarters.

"Mr. Caughey was our host for years," Warden Jones said, "and has always made things pleasant for us. I feel that we should pay our respect to his memory by attending his funeral."

The members purchased a wreath as their personal expression of sympathy, and a formal resolution of condolence to the bereaved family was moved by Reeve Fred Waterman of South Monaghan, seconded by Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke Township.

Similar resolutions of condolence, by Reeve Stinson and Reeve W. A. Wood of Cavan, will be sent to the relatives of the late George B. Stephenson of Hastings, a former Reeve of the village and member of the Counties Council, who was buried on Tuesday afternoon. His nephew, Reeve Howard Fairman, was absent from the opening session attending the funeral. And the third resolution of sympathy will be sent to the widow of the late Charles J. McDonough, Deputy-Sheriff in the United Counties, who died suddenly several weeks ago.

An Unauthorized Board.

E. L. McNachtan, counties clerk, informed the council that although only one Mothers' Allowance Board had been appointed, a second Board was functioning in Durham.

"These Counties are geographically separate, but for municipal purposes they are only one county. Our duty is to pay only the members of the Board appointed by this Council, but it seems we will have to pay the entire members for this year," Mr. MacNachtan said.

Warden Jones added: "We have what may be called a self-appointed Board. In all counties there is only one Board, and that includes other United Counties, and most of them deal with mothers' allowances and old-age pensions."

The Finance Committee was instructed to inquire into the duplication and report at the present session.

Attack Court Costs

Reeve Arthur Wood of Cavan, moved, seconded by Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke, that a committee be appointed to inquire into the criminal justice accounts and report at the January sessions.

A letter from Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell recounted how he had obtained from the Provincial Government a refund of $76 witness' fees in a case that was settled out of court. Eight or ten witnesses were brought from Toronto and were paid their costs by the counties treasurer. The case referred to was laid by Crown Attorney Boggs, and it was stated that a change of venue was finally arranged, the hearing to be in Toronto, where a settlement was made without recourse to trial.

"If this Council had the time to go over the criminal justice accounts you would see where some of our money is going," Reeve Stinson said. "You might go further and make a recommendation to the new Attorney-General, who has a grasp of our problems from his municipal experience."

Reeve C. J. Cummiskey of Manvers commented that the Council would not have time to sift the criminal justice accounts. "Would it not be wise to appoint a committee to go through them, even if they have to spend two or three days, and bring in a report at the January sessions."

The Council decided on that course, approving Reeve Wood's motion, and Warden Jones said Magistrate Campbell should be commended for his interest in the counties' welfare.

Brighton Village Claim.

A claim for $32.50 by Brighton Village against Brighton Township for the use of the Town Hall for Police Court purposes is to be heard by Judge O'Connor next Tuesday, and the Counties have been made a joint defendant. Magistrate Campbell's custom is to hear township cases in the Brighton hall, but the township refuses to pay for the use of the building on the ground that the village collects fines which are not shared with the outside municipalities. Murray, Seymour, and Cramahe Townships have received smaller bills. The account against Brighton Township was originally $17, but court costs have already boosted it to $32.50.

The Finance Committee was asked to consult F. D. Boggs, K.C., counties solicitor, regarding this matter, and report later in the week.

Four communications were received from Peterborough County Council. One related to the by-law passed recently proposes that the Norwood-Trent Bridge Road be included in the county road schedule, and to that end the co-operation of Northumberland and Durham is sought for the assumption of the easterly section of this road. A resolution opposing daylight saving, also from Peterborough, was passed on to the Legal Committee, largely on Warden Jones' assertion that he was also opposed to daylight saving, not as such, but because of the confusion resulting from individual and conflicting action by many of the municipalities. "Let us stay as we are, or let the Government make it Dominion-wide," Warden Jones said.

The Peterborough proposal to bring management of Children's Aid Societies under Council control was also referred to the Legal Committee, but rather hesitantly, and the fourth Peterborough idea, urging the Dominion Government to investigate the spread between farmers' revenues and their cost of production, was referred to the Agricultural Committee.

STRANGE JARGON OF FATHER DIVINE BAFFLES LAWYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — (UP). — They brought Father Divine, the bald little negro whom Harlem calls "God," into Supreme Court yesterday, and asked him whether it was true that he had accepted $4,500 from one of his "angels," and in return, had promised her she would live forever.

"God" adjusted the purple handkerchief in the breast pocket of his blue serge coat, and said softly: "Generally, I do evangelical evangelistic work, I travel and wheresoever I be I carry on evangelical evangelistic work. Wherever and whenever a crowd assembles around me I speak volitionally."

Jargon Stumps Lawyers.

He was at it again—talking the strange jargon that has been the despair of every lawyer who has questioned him in an attempt to learn the source of the vast fortune which enables him to have a private airplane, an imported automobile and to load the tables in all of Harlem's "heavens" with rich food. Yesterday's proceedings was an examination before trial in the case of Verinda Brown, who is known to the followers of Father Divine as "Rebecca Grace."

She contends she paid $4,500 to "God" on the promise that he would give her food and shelter for life and that life would last forever. The passing of the years brought to Verinda Brown the same pains and ills that other morials suffer and in her mind grew the suspicion that maybe she was not going to live forever. So she sued "God" for her $4,500.

The lawyers wanted to know where "God" carried on his evangelical evangelistic work. He smiled at them benevolently and said: "From my own state of consciousness."

Refuses To Be Pinned Down.

Did "God" promise Verinda Brown and her husband Thomas (Onward Universe) Brown a lot of "heavenly treasure" in return for the four and a half grand?

"The way I observe the heavenly treasure," Father Divine replied, "it is an un-material, non-material treasury of the storehouse of wisdom and courage."

But did he promise them heavenly treasure, yes or no?

"Not that I know of," "God" said. "And I am sure if it had happened it would have been stressed so I would have remembered such."

That was as close as they ever got to a definite answer and everybody gave up until next week. They asked "God" if he could be back in court next week, and he said he wasn't sure on account of he never knows where his evangelical evangelistic work will take him.

"The only reason I was here today," Father Divine explained patiently, "is that stipulation of legal matters had been mentioned of which I had foreknowledge."

Then—Puff!—He was gone in a cloud of smoke—from the exhaust pipe of a Dusenberg town car.

Militarized Chess Teaches Troopers Strategy

The ancient game of chess has been "reorganized" to conform to present day German standards of militarism, and the photograph ABOVE explains the changes better than we could in a column of type. Instead of the familiar bishops, queens, rooks and pawns, the new German edition of chess, called "Tak-Tik," has figures representing infantry men, tanks, artillery batteries, bombing aeroplanes and fighting aeroplanes. The board is divided by diagonal lines, representing a road and a river and two other lines marking off red and blue territory. The whole idea is to teach German youth the rudiments of military strategy, and the two Nazi troopers shown playing the game seem to be very serious about the whole thing.

RUSSIANS ON FLOE DRIFT 745 MILES

MOSCOW, Dec. 8—(AP). — Four Soviet explorers drifting from the North Pole toward the Atlantic indicated yesterday they were ready to be rescued as their ice floe approached possible danger.

In the 200 days since they landed at the top of the world, the campers have floated 745 miles and yesterday reached the position 82.23 degrees north and 6.52 degrees west—off Northeast Greenland.

Otto Schmidt, bearded chief of the Soviet Arctic adventurers, has indicated the men may be taken off the ice in January, when it is estimated they will have reached a point between Greenland and Spitsbergen.

Ivan Papnin, chief of the camp, reported yesterday by wireless that the campers "won't be ashamed to return to the mainland since we have collected much valuable data."

His companions are Peter Shirshoff, marine biologist; Eugene Fedoroff, magnetologist; and Ernest Krenkel, wireless soperator—all engaged in scientific studies in the Polar region.

They landed at the pole from an airplane May 21, with nine tons of food and Papanin yesterday indicated they expected to be rescued by airplane, instead of by icebreaker.

WEALTHY RECLUSE DIES OF NEGLECT

CAP ROUGE, Que., Dec. 8 (CP). —An octogenarian recluse who died Saturday in a setting suggestive of abject poverty was disclosed yesterday as a wealthy man who could have lived in comfort.

Instead, 87-year-old Joseph Thibault chose to die in a one-room shack, spurning offers of help from villagers who would have offered him "charity." He wanted to spend his last hours, relatives said at an inquest, in the house where he had always lived.

The jury found his death, from natural causes, had been "aggravated by his own negligence and unwillingness to accept care." And the jurymen added they could "hold nobody else responsible for his state of affairs."

Relatives and neighbors said the aged man was not only well-to-do, but was "very rich." So far, though, no one has found his reputed hidden hoard.

LADIES' AID GROUP HOLD QUILTING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Nathaniel Belch entertained the members of her group in the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian church, for an enjoyable quilting party at her home, Fallis Line, last Wednesday afternoon, when the handsome quilt top, donated by Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, was lined, quilted, and completed.

At the tea hour, Mrs. Belch, assisted by her elder daughter, Miss Marian, served a dainty meal, the guests of the day including Mrs. George Bothwell, Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, Mrs. Harry Ball, Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. J. R. Thompson, and Mrs. R. J. McMahon; the three last named being invited in addition to the others who are members of Mrs. Belch's group.

Tickets were sold on the quilt, to the amount of over ten dollars, by Mrs. Harry Ball, at Saturday's hot supper and sale, Mr. H. A. Kerr making the draw during the evening, and Mrs. Kerr being the lucky winner, holding ticket number 89.

When expenses are paid, eight dollars at least will have have been cleared on the quilt, which is attractively done in a color scheme of pink and white. Unfortunately the donor, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, was unable to be present at the quilting party, but was in attendance at Saturday's sale.

CADET IN HOSPITAL AFTER FIRST 'DUEL'

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—A bare-fisted duel between two Cadets of Royal Military College on Sunday was disclosed last night by officials of the Institution. One of the Cadets is in Kingston General Hospital suffering from cuts and bruises.

A college official said the affair was pre-arranged, without knowledge of the college authorities, between the two Cadets, R. H. Harrison of Montreal and Selwyn Heppner of Saskatoon, both members of the recruit class.

Heppner was the loser in the scrap, stopped after three short rounds. He went to his room and was later ordered to hospital by a senior Cadet.

The college official said there was a referee and seconds, and a ring marked out for the duel. Gloves could not be found and the boys used their fists.

Heppner, who said he is a Jew, but had noticed no prejudice among the Cadets, declared: "I thought I was a pretty good boxer, but I certainly got the worst of it—a couple of black eyes seems a poor excuse to be in bed."

PICKED UP IN TIME

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP). —Wandering along the Toronto highway, so stiff with cold he could scarcely walk, a man whose identity has not yet been established was taken to the transient quarters at Burlington early to-day. The man had a prayer book in his possession with the name Jan Halloor on a flyleaf, and also had a Toronto election card in his pocket. He suffered greatly from exposure.

Lindsay Expects Many Keen Contests For Municipal Positions

Lindsay, Dec. 8.

THE TOWN council Monday night cleared the deck for the coming municipal elections. There will likely be contests in all departments of the municipal government. Rumor had it today that there will be at least two aspirants for the mayoralty—Ald. A. T. Claxton and Merle Dickerson. The latter was a former member of the Hydro Commission, but was disqualified because he had accepted an electrical contract from that utility. The electors will also be called upon to vote on the question of daylight saving and also on the proposal to construct a sewage disposal plant.

General Sessions Open

The General Sessions of the court opened Monday afternoon at the Court House with his Honor Judge Smoke of Peterborough, presiding. There is only one case on the docket — a negligence charge against a resident of the north country.

Reeve Alex Horn's bylaw to tax slot machines at $75.00 went by the boards at last night's council meeting. It came up for its second reading, but the Reeve was the only supporter of the measure. Some of the aldermen were in favor of making the fee $25.00.

UAW THREAT SENDS POLICE, FORD SHOP

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A dozen state policemen assigned as "observers" were on duty today in the Ford Motor Co. area where the United Automobile Workers threatened to distribute union pamphlets in defiance of an order by Mayor John L. Carey of Dearborn.

Carey designated the area as one of congested traffic and forbade the union activity.

The union immediately said it would defy the order today and State Police Commissioner Oscar G. Olander ordered his detachment of troopers to stand by. Olander said however, he expected no trouble.

The prohibited area is Miller Road, scene of a riot last May 26 when the union attempted to distribute its handbills.

Charging Mayor Carey with issuing an "illegal edict," Larry Davidow, union attorney, said he was ready to file a complaint with Governor Frank Murphy asking Carey's removal if he "persists in such violations." Davidow said he would accuse Carey of "misconduct in office."

meeting and has not had an opportunity of knowing what went on."

Dr. Barr intimated he had discussed the matter with Mr. Edgar and had outlined the previous meeting to him.

H. B. Cowan, a veteran member of the Society who was absent in Toronto at the time the last meeting was held, said he had not been informed of the subject of Mr. Heisey's report. He felt that Mr. Edgar should be given a detailed statement so as to have a fair opportunity of "defending" himself.

Bruce Fowler rose to say he believed Mr. Cowan was under a misapprehension. "There were no charges made. There was merely some criticism of the administration of the Society," he said.

Alderman Dutton agreed and contended the criticism was as much a reflection on the Board as on the superintendent.

Report Not Available

Declaring that the report was on the files of the Department in Toronto and not available, Dr. Barr announced that generally speaking it had recommended, "If we are to raise the status of our Society we must re-organize and obtain the services of a fully qualified social service worker." Te report also recommended that preventive work of the Society must be emphasized.

Believing the discussion was sidetracking the main issue, Mr. Fowler urged, "The question before the Board is, are the recommendations of the Department to be put into effect or are they not?"

Mr. Cowan pointed out that the matter was a more serious one so far as Mr. Edgar was concerned, to which Alderman Stocker retorted, "For the past twenty or thirty years we have been only going through the motions. What we want is service and we are not getting it." He remarked that Mr. Edgar was only a servant of the Board and said the sooner the Board realized that fact the better.

Mr. Cowan continued to urge, "A large meeting such as this is not a suitable place to deal with such a question. He moved that a small committee be appointed to interview Mr. Edgar and bring in a report, but his motion was not seconded.

"Should be Men Enough"

"The whole Board heard the report, and we should all be men enough to deal with it and should not shelve the responsibility," Dr. Barr argued apparently unmindful the Board has a good representation of women. He stressed that during recent years the preventive side of the work was being emphasized by the Department and said the work was entirely different than it was ten years ago.

"Have we got such a greater amount of work in this area that we need to re-organize," Reeve W. A. Anderson questioned.

After some further discussion along the same lines, the Board finally decided to hear Mr. Edgar.

"By a practically unanimous vote," the chairman informed him, "we decided to ask you in to make any statement you may wish to the Board."

Not Quite British

"I do not know what you wish me to say. I did not have the privilege of hearing what Mr. Heisey said at the meeting two weeks ago. Naturally I thought I would have been permitted to hear what he had to say. The fact that I was barred from the meeting was not quite British fair play," Mr. Edgar stated.

The chairman pointed out to Mr. Edgar that the Board did not have Mr. Heisey's report. He told him the substance of it stressing that before the local Society could have a higher rating, it would have to employ a fully trained social service worker from Toronto. He suggested that members of the directorate might like to ask questions of Mr. Edgar.

Remarking on the fact that Mr. Heisey brought a file of correspondence covering a period of four years, Alderman Stocker charged that much of it had never been brought to attention of the Society by Mr. Edgar. He declared, "Mr. Edgar is a servant of this Board, but for the past twelve years it has been a one man institution."

By way of explanation Mr. Edgar said it was not unusual for correspondence on various cases to cover a period of years. He denied he had withheld correspondence from the Board. "All matters directly concerning the policy of the Board," he said, "have been duly brought to the notice of the Board."

Declaring, "I'm not going to stay here shadow boxing," Alderman Dutton referred to a specific case and remarked, "Are we to understand that in all that time Mr. Edgar received no communication from the Department?"

Did Not Recall Case

Mr. Edgar had so many cases, Warden Roy Brown reminded the Board, that it was impossible for him to remember them. Mr. Edgar agreed that was so. He did not recall any case when there was correspondence such as Mr. Heisey was said to have described.

Alderman Stocker mentioned another specific case from Havelock. It was relative to investigation of a child who had disappeared while a ward of the Society.

Mr. Edgar explained, "I spent dollars and dollars of your money trying to find that child." He related how he had been finally successful in locating the whereabouts of the child and told the Board of one trip he made while investigating the case, in which his car broke through the ice on a swamp up near Apsley in mid-winter.

Received No Credit

Relative to charges made by Mr. Heisey that departmental forms had not been properly made out, Mr. Edgar declared there was no space on the forms for records of preventive work. "I have received no credit for the work I have done in this direction," he complained.

Rising to the defence of Mr. Edgar, Reeve James Gifford expressed the belief, "The Board is in an embarrasing position. We heard Mr. Heisey at one meeting and now we hear the superintendent contradict him at another."

"I believe Mr. Heisey told you that no effort had been made in recent years to place children out," Mr. Edgar volunteered. He gave some figures bearing on this branch of his work and challenged, "If you doubt me you can see the figures for yourself in the office." In 1932 16 children were placed out; in 1933 20 children; in 1934 28 children; in 1935 16 children; and in 1936 12 children, Mr. Edgar's figures revealed.

Hands in Resignation

Handing a letter of resignation to the honorary secretary of the Board, Mr. Edgar declared, "I have been connected with the work of the Childrens Aid Society for 21 years and in my opinion have given valuable time in its service. Older members of the Board will appreciate the work that has been done during my service with this Society.

"Whatever you do," he urged, "I hope you will give my successor some consideration. Get behind him and give him a little encouragement. Outside of Dr. Barr and one or two others, no one ever came to my office and said 'you did a good job.' But they have been ready to come to meetings and criticize. I have not done one thing during my service with the Board that I am ashamed of. I speak for the support of the Board for my successor. Whoever it may be that comes after me, I hope you will give him the support I feel I did not receive."

Having made his brief statement, Mr. Edgar remarked to Roy H. Parsons, "You can read that letter of resignation Mr. Secretary, and if there is anything to be said I'll hear it."

Mr. Parsons read the letter in which Mr. Edgar asked to be relieved of his duties on December 31, 1937.

Greeted With Silence

Absolute silence greeted the reading of Mr. Edgar's resignation and after pausing for a few moments, Mr. Edgar left the council chamber where the meeting was held.

As the door closed behind him, Dr. Barr declared, "I feel a new emphasis has been given a certain phase of the work and that the Board failed to meet the situation when it arose. It is the duty of the Board to provide the superintendent with the tools of his office." In approaching Mr. Edgar's resignation, the chairman believed, "We must approach it in the attitude of taking to ourselves a certain amount of responsibility."

He suggested a motion in order either accepting or rejecting Mr. Edgar's resignation.

Mrs. J. J. Lynch moved that "We do not accept Mr. Edgar's resignation."

She had no seconder.

Asked to Extend Time

Reeve Anderson suggested Mr. Edgar should be asked to extend the time his resignation takes effect. He pointed out that if the need of more than one worker was found to exist the city should have the right to appoint one and the county should have the right to appoint the other. He intimated the matter would be brought before the county council at their next sessions.

Alderman Stocker—"I move that Mr. Edgar's resignation be accepted."

"There are a number of other things I want to see considered," Mr. Cowan interjected. I have been a member of this Board for 20 years. We never heard a complaint in all that time. Then we hear from Toronto. It was under pressure from Toronto we had to get a secretary at a cost of $600 a year to fill out government forms." He asserted Mr. Edgar had been criticised for not going out into the country on investigations, and declared that when he had done so he had been criticized because of the expenditure. "I have never seen a man more earnest in his work than Mr. Edgar. We need to review the situation before we act arbitrarily on the question," Mr. Cowan said.

Looking for Service

"The department is looking for service and is going to get it," Alderman Stocker exclaimed.

Seconding Alderman Stocker's motion that the resignation be accepted, Dr. R. F. Nott said he did so, "In order that we can get down to business."

One of the women members of the Board suggested a ballot, but Dr. Nott and Reeve Gifford declared they were opposed to any secrecy. They urged frankness and stated a lack of it had led to much of the trouble in the Society's affairs.

Urging that the personal element should be forgotten, Dr. Barr called for a vote. Mayor Macdonald, Mr. Cowan and C. S. Cummer were among those who voted among the nayes. The vote carried 13-7 in favor of Alderman Stockers motion.

Declaring it carried, Dr. Barr suggested that as recognition of Mr. Edgar's lengthy term of service to the Board he should be granted a retiring allowance. He said Mr. Edgar's predecessor recived an honorarium of $300 on his retirement. It was paid in monthly instalments of $50.

Regrets Action

Mr. Fowler—"Having received the superintendent's resignation we all regret very much that such action was necessary. I think Mr. Edgar realized that a situation had developed beyond his comprehension or handling. We are in a great measure indebted to him for services rendered over a period of years. It is impossible to set up a new organization by the end of the year and I suggest we might ask him to continue at the pleasure of the Board. Then when the new organization is finally set up we might give consideration to the matter of an honorarium, or there may be a place for him in the new organization where his services and knowledge could be used to advantage."

Alderman Dutton supported the idea and urged, "We do not want to do Mr. Edgar an injustice." At his suggestion a committee was named to deal with the situation caused by the resignation of the superintendent and to consider details of reorganization. Members of the special committee, are: The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, Alderman Walter Stocker, Alderman James Dutton, Reeve James Gifford, C. A. Saknonsen, E. B. Fowler.

Buses Keep On Schedule

The blizzard over western Ontario centered in the Forest, Wyoming, Alvinston, Parkhill and Arkona districts where the fall was about 14 inches. A two-to-six-inch fall was reported from other areas, with a stiff wind piling it into deep drifts. Bus lines to and from London operated without interruption and railway offices said the snow did not affect train service.

Vessels on the Great Lakes were driven to shelter. At Port Stanley, on Lake Erie, fishing tugs remained in port as the wind whiped huge waves over the piers that froze to ice in swiftly dropping temperatures. And the forecast for today and tomorrow was: "Strong winds or moderate gales, mostly cloudy and cold with snow."

Nerves Were So Bad Could Not Stand The Children Playing

The happiness of every home depends largely on the health of the wife and mother. If she is nervous, peevish and irritable, worried by the cares of the household, and tormented by the pains and irregularities that accompany a run down system, there can be no happiness in the home for the husband and children.

Women who are weak and run down, nervous and irritable should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to help restore them to the blessing of good health.

Mrs. THOMAS KIRK, Neston, Alta., writes:—"I was in such a weak, run down condition before I started using Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I could not do my housework, and would be so nervous I could hardly stand the noise of the children at their play. Now, after taking three boxes of H. & N. Pills I feel like a different person.

I shall always tell anyone not feeling well to use your medicine."

SEVEN APPLICANTS FOR CITIZENSHIP HEARD BY JUDGE

Several years' existence under the British flag's guarantee of democracy and personal liberty has convinced at least one German that there are better places in the world to live than Nazi Germany, spectators who attended the opening of the General Sessions and County Court sitting yesterday learned.

Applying for naturalization as a British subject, Joseph Riedl, native German, explained quietly when asked why he wished naturalization: "I wouldn't like to get under Nazi rule again." Judge D. B. Coleman of Whitby, presiding, indicated he would recommend Riedl's application to Ottawa.

Questioned on the stand by his lawyer, Emmett F. Sheehy, Riedl said he came to Canada in 1930 from Germany where he completed his education at a German technical school. He said he married a Canadian girl here and now heads a family. He testified he found British rule more to his liking than Nazism or Fascism.

Riedl's aversion to totalitarian rule was apparently shared by Carl Masullonis, a native Russian, also seeking naturalization.

"What do you think of the system of government in your native country?" W. J. A. Fair, examining lawyer, asked him.

"I am not a Communist," he replied definitely.

"Are you a socialist?"

"No, I'm just a common working man."

Other Applicants

Other applicants considered by the court were Rupert E. Knox, a native of the United States resident here during the past 11 years; George E. Crosson, an American resident here 20 years; Elizabeth Dominik, a Hungarian who came to Canada in 1928; Morris Mandel who came here five years ago from Poland and Lucy Mandel, his wife, a native of Austria. In each case, Judge Coleman indicated he would extend his recommendation. Alex. L. Elliott acted on behalf of Knox, G. N. Gordon, K.C., represented Crosson and Miss Dominik, and W. F. Huycke, K.C., acted for Mr. and Mrs. Mandel.

As the sitting opened, Judge Coleman charged the jury with its duty of giving preliminary consideration of the cases of William Hanrahan of Douro, charged with arson; Hilliard McIlmoyle, charged with theft, and George Selmes, charged with a serious offence. He also asked the jurors to view Peterborough County's public institutions and report upon them.

The Rambling REPORTERS

$70 FOR MILK FUND

Public School Inspector K. S. Wightman acknowledges with thanks a donation of seventy dollars to the milk fund for underprivileged school children from an anonymous giver who signed himself "Lover of children."

The handsome gift was accompanied by an explanation from the donor that he was giving the contribution, "So the innocent will not suffer because their elders have not worked out an equitable system of distributing the free gifts of God."

The fund, which is in immediate need of two hundred dollars, has as its objective a half pint of milk per day for one hundred underprivileged school children during the winter months, Inspector Wightman said.

He expressed appreciation of the work the Home and School Associations are doing in this connection and said he had recently received a donation of $10 from King Edward H. and S. Association. Besides milk, cod liver oil is provided for several undernourished children.—R.

MANY YOUNG MEN PUT IN INDUSTRY MARSH DECLARES

TORONTO, December 8—(CP).—Ontario directors of the Employment Service of Canada will meet here Thursday, Friday and Saturday with representatives of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program to discuss the most effective methods of enlisting co-operation of government services and industry in the Youth Training plan.

The program of training unemployed youths for industrial positions through the apprenticeship method had succeeded in giving more than 1,300 young men a start in life between September 1 and November 15, Deputy Labor Minister J. F. Marsh said to-day.

Need for the plan to be successful was greater co-operation with the movement by service clubs, industrialists and community workers, he said.

Observation of Youth Rally Sunday two weeks ago in Fort William, North Bay, Windsor, Brantford, Chatham, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Oshawa, Belleville, Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston, Prescott, Orillia, and Oshawa had resulted in placement of many young men in industry, he said.

Dr. Charles Sinclair, public relations counsel and director of the program in Ontario, is scheduled to address a meeting of the citizens in the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday night at eight o'clock. A real live committee is organized in Peterborough and it is hoped to get the program under way here by the first of the year.

PUPILS STRANDED IN STALLED CARS

BARRIE, Ont., Dec. 8 (CP)—Several cars carrying children to school in Barrie became stranded today in snow on the highway south of Warerley, 20 miles north of here.

The school children were being looked after in farmhouses bordering the road. It was not known how many children were in the cars that became stuck in drifts along the road.

The road became blocked during a blizzard that swept the Barrie district yesterday and last night.

Mr. Coleman said he did not know how many children were in the cars. "But they can't move until we get the snow cleared away. It is an all-day job."

He said crews of men already had begun clearing the road.

TERMS OF FIVE EXPIRE ON BOARD

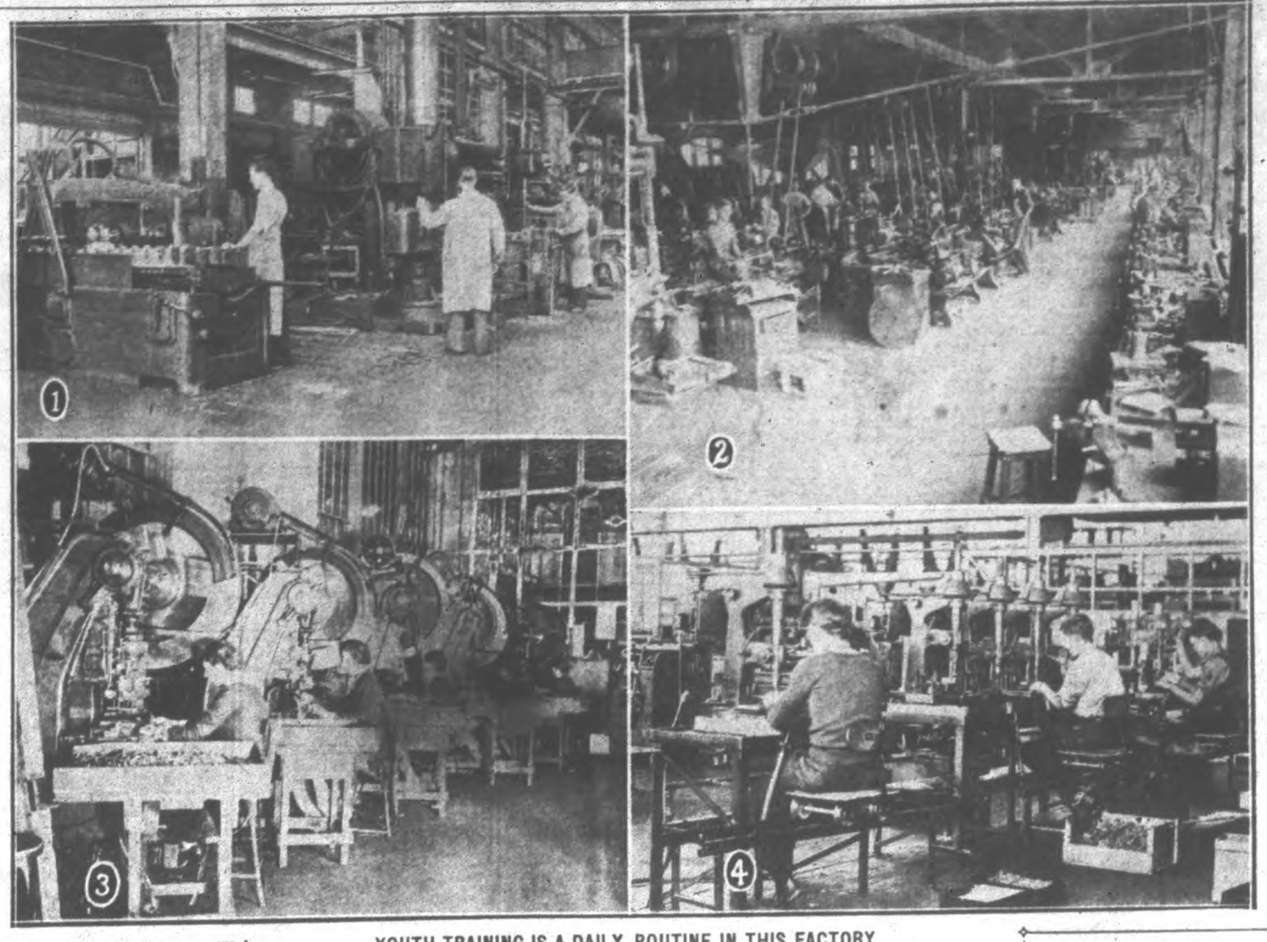
Terms of five members of Peterborough Board of Education expire at the end of the current year. They are: Mrs. W. R. Morris, Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman, John R. Marshall, Harold G. Walker and D. G. H. Melton.

With exception of Mrs. Morris, who is out of the city, each of the retiring members of the Board expressed themselves as willing to again contest an election if nominated.

In answer to the question as to whether or not they would seek re-election, Dr. Scott replied, "I expect to"; Mr. Marshall said, "I likely will. I am not sure. It depends on circumstances"; Mr. Walker commented, "I may run again. I am not certain. I like the work and think I would accept nomination"; Mr. Melton is quoted, "I have not given the matter much thought. It is a question of being nominated. If someone chooses to nominate me I shall be prepared to stand; if I am nominated."

TRANSPLANTED BEAUTY.

The beauty of winter scenery along the fringe of pine groves has been brought to main street by the light sprinkle of snow on the evergreens that accentuate the Christmas decorations.



YOUTH TRAINING IS A DAILY ROUTINE IN THIS FACTORY

Employment executives of a Peterborough industrial plant requested that the company's name be omitted from these shop scenes which were suggested by the publicity representative of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Program which is being considered as a local project, sponsored by the Dominion and Provincial governments. The pictures virtually identify the factory, showing (1) a section of the main machine shop; (2) a vista of the tool department, and only part of it at that; (3) a corner of the punch press department; (4) some of the employees in the switch gear department. Youth is conspicuous in these four pictures. Space prevented the inclusion of others which present more phases of the factory's activities requiring the training of youth, young men and girls, to equip them as efficient and skilled assistants in the company's production. On Thursday night this youth training program will be explained by Dr. Charles Sinclair to all citizens at a meeting in Collegiate auditorium.

UNIFICATION IS NOW INEVITABLE

cheaper, he said, predicting it will be made cheaper when the people realize their staggering tax bill of $,000,000,000 annually is to a large extent accounted for by subsidies for duplicate railway services.

Sir Edward said it was an accepted fact $75,000,000 a year could be saved by unification. Better service would be given and all interests affected by the fortunes of the two railways would stand to profit through removal of "useless and destructive" competition.

Sir Edward asserted his company has never authorized him to suggest the Canadian Pacific take over the Canadian National either with or without its debts.

"The suggestion has always been that arrangements should be made to operate the two railway systems jointly and for the joint account of their owners," he said. "All the Canadian Pacific would stand to gain by this arrangement would be the privilege of participating with the Government in a program for reducing expenditures."

Labor Problem.

Turning to the labor problem arising from unification proposals, Sir Edward said it had been estimated that under unified management in a normal year about 17 per cent. fewer people would be required to carry on the services. This figure would be only a little more than one-third of reductions made through depression traffic loss.

Sir Edward predicted that within four or five years any surplus of labor created through unification would be taken up by deaths, resignations, and retirements under the railways' pension plans. Railway employees would find greater security and regularity of employment than under present conditions.

The speaker denied a powerful railway monopoly would be created. It had always been his thought powers of the Board of Railway Commissioners would be enlarged after unification. He approved legislation brought before the last session of Parliament by Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport.

This legislation, providing for greater control of public transportation utilities, was laid over until another session. Sir Edward hoped parliament would approve Mr. Howe's plans. They were sound.

Sir Edward warned Canada against allowing public finances to reach the state where repudiation would be unavoidable.

"Should the government of Canada ever lead the way in general repudiation of public debts, organized society would come to an end," he said.

REPORT IS ASKED FROM DR. GREEN

Dr. J. C. Green has been asked by the Board of Education to make a report bearing on the cause of the high percentage of pupils in the city's public schools requiring dental treatment.

A report presented to the Board by Dr. Green as school dental officer revealed that at Prince of Wales' School 72.7 per cent of the pupils needed dental treatment.

Figures indicated that a serious dental problem exists in at least two of the city's public schools. The recent survey made by Dr. Green was the basis for the following figures: Queen Mary School: number of pupils examined, 445; cavities in temporary teeth, 173; extraction of temporary teeth, 139; cavities in permanent teeth, 527; extractions of permanent teeth, 20; number of pupils O.K., 189; percentage of pupils needing dental treatment, 58.2. Prince of Wales' School: number examined, 373; cavities in temporary teeth, 252; extraction of temporary teeth, 348; cavities in permanent teeth, 922; extraction of permanent teeth, 58; number of pupils O.K. 157; percentage of pupils needing dental treatment, 72.7.

COLD WAVE HALTS STRIFE IN SPAIN

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 8 (AP).—Intense cold accompanied by snow suspended military operations today along the entire Aragon front of Northeastern Spain.

Barcelona advices reported all 19-year-old males who had finished the first part of military service had been sent to training camps in Catalonia for a month of special instruction.

A corps of 300 men between 18 and 24 years of age was organized as a special aviation brigade with new pilots drawn from infantry that had served at least three months on the Northern Aragon front.

An ultimatum which insurgent sources said demanded unconditional surrender of the government under threat of a new offensive expired two days ago without any apparent change in the civil war situation.

DEFIES SUPERSTITION

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8 (AP).—Maurice Evans, Shakespearian actor, defied superstition yesterday and tried on a pair of gloves worn by William Shakespeare. Dating to about 1590, they are part of the Horace Furness Memorial collection at the University of Pennsylvania library.

C. Seymour Thompson, university librarian, told Mr. Evans that, according to tradition, "any one who wears the gloves will die within a year."

VAGRANT IS GIVEN MONTH IN JAIL

Sentencing Earl Beecroft to a month's hard labor when he pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge this morning, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., told him, "You'll have to dust the courthouse." Before the prisoner left to go below in custody, His Worship remarked, "You're not an Englishman, are you?"—"No, sir. A Canadian." "Oh," His Worship mused, "I thought you might be related to the Earl of Beecroft."

John L. R. Athey, 16-year-old student from Canton, was fined $10 and $3 costs and his driving permit was suspended for 2 months when he pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge. The Cadi set the minimum penalty when the defendant admitted his liability for damages he caused to another car.

Provincial Motorcycle Constable Lloyd A' McClure told the court the accused was driving a car on Saturday on Highway 28 and attempted to pass another vehicle going in the same direction when ascending a hill. The result, the officer declared, was a 3-car collision involving damages estimated between $250 to $300. The car owned by Athey's 18-year-old brother was not insured, and the officer pointed out there was a section of the Highway Traffic Act providing that all cars owned by persons under the age of 21 years must be insured.

William Frances, 36, Plainville, was successful in obtaining a week's adjournment in which to pay a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs after he pleaded guilty to driving a motor car without a license.

Joseph Delore, 27, of Peterborough, was also given a week in which to pay a similar fine for the same type of offence. He told the Bench, "I'd like to get an adjournment until after Christmas," but the magistrate was obdurate in his decision.

"After this," His Worship warned, "if drivers want to operate motor cars without licenses, they can expect no consideration from me."

SCHOOL TEACHERS ASK RESTORATION OF SALARY CUTS

Requests by teachers of Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and the Public Schools for restoration of ten per cent salary cuts made during the depression period, were last night referred by the Board of Education to the committee on appointments.

The teachers asked consideration of the matter on the ground that the cost of living had increased; that other civic employees and employees of private corporations have in many cases received complete restoration of pay deductions and that many firms have paid their employees bonuses.

The matter was referred to the committee on motion of Dr. G. R. Scott, seconded by Harold G. Walker, without discussion.

Final meeting of the current year, John R. Marshall acted as chairman and continued in that capacity although chairman Dr. G. R. Scott came into the Board room after the session got under way.

On recommendation of Public School Inspector K. S. Wightman Miss Merton Brock, for three years an employee of the Board and at present a supply teacher, was appointed to the staff of Prince of Wales' School commencing after the Christmas holidays. She will replace Mrs. Jamieson who was temporarily appointed last summer and whose services terminate this month.

A report from the Ontario Department of Education bearing on a recent inspection of the vocational school noted under the head of general remarks: "The school is operated under expert administration." It stated the graduates of the vocational classes had little difficulty in finding employment and expressed the opinion that the number of industrial arts graduates was all too small to meet the needs of industry.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, school medical officer of health noted six cases of scarlet fever in the public schools for November.

D. G. H. Melton told the Board he failed to see the usefulness of the present system of cadet training in the public school, and suggested physical drill might be instituted for boys and girls to take its place.

At his suggestion Inspector Wightman was asked to give the matter consideration and bring in a report to the Board at an early date.

Of a total enrollment of 903 students at P.C.I. and V.S. there was an average daily attendance during November of 963 students, while in the public schools which have a total enrollment of 2811 the average daily attendance during the same month was reported to be 2565.

ASK GROCER $25 EXTRA RADIO FEE

WINNIPEG, Dec. 8—(CP)—Ben Katz, proprietor of a north end grocery store, said yesterday a man claiming to be an agent of the Canadian Performing Right Society had approached him regarding fees for permission to play copyrighted music in a public place.

Katz said the man walked into the store as the strains of "Good Night Vienna" came from the radio.

"You've got no right to play that selection in your establishment," Katz quoted the man as saying.

Two days later, said Katz, he received a letter purportedly from the society telling him he had to pay a license fee of $25 a year if he kept the radio in his grocery store.

"I pay my radio license fee regularly," Katz commented. "I can't understand it."

A ONE-DOG TANGLE

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP). A dog caused a sidewalk traffic jam here. Led by his young master on a long leash, the dog spied another across the street. He sought to make a dash. Three women were knocked sprawling, two more were tangled in the leash and a policeman had to untangle them.

WHY THE SPINE?

BECAUSE it is the keyboard of the nervous system and has a controlling influence on the strength and activity of all parts of the body.

BECAUSE spinal segments are subject to slight derangement and may cause constriction of spinal nerve fibers.

BECAUSE interference with spinal nerves diminishes the supply of vital energy to tissue cells and contributes towards weakness and lack of proper function in those tissues.

BECAUSE spinal manipulative treatments have proven definitely helpful in bringing better health and greater comfort to those who suffer.

Chiropractic is a logical and effective method of regaining and maintaining health.

A LOSER SQUEEZES

ORDINARILY a squeeze play consists of laying down a winning trick upon which the hapless opponent is obliged to make a choice of discards in two or more suits, any of which will ruin his hand. The squeezer can be, on occasion, a trick which is lost to the partner of the squeezed man. Careful reading of the defender's holding sometimes furnishes an infallible index to such maneuvers.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 6-No Trumps on this deal and West's opening lead was the spade Q. After winning this trick with the spade K, the declarer tried out the heart suit. He cashed the heart K and on the second lead West showed out, placing five hearts originally held by East. The heart Q won this trick and four club tricks were cashed, each opponent showing an original holding of three. It was therefore quite evident to South that East's hand consisted of five hearts, five diamonds and three clubs. The diamond A was cashed.

The declarer realized that East now held a guard in diamonds and hearts and figured that if he could squeeze one of those cards out of his hand, the contract could be made. His next play, therefore, was the spade 10, and when West covered with the J, South allowed it to hold. This placed East in an embarrassing position. It did not matter which card he tossed, as in any event South took the remainder of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the heart K led against South's 4-Spades contract, what play by East insures the defeat of the contract?

STOP BABY'S COLD BEFORE IT GETS WORSE

A FIREMAN will tell you big fires are little fires when they start. That's why they always hurry to put them out. Don't let your baby's little cold develop into a "big cold" or something worse. Be in a hurry to check it. Let Mrs. G——, of Winona, Ont., tell you how. "I have five healthy children and used Baby's Own Tablets for all of them. When I see a cold coming on, I give the tablets and in a day or so they are quite well again. I think there is nothing better."

Baby's Own Tablets are safe and sure in their action. They correct the cause of Baby's trouble. Yet they are utterly free from opiates or stupefying drugs. An analyst's report is given on each package.

Effective in clearing up teething troubles, constipation, simple fevers, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic and summer complaint, irritability, simple croup and other of "baby's" ailments.

Your druggist will return your money if you are not satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. Try them; 25 cents.

Kiwanis' Ladies' and Past Presidents' Night.

A most interesting social event of this week will be the annual Ladies' Night and Past Presidents' Night of the Kiwanis Club to be held in the Empress Hotel on Friday evening.

A fine evening's program has been planned, worthy of the occasion, which marks the sixteenth anniversary of the presentation of the Club's Charter. A. L. Deachman, well-known secretary of the Riverdale Kiwanis Club, will be the after dinner speaker. As a special treat, Dr. Harvey Doney, will be guest soloist. One of Canada's outstanding baritones, Dr. Doney has been heard many times over the radio. In the capable hands of Cliff Hall, the program will also include numbers by talented local artists.

Flower Committee Tea at St. Andrew's.

The Flower Committee of St. Andrew's Women's Association held a very pleasant tea in the Ladies' Parlor on Tuesday afternoon, when the penny bags for the flower fund were received.

Mauve and cream chrysanthemums in a cut-glass vase, surrounded with green smilax, placed on a mirror reflector, made the pretty centrepiece for the tea table, on which also clusters of silver and colored Christmas balls were arranged with charming effect. Mrs. G. H. Roper, president of the W.A., received the guests; and tea was poured by Mrs. Alpine MacNab, who was assisted in serving by Mrs. V. S. Foster. Mrs. V. Hamilton acted as treasurer to receive the penny bags.

Previous to the tea, the Women's Association held the regular meeting, with Mrs. Roper presiding.

The meeting opened with the reading of a Christmas story by Dorothy Swanger, and a Christmas poem given by Gladys Langton, followed by a short business period.

Vansickle-Thompson.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Norwood, recently, when Hazel Lillian, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Thompson of Asphodel, was united in marriage to Percy Arnold Vansickle, son of George Vansickle and the late Mrs. Vansickle of Cobourg.

The bride looked charming in an attractive gown of pale blue crepe back satin, with silver slippers and accessories. The marriage was witnessed by Mrs. Bailey and Miss Florence Mildenhall.

A wedding supper was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, and later Mr. and Mrs. Vansickle left for a motor trip. For travelling, the latter wore a brown costume, with brown crepe dress, and matching accessories. The couple will reside in Brighton.

Ladies' Aid Tea Tuesday Afternoon.

Miss Violet Davidson, of 171 Antrim Street, lent her home on Tuesday afternoon for a most delightful tea held by the East City Group of St. Paul's Church Ladies' Aid. The guests were received by Mrs. C. E. Elewett, Mrs. H. Morgan, and the hostess, Miss Davidson.

In the dining-room the pretty tea table was arranged with rose, pink and yellow chrysanthemums in a crystal bowl, placed with red, gold and silver Christmas balls on a reflector. Red tapers glowed in the centre of the bouquet, in surrounding silver holders, and on the sideboard.

Tea was poured by Mrs. G. A. Macdonald, Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, and Mrs. R. Ross. Assistants were Mrs. B. D. MacLean, Mrs. W. Burrell, Mrs. A. Fraser, and Mrs. Ken Kingston. The table was replenished by Mrs. H. C. Harris, Mrs. T. S. Smith, and Mrs. T. Henry, and guests were ushered to the tea room by Mrs. H. Morgan.

A table of fancy work and homemade cooking was in charge of Miss Brealey and Miss Eakins. Miss Brealey was general convenor for the tea, and the treasurer was Mrs. A. Rudd. The door was opened by Ruth Harris.

With the Girl Guides.

Hello Guides, strange as it seems, your "scribe" is still in one piece after Friday. We know a guide smiles and sings under all difficulties but there's nothing said about marching under said difficulties. Guide rooms will be open from 1 o'clock on Thursday, so bring your home-made cooking early. All mothers are invited to afternoon tea on that day, from 3 o'clock on. Please come and meet the captain.

Brownies. The following Tweenies were enrolled Saturday, Irene Johnston, Thelma Julian, Phyllis Lee, Mary Curtis, Veronica Coss, Joyce Pitchford, and Doreen Gliders. Two of our Brownies, Jean Samis and Mary Pitchford were awarded their Golden Bars. Last Brownie meeting for 1937, Saturday, December 11.

The EXAMINER'S HOME SERVICE

Bad Table Manners Hold You Back

Ken and Madge won't be invited to this nice club again, we fear. Their host is crimson with embarrassment over their conspicuously bad manners.

Madge, trying to be "extra polite," is eating olives with her fork. She sips her coffee from her spoon in what she thinks is a dainty manner. She doesn't know the coffee spoon is for stirring only.

Ken grips his fork as if it were a 'cello and his knife a bow. He tucks the corner of his napkin into his vest front and butters a whole slice of bread at once.

All these errors are offensive to well-bred people. Check your table manners carefully with our 32-page booklet, Course-by-course directions for formal dinners. Learn etiquette for eating at restaurants, clubs, on dining-cars, at parties.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of GOOD TABLE MANNERS to The Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

For Thursday, December 9

A progressive, prosperous and pleasant day, with much of gain and gratification in business and private lives, is read from the dominant astral interventions. Elders and others in influential positions, property and important business or financial operations, all combine for profitable and pleasant denouements.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a happy, prosperous and progressive years, with property, business, finance and work flourishing. Elders and those in high places may render support and friendship.

A child born on this day may be capable, industrious, ambitious and should gain the friendly recognition of elders and important persons. Its amiable and happy disposition may contribute to its social and personal prestige.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

TORONTO — Gordon Vickers pleaded guilty in police court to cruelty to animals and was fined $25. Mrs. Margaret Grant said her Persian cat wandered into Vickers' yard and she saw him hitting with an iron bar. She denied the cat bothered Vickers' pigeons. The cat had to be destroyed.

Thirty Years' Millbrook Citizen Mrs. Henry G. Skitch Passes

Well-Known Resident Dies After Extended Period Of Ill-Health

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—The death of Mrs. Henry G. Skitch, which occurred on Thursday, December 2, following an extended period of ill health, removes one who had been a resident of the community for over thirty years, and who was highly thought of by all who knew her.

Deceased was the youngest daughter of the late Carnaby Thurston and his wife, Mary Jane Cassidy, of Dunsford, her maiden name having been Jennie H. Thurston. She was born at Dunsford sixty-seven years ago next January, and lived there until her marriage to Henry George Skitch, which took place about thirty-five years ago. With the exception of the first two or three years, which were spent at Dunsford and Cavan, practically all of their married life had been lived at Millbrook, their home being established on King street, east.

Mrs. Skitch was a life-long member of the former Methodist, and the United churches, and she was also a member of the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Association of St. Andrew's church; for some years past, ill health has prevented her attending the church services, or being actively associated with these organizations.

Besides the bereaved husband, the immediate surviving relatives include two sons, Kenneth, of Los Angeles, California; and William, of Millbrook; and one daughter, Marjorie, at home. There are also three brothers, John Cole and Samuel Thurston, of Dunsford, and Thomas William of Lindsay; one sister, Mrs. Edward Gordon, (Alice) died two years ago. There is one grandchild.

The funeral took place on Sunday, a private service being conducted at the homestead at twelve o'clock noon by Rev. A. L. Sisco, pastor of St. Andrew's United church, the cortege then proceeding by motor to Dunsford, where a public service was held in the United church, at 2.30 p.m. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Wilkinson had charge of the service, which was very largely attended, and in his remarks mentioned the fact that Mrs. Skitch had, in her earlier years, taught in the Sunday School of her home community and sang in the church choir.

The many beautiful floral tributes gave testimony to the high esteem in which the deceased had been held, and the pall-bearers were all nephews: Milton, Martin, Wallace and Hazele Thurston, of Dunsford, Walter Kennedy, of Lindsay, and J. Sheriff, Jr., of Dunsford. Interment was in the family burial-plot.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were Mrs. F. Neville, Mr. and Mrs. N. Yoe, of Port Hope; Mrs. L. Jones, of Sanctuary, Sask., Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Skitch, of Bailieboro, Mr. and Mrs. A. Adams, of Bowmanville, Mrs. L. Colville, Campbellcroft, Mrs. C. Harrison, Fenelon Falls, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howe, Mrs. J. W. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. G. Finnie, Mrs. Francis Howe, and Mrs. J. Perrin, of South Monaghan.

ONLY 9 FAMILIES ON RELIEF NOW AT CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 8.—Only nine families are on relief up to the present time while thirty-two were receiving aid from the town at the same period last year Relief Officer J. Lewis Hay revealed to the council at the meeting held on Monday. Expressing great satisfaction at this indication of better times Mayor F. F. Long urged the council to co-operate with the churches and societes of the town in preparing Christmas baskets for the needy as had been done last year. It was stated that a balance of $6 had been carried over from the funds of last year when $112 had been raised by the Christmas concert and the work of individual societies.

A lengthy report from the Board of Health indicated that more than the usual number of meetings had been held as a result of the three cases of poliomyletis which were reported in town during the recent epidemic. Seven meetings were held and according to Dr. F. de F. Free, M.O.H. the sanitary conditions of the town were quite satisfactory and the general health of the citizens good.

On motion of Councillors O'Sullivan and Locke, Charles Davidson was granted the same rebate in taxes as he was given last year on the skating rink with the same terms.

A letter from Rev. B. Simpson Black, secretary of the Ministerial Association advised the council of their willingness to co-operate in providing baskets for the needy and on motion it was decided to call a meeting on Dec. 15th to consider what steps should be taken.

Hold Cookie Day

The request of the Boy Scouts for the privilege of holding a Cookie Day on Dec. 11th was granted.

J. C. Birmingham, Tax Collector told the council that he had collected during the month of November $2300.45 and $1637.30 on arrears.

On request of Councillor McColl the mayor told the council that $233 had been collected to defray the cost of alterations to the cenotaph. Although the special subscription fund is being left open it was felt that the total amount of $400 which the council granted would not be covered and that a special meeting should be held on Dec. 15th when council could make a grant to the committee of whatever balance remained.

A motion was passed authorizing the clerk to advertise for tenders for the town weigh scales with tenders to close at noon on Dec. 15. Under the terms of a by-law which was passed Mr. Fred Graham sold Lot 36, Block 12, Balaclava street for the sum of $25 providing that he should build within a year a house valued at not less than $1000 on the property.

The sum of $60 which appeared on the pay sheet as a charge from the Water and Light Commission for power used in the crusher at the town pit prompted Councillor O'Sullivan to ask the mayor to bring to the attention of the commission that the council received very little back from them for what they (council) give.

Although the mayor promised to pass the information along he pointed out that the town had been charged for only two months power whereas it had actually been used for four months.

King Leopold's Name Linked With Britisher

KING LEOPOLD — LADY ANNE — PRINCE CHARLES

The arrival in England, for a visit to the Duke of Portland, of Leopold, King of the Belgians, and his mother Queen Elizabeth, stirred rumors which were promptly denied officially of an impending romance between the young monarch and Lady Cavandish Bentinck, daughter of the Marquis of Titchfield and grand-daughter of Leopold's host. Also in England was Prince Charles, brother of King Leopold, whose name was at one time romantically linked with that of Lady Anne's. The visits were described as private. Leopold was widowed when his beautiful queen, Astrid, was killed in an automobile accident over two years ago.

MISS MURIEL BALL HEADS JUNIOR WMS

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—Mrs. S. E. Eakins, and her daughter, Miss Mary, were joint hostesses for the annual meeting of the Junior W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian church, held at their home, Anne street, on Monday, at 8 p.m., with the retiring president, Ada Peers, in the chair.

The Christmas lesson was read by Colleen Blair, and Mary Handley, and the leader, Miss Agnes Johnston, led in prayer. "Holy Night" was sung by Emma Peers, Mary Handley, and Mary Armstrong, and Doreen Depell gave the story of Saint Nicholas. The treasurer, Margaret Armstrong, reported a bale valued at $16 sent away this fall, and a remittance of possibly $5 will be sent to the Presbyterial treasurer. The only means of raising funds has been by the collection taken at each meeting.

A very pretty and significant 'candle lighting' was arranged by the leader, who gave each member a small candle, round which was placed a slip of paper bearing the name of a missionary, and her field. On Christmas eve each girl will light her candle, place it in the window of her home, and offer a special prayer for the missionary assigned to her.

Miss Muriel Ball will be the hostess for the January meeting. Mrs. Eakins took the chair for the election, the officers for 1938 being: Honory president, Miss Agnes Johnston; president, Muriel Ball; vice-presidents, Mary Eakins and Ada Peers; secretary, Mary Armstrong; treasurer, Emma Peers; pianist, M. Eakins.

Blockade To Send Oranges Higher

LONDON, Dec. 8 (C.P. Cable). — The Spanish Civil War may mean dearer oranges for Christmas.

In his scheme to blockade Republican Spain, General Franco has decided to check the trade in Spanish oranges.

Oranges, Franco holds, when sold abroad, provide the Spanish Government with foreign exchange with which to buy munitions. Export of oranges from Republican ports, therefore, is a crime which must be stopped.

Marmora Butcher Is Real Knitter, Makes Hockey Socks In Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 8.

NOT often does one hear of proprietors of meat shops being engaged in a more delicate art between their sales. It came as a surprise to The Examiner on Tuesday evening to discover that George Aunger, local butcher, had knitted since Monday morning practically the whole of one of a pair of hockey socks from wool furnished by one of his young friends.

Mr. Aunger has been able to knit socks of practically any style since he was twelve years of age. At that time he was confined to the house for six weeks through having cut his foot with an axe.

"I had a good teacher in my mother," he said, "and it was one of the best ways I could have chosen to keep my mind occupied."

Gordon Gray, also of this village, makes his own socks and mitts.

It would be interesting to know how many other villages in The Examiner's territory can boast of male knitters.

Coldsprings Y.P. Debating Team Winner Over Springville

Cobourg Presbytery Representatives Are Successful In Inter-Presbytery Series

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 8. — Coldsprings young people's debating team representing the Cobourg Presbytery in the Bay of Quinte Conference debating series, were successful in carrying off the decision over Springville young people, representing the Peterborough Presbytery, when they met in the local United church to contest the final inter-Presbytery series, on Friday evening last.

The debate "Resolved that the country offers better opportunities for the development of the mind than does the city."

Miss M. Brooks of Cobourg hospital staff and Miss J. Jemison, student of Peterborough Normal school, upheld the affirmative and although generally speaking the sympathy of the audience leaned toward the affirmative side, the team awarded the decision had only a very slight edge over the negative debaters.

Mr. Clifford Johnston of Springville and Mr. Eric Douglas of Peterborough upheld the negative and both in their clever and humorous way brought forth strong points in favor of their subject.

The judges, Miss Bessie Gordon of Tweed, Mr. Beverly Hancock of Port Hope and Fred Barnard of Bailieboro, handed their decision in favor of the county as the most suitable place for the development of the mind.

At the conclusion of the debate F. Barnard offered constructive criticism and congratulations to the four young debaters.

Mr. George Lewis of Welcome, past president of the Cobourg Presbytery, acted as chairman for the evening.

The worship service at the opening of the evening's program was put on by the local young people. The president, Miss Clara Seems, presided and was assisted by Misses W. Gainer, F. Watt, E. Jewison, B. Barnard and Messrs. H. Seens and F. Barnard.

Pastor Welcomed

The pastor, Rev. E. M. Cook, spoke words of welcome to the very large audience that gathered for the occasion. The church being filled with a group of enthusiastic supporters who gathered from the local district as well as from the districts from which the debeating teams came. Members of the Conference and various Presbytery executives were also present. Among those were Miss Phyllis Kidd, Millbrook; Miss Loretta McDougal, of Peterborough; Miss Bessie Gordon, Tweed; Mr. Robert Spence of Lakefield, Mr. G. Lewis, Welcome; Mr. B. Hancock, Port Hope; Rev. S. C. Brown, Springville; and Rev. Wesley of Coldsprings.

At the close of the meeting Miss Bessie Gordon, director of the Conference debates, presented the conference trophy to the winning team.

Mr. Clifford Johnston congratulated the winning teams and also moved a vote of thanks to the judges. The vote was seconded by Miss Brooks.

During the program musical numbers were rendered by Miss I. Smith of Cobourg and Miss Neals of Springville.

Rev. E. M. Cook pronounced the benediction.

Judge At Cobourg Is Given Gloves

COBOURG, Dec. 8.—(CP).—Judge J. A. McGibbon, Lindsay, was presented with a pair of white gloves by Sheriff John T. Field at the opening of the County Court Tuesday.

Judge McGibbon expressed his pleasure at the absence of criminal cases on the docket and recalled that on his last visit he had received a similar presentation.

An action brought by William Graham against Frances Kennedy and Ella Jibb to set aside a conveyance of property, was referred to the Local Master. A dispute over a farm agreement brought by Lawrence and Olive Williams against David Crawford, was proceeded with, the only remaining case on the dock.

BADMINTON CLUB HAS SOCIAL NIGHT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—The Millbrook Garrison Badminton Club had twenty-eight members out for play on Monday evening, and following the regular games' period, a social hour was enjoyed in the club lounge upstairs in the Armouries, with Mrs. W. W. Kennedy and Miss Doris Bannister, B.A., as hostesses.

The table was covered with a lace cloth, and emphasizing the approach of the Christmas season, was the orvatal vase of poinsettias on the central reflector, the four miniature Christmas trees at each corner, and red candles burning in silver holders.

Mrs. (Dr.) M. E. Hobbs and Miss Vanita Ingram assisted the hostesses with the service of the guests.

Treat CHILDRENS COLDS this Proved way

WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub.

It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risk of spoiling appetite or disturbing a delicate digestion . . . and thus lowering resistance just when it is most needed. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin . . .

Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

VICKS VAPORUB

Now White—Stainless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

Thomas Can't Use His Sneaker In Bout With Max Schmeling

Minnesota Heavy Warned Against Hitting Maxie After Referee Breaks

POMPTON LAKES, N.J., Dec. 8.—Chairman John J. Phelan of the New York Boxing Commission yesterday warned Harry Thomas, Minnesota heavyweight, against using his "sneak punch" on Max Schmeling in their 15-round bout Monday night.

Reports from the Midwest indicate that Thomas scored more than twenty of his fifty-nine knockouts with "sneakers" — smashing overhanded right hooks to an opponent's chin after breaking out of a clinch.

Chairman Phelan emphasized, for the benefit of Thomas and Manager Nate Lewis, that the referee at Madison Square Garden will enforce strictly the Commission rule calling for clean breaks. He warned that proper action would be taken against either boxer for violation of this rule.

Chairman Phelan had heard none of the "sneak punch" rumors before he arrived at the Thomas training camp to watch Tuesday's workout. And the questionable blow was brought to his attention in an unusual manner. He was standing by the indoor training ring while the Eagle Bend Bulldog hammered away for two rounds at a sparmate, Frankie Quinlan of Paterson, N.J. In the second round Thomas tore into Frankie, battered him into the ropes and had him on the verge of a knockout when time was called to save Quinlan from further punishment. Quinlin was slated for three rounds, but Manager Lewis said he had enough.

Tough On Opponents

As Quinlin, a tall, dark-haired 185-pounder staggered down from the ring, he told a reporter, "He hits harder than anybody I ever worked with. I almost went out when he hit me with that sneaker. That's an awful punch. He gets it in on the break and—"

"What's that?" interrupted the keen-eared Chairman Phelan, who had been listening in unobserved. "You say he hits on the break? Why—that's not allowed under our rules. When the referee says 'break,' the men must step apart without hitting."

Of course there had been no referee in the ring at the time. And Quinlin tried to explain to Phelan that the Thomas "sneaker" is delivered on breaks "not ordered by the referee," and therefore legal. That Thomas does not wait for the referee's order to break—that he shoves his opponent away, suddenly, and wallops him with the right at the same time.

"But Thomas might hit Schmeling while the referee was ordering them apart," Phelan insisted.

The perspiring Quinlin, still in headguard and boxing gloves, gamely tried to extricate Thomas from the mess he had innocently dragged Thomas into. Quinlin insisted that Harry's "intuition" would prevent him from hitting on breaks ordered by the referee. Phelan laughed loudly at the "intuition" argument and declared that the Commission did not let enforcement of its rules depend upon a fighter's intuition, and that was that.

Thomas, who scaled 192½ pounds, boxed two more rounds with Bobby Millsap, a Sacramento negro, and went through several rounds of strenuous gymnasium work.

Chairman Phelan said Harry seemed to be a well-conditioned athlete, but he could tell nothing about his fighting ability until he saw him in the ring against a good opponent.

Training Hard

AUSSIES MAY NOT ENTER CUP SERIES

MELBOURNE, Dec. 8 (CP)—Australia's stars of the tennis courts, who for years have been in the front ranks of world competition, may not compete in the 1938 Davis Cup challenge series. The Australian Lawn Tennis Association has deferred its decision and may withhold its final verdict until early in the new year.

Norman Brooks, one of Australia's tennis greats of former years, and President of the A.L.T.A., believes it would be a mistake for Australia to challenge next year. He is in favor of a biennial competition, and suggests a women's international tournament should also be held in alternate years.

WEMBLEY LIONS HEAD CIRCUIT

LONDON, Dec. 8 (CP)—Already a couple of laps ahead of schedules in hockey's native heath, the English brand as presented by Canadian imports has reached mid-season form.

Tight refereeing has eliminated rough play and a hard-fought 42-game preliminary London cup tournament removed jagged play.

Sitting on top of the heap as the seven clubs entered the National League campaign were the Wembley Lions, last season's champions. They garnered 20 points in London cup play compared with 15 points for the second place club Harringay Racers, former London cup holders. Lions had four men in the first 10 scorers.

From the very start of the tourney fleet Albert Lemay of Winnipeg remained at the head of the list. When the last game was played he had a total of 18 points, nine goals and nine assists.

Tied in third place were his two mates, Captain Ed Murphy of Ottawa and Alex Archer of Winnipeg. The former had seven goals and six assists and the Archer six goals and seven assists.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP)—Detroit fans are so indignant over the trade which sent Gerald Walker to Chicago the papers have had to expand their letters-to-the-editor departments... Mickey Cochrane knows he stuck his chin out for he made Jimmy Dykes promise he wouldn't play Walker on the Sox' first trip to Detroit ... (But Dykes says he will).

Detroit Lions can't win many games... The Red Wings are down in the dumps... Joe Louis isn't so hot any more, but the auto city can claim all eleven places on the All America Panners' team... Tiger fans began to growl when Goose Goslin got the air ... They roared when there was talk of changing the name of Navin Field to Briggs Stadium... Now they're on the loose and talking boycott ... But if we know our Detroiters they'll probably be right back out there breaking attendance records next season.

So far, Otto Bluege, the infielder, is the champion traveller of the big league baseball meetings... At three o'clock in the afternoon, Jersey City sent him to Los Angeles and five minutes later Los Angeles traded him to Birmingham... Old Strangler Lewis (he must be pushing 55) is wowing 'em in Paris.

An Italian sporting society pitched a dinner for the riders in last week's bike race... Grand prize was a $350 payment of an automobile... Mrs. Heinz Vopel, wife of one of the winners, was given the honor of making the draw... Up she stepped and pulled out the ticket of Mrs. Gustav Killian, wife of Vopel's partner... How's that for teamwork?

Not Only Does Friend Hubby Suffer From Bike Spills

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT STRUCK us today that 'tis rather wintry out, and that maybe we ought to mention a few of the winter sports which do not hit the headlines regularly. Hockey, ski-ing, skating and basketball, are always cluttering up the newspapers, but there are many other popular sports in this invigorating—brrrr!—climate during the cold months. For instance, there is snow-shoeing. Snow-shoeing is a tricky art, and a most enjoyable one if you get the hang of the darned things. The general idea of snow-shoeing is not to get your legs mixed up. When sho-snewing—there, doggone it, we've got our writing in a mixup—you place one foot, stuck in a snow-shoe, down on the white surface. You then place the other behind it but at an angle of about 40 degrees, so as not to trip yourself in next move. Your next move in snew-showing—well, for gosh sakes!—is to put one foot in front of the other and keep your head out of a snowdrift. And so on. It's really lots of fun. Or so we have been informed.

* * * * * * *

BUT THAT is merely one wintry pastime. Snow-balling is another, being especially popular with young schoolboys—drat 'em!—of about 11 or 12 years of age. A nice damp snow is necessary and you then roll up a hard ball, the size of a baseball, and let some passer-by have it. This is rather illegal, and we wouldn't advise it—but we fear advice will have little to do with this great outdoor sport from December till April. The experienced exponent in the art of snow-balling does not bother with ladies—since the police often arrive right suddenly. Nor do they pester young men. The latter quite frequently are snow-ball resenters and runners to boot—and how they can boot! A silk topper or a derby is the ideal target, but such things are scarce nowadays. There is a neat aperture betwixt the neck and the coat collar which is inviting. A fist full of snow in this vicinity induces a vague feeling of discomfort, which becomes less vague with the passage of time. A great sport in its place.

* * * * * * *

TAKE SLEIGH-RIDIN' for instance. A grand sport. Get on a bob-sled, wrap yourself up warmly, wrap your legs around the gee in front of you, and then don't give a rap. We recall one wild ride down the icy side of Armour Hill a few years back. We were steering and had a gorgeous gal right behind—and a few others who didn't count. Trouble developed when the rope broke and steering became a memory. We hit a gap in the fence okay at the bottom of the hill, but ran into a bit of difficulty and a guy's front door clean across the sheet of ice known as the street. With an unanimous movement on the part of the party, we left the vicinity. And the gorgeous gal declined further bob-sleddin' dates. But it is a good winter sport.

* * * * * * *

XMAS SHOPPING should not be overlooked, either. True, it is only an early-winter sport, but it is an important one. When you consider that it is open to everyone, including kids, lovers, shy middle-aged gents in lingerie departments, calm colleens in men's shops, parked baby-carriages detouring heavy foot traffic, timid souls feverishly waving a 20-cent doll at a superior young clerk, bossy women everywhere—well, it is too big a sport to deal with in this limited space. We will maybe discuss it again. We will maybe discuss a lot other of the lesser-known winter sports again, always provided we are not shot in rather cool blood in the meantime. Which, after all, wouldn't be too surprising, what?

DESPITE THEIR deficit of 14 points in the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" final series, the local Orfuns are not too downhearted concerning the return joust in Hamilton this Saturday. The players wax quite wrothy at the suggestion that the Red Bombers of Dundas will beat 'em again. The local huskies claim they were a mile off-form here last weekend whilst the Bombers had horse-shoes draped all over 'em. Orfuns, in fact, promise to reverse the score in Hamilton. Well, we would certainly like that. Meantime, plans are being made for a special train to Toronto—and maybe on to Hamilton—or for a special rate for such a return trip this weekend by Orfuns' officials. If enough promise to go, it may be lined up, price being $1.85. Folks taking this trip may stop off in Toronto to see the Winnipeg-Argos grid tilt and the N.H.L. fixture at night. There is an ad on the matter in tonight.

* * * * * * *

AND THE P.C.I. players, senior interscholastic champs of the Province, have finally settled down to school studies again. And ditto the young fans up there. But their titular efforts have not been forgotten just yet. The City Council will throw the team a banquet some night next week. While the Board of Education will recognize the honor brought to the city. A committee of members will decide upon the form this recognition will take. Committee is composed of: Principal Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, Dr. G. R. Scott (chairman), Chas. Shaw and W. A. Richardson. On behalf of the boys, may we suggest their work be recognized by giving 'em two weeks vacation? Oh, well . . .

* * * * * * *

MUCH ADO around Kingston with three or four of their puck teams threatening to abdicate from the O.H.A. unless the senior and intermediate groupings are changed. The senior "B" group of Kingston Garrisons, Queen's, Fliers and Petes, finds the two Limestone City squads very dissatisfied. In fact, they refuse to play in it, though the Fliers and Petes are satisfied with such a setup. Then, Kingston City and R.M.C. prefer to play with the other two Kingston teams in a local intermediate grouping, instead of being put in with Belleville and Gananoque. Officers here express surprise at the Kingston attitude, saying Peterborough is content, and they will await further developments from the O.H.A. or Kingston with interest.

* * * * * * *

THAT O.H.A. senior group setup of "A" calibre is a funny one. Five teams are in it, Brantford, Kitchener, Port Colborne, Oshawa and Toronto. And not one of these teams can be kept out of a playoff spot! Seems the top three teams playoff for the senior "A" championship, whilst the last two clash in a playoff series to enter O.H.A. senior "B" playdowns. This latter angle won't encourage such squads as the Petes, Fliers and Kingston, to play senior "B" all season and then have to meet an "A" team in playdowns, eh? A "Press Committee" for senior games has been organized and is made up of scribes in the towns where senior "A" hockey is played. Really a "praise committee", of course.

* * * * * * *

PICKING 'EM off the grapevine: O.H.A. has decided that Napanee puckists must play with Belleville, instead of Kingston . . . . Wilson, Bentley and Murphy are the three Gibbardmen affected . . . . Orfuns play at the Hamilton cricket grounds Saturday, and leave here about 7.30 a.m. . . . . Scouts Puck Loop meeting will be Thursday eve at eight at St. James; dope on it is in tonight . . . . Players dropped so far from the Oshawa senior hockey team include Bagnell, Everett, Osler, Clarridge and Shortt . . . . Gals' cage meeting at the Y.W. is Thursday e'en at seven; those interested are invited . . . . A nifty intermediate "B" team may represent Peterborough in that Central Ontario group . . . . Junior City Hockey League teams should be readying up and set for the first meeting which will be called ere long . . . . Some local boxing dope will be out in a day or two . . . . Ought to start flooding at the Brock St. rink soon . . . . And another good winter sport—of the indoor variety—is post office!

OXFORD DEFEATS CAMBRIDGE 17-4

TWICKENHAM, England, Dec. 8 (CP Cable)—His Majesty and 40,000 other spectators saw Oxford University overwhelm Cambridge by 17 to 4 Tuesday in the annual Varsity Rugby match. It was Oxford's first victory since 1932.

The result gave Oxford 28 victories in the long series with its traditional rival. Cambridge has won 23 of the matches and 11 have been drawn.

Renwick and Cooke scored tries for Oxford in the first half, one of them being converted, and the Dark Blues led 8 to 0 at the interval. Mayhew scored another try for Oxford before Cambridge got on the scoreboard with a goal dropped by Bruce Lockhart. The Dark Blues had the Cambridge defense floundering as the game ended with another try by Cooke that was not converted.

Nog Mason Beaten In Canadian Debut

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (C.P.). — Like the famous sponsor, Tommy Farr, the Welsh bantamweight, Nog Masan, offered plenty of proof to-day other types of British fighters than the horizontal come to this continent.

Mason lost a 10-round decision in his Canadian debut last night to Norman (Baby) Yack, Canadian bantam champion, but gave the fans lots of action with a battering attack in the last two rounds that knocked Yack all over the ring.

The Toronto boy, however, had piled up too large a point-lead in early rounds. He knocked Mason down in the first, sixth and eighth rounds. Mason refused to take a count on any of the knockdowns. Yack weighed 118 and Mason 119¼.

Four Eastern Hockey Clubs Planning To Leave O.H.A.

Queen's, R.M.C. And Two Other Kingston Teams Protest Groupings

KINGSTON, Dec. 8.—Four O.H.A. hockey teams here are seriously considering dropping out of the association loop, it was learned here last night. Dissatisfaction with the grouping, and the cost of travelling under the present groupings were given as reasons.

Kingston Garrison and Kingston City Clubs have definitely decided to leave the O.H.A. unless the present groupings are changed. Queen's University and the Royal Military College have not definitely decided as yet, but as far as Queen's are concerned, the general feeling is for withdrawal, Charles Hicks, Secretary of Queen's Athletic Board, intimated last night.

Queen's University, Kingston Garrison, Royal Canadian Air Force of Trenton, and Peterborough have been classed in the Senior "B," while Kingston City, Belleville, R.M.C. and Gananoque are in Intermediate "A".

Kingston hockey clubs feel that they should be allowed to play out their own group among themselves and then meet the winners of groups in other parts of the province. This would save the Kingston clubs long trips and added travelling expenses.

Both Charles Hicks of Queen's, and Prof. Tom Gelley of R.M.C., were opposed to having their teams make the long trips to Peterborough in the O.H.A. schedule. Mr. Hicks declared many members of the Athletic Board were in favor of pulling Queen's out of the O.H.A. and confining their hockey to the intercollegiate.

Captain Evans of the Garrison declared that his team was only entered under the stipulation that they would play in a purely local loop, and is quoted as demanding his entry fees back unless the grouping is changed. Bill Gowsell, manager of the Kingston City Club, is raising strong objections to Belleville being allotted the Napanee players by a recent decision of the subcommittee of the O.H.A.

Valuable Player

Brilliant Teddy Morris (ABOVE) 165-pound flying wing of Toronto Argonauts, eastern Canadian rugby champions, was awarded the Jeff Russell Memorial Trophy, presented annually to the most sportsmanlike player and at the same time the most valuable player to his team. This is the first time in seven years of service with the Argos that Morris has won the trophy, awarded by the governors of the Interprovincial Rugby Union.

Boston Hockey Fans Protest Decisions Of N.L. Referees As Wings Beat Bruins 3-2

Canadiens Gain Lead Tie With Leafs By Defeating Maroons 5-1

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—(CP)—Most hockey fans think they're getting their money's worth when they hoot a referee. Some toss peanuts on the ice and think they're getting their money's worth. But in Boston the fans are different. They have to wreck the joint before they feel they're satisfied.

They almost did that last night when Detroit Red Wings defeated their Bruins 3-2 for their third victory in 11 games. Angered by decisions of officials Mickey Ion and Johnny Mitchell, fans in the top gallery of the Boston Garden ripped the tops off their seats and hurled the slats on the ice.

Ion and Mitchell ducked wood for the last 10 minutes of the game and the barrage was so thick at one point the game had to be held up while the ice was cleared of furniture.

In all there were 13,000 angry fans in the Garden, 5,000 more than the record season crowd that saw Canadiens defeat Maroons 5-1 in Montreal and slip into a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs for the Canadian division leadership.

The outbreak in Boston overshadowed the comeback of Red Wings, world champions, who have been kicked around like rookies this season but looked like Stanley Cup holders last night.

Old Line Re-united.

Manager Jack Adams re-united Larry Aurie, Marty Barry and Herb Lewis as a line and they produced two goals, Aurie scoring both of them in the first period. Bill Cowley had scored after the first Wing marker and he came back in the second to tie the game.

While Eddie Shore was serving a major penalty in the third period for high-sticking Doug Young, Hec Kilrea, on as a fourth forward, combined with Aurie and Barry for the winning tally. The defeat was the first the Bruins have suffered at home this season and the fact it came while Shore was off seemed too much for the Boston fans.

The big crowd at Montreal also saw a rousing battle with the players high-sticking and arguing throughout the game. All but one of the six goals were scored while penalties were being served.

Big Babe Siebert, Gus Mancuso and Paul Hines fired a trio of Canadien goals in the first period and George Mantha and Walter Buswell got the rest in the third. Maroons dominated the play in the second when Bob Gracie scored their only goal.

The new penalty shot was trotted out for inspection for the first time this season when Des Smith tripped Haynes in the first period. Johnny Gagnon shot from the line that replaces the old circles but had no more success than most players do with free shot. He missed the net entirely.

82 Young Athletes Listed For Berths

VANCOUVER, Dec. 8 (C.P.). — Eighty-two young hopefuls are listed officially to-day as aspirants for berths on the Canadian boxing and wrestling teams to the British Empire Games in Australia.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific seven of Canada's nine provinces sent their hopefuls for the two-day trials opening here next Friday.

Only New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were missing from provincial representation. Entries ranged from Winnipeg's 16-year-old boxing sensation, Billy Brade, to the veteran 28-year-old Larry Clark of Montreal, Eastern Ontario and Quebec bantamweight wrestling champion.

BANS MIXED SOCCER

TONBRIDGE, England—(CP). — Women must stick together in soccer. Two "male" clubs lined up here recently, but one continued with only 10 players when the referee spied a woman on the field.

TORONTO GRANITES OUSTED IN SERIES FOR SENIOR TITLE

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP).—Sixteen rinks were left for the final day's plays today in the fifth annual Ontario seniors' bonspiel, eight rinks curling for the seniors' trophy, premier award, and the other eight for the Hudson-Ross trophy, open to rinks who lost in their first matches.

Surprise defeat of yesterday's play was the elimination of Charlie Bulley's strong Toronto Granites rink by C. H. Beeby of Barrie. Beeby skipped his rink to a 10-6 victory in the second round of the seniors' trophy play. Another strong rink eliminated was Dr. S. T. White's Orangeville four, who lost to J. F. Balles of Oshawa, 16-7, in the same round.

The other six rinks left for the final draw today were Dr. A. E. Walkey, skip of a Hamilton Victorias rink; R. S. Martin, Hamilton Thistles; A. Menary, Grand Valley; A. R. Goldie, Galt; F. N. Allen, Hamilton Thistles, and F. Robinson, Milton.

Dr. F. G. Hughes of Waterloo skipped his rink to an 11-3 victory over Dr. W. A. Woolner and his Ayr curlers in the first round of the Hudson-Ross play. Earlier H. J. Simms of Kitchener beat W. H. Doherty of Hamilton Thistles, 9-8.

Remaining with Hughes and Simms in the consolation play were W. A. Watson, Sarnia; F. Sargent, Grand Valley; W. J. Arthur, Owen Sound; Dr. J. N. Harvie, Orillia; J. N. Webster, Galt, and D. T. White, Hamilton Victorias.

Gene Tunney Predicts Win For Schmeling Over Louis

Retired Champ Says Maxie Should Regain Title From Bomber By Kayo Route

SUMMIT, N.J., Dec. 8 (A.P.). — Gene Tunney came out from behind his favorite double shelf of Shakespeare to-day and predicted that Max Schmeling would win his heavyweight championship back from Joe Louis next June by a knockout.

Gene, who retired undefeated to his books and travel nine years ago, was mightily impressed by German Max's form as he worked out at Madame Bey's training camp for his bout at the Garden next Monday night with Harry Thomas of Chicago and Minnesota.

"He could knock out Louis tomorrow," he declared after watching Schmeling maul two sparring partners. "Louis is out of shape, and Max there has the greatest right I ever saw on a heavyweight.

"There's no reason why Max shouldn't be the first man to win the title back, even if he is 32," Tunney continued. "Bob Fitzsimmons won the championship at 35, and I hadn't reached by peak when I retired at 30. I'm sure of it, because I was better in my last fight against Tom Heeney than in any other."

Tunney crowded into the little gymnasium just like anybody else, and posed amiably with Schmeling for the photographers.

Coaches Crimsons

The return of Coach Frank Thomas from a trip north is all that is awaited for the University of Alabama football squad to start training for the annual rose bowl game, feature of the tournament of roses at Pasadena, California. Thomas, pictured above, has coached the crimson tide to an unbeaten and untied season. They have made four previous trips to the bowl and have emerged victorious each time. Though their opponents, the University of California, have made four trips to the bowl, they have never met in the classic title before.

5 Additional Names In Baseball Fame

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.— The American and National Leagues today jointly approved five additional baseball greats for the game's hall of fame. The new members were George Wright, early baseball organizer; Morgan Bulkley, organizer and first President of the National League; Ban Johnson, first President of the American League; John McGraw, late manager of the New York Giants; and Connie Mack, veteran Philadelphia Athletics' manager.

AMERICAN LEAGUE HOLDS FAST BALL

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—American Leaguers will keep on their primrose path of happy customers and home runs for 1938 while their National League cousins go back to the old skin game of squeeze play, shorter hits, and photo finish games.

A bit sore at each other's wilfulness in the matter, the American Leaguers voted yesterday to retain the old lively ball whereas the National Leaguers, unblessed by such home run hitters as Joe DiMaggio, Lou Gehrig, and Jimmy Foxx, decided to go back to the deader horsehide. Thus, after four years of agreement on the ball, the two leagues find they have agreed to disagree.

CHASER FALLS DEAD

NEWMARKET, England — (CP). —Vivian Smith's fine 10-year-old steeplechaser, Ready Cash, expected to run in next year's Grand National, fell dead while exercising.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark, of St. Louis, in his senior year. Jerry finds that Lionel is a cousin of Mimi Le Brun, a girl he had admired several years before while visiting Washington with his uncle. Mimi, granddaughter of a late senator, is about to make her debut, Lionel tells him. Jerry and Lionel are writing a play together.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 9

IT WAS in mid-winter that Lionel had a letter from Mimi. They kept up a desultory correspondence, and now and then he read a line or two to me. But this letter became mine to keep. I have it now, and so can give it, word for word, as she wrote it in her modish, angular script, on sheet after sheet of paper headed with a crest.

Lionel read it to me because I happened to be in his room when it was handed to him. "Poor old Mimi," he said, when he had finished. "She's been having it out with Olga." He laughed and leaned back in his chair. "Listen, Jerry, and see if it wouldn't make a scene in a play."

I may as well confess that I trembled as he read. It was like her own voice speaking. She wrote very naturally and unaffectedly, and she poured out her heart to him.

"You see, Lion, I had to put pride in my pocket. I am to make my debut next fall, and we have to plan ahead. Mother said that I should only be asking for what was mine, if I went to Olga. And that grandfather's heart would have been broken if he had known that I was to have my coming-out party in any other house but his.

"I don't want to have it there. The darling Papins have offered, and the Dana Clarks. But mother won't hear of it. She says she came out in the rose ballroom, and that I must. I told her if grandfather had wanted me to have things, he should have made a will and said so. And then she cried and insisted that Olga had influenced him, and that he had thought she would do everything for us.

"Well, anyhow, I went. Olga has been having some alterations made in the house, and oh, Lion, it is dreadful. The hall looks like the entrance to the Grand Opera House in Paris—stairs sweeping up both ways, as they do on the stage, instead of the blessed old banisters that you and I used to slide down.

'She seemed glad to see me. I went in the afternoon, and she had tea for me. She has made grandfather's den over into a sort of Turkish Retreat. It is puffy with cushions of black and gold brocade, and she had on a teagown of pale blue chiffon with sleeves like wings, and she looked like a plump, blond prima dona.

"I know I am prejudiced, Lion, but it was all so different in grandfather's day. She has had a balcony built at the end of the hall, and it overlooks a sort of wide foyer which leads into the ballroom, and there, as large as life and as lovely as the artist could make it, is my peacock portrait!"

Lionel laid down the letter. "I can just see Mimi on that balcony, and Olga. You can't imagine two people more unlike, Jerry."

I nodded. I was breathless with interest. The whole recital seemed like something out of a book.

"We leaned over the balcony, looking at the picture, and she said, in that slow way of hers, 'One can't give too much wall-space to the works of an artist like that.' And I said, 'Well, he had a good subject.' She stood looking at the picture, and at last she said, 'He makes you look older and handsomer than you are, Mimi, but not vainer.'

"Can you beat that, Lion? I didn't know she had it in her. But I flung back, 'There's a difference between vanity and pride.' And she said, 'But peacocks are vain, aren't they?'

"Well, I was simply furious, and I wanted to tell her so. But I wasn't there for that, so I simply said, 'Well I am glad he made me handsome, so that when I am old and ugly I can come back and look at it.'

"We went back then to the Turkish Retreat, and tea came, and I talked to her. I told her how mother felt, and that I knew grandfather would have wanted it, and she said, I think he would, and I will do everything to make it a success.' And I said, Thank you, Olga,' and that seemed to be the end of it.

"But when we had finished our tea, she asked, 'What are you going to do after that?' and I said, 'After what?' and she said, 'After your coming-out party?' and I said, 'Oh, I shan't have to do much entertaining; our friends will help out.' And she said I don't mean that. What are you going to do when you've made your debut, and had a winter of dances and parties?' and I laughed and said, "I suppose I'll get married.'

"She sat looking at me, and do you know, Lion, she gave me a queer feeling, as if I were glass and transparent. And somehow I felt small and mercenary, and frightfully frivolous, until I suddenly remembered that it is she who is mercenary and small-minded, and unfair to you and to mother and me, so I stood up and said stiffly, 'I am sure it would have pleased grandfather to know that I am to have the rose ballroom,' and she said, 'I am sure it would please him. But you must'nt expect too much of me, Mimi.'

"Lion, I felt utterly frozen when she said that. And I got out as quickly as I could, and cried right in the street, and I had to hold up my muff so that people wouldn't see me. And when I got home, mother wasn't there. She had gone to Aunt Bernice's to play bridge. And so I am writing to you, or I shall simply expire from suppressed emotion.

"Oh, Lion, I loved grandfather, and it hurts and hurts and hurts, to think he could have treated me like this. I was so proud of him. And the last time we were in Washington I was so happy. Oh, I wonder if I am ever going to be happy again."

It ended there, and I was torn by her distress. To think that she suffered!

Lionel took it easily. "Oh, well, Mimi got what she wanted, so why should she care?"

But I felt that she should care, and, indeed, when I had time to think of it all in colder blood. I wondered that she could ever have asked a favor at the hands of such a woman. I contrasted the sturdy pride of my own people, which would have led us to work our fingers to the bone rather than receive help from one who gave it grudgingly.

We called Olga, after that, "the Ogre." We decided to put her in our play. She was to be the villainess

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PRESENT

"What is it, Unkie Wig? What did you hear?" whispered Baby Bunty. The orphan rabbit snuggled close to Mr. Longears in the woods through which they were hopping. Bunty was carrying some powdery, sneezery puff balls in her handkerchief.

"I heard a noise," said Mr. Longears.

"So did I," said Bunty. "What kind of a noise did you hear, Unkie Wig " Even then Bunty only used two words of "baby talk."

"It sounded like a danger noise," went on Mr. Longears.

"That's what I thought," agreed Bunty.

"As if," said Uncle Wiggily, somebody might be sneaking after us in the woods."

"That's just what I think," said Bunty. Let's run and hop fast!"

"No," said Uncle Wiggily and he pulled Bunty closer to him as they crouched down back of a big log. "If we start to hop now, whoever is after us will see or hear us. But if we stay here quietly they may pass by and we shall be safe."

Bad Chap?

"Oh, all right," said Bunty, who was a good little rabbit. "But who is it?" she asked.

"One of the Bad Chaps, I have no doubt," said Uncle Wiggily with a sigh. "They never seem to let me alone."

"I should think they might," said Bunty. "So near Christmas as it is and all that. Did you ever try giving them a present, Unkie Wig?"

"Giving who a present, Bunty?"

"The Bad Chaps."

"I would have to give three presents," said the rabbit.

"That's right," agreed Bunty. "There's the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat. You would have to give each one a present, I suppose. But only one at a time, maybe."

"Maybe," said Uncle Wiggily, who wasn't thinking much of what he was saying. He was worried. The noise was coming nearer. "Down, Bunty! Down!" he whispered.

"Down where?" asked the orphan rabbit.

"Down closer to me," said Mr. Longears. "Then whoever comes may not see you."

"Oh," said Bunty, and she snuggled closer. Then, all of a sudden, she cried out: "There they go!"

"Who, the Bad Chaps?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No. My puff balls!" said Bunty. "They were in my handkerchief and I dropped them over the other side of the log."

Gets a Present

"Never mind," whispered Mr. Longears. "I'll get you some more. The thing to do now is to keep very quiet. Here he comes!"

"Who?" asked Bunty as Uncle Wiggily pulled her farther down back of the log and hid there himself. "Who is coming, Unkie Wig?"

"The Bob Cat! He's on the other side of the log, but he hasn't seen us yet. Maybe he won't. Maybe he won't even smell us. Quiet!"

So Bunty kept very quiet. So did Mr. Longears. On came Bobbie Cat.

"Oh, ho!" mewed the Bob Cat to himself as he saw Bunty's handkerchief on the ground. "This must be a present for me from Uncle Wiggily. That's what it is—a Christmas present! Thanks!"

With that the Bob Cat poked his nose at the handkerchief.

"PUFF!" The powdery balls in it burst. The brown powder, like smoke, flew up his nose. "Ker snoo! Kre snee! Ker snitzio!" sneezed the Bad Chap. "Oh!" he cried, "I'm catching cold! I must run home and take some aspirin!" So away he ran.

Uncle Wiggily and Bunty were saved and the orphan rabbit got some fore puff balls for Miss Mouse. So all was well. And if the loaf of bread will stop sprinkling sugar on its crust and calling itself a bun, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's feathered drum.

HASTINGS HYDRO TO RECEIVE BONUS ON RURAL LINES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 8. — That the Hastings Hydro Electric Commission will receive a 10 per cent. bonus on the total cost on all labor for building rural lines was announced by E. M Hess, linesman, at the regular monthly meeting of the Hastings Commission, held in the council chamber Monday afternoon. W. Fowlds was in the chair, and Commissioners Dr. W. E. Wilson and Reeve Fairman were present. The rural lines from Hastings are built and maintained by the Ontario H.E.P.C.,

A letter was received regarding inspection of at least a portion of the house meters this year. The Commission decided to have 75 meters inspected this year and gave instructions to their lineman to that effect. Other correspondence was read as follows: Public liability and property damage re insurance; R. Puffer, re discount due him.

It was moved by Fairman, seconded by Wilson, that the Commission notify F. S. Richardson to have a notice forwarded them thirty days before expiration of the policy covering the Hydro stock, in the future.

Saving Effected.

W. Fowlds announced that he had netted the Commission a saving of $48 as a result of a letter he had written the Ontario H.E.P.C. regarding pole changes from L. T. Huycke's to J. J. Collins' gates. As a consequence, the Ontario Commission assumed total costs.

A power interruption of practically all day will take place this Sunday or the Sunday following, when the linesman will make a change in the lines on Norwood Road. The secretary was instructed to advertise this.

During a discussion regarding the price of Hydro poles, the linesman informed members of the Commission that 30-foot poles could be purchased for $4. and 25-foot poles at $3. Both prices included delivery to the post hole.

The Commission has decided not to purchase a truck as there is not enough local work to warrant such a purchase.

The following accounts were passed: E. M. Hess, $37.50, $4; I. Bond, $1.75, $9.00; N. Scriver, 30c; Bell Tel. Co., $2.55; materials, $193.95; meter repairs, $9.04, $4.05; insurance, $2.50; October power account, $323.75; T. A. Coughlan, 30c; F. S. Richardson, insurance on stock, $6; freight, 50c.

ANNUAL BAZAAR SCORES SUCCESS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—A seasonable Christmas atmosphere was introduced into the annual bazaar and hot supper, held in the Waverly club rooms on Saturday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian church, by means of red streamers down the length of each tea table, with printed patterns of Yuletide bells, red candles burning in silver holders, and pots of poinsettia, and red Chinese lanterns.

The 'country store,' presided over by Mrs. R. J. McKnight, and Mrs. T. C. Ingram, had an attractive display of a variety of farm produce including vegetables, eggs, cream and butter, its entire stock being disposed of by the closing hour.

Sales ladies at the fancy goods counter were Mrs. H. A. Kerr, Mrs. A. S. Hall, and Mrs. Z. Seaton, a generous patronage soon depleting the stock of aprons, towels, knitted wear, and many other articles.

The supper tables were in charge of Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. Suttle Pritchard, Mrs. N. Belch, Mrs. M. Kinsman and Miss Ruth Thorndyke. As usual, the business men of the community came in for the hot meal, together with many other residents of the village and countryside, the abundant menu satisfying all comers.

Cashiers were Mrs. J. R. Thompson, and Mr. H. A. Kerr, and from the supper alone over thirty dollars was realized. Helpers, other than the table convenors, for the hot meal, included Mrs. R. J. McMahon, Mrs. Fred Whyte, Mrs. Jas. Kennedy, Mrs. H. C. Lord, Misses Agnes Johnston, Mary Eakins, Jean Syer, Vanita Ingram, Ruth Ball, Marian Belch, and Muriel Ball.

WILL HONOR OARSMAN

ORILLIA, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP). — Orillia Town Council last night appointed a committee of 15 to investigate possibilities of erecting a memorial here in honor of Jacob (Jake) Gill Gaudaur, world famous oarsman, who died at his home here last October.

"Jake was a great sportsman," said Alderman Hugh Grant, mover of the motion. "It's high time Orillia did something in appreciation of his memory."

Raise Your Blood-Count

And You'll Feel "In the Pink"

NORMAL BLOOD has a count of 4,500,000 red corpuscles. If your blood count is below this you just can't feel well, because only these tiny cells can carry the necessary nourishment from your food and the energizing oxygen from your lungs to every part of your body. With a low blood count you're bound to be always tired, easily upset, nervous and depressed, without appetite, sleepless, under weight. Everything is drudgery.

You needn't go on in this way! Take Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Originated by a Canadian physician, this tested tonic quickly raises your blood count. You get new energy and vigour, your depression and nervousness disappear, your appetite and normal weight return, you sleep soundly, and your life is worth living again. If this is not your experience your money will be refunded. 60c at all druggists

Railway Employees Learn Precautions

Standing on the steps of his train at the Euston Railway station where the London, Midland and Scottish railway air raid precautions mobile unit was demonstrated recently, is a guard wearing a gas-mask as he signals off the train. The mobile unit consists of two vehicles, one a lecture room and the other a decontamination coach, and is provided by the railway as part of a scheme to train the staff in air raid precautions.

ROSENEATH SALE SUCCESSFUL EVENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 8.—Approximately $45.00 was the result financially of the bazaar held in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon sponsored by the W.M.S. and W.A. of the United Church. The pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott, opened the bazaar, and congratulated the societies on the attractive and bountiful display of home cooking, vegetables, fruit, candy, and needlework. Afternoon tea was served, with the tea-room under the management of Mrs. R. Crego, Mrs. D. Brisbin, and Mrs. E. Sandercock. Misses Lavign McMillan and Audrey Mouncey were the waitresses, and Misses Shirley Brisbin and Gwendolyn Varcoe were responsible for the dainty menu cards.

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, convenor of the needlework department, was assisted by Mrs. L. Turner and Mrs. Fred Sherwin.

Mrs. C. Sandercock, convenor of the kitchen department, was assisted by Mrs. M. Davey and Mrs. L. W. Scott.

The fish pond, with Mrs. J. A. Nichol and Mrs. K. Harvie in charge, vied with the candy department in popularity with the children. Mrs. S. Thackeray, assisted by Mrs. A. Nill, had charge of the latter department.

Mrs. Andrew Brown, Mrs. A. Braithwaite, Mrs. T. Carew, and Mrs. Herman Blodgett, catered to those interested in farm produce. This department had a very attractive display, as did the home cooking table, with Mrs. A. Halstead and Mrs. A. J. Campbell in charge.

The hall was decorated with the season's colors, a decorated Christmas tree adding the final touch to the festive appearance of the hall.

Personals.

Mrs. Leonard Brisbin is visiting her brother, W. J. Harper and Mrs. Harper, Warkworth.

Miss Rowena Thackeray of Cobough was a week-end visitor with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Campbell.

Donald Harvie of Le Roy, New York State, is visiting his grandfather, Edwin Harvie.

APSLEY

Mrs. Taylor, of Peterborough, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. Hastings, last week.

On Wednesday, December 1st, a quilting was held at the St. George's Rectory, when the mothers of the Junior W.A. girls met and quilted a quilt made by the members. A pot luck lunch was served at noon and also after the quilt was finished. A very enjoyable time was spent by all those present.

On Tuesday evening, November 30, the Women's Guild of St. George's church, Apsley, met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Windsor with six members and Rev. F. McMillin present. Rev. F. McMillin opened the meeting by reading a portion of Scripture and prayer. Mrs. J. Downing, president, conducted the business part of the meeting. Several items of business were discussed, the principal being a supper and dance to be put on in the Parish Hall on or near Wednesday, December 29. Also a card party on New Year's eve before the midnight service to be held in St. George's at 11.30. After the close of the meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch, a social half-hour with the singing of several hymns was enjoyed.

Mrs. G. Smith, mother of Mrs. (Rev.) McMullen, returned to the village on Thursday, after visiting with friends.

Mr. McMullen, father of Rev. McMullen, is visiting his son at the manse.

Mrs. Chas. Smith and Mrs. Taylor were afternoon visitors at the Manse on Thursday.

A very successful afternoon tea was held at the Red Cross Hospital on Wednesday, with Miss Finnimore, R.N., as hostess.

Czechs Tax Beer To Get Arms

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 8 (AP)—The average citizen of Czechoslovakia can not drink his evening mug of beer without being reminded of the war dangers surrounding his country. In this land of Pilsener most citizens do drink beer — and henceforth must pay on every litre (about a quarter) a tax of 3½ mills for national defence.

On soft drinks defence taxes are twice as high, seven mills a litre.

Czechoslovakia has just drawn up its budget for 1938, and these new taxes are part of the program to cover rising army appropriations. Next year Czechoslovakia, a nation of about 15,000,000 population, plans to spend $160,000,000 to strengthen its defences.

This amounts to about 45 per cent of the national outlay for the year.

ST. GEORGE'S SALE IS WELL ATTENDED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 8. — What can be accomplished by a small band of energetic church women was evidenced on Saturday by the large display of work done by the members of St. George's Woman's Auxiliary, when they held their annual bazaar in Lynch's Hall. The work was admired by the hundreds of people who attended and through their patronage it helped to make the bazaar most successful. The bazaar proved a worth-while effort by the ladies to augment their fund, used principally for mission and parish work.

The hall was prettily decorated and the five long tables on which the articles were displayed were attractive with their dainty things in fancy work and useful articles.

The sale of embroidered linens, cutwork and novelties suitable for Christmas gifts was in charge of Miss D. Plant.

Useful and ready-to-wear garments, as aprons, children's dresses, towels and handkerchiefs, found a ready sale, as sold by Mrs. R. King and Mrs. J. Beamish.

Mrs. J. Dainard had a booth of dainty baby clothes, kimonas, jackets, dresses, etc., also many knitted articles.

The display of home-made cooking was especially attractive and tempting and was in charge of Mrs. Thomas Currel.

The members of the Junior Auxiliary, under the supervision of Miss Bernice Dainard, had a booth at the entrance. The work was done by the young girls, who assisted at the sale of the pretty things made at their meetings. They also took charge of the fish pond and the sale of samples.

The centre of the hall proved a suitable place for a tea-room. Five individual tables were made attractive with their snowy cloths and many took the opportunity to enjoy a cup of tea and refreshments served by Miss Mary Pulfer, Miss Myrtle Pulfer, and Mrs. E. Radford, Jr. Mrs. William Gillespie supervised the lunch, and was assisted by Mrs. E. Radford, Mrs. James Pulfer, and Miss B. Dainard.

The fancy work was not all disposed of at the sale, but will be on sale at Miss Plant's for any wishing gifts for Christmas. Many useful garments, as children's dresses, baby's layettes, quilts, etc., that were not sold, will be packed in with the bale on Thursday and sent to the Rev. Horace Ashmore of Paddockwood, Sask., to distribute among the white settlers at Christmas.

TO SELL STABLE

LONDON—(CP).—At the December sales, Lady Yule will dispose of a valuable string of racehorses but will retain the stud at St. Albans and some horses in training.

Snow Gives Clues Triple Arrest

TORONTO, Dec. 8—(CP).—Three youths were arrested early yesterday and charged with shop-breaking. Footprints in the snow of a seldom-used street led police to the house in which they were living.

Police surprised three men in a grocery store and chased them over roof tops and through backyards before losing sight of them.

Later a patrolman noticed three men walking along a street and reported the incident when he learned the store was entered. Footprints led to the place where Stanley Pashke, 17, Joseph Dumphy, 17, and a 15-year-old boy were found.

and was to be overthrown in the end.

"No chance of that in real life," Lionel said, "but we can do as we please on paper."

He answered the letter, and it lay for a long time in a basket on his table. At last I carried it off. It was such a treasure, with its thin, crested paper and its cry for happiness! I knew that Lionel would not miss it, and that if he did he would think it lost. I should not confess my theft to him.

TOKYO JUBILANT WAITING VICTORY

TOKYO, Dec. 8 (AP)—Tokyo was in a state of ecstatic frenzy today, awaiting the fall of Nanking.

Nevertheless, it was generally believed capture of Nanking would not mean the end of fighting. Japanese thought General Chiang Kai-Shek would concentrate his forces in Hunan province and attempt to continue fighting with some sort of aid from Soviet Russia.

The Japanese government was said to be considering issuance of a declaration withdrawing Japanese recognition of the Nanking government.

(Such a declaration would mean that Japan no longer recognized the regime of Chiang as the true government of China.)

Celebration of Nanking's imminent fall started last night. Police relaxed closing laws and the downtown district of Tokyo blazed with gaiety. Crowds milled through the streets. Cafes and restaurants were jammed until well past midnight.

Throughout the night handbells jingled endlessly as newsboys brought fresh extras telling of each new Japanese advance.

HE SUFFERED AGONY IN WET WEATHER

Rheumatism Attacked Limbs and Body

He had been bothered with rheumatism for years. The pain in wet weather—to use his own expression—was "indescribable." But all that is gone now—thanks to Kruschen. Read this letter:—

"I suffered with rheumatism for years. I dreaded wet weather, for during such periods the pain was continuous and indescribable. To begin with, it was confined to my limbs, but in time I began to suffer as much agony in my body as I did in my limbs. When I began to take Kruschen Salts, I found it did me more good than all the other medicine I had taken put together. Today, I have peace and freedom from pain, even during wet weather, and can heartily recommend Kruschen Salts to anyone who suffers from rheumatism."—N.M.

Rheumatic conditions are often the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients in Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients in these Salts assist Nature to expel the dissolved crystals through the natural channels.—advt.

STORM SHUTS SCHOOLS, BLOCKS NIAGARA TOWNS

POLICE TOO FEW TO KEEP CHECK UPON TRUCKERS

Traffic Board Urged; Heavy Fine System

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—Efforts to enforce regulations concerning hours of labor for transport drivers and the fitness of their vehicles were inadequate in Ontario, L. G. Fabian, general representative of the Automotive Transport section, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, said today.

Mr. Fabian was cross-examined before the Chevrier royal transport commission by Lewis Duncan, counsel for the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario. He asked if the crown had failed in adequate enforcement of regulations over a number of years.

"I can't answer yes or no to that question," said Fabian. "Prior to 1934 the situation was exceptionally bad. Since 1934 there has been an effort to improve conditions but the staff looking after regulation enforcement is still too small."

"Has lack of enforcement resulted in certain drivers working more than 10 hours a day," Duncan asked.

"Yes," said witness.

"In some cases it has been shown that long hours have been a hazard," said Fabian when asked if the public had been endangered by overworked drivers.

Poorer Trucks On Sideroads

"Has lack of enforcement led to the public being endangered by inferior equipment on the highways," asked Duncan.

"I could not answer that question but I do know the poorer type of equipment is in the minority today," Fabian said.

"My impression is that there is a large number of poorer class trucks operating on the highways," commented Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, commission chairman.

"The poorer types are generally on the byways, not on the main highways," Fabian said. Witness said he knew of many municipalities that failed, sometimes completely, to en-

HIGHWAY BLOCKED BRIGHTON ON EAST

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 9.—(CP)—Vehicular and transport traffic was at a standstill in this district today, result of one of the worst snow storms in the past five years. From Brighton on the west to Kingston on the east, the highway was blocked and cars and trucks moved with difficulty. Buses ceased operations here last night. Bus passengers were placed on trains. Three miles east of the city on a new four lane highway more than 40 transports were snowbound.

It was understood the department of highways contract for snow plough work does not start till December 15 and there has been no ploughing of the roads since the storm started Wednesday. County snow ploughs were working overtime and north roads to Madoc, Tweed and Marmora were passable but heavy.

Trains were running late. All along the highways cars were in the ditch.

TOTS LEFT ALONE PERISH IN FLAMES

MATACHEWAN, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP).—Two children were burned to death in bed early to-day as fire razed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Len Holdsworth near here. The victims were Jimmy, 5, and Patricia, 6. Their parents were away when the fire broke out. Matchewan is 30 miles southwest of Kirkland Lake.

Edward Wilkie, who noticed the fire was burned about the face and hands when he smashed a window in an effort to rescue the children. Flames leaped out as the window broke.

By the time Wilkie had called assistance, the fire had ignited the neighboring house of Ralph Haggart, and it was also burned to the ground. The town has no fire-fighting equipment.

Sees Steam Taking Part In Hydro In Near Future

Need Vast Reserve to Avoid Shortage Disaster, Chairman Tells Engineer Groups Honoring Him

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—Ontario should make every effort to utilize her waterpower sites, even where located on international or interprovincial streams, before resorting to steam power for generating electricity, Dr. Thomas Hogg, recently-appointed chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said last night.

Dr. Hogg, first engineer to hold the senior executive and administrative post in Ontario's municipally-owned but provincially-controlled power utility, was honored at a banquet arranged in his honor by nine engineering societies.

Steam power "for certain special purposes" may take its place in Hydro Commission resources "in the not too distant future," he said, recalling that in 1925 the commission abandoned discussion of plans for steam plants and decided to stick to hydraulic power.

Dr. Hogg warned Hydro must build ample power reserves. The vagaries of nature, wind, flood, ice and drought might at any time cause loss of power sources. He doubted the people realised the enormous consequences a power shortage would entail.

Dr. Hogg saw a case for the province assuming part of the financial risk resulting from the building of transmission lines to Northern Ontario's mines. Mines must have

Mother Saves Five As Home Burns

(CP).—Mrs. Hugh Sands carried five of her children to safety early today as fire razed the Sands' home in the village 15 miles northwest of Toronto. While her husband fought to stem the spreading fire on the ground floor, Mrs. Sands roused her children on the second.

A five-months-old baby and James, three and a half years old, were first taken to safety by Mrs. Sands. Leaving them sitting in the snow, she dashed into the flaming house for Eileen 5, Evelyn 7, and Kathleen 9, and carried them out one by one. Velma Cook, 7, staying with the Sands, was also saved.

Ontario Left Wingers Pleased With Election Gains

Almost Get Tim Buck Elected And Put Two Reds In Toronto Council

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP)—Supporters of Left Wing candidates in Ontario municipal elections this week surveyed their gains today and expressed satisfaction with progress they claimed.

Although Tim Buck, secretary of the Canadian Communist Party, failed to gain election to the Toronto Board of Control, his vote of 44,148 is considered the most important single success of Leftists. Douglas McNish, who beat Buck for the fourth controllership, polled 44,402 votes and Fred Conboy, who headed the poll, had 60,655.

Communists elected two candidates —Stewart Smith and J. S. Salsberg— to the Toronto City Council, Smith to a second term. John Weir, William Dennison and J. McArthur Conner, supported by the Labor Representation Association, a Labor-Leftist organization, were elected to the Toronto Board of Education. Weir was on the board last year.

Leftist and Labor supporters express satisfaction with results elsewhere in the Province. In Hamilton Sam Lawrence, former C.C.F. member of the Ontario Legislature, was elected to the Board of Control, and in Windsor Reg. Morris, Communist, was elected alderman. Ex-Mayor George Bennett and Miss Olive Whyte, Labor candidates, won Windsor Board of Control seats by big majorities.

In Toronto suburbs two candidates supported by the Labor Representation Association were elected to township councils, Frank Russell in Mimico and James Wilson in Scarborough. Ells Blair and Percy Laurin, both Labor men, were given acclamations to aldermanic seats in Cornwall.

Mounties Will Attend G-Men's School

Regina, Dec. 9 (CP)

SERGEANT Robert Wood, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Prince Albert, has been chosen to attend a school of scientific crime detection at the Federal Bureau of Investigation Headquarters in Washington.

Several men of the force will be sent to headquarters of the G-men for instruction in scientific work but so far only one man has been chosen from ranks in Saskatchewan.

Just what course would be taken was not known to officers of the force in Regina, but it is expected the men would receive training in all phases of scientific work in preparation for opening of the Scientific Bureau at Regina and Ottawa.

Able But Shying At Work, Torontonian Gets 3 Months To Think On It

Toronto, Dec. 9 (CP)

WILLIAM Higgs, 47, today was sentenced by Magistrate Arthur Tinker to three months in jail for refusing to work. The charge was that Higgs "being able to work and thereby or by other means to maintain himself and family, wilfully refuses or neglects to do so, and was thereby a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant."

George Stagg, public welfare official, testified Higgs had signified willingness to work and was passed as physically fit for work in the north. The city advanced his fare to Kapuskasing and provided him with equipment. Higgs agreed to repay it.

"I understand he never went near the job," said Stagg. "He simply turned around and came back to the city. In all, the city had advanced him $25.24."

Stagg said Higgs, separated from his wife, has been on relief 137 weeks.

FIRE IN HOUSE STARTED INSIDE WITNESS CLAIMS

Evidence that the fire which burned down the dwelling of William Hanrahan in Douro this October started many minutes after his barn was a mass of flames and originated not on an exposed part of the house but inside, featured the opening of Hanrahan's trial on a charge of arson yesterday.

"I saw Hanrahan taking furniture from the house and I wondered why because it was not burning," Kenneth Bell, a spectator at the early-morning blaze said.

Bell related he drove to the scene about 3 o'clock in the morning in a truck with a number of companions, attracted by the glow i nthe sky. The barn fire was far advanced when he arrived, he said. He had been there about fifteen minutes when he saw Hanrahan taking furniture from the house. He saw no fire until later when flames broke out somewhere upstairs in the house.

"If there had been fire in the house when you first got there would you have noticed it," V. J. McElderry, K.C., acting for the Crown, asked Bell.

"Yes, I'm sure I'd have noticed it," the witness replied.

Bell said the house was about 100 feet from the barn. In between, not quite in a line, was a small garage. The garage did not ignite until the house fire was advanced. One corner of the garage started burning and spectators extinguished the blaze, Hanrahan helping, he testified.

He stated he noticed a pile of goods on a fence a short distance from the house. The pile might have been clothing but was covered with blankets, he said.

"They were not taken from the house while I was there," Bell stated.

Cross-examined by T. J. Carley, K.C., defending Hanrahan, on his assertion that Hanrahan "did not seem very excited about the fire," Bell admitted, "It was too far gone to get much excited about."

Eleven witnesses in all testified;

Gifts Change Much In 30 Years

CALGARY, Dec. 9 (CP) — Time changes and so do Christmas presents according to a newspaper file of 30 years ago.

For a gentleman a gold toothpick with engraved initials was "something nice" and for the smart girl a fascinator was a small woolen shawl fascinator was a small woolen shawl the young lady of 1907 draped over her be-curled head on party nights.

Silk auto scarfs were popular gifts for the ladies and watch fobs, plain and fancy, for men. Fancy hat pins were also sold for ladies and 12-but ton gloves and kid laced boots, high and wide.

Blizzard Continues Bogging Scores Trucks, Buses, Cars

Transport Lines Cancel Runs; Welland Fears Milk Famine—Brockville Area Badly Plugged

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—Schools in many rural sections of the Niagara peninsula were closed today as the blizzard that started Wednesday made city streets, highways and rural roads impassable. The storm was continuing today.

Only Toronto area escaped the buffetting the storm gave sections in the older part of the province. The early tightening of winter's grip caught Eastern Ontario unprepared and today 60 miles of No. 2 highway, Brighton to Kingston, was completely blocked. Snow ploughs were being hurried there.

Crippled communications, disrupted transportation systems and minor damage had already been accomplished by the storms. Gales over the Great Lakes forced ships to seek shelter. Railway schedules were hampered as the ploughs were brought out.

Owen Sound reported two freighters with grain cargoes overdue. They were the Royalton and Secord. It was believed they had taken shelter and no anxiety was felt. A plane, lost overnight on a flight from Toronto to Fort Erie, was reported safe today, as Jack Moar was sighted tied up in the Welland Canal.

Drifts Block Streets.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—Niagara Falls and district was blanketed today under one of the worst blizzards in the history of the area. Traffic on highways and streets was virtually stopped because of huge drifts. Efforts were made to keep the main street open. Reports were received of busses and transports ditched.

Schools have been ordered closed and will remain closed until at least Monday.

Her husband suffered shock and lacerations.

Harry Crawford, Toronto, driver of the transport, was uninjured.

Rousseau's coupe was damaged beyond repair.

The three vehicles tangled so badly traffic was tied up more than an hour.

Cobourg Chief Is Injured In Capturing Car Thief

Prisoner Wrecks One Machine, Leads Wild Chase In Second Before Caught

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP)—Police laid a charge of car theft against Harry Myers, St. Boniface, Man., today charging him with theft of a car owned by C. R. Naylor of Colborne. Myers was arrested after a thrilling chase last night in a stolen car.

W. J. Carey

Chief of Police W. J. Carey is suffering from an injured chest received while in the chase for Myers.

The chase took place between Colborne and Brighton. Colborne is 15 miles east of here.

William Fletcher, Toronto, reported to police his car had been stolen from in front of a hotel here. Some time later a car owned by A. R. Naylor, Colborne, was stolen from in front of the Colborne Public Utilities office. Naylor and C. Latimer spotted Naylor's car in Colborne with two men inside and pursued in Latimer's car to Brighton, where the fugitives turned around and headed back west.

In a chase along the slippery highway the two cars raced toward Cobourg, and nearing the business section the blowing of the horn on one of the cars attracted the attention of Chief Carey, who stepped out and signalled the first car to stop.

Almost Runs Carey Down

The chief escaped by a narrow margin from being run down when the car swerved toward him. The chief leaped to enter the second car, but the driver applied his brakes too suddenly, the open door striking the officer a severe blow which bruised his chest.

Giving up the chase, Latimer and Naylor started back to Colborne, but on the way out of town spotted the driver of the missing car. They notified police, but again lost track of the car.

Chief Carey and A. Minaker started out again and arrested Myers. Behind a store was found the Colborne car and between Grafton and Colborne Fletcher's smashed car was found in a ditch. Police believe that the men stole Fletcher's car, went off the icy road and walked on to Colborne, where they stole Naylor's car. The second man was not found.

Rare Skin Disease Only Pencil Markings

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 9

SIX-YEAR-OLD Joseph Peluso's mother feared he had a "rare skin disease" when she rushed him to the Emergency hospital.

But the blue spots dotting Joseph's head, back and chest disappeared when Dr. Daniel M. Massey applied kerosene.

"Indelible pencil," was Dr. Massey's diagnosis.

Butterfat Averages 3.79 Per Cent. During 365 Days Of Test

Producing 23,812 pounds of milk over a test period of one year recently concluded, Sylvina Pontiac Creater, a Holstein cow owned by Joe and Fred Mann of Smith township has stepped into the limelight as one of the outstanding milking animals of the Dominion. Widespread interest in livestock breeders' circles has been aroused by the rare near-record performance.

The animal was bred by the Mann brothers on their Smith township farm which boasts, in addition to Sylvina Pontiac Creater, one of the finest Holstein herds of this district. An unusual combination of the showing and production animal, the cow, now eight years old, gained her first fame when she took first prize in the aged-cow-in-milk class at the C.N.E. in 1935. In 1936 she was third prize dry cow at the C.N.E. In both the 1936 and 1936 Peterborough Exhibitions she took ribbons as grand champion Holstein female but her present milk production accomplishment is by far her greatest.

High Butterfat

The milk test was begun on October 24, 1936, and was concluded on October 23, 1937, under supervision of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in its Record of Performance requirements. She was milked twice a day. The total of 23,812 pounds of milk contained 903 pounds of butterfat with an average test of 3.79 through the 365 days.

The world milk production record is approximately 34,000 pounds in that period but the distinction of the record made by the Mann cow on twice-a-day milking under ordinary farm conditions is indicated in the fact that few cows ever surpass the 20,000 pound mark. The butterfat total is unusual as tests of higher than 3.3 and 3.4 per cent butterfat are rare for any production around the 20,000 pound mark.

Pet Pig Plays Safe Stays Very Thin

Crisfield, Md., Dec. 9 (AP)

HOG-KILLING time has come to Somerset County and maybe Robert H. Goldsborough's pet pig knows it.

Anyway, the pig, which has followed Goldsborough around like a dog for six months, has stopped growing—hasn't gained 10 pounds in four months, Goldsborough said, and only weighs 18 pounds now.

Aside from sentiment, he said, that's not much pork.

Sued For Million

Pictured in the corridor of the Supreme Court building at New York is Howard E. Spaulding, heir to $2,000,000, who is being sued for just half that amount by Mrs. Marion G. Allgeyer, wife of a prominent Louisiana physician. Mrs. Allgeyer charges that Spaulding married her in Milwaukee in 1925, although he already had a wife at that time. When she discovered the existenct of this other wife, Mrs. Allgeyer says, Spaulding agreed to pay her $1,000,000 when he came into his inheritance. Now she wants her million.

SUDBURY BLAMES FLOOD OF JOBLESS ON HEPBURN STORY

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP).—Sudbury City Council to-day forwarded to Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario a resolution "strongly deploring" his statement "there was plenty of work in the mines in this district."

Council in committee last night was told there had been an influx of single unemployed men to Sudbury and they were stranded here. Men were still pouring in. Council was also told 75 families had come here from Saskatchewan, the male members seeking employment.

Announcing the province would not contribute towards the cost of relief for single unemployed men, Premier Hepburn, on November 24, at Toronto, said he was "sick and tired of keeping physically fit single men on relief lists."

"There never was such activity in wood operations as in the North today and there are jobs for everyone," said the Premier. "Thousands of men have come in from Quebec and Saskatchewan to take jobs in the North because Ontario men will not work."

KILLED BY TRAIN

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—(CP)—A man identified as Fred Staunton of Toronto was killed today when struck by a train pulling into this city from Winnipeg.

Engineer J. Corkum told police the man was walking along the roadbed ahead of the train and stepped into its path.

TANKS BATTER WAY THROUGH NANKING GATE

Artillery, However, Halts Attack in East

By Morris J. Harris
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9 (A.P.). — The Japanese command issued an ultimatum to-day demanding the surrender of China's abandoned capital, Nanking, by noon Friday (11 p.m. Thursday, EST) and threatening that otherwise the city "will become the scene of the horrors of war."

The spokesman said Chinese were resisting and added there would be a major engagement if the resistance continued.

Domei (Japanese) news agency said observers in airplanes saw the tanks entering the southeast city gate. Domei also said Japanese had entered Wuhu, Yangtze river port 60 miles upstream from Nanking.

Chinese artillery firing from strongly fortified Purple Mountain which overlooks Nanking kept Japanese from a frontal attack on the eastern wall of the city.

Shanghai heard the boom of anti-aircraft guns after days of quiet. The Japanese flagship Idzumo fired 25 shells into overcast skies. Japanese and foreign reports were that two Chinese planes had flown over the ship.

Japanese said their army and navy air forces made heavy attacks on Nanking and surrounding territory throughout the day to back up the Japanese forces encircling the city. Army fliers were said to have raided Nanchang, where Premier Chiang Kai-Shek was reported in residence.

Wuhu had been the object of Japanese attacks for 24 hours. Many fires were reported raging there.

PAIR GET 10 YEARS OTTAWA ROBBERY

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (CP)—Judge E. J. Daly yesterday sentenced John Parr, 25, of Brantford, Ont., and Laurier Larocque, 22, of Ottawa to 10 years imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary for armed robbery of the Rosedale Pharmacy in Ottawa east.

The pair were arrested in Montreal a few days after the drug store robbery here. Firearms were found in the allegedly stolen automobile in which they were riding.

Terms Judge Daly imposed on the two will be concurrent with four-year terms to which they were sentenced Nov. 29 by Magistrate Glen Strike for automobile theft.

The prisoners also faced trial today at L'Orignal, Russel County seat, on a charge of breaking and entering the store of Robert Latremouille of nearby St. Onge.

The two men who had previously pleaded innocent to the armed robbery charge changed their pleas yesterday to guilty on the advice of Walter Schroeder who volunteered to defend them.

Believes Spelling Over-Emphasized

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (CP).—The schoolboy who says "wun" for "was," today received the backing of Professor Jane D. Zimmerman, of the speech department at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

"I think the school systems overemphasizing spelling at the expense of speech," Professor Zimmerman said. "The problem is becoming more difficult every day because pronunciations which were formerly considered bad are now commonly accepted. The difference between the way words are pronounced and the way they are spelled thus is becoming greater. Eventually, speech and spelling teachers will have to agree on some more common means of language teaching if students are to avoid further confusion."

ITALY QUITTING LEAGUE?

PARIS — (CP). — Havas News Agency reported from Geneva today it had learned Italy has decided to resign membership in the League of Nations.

Rome reports quoting rumors to that effect had received little credence there earlier, Havas said, but following announcement that the Fascist Grand Council will meet Saturday confirmation was obtained regarding withdrawal from the league.

Strikes Cost U.S. Five Billion In 1937 Or Over $160 Per Family

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)

STRIKES cost the United States around $5,000,000,000, or between $140 to $175 per family, in 1937 "the worst and most costly period of labor turmoil in our history," Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel Corp., told American business leaders today.

Speaking before the annual convention of the National Association of manufacturers he said capital and labor "not only must get along, but can get along together," and asserted the government attitude "in the present situation" was "one of the biggest stumbling blocks to a rational get-together."

8 Bodies Recovered After Flames Sweep Tenement

One, Possibly More, Missing in Ruins of "Fire Trap" 5 in Hospital—Chief Says All Been Warned to Move

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 9—(AP)—Bodies of eight persons had been recovered today from the charred remains of a two-storey building here. At least one other person was missing and possibly more, firemen who went to the scene said.

The identified dead were: Mrs. McKinley Connaster, 35, and three children, Luther, 12, Virginia, six, and Vallee, four. Firemen said they thought the other four dead were members of the family of Mrs. Cora Tate, 56, five of whom were reported as missing.

Those missing besides Mrs. Tate were her son, Eugene, 17, and three grandsons, R. L. Melton, 12, Junior Melton, six, and James Earl Melton, nine.

Five persons listed as Gordon Tate, 23, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wright and children, Lucille, three, and Franklin, one, were taken to a hospital, where they were reported in "serious" condition.

Fire Chief C. M. Johnson said the house was condemned recently as a "fire trap, and the families had been advised to move. He said he had not been able to determine cause of the blaze.

The firemen said McKinley Connaster leaped to safety from a second storey window with his six-months-old baby in his arms.

BETTER LIVESTOCK NEED OF PRAIRIES

SASKATOON, Dec. 9 (CP).—Improvement of the breeding qualities of Western Canada livestock, together with a permanent bulwark against future feed shortages, were foreseen by Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, in an address last night to the Western Canada Livestock Union convention here.

The Minister envisioned a more stable agriculture for Saskatchewan resulting from government measures to rehabilitate farmers of the so-called drought area and to keep 60,000,000 acres of land inhabited.

"We should be careful, if we are going to make use of the British and United States markets, to supply the livestock they desire," Mr. Gardiner said.

He saw in community and reserve pastures and irrigation projects in the drought area, the means for maintaining a consistent breeding policy and in the new marketing division of the Department of Agriculture the best agency for placing Canadian livestock on the British and American markets.

MILK TRUST TALK IS BRANDED BOGIE BY HEAD OF BOARD

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—John E. Houck, chairman of the Ontario Milk Board, in an address before the London District Milk Producers' Association last night, said any talk of a milk trust in the Province "is one of the biggest bogies confronting the country."

"There is in the business of milk distribution as rapid competition as there possibly can be," he added.

His address was devoted largely to the question of milk distribution as a public utility. He said the results of an investigation into the system in effect at Wellington, N.Z., where milk is wholly under public control and his report was not a favorable one.

"Let me emphasize I am not doing this to indicate the Milk Board or the Ontario Government is averse to milk as a public utility," Mr. Houck said. "I won't even say that it should not be tried here. Perhaps it should."

cheap power and he asked if it were not for the general benefit of the province that the commission should assume some financial risk in connection with the capital costs of supplying it.

Sees Aid as Sound Policy.

"The mines must carry a proper share of the risk but may there not be sound reason for the intelligent employment of Government funds and Government enterprise in Northern Ontario in co-operation with the mining industry to the mutual advantage of both?" he asked.

Dr. Hogg explained how the Northern Ontario Hydro properties, unlike the older parts of the system, are owned entirely by the province with Hydro administering them as the trustee of the Government.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, speaking on behalf of the Ontario Government, the Government toward Hydro in these words:

"So long and to such extent Hydro-management is calculated to supply energy at the minimum possible rates consistent with stability and solvency, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be left free to function and to administer the affairs of Hydro in the best interests of all the people."

The Hydro Commission must be left free of politics "in the sense of being administered or controlled for the glorification or benefit of any particular party," said Mr. Conant. "At the same time, such bodies have no legislative function or powers, application of two aged Guelph men ment of the day and the Legislature for all legislation to enable them to function."

Hydro could not be divorced from provincial responsibility, said Mr. Conant, and the province must at all times maintain some oversight over the commitments and policies.

While the snowfall amounted to only about 12 inches, the high wind caused drifting.

Ploughing Useless.

FORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—Highways in the vicinity of this Niagara River town, ploughed yesterday, were drifted again today and impassable for traffic. Scores of trucks and passenger cars were stranded on the highway to Niagara Falls.

A truck carrying the Wednesday edition of a Toronto morning newspaper is stranded at Stevensville, eight miles west. Men were sent to dig it out yesterday, but the storm became so bad, they abandoned their job.

Trucks Cancel Runs.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP). — St. Catharines transport companies have cancelled all shipments to Niagara Falls, Welland and Toronto. Two feet of snow fell in this area and the fall was continuing.

Ploughs Out In East

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP)—After a heavy snowfall, snow-fighting equipment on the Brockville division of the Ontario highways department went into action today. Ploughs attacked drifts on highway between Escott and Morrisburg and equipment being brought from other parts of the province to keep traffic open. Officials said highway was bad from Brockville to Morrisburg and rough from Brockville westward to Escott.

Patrol gangs removed drifts at points between Escott and Kingston.

Transports and cars were reported stalled here and at Prescott.

No. 42 highway from Forthton to Westport, was blocked and will not be open today. It was hoped to clear the Smiths Falls-Perth-Carleton Place Triangle.

Owen Sound Gets It.

Welland Badly Tied Up.

WELLAND, Ont., Dec. 9 (C.P.).—Welland County Council, scheduled to meet to-day, postponed its meeting because many members were unable to reach this city over the snow-blocked roads. Drifts are higher than fence posts in some places.

Welland faced a milk shortage, local dairies warned. Deliveries were made to-day under difficulties, but unless the blizzard let up, it was feared that producers would be unable to get through with supplies to-morrow.

City schools remained open, but classes were only sparsely attended.

Most provincial roads were kept open by an extra line of plows rushed here from less affected parts of the province. Ditches were dotted with private cars and huge transport trucks, bearing foodstuffs.

Two Dead In West New York

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 9 —(AP)—Gales and snow continued to lash Western New York today, adding two deaths to the upstate storm toll and increasing a serious traffic snarl. The death toll stood at eight.

A food shortage threatened homes in Kenmore, populous Buffalo suburb, where grocers have been unable to make deliveries in many streets since Tuesday. Twenty-seven persons were marooned in a garage, having had no food since yesterday morning. A tractor began an attempt to reach them.

New drifts rose before a 52-mile-an-hour gale in industrial Buffalo, bringing several large industries to a standstill and marooning scores of workers for the second time in 24 hours.

The storm also paralyzed traffic on many roads in central and northern New York. Ogdensburg was isolated.

Three planes made forced landings last night in western New York and nearby Ontario.

At Niagara Falls, N.Y., a locomotive struck a bus containing 40 persons. Only one was injured.

POLICE TOO FEW TO KEEP CHECK UPON TRUCKERS

force public commercial vehicle regulations.

"I suppose the police are overworked," suggested Duncan.

"That's the trouble in most cases," agreed Fabian.

"Does the situation indicate a crying need for police personnel because of loss of revenues and discrimination against honest operators," asked Duncan.

"Yes," said Fabian.

Severe penalties should be enforced for infraction of labor and tariff regulations, Mr. Fabian said.

"We should adopt some policy of terrific fines that the railways and some United States transport companies have put into force."

He said penalties should be particularly heavy for infractions of rate regulations and suggested they range from $500 to $1,000 or even extend to license suspension.

"I would recommend that in enforcement of public commercial vehicle regulations after the employer has been a second offender there should be suspension of his license for six days or so. In my experience with the provincial police it was wonderful the morale created among operators by occasional license suspension."

Fabian said the rate structure was chaotic in the Ontario motor industry today and Duncan suggested it might be due to business conditions.

"The trouble is operators have not sufficient faith in each other when it comes to agreement on rates," Fabian stated.

Urges Traffic Board

A traffic board should be established in Ontario, Fabian said. It would be beneficial to the industry and labor. Railways should be represented on the board.

Duncan questioned Fabian regarding labor legislation. Witness said that if codes were introduced in the industry covering hours and wages, with the Automotive Transport Association and operators both endeavoring to enforce them, there would be little administration left for the Provincial Government.

If members of the Automotive Transport Association had sufficient confidence in each other there would not be much need for policing in connection with rates or labor codes, witness stated.

He said the Automotive Transport Association could file a tariff now and enforce it without difficulty on the Toronto-Windsor run.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—A police car screeched its way last night to a house where an alert telephone operator reported a receiver had been knocked off its hook. Fearing a burglar had brushed the receiver off the hook in a midnight prowl, they found: A cat.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

A moderate export trade in Canadian wheat and unsuitable harvesting weather in Southern Hemisphere countries gave wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange a strong undertone to-day. Final quotations were ¾ cent higher to ⅝ lower. December $1.20, May $1.18⅝, and July $1.11⅛ to ⅜.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at more than 300,000 bushels. The new business and reports of a better demand for Canadian wheat at Liverpool led to advances of more than 1¼ cent in the December future and higher cash wheat prices during the session.

Dealings, however, were quiet after an irregular start. Bulk of the trading involved light spreading operations in which winnipeg futures were purchased against sales at Chicago.

INDIAN'S DEATH LAID TO DRINKING

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP)—A coroner's jury at an inquest last night into the death of Coriest Dextator, middle-aged Indian whose body was taken from a waterworks reservoir November 7, found he came to his death from drowning while in an intoxicated condition.

Medical evidence indicated Dextator was in a highly intoxicated condition when he entered the water. Evidence presented by Provincial Constable Frank O. Kelly was to the effect Dextator was alone when he reached the waterwork's park.

Mabel Dextator, young Indian girl, testified she and Tom Bezruchko were with Dextator the night before his death. She said she met the two men shortly after 9 o'clock. They separated from Bezruchko and went to get Dextator's car.

Later they picked up Bezruchko and went to a wine store where the latter obtained a quantity of wine. From there they went to a residence on Steele street and all consumed some wine in a garage behind the house.

She said when a woman living next door locked out she became alarmed and left the two men. She said it was the last she had seen of the pair that night.

Bezruchko was present at the inquest but on the advice of his counsel did not testify. He is charged with supplying liquor to Indians.

QUEBEC ROADS ICY

CORNWALL, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP)—Forty to fifty automobiles and trucks were reported lining highway at Cascades, Que., to-day, unable to ascend a steep ice-coated hill.

More than two days of continuous snowfall has left roads in this district passable, but treacherous, due to drifts and slippery pavement. Transport operators said heavy trucks were getting through, but light vehicles were encountering difficulty.

Russia Keeping The Ukraine

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 (CP-Havas)—Charges that "rapacious Polish-German Fascists are preparing to take over the Ukraine" were made by V. Y. Chubar, vice-president of the Council of People's Commissars, in a speech to rural voters near Kharkoff, Tass, official Soviet news agency, reported today.

"Their plans will be vain, he said, "because the powerful Soviet people and Soviet youth will never yield to anybody."

Spies and traitors are being exterminated and will continue to be exterminated, Chubar said, "because we must keep our household clean."

NEW BUTTER LAW NOT HURT CANADA

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—Dairy experts here do not expect proposed British legislation to assist producers of butter and cheese will affect Canadian trade. Canada exports little if any butter to the British market, but is second to New Zealand as an exporter of cheese to that market.

A report from London yesterday stated legislation would be introduced in Parliament to ensure producers a price of 62 shillings and sixpense in summer and 67 shillings and sixpence in winter for hundredweight of cheese.

Word of the proposed measure has not yet reached the Department of Agriculture here, but officials were aware the British producers had been seeking assistance. They consider the plan involves a subsidy to home producers.

Canadian cheese is now selling from 70 to 72 shillings per hundredweight in the United Kingdom and usually commands the highest price of any imported cheese. Fine English cheddars usually command a higher price, but are not available in large quantities.

VANCOUVER HOTEL SAID 'SLAVE' HUB

VICTORIA, Dec. 9 (CP)—Dr. J. Lyle Telford (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said in the British Columbia Legislature yesterday that a Vancouver hotel "is the centre of the white slave traffic in British Columbia.

The Provincial leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation made the statement while the Legislature, in committee, discussed proposed changes in the Victoria City Police Commission set-up. He said police commissions in both Victoria and Vancouver were unsatisfactory.

Mr. Telford claimed "an officer who reporten conditions in the place (the hotel) to the (Vancouver Police) Commission lost his job." He said a report on the hotel was to authorities in Ottawa.

MILLBROOK

Dr. Mary Needler, of the Modern Languages' Department, University of Toronto, spent the week-end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. A. A. and Miss Henrietta Needler.

St. Andrew's Sunday School has started its winter time schedule, meeting now at 2.30 p.m. instead of 10 a.m., the morning church service being at 10.30 instead of 11 o'clock. The young people's choir leads in the service of song each Sunday evening at public worship, the singing of a number of Christmas hymns, with the congregation joining in, marking the opening of the evening service on Sunday. There are thirty or more members in the young people's choir.

A feature of peculiar interest on Sunday morning in St. Thomas' Anglican church was the unveiling and dedication of a tablet to the memory of the late A. J. Fallis, the Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson pulling the cord that drew aside the silken Union Jack covering the tablet, and offering the dedicatory prayers. The tablet is placed on the west wall of the church opposite the family pew, and is a solid oak back with brass plate, bearing the simple inscription, "In Memory of Albert James Fallis, 1869-1935." The late Mr. Fallis, ex-M.P.P. for Durham, was a life-long Anglican, prominent in his church affiliations and faithful in attendance, and for a period of at least six years filled the office of people's warden for St. Thomas' church. Reference to these and other facts was made by the rector in the dedicatory service on Sunday morning.

Richard Williams, theological student at the University of Toronto, was home for the week-end, and took the service in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, relieving his father, Rev. H. R. Williams, who has not been in good health for the past two weeks. "Peace" was the theme chosen by the young speaker at Sunday's service, and a number of timely thoughts were presented on this subject, so appropriate to the world conditions of today.

Residents awoke to a world of whiteness on Monday morning, the first real snow of the season having fallen over night, and presenting a very beautiful appearance, every twig and branch of hedges, shrubs and trees bearing its burden of the piled-up white flakes.

A number of letters from friends, or officials, in the West have been received by residents of the village and surrounding countryside, expressing warm gratitude for the vegetables and fruit, sent in the cars forwarded from this point this fall to the drought section of Saskatchewan.

Friends of Rev. Charles Clarke, former Millbrook boy, will be interested to learn that he is now pastor of a large church in Victoria West, B.C., and is also looking after a church known as James Bay, in Victoria, that is at present without a regular pastor.

A FIGHTING MAYOR

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP). — In Ralph C. Day Toronto has a fighting Mayor it became apparent today with disclosure of an encounter he had with a burglar. The thief came off second best.

While entertaining friends in his home on Monday, shortly after election had been conceded, Day collared a burglar as he left a room where guests left their coats. After a tussle the Mayor-elect wrested money that had been taken from a guest's purse by the intruder. The burglar was turned loose with a warning.

B.C. LABOR ASKS RIGHT TO ORGANIZE

VICTORIA, Dec. 9 (CP)—British Columbia legislature members today studied a bill designed to prevent employers from restraining employees from organizing.

Introduced in the House yesterday by Labor Minister Pearson, that industrial conciliation and arbitration act would recognize the right of employers and employees to "organize for any lawful purpose.

The legislation would require that details of an organization, its objects and names of officers be filed with the labor minister. Any effort to compel any person to join or refrain from joining any organization or to refrain from becoming an official of any association would constitute an offence with a maximum $500 penalty.

The bill would protect the right of an employer to suspend, transfer, lay off or discharge employees for cause.

In a dispute between employer and employees application could be made to the minister for appointment of a conciliation commissioner. If the commissioner failed to affect settlement the minister would be empowered to submit to three arbitrators.

Employer and employees each would name an arbitrator and the two would select a third. If the two arbitrators could not decide upon a third, the lieutenant-governor-in-council would be empowered to appoint a chairman of the board.

He Has Done His Share

Mayor George A. Macdonald will not again be a candidate for civic office. He is retiring because he wants a little more time to himself; desires to stay at home more often in the evenings. When a citizen has spent ten years in council and topped that length of service by two years as mayor one cannot quarrel with him when he comes to the decision it is time to retire. Nor can it be said he is shirking his public duty because Mayor Macdonald has been in municipal life for a full dozen years and they have not been easy years either. He can retire from office knowing too that not at any time has his candidature been unsuccessful. He held the confidence of the electors to an unusual degree.

There are unusual demands made upon the Mayor of a city like Peterborough. Apart entirely from meetings of council and of committees and the time spent daily at the civic offices there is always the request that the Mayor shall attend this function and that; if there is a gathering in the city then the Mayor must be there to extend civic greetings; if there is a complaint then there are many folk who are certain that remedy will come quicker and in larger degree if the Mayor is approached in person. Then too by virtue of his office the Mayor becomes a member of the Police Commission.

If Mayor Macdonald were to run for office again he would be a difficult man to dislodge. But he is not going to run again and on the eve of his retirement the Examiner is certain it is speaking for citizens in general when it says a sincere "thank you" to His Worship for the time, energy and talent he has spent on behalf of his city.

Get Married—Go On Relief

Mayor Logan of Lindsay says that of 35 applicants for relief, 12 couples were under 25 years of age, and he has no hesitation in saying these people got married so they could secure relief. That would probably apply to young men more than to the girls they married. A young man finds it difficult enough to get his case considered if he is single, but when he is a married man he comes in another classification and is more likely to be considered eligible for relief.

Reeve Alex. Horne of Lindsay suggests the solution is that such people should go and live with their parents. That might work in one case and in the next mean positive hardship on the parents. We do not believe it is a remedy which could be generally applied.

At best young people who get married and then see what can be done about getting on the relief list are making a mighty poor start in married life. The idea of coming together for the purpose of trying to establish a home, even a humble one, is not uppermost in their minds. They are content in the days when their strength and capacity for effort is at its highest point to fall back on a system of relief which was started in the first place for those who found they were not able to carry on after having made every effort to do so.

It is plainly one of the abuses which has attached itself to the relief system. There is no way in which young people can be prevented from getting married, but it is certain their next step should not be to look to the municipality or the state for their support. So far the correct step for stopping that procedure has not been brought to the surface.

A Great Opportunity

John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough for twelve years, has resigned, and apparently that means the reorganization of the work on a new, and we hope a better basis. It would have been better for all concerned had the provincial officer, when in this city making an investigation, met openly with all the members. Such contact would have given him opportunity to make known to the members and to the public through the press exactly what the department had in view. He could have pointed out defects in the local situation and explained fully why it is that the society here has been given a "D" rating, which is admittedly too low. The report which the investigator made on a Peterborough situation should also have been made available in full for Peterborough people.

The statement was made at the meeting that Mr. Edgar, the retiring superintendent, had been criticized for not making sufficient visits, and when he secured a car and started making such visits he was also subject to criticism for running up the bills. There is nothing which one could call consistent in such an attitude. A person occupying such a position, where cases are in all parts of the county as well as in the city, must of necessity be able to go here and there and such work cannot be done without the expense of travelling.

Mr. Edgar said in offering his resignation that he hoped his successor in office "would receive the support of the Board, which I feel I did not receive." And if the work of the Children's Aid Society is to be brought to the high place it deserves and must have in this community then the new official will have to feel that he is working in full understanding with all those connected in any way with the Society. It is a fact that preventive work has come more to the front, and it takes a person with training and a great degree of tact and an understanding of human nature to perform that sort of work successfully. He hears of a home where conditions are not what they should be, and where if there is no improvement made, the children will have to be removed. If the official is wise enough to enter that home and deal with the situation before it develops or comes to the breaking point then he is doing the highest type of service known in recognized preventive work. He is preventing a home from being broken up, and he is keeping children out of the Shelter rather than causing them to be brought there. It is a great work but difficult and not many have the qualifications for it.

There is a place in Peterborough for the Children's Aid Society—a great and an exalted place—but that place has not yet been attained. Such work can well perish under the weight of much criticism. It needs love, patience, perseverance, kindness, hope and faith to participate in such a venture.

The Weaker Sex

A middle-aged woman in London, Ont., was starting out from her home the other evening about 7.30 to attend some function in the church. She had her purse tucked under her right arm, and that of course is not at all unusual.

When she was a few blocks from home she encountered a purse snatcher, a full-grown man, who at once made a dive for the purse. But the purse remained tucked under the woman's arm. Her right arm. She says that arm is not quite as good as her left as it has been broken four times.

But her left arm . . and the woman's name was Mrs. Charlotte Bryant . . was in good condition. Mrs. Bryant doubled her fingers into a fist and went into action. While the assailant was bent upon the purse Mrs. Bryant was bent upon the assailant and it is recorded that she socked him in the eye with sufficient force to knock him down. He did not come back for more.

Well worth recording is an incident of that kind. Mrs. Bryant did not faint; she did not scream and call for aid; she merely went into action. And afterward told the police that if they found a man with a black eye he would be the purse snatcher. And through it all the purse remained safely tucked under the right arm. Weaker sex? Bah!

Possibly The Best Way

Judge F. T. Enright of Montreal possibly has the right idea when it comes to dealing with fascists in this country. Gabriel Lambert, admittedly a fascist leader in that city, appeared in court charged with inciting to riot. When he arrived he was wearing a blue shirt which was decorated with a number of red swastika badges. When Lambert left the court he was joined by a number of his followers, all wearing blue shirts with no ties. Also he gave toward the bench what he considered to be the true fascist salute.

Judge Enright and also the prosecutor made some comment about the garb which Gabriel was wearing in court. The blue color apparently puzzled him a little, as he said if Lambert were representing Hitler he would be wearing a brown shirt and if he were there as an emissary from Mussolini he should have on a black shirt. The Judge was actually moved to laughter in which the court joined. And a bit of laughter is not a bad thing. Mr. Lambert took himself very seriously in court and no doubt he expected others were going to do the same thing. Laughing at a man who desires to be taken seriously has a dwarfing influence. It keeps him from growing great in his own conceit.

They Call It Competition

We read in a report from Simcoe, Ont., that bakers have cut their counter price of bread from ten to seven cents per loaf. The reason given is they have had to meet competition of two firms from Brantford which truck their bread the 26 miles between that city and Simcoe and undersell the bakers of Simcoe.

From information which the Examiner secured in several quarters we find it is not possible to sell bread at 7 cents per loaf and break even on the sale. This paper was told it would result in a loss. We were also told the cost of sending a truck with a driver from Brantford and Simcoe and return would be at least $5 per trip, and possibly more, and also that the Brantford bakers would lose money on every loaf of bread sold in that way. The only explanation offered as to why Brantford bakers would go 26 miles away from home and sell bread at a loss was "they have to get rid of their surplus stock."

One man with considerable experience suggested that possibly the Brantford bakers might be trying to break into new territory, but he added that "cutting prices is not the sound way of doing it." And we believe that to be true. It is also a fact that the cut price is in the meantime making business miserable enough for the bakers of Simcoe who feel they are forced now to sell their bread at a price at which they cannot make a living.

Knowing And Not Knowing

Farmers in Nebraska have been bothered with a weed. They say it is a common enough thing and yet they appear to have no name for it. The description does not fit any of the known weeds in our part of the country, but the Nebraska folk say it has a sort of mint taste which cattle do not like so they leave it alone. Truth is every person seems to have left it alone and no person has bothered giving it a name.

The one exception has been the Pharmacy Department of the University of Nebraska. Trained men there took the weed to see what it contained and they have since experimented to the extent of incorporating the juice or oil extracted from it into a treatment said to have been found useful and good in the treatment of ringworm, athlete's foot, impetigo, and so on.

Scientific men who have tried the new remedy say it has curative powers, and they also say that this weed to which no attention has been paid, and which has been snubbed to the point where it has never been given a name, should be worth $38.50 per ton. And the weed grows in profusion in Nebraska and needs no cultivation, and it has been doing that same thing for years.

The difference between the weed being worth $38.50 a ton and being regarded only as a nuisance is the difference between knowing what it is and what it contains and knowing nothing at all. That sort of knowledge is not only useful but profitable as well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Peterborough's city council seems to have succeeded in working itself around to a state of resignation.

An Italian bridegroom of 83 flattened his 80-year-old bride with one swing to the chin. It is well to remember, however, that this is only the first round.

United Empire group has protested against the closing of Chorley Park. We have the feeling, however, that the resolution might just as well not be sent.

British dentists have found a way of converting receding chins into assertive jaws. It, however, takes something to back up that kind of a chin.

With Florida schools closing because of cold weather the press agents for the southern resorts will have to produce an alibi in a hurry.

A brief has been filed with the Rowell Commission declaring that Canadians should eat themselves out of the depression. We have an idea that most of them will try within the next few weeks.

Deer in Holland Marsh have become so destructive that the Department of Game and Fisheries may have to deal with the problem. Most of the big fellows that the hunters nearly got must have joined up with the Holland herd.

Middlesex county council has been informed that the jail population has doubled in recent years and that is a condition far removed from the situation in England where jails are being closed.

A pine tree has been cut down near Albuguerque, New Mexico that is supposed to have begun growing about the time the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. The story misses the main point of how the tree was allowed to stand so long.

A Manitoba despatch tells of a western pilot braving a blizzard to fly on a mercy errand to rescue a woman stricken with appendicitis. That is a far more meritorious act than using the same kind of a machine to bomb women and children.

SO SIMPLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When woman asks of man today, before he hastens on his way, say is my hat on straight; the man is puzzled that I know, he cannot answer yes or no, he scarce knows what to state.

¶ For some hats are so very queer, they can't be measured from the ear, nor yet from east to west; a man can hardly trust his eyes, he's apt to register surprise, and try to do his best.

¶ He cannot tell her right off quick, nor can he measure with a stick, things aren't just what they were; and so the average worried man, just has to do the best he can, and state the truth to her.

¶ It was not so in years gone by, when man could measure with his eye, and give his answer straight; he did not have to look confused, or stand the chance of being abused, nor chant a hymn of hate.

¶ When I lived on Concession Ten, grandmother wore a bonnet then, and it was neat and trim; she kept it in a bandbox too, when she was done with it and through, it tied beneath her chin.

¶ She never had to guess or ask, or bring assistance to her task, nor call the men folk in; that bonnet went a certain way, and it would neither move nor sway —she tied it 'neath her chin.

PLAGUED BY ONE of the world's highest tuberculosis death rates, Cuba recently determined to track down the guilty germs. The government first raised $1,000,000 by a national lottery and then called upon three American doctors to examine the country's entire population of 4,000,000.

The visiting doctors began tests among children and food handlers. They injected each person with a chemical derivative of the tuberculosis germ. Red skin blotches indicated tuberculosis bacteria in the patient's blood and then X-ray photographs determined whether he actually has tuberculosis.

Recently back from Cuba, two of the doctors are convinced that such tests would work out well in the United States since 80 per cent. of America's new cases are not reported until they have reached an advanced stage and earlier diagnoses would increase the chances for cure.

Not All Ice and Snow.

ALASKA IS NOT a land of perpetual ice and snow. The winter temperature of Kechikan on the southeastern coast is the same as that of Baltimore and Sitka is warmer in winter than is St. Louis. In the southwest—panhadle section—zero weather is practically unknown.

Bought by the United States in 1867 at a cost of $7,200,000 Alaska contains 586,400 square miles. Its cost therefore was less than two cents an acre. The length of Alaska's coast line is 33,000 miles or about 10,000 times greater than the equatorial circumference of the earth.

Inhabiting the coastal regions north of Bristol Bay, Eskimos are seldom if ever seen by the majority of Alaska residents.

On the tracks of the Alaska railway moose have the right of way. Approaching moose on the tracks, trains slow down and the animals, which often weigh more than 1,000 pounds each amble off.

If all the inhabitants of Alaska were seated in the Yale Bowl it would be filled to only three-fourths of its capacity.

An interesting fact is that the streets in Kechikan, Alaska are paved with wooden planks.

Average Earnings.

FOR EIGHT years Professor Harold F. Clark of Columbia University's Teachers College has been collecting statistics on the earnings of Americans and some of his findings have been published in a recent book. They are most interesting. For instance Professor Clark finds that the annual average earnings of doctors in the period between 1920 and 1926 was $4,880.

The earnings of other groups for the same period run as follows—Law, $4,730, engineering, $4,410, dentistry, $4,170, architecture, $3,830, College teaching, $3,050, journalism, $2,120, library work, $2,020, ministry, $1,980, skilled trades, $1,430 public school teaching, $1,350, nursing, $1,310, unskilled labor, $795, farming, $580 and farm labor $485.

Governor Henry Horner of Illinois saw two 10-year-old girls in Springfield gazing into a candy-store window and invited them in. They conferred, noted a State trooper nearby, accepted the candy and then scampered away. They thought the Governor might be a kidnapper.

OPEN FORUM

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In reply to Mr. Lundy's letter in the Examiner re the open forum at George St. Church, I think it must have been his first visit, for if he had been attending regularly he would know that the forum gives the public time for asking questions every Sunday afternoon when the speaker is through. I think the reason this was not done on Sunday was due to the length of Col. Drew's speech. The forum generally lasts for one hour but on Sunday we were in there for an hour and a half, and if there had been a question period no doubt it would have lasted for another half hour. If I know the public they do not mind a meeting which lasts for an hour, but ask them to come to a meeting of two hours and see how many you have.

Mr. Lundy says he is not defending communism, but then he asks that Mr. Buck should be invited to come and speak to us, and surely Mr. Lundy is wise enough to know that Tim Buck is the leader of communism in Canada, and what Canada needs today is more of the Col. Drew type and fewer of the Tim Buck type.

WOMEN AND GAMBLING

Editor Examiner.

Sir: We read in our daily papers from time to time how the gambling habit is increasing, even in this enlightened age. In former times there were only a few cases where men engaged in this fascinating and dangerous practice and women of the former times would not consider letting this evil even enter the realm of their thinking.

When we read of the police raiding a gambling house in the city of Toronto and finding fifty women among its frequenters the most normal question that would be asked is why have women sacrificed their former principle and dignity of life, and come down to the lower levels of thinking, when we are now living in an age of greater progress and advancement?

The power of a woman's influence cannot be estimated for making this world better. If they could realize the responsibility and power of their womanhood we soon should have a finer race of men as well as women, and a better world to live in.

This evil like many others does not come like a cyclone upon us which we cannot resist, but it has entered the thought-life of men and women from time to time and has received some consideration. And like many other things that are evil and demoralizing once indulged in they soon dominate the lives of those who yield to its temptation.

The question might be asked, has not bridge playing been largely responsible for the gambling indulgence. It has entered social life, and in many cases has entered church life, and has so engrossed the thought-life of many women, that when they meet the subject of their conversation is bridge playing and bridge prizes.

All devotional thought seems to have been crowded out of their minds. This is a serious condition in our social life and certainly is in our church life.

MARKET SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A delegation representing the gardeners of the township attended a meeting of the City Council on Monday night asking for more modern market facilities.

The council decided they were entitled to their requests being granted and went on record as recommending that the council of 1938 do something to meet the situation.

I believe that it is time to act before the suitable properties are purchased by others who would not relinquish them.

If the properties can now be purchased, I have in mind I would say, build a one-storey building facing Charlotte street for the market hall. Beginning at the south of the terrace on Louis street build stalls from there to the corner of Louis street and King street, east, from this point to the creek then north along the creek to or near the market hall.

Those wishing to pay an annual rental for a stall could do so and leave anything they desired therein, and lock the door. Others not having an annual rented stall could pay a fee for use of same for each market day. The revenue derived will pay for the construction and the fee will be uniform.

The doors opening on Simcoe street along the City Hall can be closed and a long beautiful entrance placed on the centre of the south side of the City Hall.

A walk can be built leading into this door. The weigh scales removed and the present market grounds be turned into a beauty spot. The new market place can be used for parking as the old one is now used.

LOCKING MOTOR CARS.

(Brantford Expositor)

THE WINDSOR Daily Star points out that in that city where so many cars are stolen, Mayor Wigle has asked the Windsor Board of Police Commissioners "to give instructions that when police on their beats notice keys left in ignition locks the cars should be locked and the keys brought to headquarters." Why not? If police constables on their beats find store doors that are open with the keys left in them, the doors are locked and the keys taken to police headquarters. Magistrate Brody supports the idea, and sees no reason why a car should be treated differently from a store. The reason for this action is plain. As soon as cars are stolen the owners immediately inform the police and expects them to recover them. This involves time, labor, and expense. Moreover, damage is often done to the cars while they are missing. For this reason it is quite justifiable to ask that drivers shall co-operate with the authorities to the extent of locking their cars so as to avoid theft.

JUST HIS EYES.

(London Daily Sketch)

BRAVE Mrs. Ellen Hutchinson, of Reading, frightened a burglar out of her bedroom by pretending that she had a revolver. The only thing that she could describe about the intruder was his eyes.

That is perfectly understandable in the circumstances, but have you ever thought how meagerly one is able to describe people, their distinctions of dress and appearance?

You disagree? Try to produce a mental picture of your opposite in train of bus this morning. Keen observation is so rare that it is worth cultivating.

MANITOBA HARD UP.

(Winnipeg Tribune)

THIS province has a future—and a present. Manitoba can make ends meet, as it has shown in recent years, so far as current expenditures go. It cannot go on meeting the load of interest payments on debt which now make up about half the budget. The burden of debt must be lightened. The income of the people has lately been rising, but not nearly enough to enable the province to carry its present load.

Premier Bracken has done well to say right out loud that the choice lies between debt adjustment or default. This has not been advertised quite so publicly before, but it has long been generally known.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND IT came to pass also on an other sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered. And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him. But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth. Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; Is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it? And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other.— Luke vi, 6-10.

A Bit of Nonsense

VICAR HELPS

A kind-hearted English Vicar one day observed an old woman laboriously pushing a perambulator up a steep hill. He volunteered his assistance and when they reached the top of the hill, said, in answer to her thanks:

"Oh, it's nothing at all. I'm delighted to do it. But, as a little reward, may I kiss the baby?"

Baby? Lor' bless you, sir, it ain't no baby, it's the old man's beer."

EMERGENCY QUERY PEEVES DOCTORS

LONDON, Dec. 9 (CP)—Members of the Socialist Medical Association of Great Britain are up in arms over steps to organize the profession to meet any national emergency.

At the request of the committee of imperial defence, the British Medical Association circularized its branches asking each to appoint an emergency officer to ascertain if member doctors would be willing to undertake service in the event of a national emergency.

Doctors were asked to indicate their intentions under one of the following heads:

1. Those willing to accept whole-time service at home or abroad.
2. Willing to accept part-time service at home.
3. Available for medical care for civilian casualties following air-raids.

Criticism has been voiced mainly on the grounds that the profession has not been told specifically what would be regarded as a national emergency.

Gets Third Trial

WM. MUNCHUK

By virtue of a supreme court decision, 45-year-old William Munchuk, of St. Catharines, Ont., sentenced last March to hang May 31, but granted a new trial by the Ontario court of appeal, will face his third trial for murder. He was found guilty of manslaughter in his first trial for the murder of William Seabright in a line fence dispute and was convicted of the capital charge in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary Seabright. The crown sought dismissal of the new trial allowed by the Ontario court; the applica-

The Sunshine committee reported several sick visits.

The Youths' Training School was discussed and will be held in Apsley some time during the winter.

A letter was read from one of the members thanking them for a gift in a recent sickness.

The member who visited the Buckhorn branch on Nov. 30th reported a splendid meeting and supper.

After some discussion on the matter of Christmas boxes for shut-ins, it was decided to pack some and it was left in the hands of the Sunshine committee.

Mrs Roy Brown reported proceeds of card party at her home amounted to $2.60.

Moved by Mrs. Brown, seconded by Mrs. C. Smith, that a letter of sympathy be sent to Mrs. Emmal, a former resident of Apsley, whose husband died recently.

The next meeting was then discussed and Mrs. Roy Brown kindly offered to have it at her home instead of at the Orange Hall. She will also serve the lunch. Mrs. C. Smith will give current events for next month. Mrs. Welling Lean, a delegate to the Toronto convention, gave a wonderful report of part of the convention. The last part will be given at the next meeting. Several old accounts, deeds, etc., also an old scrap book was exhibited, as this was the meeting for historical research, among them being accounts dated 1891-2-3, and a deed, 1886, and a prayer book printed in 1822.

HOMER LIKES FACTORY

SHELTON, Conn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A homing pigeon that refuses to go home will be given one more chance by Judge John J. Donovan.

The bird, released twice by factory workers who befriended it after it was found hungry and exhausted, each time flew back to the factory.

The men brought the bird to Judge Donovon, a pigeon fancier, who said he would let it rest a few days and release it again.

ACTED EIGHT PARTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(CP)—Cornelia Otis Skinner, whose name must reveal her lineage, undertook a full length drama last night with herself cast in all eight parts and today Broadway again sung her praise.

She presented "Edna his wife," Margaret Ayer Barne's novel, in 11 scenes. With deft characterization she was the wife of an up-and-coming lawyer, her daughter, sister and mother, her husband's mistress and assorted neighbors, friends and catty society-women and through them she clearly etched the drama of the small-town girl who marries the wrong man.

George Street Y. P. Interesting Meeting.

Fifty-five young people attended the regular meeting of George Street Young People's Union.

The meeting, which opened with a sing-song, was in charge of the Christian Missionary Group, of which Miss Loretta McDougall is the convenor. Miss Edith Burnham presided for the worship service and was assisted by Ken Brenton, Jake Burnham, and the Misses Gladys Mills, Elva Mowatt, and Loretta McDougall.

The second chapter, entitled "Unto the Ends of the Earth," of the Study Book, "A New Church Faces a New World," was very ably discussed by four ladies from the Women's Missionary Society—Mrs. M. C. Parr, Mrs. W. P. Purdy, Mrs. S. Armstrong, and Miss E. L. Wright, dealing especially with the lives of Dr. Walter Currie, a missionary in Africa, and Dr. Jean Dow, of China.

The meeting closed with a very enjoyable recreation period under the leadership of Jack Skitch.

St. John's W.A. Annual Meeting.

The afternoon branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary held the annual meeting, with election of officers, with a fair attendance of members.

The W.A. Litany and prayers were taken by the Rev. Canon Robertson, after which annual reports were heard, which all showed good progress, with monies paid in full. Much credit is due Mrs. Groombridge and other untiring helpers. It is worthy of note that the Junior branch has now a membership of over fifty.

A splendid amount of clothing and toys were brought in for the Christmas bale for the West, including three afghans, quilts and flannelette garments made by Mrs. Groombridge and her helpers.

Gratitude to all departments of the W.A. was expressed by the president, Mrs. G. S. Cameron. The president spoke feelingly of the death of the late Mrs. Bird of Saskatchewan, which was announced in the W.A. Bulletin.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Perdie, who has been connected with the Grenfell Mission at Harrington Island. Handicraft of the women, including hooked rugs, purses made from seal hides and figures carved from wood, were shown by Mrs. Perdie. A most instructive and interesting talk on the life of the people, the little communication with the outside world, which is steadily improving, and native customs, were vividly described. There is a W.A. Branch on the island, with nineteen regular members, who made $40 at a recent bazaar. The Rev. Canon Robertson expressed appreciation to the speaker for her interesting talk.

Few changes were made in the officers for the coming year, who are as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. F. M. Dela Fosse; president, Mrs. G. S. Cameron; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Cridland; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. M. English; secretary, Mrs. Cooper; treasurer, Mrs. Ford; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Groombridge; E.C.D., Mrs. Wardle; U.T.O., Mrs. Knight; leaflet secretary, Mrs. Fakenham; literature secretary, Mrs. Dela Fosse; Teenage, Mrs. F. C. Craig; Juniors, Mrs. Stanger, Miss R. Quartermaine; Little Helpers (left over); Visiting, Mrs. D. J. Eldred; refreshments, Mrs. Dorrington.

George St. W.A. Elects Officers.

There was a large attendance at the December meeting of the George Street United Church Women's Association, held on Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. T. Mark, presiding.

The devotional period conducted by Mrs. J. H. Rowe included Christmas hymns and Scripture reading by Mrs. W. McMillan, with prayer by Mrs. W. G. Morrow.

A charming Christmas message on "Wishing" was brought by Rev. E. Boyter of Park Street Baptist Church, guest speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Bert Cutmore sang very sweetly a Christmas song.

A report of the recent Peterborough Presbytery W.A. held in St. James' United Church was given.

A very interesting event of the afternoon was the report of the leaders of the five different groups into which the society is divided, of finances raised by them during the year, which have amounted to over $500. A note of appreciation was raised by the pastor for the splendid work.

Before leaving the chair for the election of officers, Mrs. Mark, who has been president of the association for the past three years, thanked the ladies for their co-operation during her term of office.

The Rev. M. C. Parr then took charge for the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. W. G. Harris; 1st vice-president, Miss Mary Elliott; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Girven; secretary, Mrs. G. C. Staples; treasurer, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. K. McGee; pianist, Mrs. M. C. Parr, Mrs. P. Hagerman; press secretary, Mrs. J. A. Spencer.

Bird-Chapman.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Tiburon, California, was the scene of a very pretty wedding recently, when Miss Marjorie Chapman, and Edward Cyril Bird took their marriage vows before an altar banked with dahlias, chrysanthemums and other flowers. The Rev. J. C. Leffler was the officiating clergyman.

Given in marriage by her father, the winsome bride wore a gown of blue mousselaine de soie over blue taffeta and a poke bonnet of blue. She carried blue bouvardia and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Rose Chapman, as maid of honor, wore a mulberry taffeta, floor length, pink bouvardia in her hair, and carried Talisman roses. Frank Bird was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Murray Hilton and Anthony Bousa.

Following the ceremony, the young couple greeted their friends of whom there were about one hundred and fifty present, and later left for a brief honeymoon. They will make their home in San Anselmo. The groom is the son of Mrs. L. Bird. He is a graduate of Tamalpais High School, and is now employed in the San Francisco offices of the Matson Steamship Company. A number of years ago, with his family he lived in Peterborough, and was a pupil at Central School.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WASTING A TRUMP

DELIBERATE under-ruffing is not often in order, especially in a situation where an apparently worthless card of some other suit could be discarded in place of "wasting" a trump. There are unusual spots, though, in which considerations regarding the placing of the lead on the late tricks can overweigh the arbitrary intrinsic value of cards. The brilliant player who can see these emergencies has an opportunity to make plays which furnish rare satisfaction.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South arrived at a final contract of 6-Spades on this deal and West led the diamond Q, which South won with the K.

When the spade A was played and West showed out, South knew he must surrender one trump trick to the opponents and must therefore avoid the loss of a club. To the third trick he played to the heart A and returned a club, which East covered with the J, West tossing the 10, to inform his partner that he held the 9. The heart 4 was then ruffed, the diamond A cashed and a diamond ruffed. On the heart K, a club was discarded in dummy.

When the heart J was led and covered by West's Q, declarer ruffed with dummy's K and East, left with three trumps and two clubs, realized what South was up to. So, instead of discarding a club, he under-ruffed with his spade 8. Declarer now played a club, on which East played the Q and South the A, and as West held the high club and East a sure trump, the declarer was set one trick.

Dry and Dull Hair Made Attractive

(By Gladys Glad)

Over in London, I'm told, women now are wearing wigs that duplicate their own coiffures when they have not the time to curl their locks into the ringlets that fashion demands at present. And I must admit that the idea really has its points!

Of course, the average woman doesn't wear a wig except at masquerades or if she's had the misfortune to lose all her hair. Ordinarily, she much prefers cultivatin and exposing the hair that nature endowed her with. But according to my recent mail, some girls really would like to hide their own locks beneath a wig, and that's because their own tresses are unattractive.

Several Ways of Applying

Anyone whose locks are dry and dull should administer hot oil treatments, and proper brushing and massaging, until the condition is corrected. These steps in correcting dull, dry, brittle hair are very simple to execute, and any normally intelligent woman can administer them herself.

However, until the dulness is corrected through such reconditioning treatments, a woman whose locks appear brittle and dull can give her hair luster through the use of a good, marketed brilliantine. But she must employ skill when using such a preparation, if she wishes it to enhance the loveliness of her tresses.

There are several satisfactory ways of applying brilliantine in order to lend the hair luster. A very fine atomizer, for instance, is ideal for the purpose. The lubricant should be only very lightly sprayed onto the hair. Then the hair should be brushed briskly, in order to distribute the preparation evenly and to remove any possible excess. In this way, the hair will be given an attractive luster and the scalp will also receive a bit of nourishment. And goodness knows the dry scalp needs plenty of that!

The lunar aspects for this day promise very lively conditions, probably instigated by the arrival of sudden and surprising good news. This may entail some unexpected expenditures in financing, an important journey, some change or a removal, but all should be justified and profitable. Contracts, writings and publicity have important places in the day's activities.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a bit of hasty and surprising news, which may demand a sudden journey, a removal or another change. It may call for unexpected expense, but will be justified by the profitable culminations. Writings, contracts and publicity may figure in these.

Annual Dinner Hospital Alumnae

"In the nurse's life, meeting as she does with all classes and nationalities, she has a great opportunity for service," said Mrs. T. J. Carley, speaking at the annual dinner of the Nicholls Hospital Alumnae Association in the Hotel Champlain on Wednesday evening.

"Nursing is one of the oldest of women's vocations, and though it is a far cry from the conditions under which Florence Nightingale labored to those of the present day, there are still difficulties and responsibilities and with devotion to duty, there is the opportunity to develop an ideal of service."

"Women do not take enough interest in the affairs of the world," continued Mrs. Carley, and quoted Bride Broden who said recently in her column, "We live in a mad

Army Leaders Visit City

Wednesday was a red letter day in the history of the Salvation Army in Peterborough for it marked the visit of Mrs. Commissioner Carpenter, wife of the new commissioner for Salvation Army work in Canada. In the group BELOW are (LEFT to RIGHT), Mrs. Colonel Tyndell, secretary of the League of Mercy; Mrs. Commissioner Carpenter and Mrs. Brigadier Riches of Toronto.

—(Parks Studio Photo)

More Intense Study of The Bible Is Urged by Wife of Commissioner

Mrs. Commissioner G. L. Carpenter, wife of the new Commissioner of the Salvation Army for all of Canada, Newfoundland and Alaska, addressed a special meeting for women on Wednesday afternoon in the Salvation Army Temple, and a crowded congregation attending a public meeting in the evening. Mrs. Carpenter was accompanied by Mrs. Brigadier Riches of Toronto, and Mrs. Lieut. Colonel Tyndall, secretary of the League of Mercy, and wife of the Salvation Army Financial Secretary.

Commissioner and Mrs. Carpenter came to Canada in July of this year, after four years in South America leading the Salvation Army in Argentina, Paraguay and Uruguay. An Australian by birth, Mrs. Carpenter as a girl became a field officer in the Army, in charge of various corps in the mountain regions. Later she was called to edit the children's paper at the Army headquarters in Melbourne, where Commissioner Carpenter was also engaged in literary work. Transferred to London headquarters, the Commissioner became literary secretary in General Booth's personal staff.

A writer of distinction, Mrs. Carpenter is the authoress of many books, including a number of biographies, which have been translated into French, German, Dutch, Spanish and Japanese. Her latest work, only just completed, deals with the life of the Army's founder, General William Booth. It is to be translated at once into Spanish for use in South America.

Speaking of the beauty of Canada and blessings of its people, the speaker expressed her delight at the "snowy roads coming to Peterborough," her first taste of a Northern winter. Canada's organized social service, caring for so many in distress, has particularly impressed the newcomer, while travelling from Newfoundland to Vancouver this fall.

A speaker of intense sincerity and charm of personality, Mrs. Carpenter, in addressing the women's meeting in the afternoon, urged a more intense and thorough study of The Bible, where there are messages for all people. "What is this thou hast done?" was the question God put to Eve in the Garden of Eden, and that question has come down to womankind through all ages. "There comes a time at the close of day, 'in the cool of the evening,' and there will come a time at the close of life, when we must give an answer,' said the speaker. Urging her listeners not to feel that their work was of no account in comparison with that of famous women, who have been responsible for great reforms, Mrs. Carpenter said, "You mothers have a wonderful work: the training of little immortal souls. On the foundation of good homes stands a good nation. Show me a good nation and I see good mothers."

Mrs. C. M. Scott, president of the Local Council of Women, addressed the meeting, bringing greetings to Mrs. Carpenter, who is vice-president of the National Council of Women, from the Local Council.

Taking part also were Mrs. Brigadier Riches, who introduced Mrs. Carpenter; Mrs. Lt. Colonel Tyndall, and Mrs. Adjutant Warrander. Mrs. M. Braund was heard in a beautifully sung solo, and two numbers were played with skill and beauty with the hand bells, by Mrs. R. C. Braund and Mrs. S. J. Richardson.

world,' after attending a tea party where the conversation was trivial, at a time when the war news was imminent. We are forgetting the more important things, passing over the things that should be studied. It would be impossible to follow all the workings of the nations, but we can at least have a general idea of what is going on."

Discussing recent happenings in Egypt with succeeding movements on the part of Italy and Great Britain, the speaker showed how an interest in world affairs from day to day brings an explanation for certain actions taken.

In the nursing profession, more than any other, comes contact with the divisions of the social classes and with the evil of Communism, made up of young people, lonely and unhappy foreigners and disgruntled individuals. "Women can do a very great deal to eliminate much of the trouble by their own acts and by spreading a general spirit of kindliness and generosity," said Mrs. Carley. "So let us take an interest in the affairs around us, and then a broader view of the countries of the world, and knowing something of this work toward a goal where all nations will seek peace and calm."

The guests, who sat at a large horseshoe-shaped table, decorated at intervals with bouquets of pink or rose chrysanthemums, were welcomed by the president of the Alumnae, Mrs. Eva Breckenridge. The guest speaker was introduced by Miss F. Dixon in an amusing and delightful little speech, in which she traced a relationship between Mrs. Carley's and her own pioneer ancestors. A vote of thanks to the speaker was expressed by Miss Alma Dobbin. Guest musicians were Mrs. Percy Hooper, who gave two exquisite violin solos, and Miss Gladman, who accompanied at the piano. Bouquets of roses were presented to the speaker and the musicians. Bridge was played later, with prizes drawn for and awarded to Miss Mary Greer and Miss H. Mouch.

At the head table were Mrs. Eva Breckenridge, Mrs. E. M. Leeson, Mrs. T. J. Carley, Mrs. W. T. Holloway, and the Misses F. Dixon, A. Dobbin, H. Bradley, M. Beavis M. Ferguson, M. Watson. Also present were Mesdames P. Hooper, R. Frank, R. McIntyre, Pogue, A. Gibson, G. Anderson, G. Morrison, O. M. Steer English, W. L. Ferguson, S. Shield, D. Davidson, Hunter; the Misses D. JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

BE GENTLE with the stranger, and with enemies and friends;
The gentle spirit never blusters, quarrels, or offends.
Its voice is kind and quiet—never angry, loud or shrill;
It meets each trying circumstance with patience and goodwill.
Such gentleness is power . . . its influences steal—
Into the tortured minds of men, and with a mute appeal—
Bring out the best where long and wordy argument would fail—
And forceful domination would be all of no avail.

—Patience Strong.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we think that loud blustering tones and pushing our will at others, shows great strength and will-power. But you will find that people respond far quicker to gentleness in speech and manner than to domineering ways.

We speak of a gentleman, or a gentlewoman, denoting that they are cultured enough to talk with courtesy and decency. Even in righteous anger there is no need to talk with a loud coarse voice, for all you do is antagonize those who must listen to you.

And even if they are in the wrong, you get no results that way, all you do is hurt yourself. You do not show how strong you are, but how weak you are.

So many will wait until anger has a hold on them before they will speak, when others have wronged them. Like some parents not chastising their children until they are angry with them, then going over the score with punishment, leaving a sense of injustice with the child.

Horace tells us this: "Anger is momentary madness, so control your passion or it will control you." We all need a certain amount of temper but it must be under control. Steel is tempered, but only so much else it will not be flexible but unbendable, and anything that will not bend, breaks easily.

How many things have been done in uncontrolled anger which has ruined those who practiced it. Murder and sudden death have come because of it.

The hangman's noose and the electric chair has been the end of those who lost control for a moment or two. Friends have been separated, husbands and wives parted, children alienated, and all because anger instead of gentleness got the upper hand.

It is a nasty thing to see and hear a person who lets anger get full away. They would not ride in a car or a train which has no brakes. But they forget that anger needs strong brakes else it will do untold damage which can never be repaired.

You can talk emphatically, but gently, so that the one who hears knows you will not put up with certain things, or you can let your tongue run riot so that it says everything which can wound and hurt.

And again I say that you will only hurt yourself most, for you will be letting down barriers which are hard to get up again. You can dominate in a quiet way, but don't forget that dominate does not mean domineer.

So check yourself over. If you find your tongue is hung in the middle so that it wages at the least provocation, put the brakes on. Many's the one has found that their tongue cut the ground from under their feet, so watch out.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Recital of Songs Mrs. Park's Pupils

There was a capacity audience in the Green Room and Library of the Y.W.C.A. when three pupils from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park gave a most delightful recital of songs on Wednesday evening.

The three girls, the Misses Olga Westbye, Alicia Langley of Peterborough and Cora Charlton of Lakefield, charmed their audience. They sang with sound musicianship, excellent quality of tone, and exceptionally clear enunciation. Gwen Craw at the piano added greatly to the success of the evening with her sympathetic accompaniments.

Olga Westbye has a decided flair for languages, her two Italian songs and the German one were outstanding. With her pronounced dramatic ability, she invested each of her songs with the correct atmosphere, using her sweet soprano voice with fine effect.

Alicia Langley sings with much clarity and pure quality of tone, and already possesses a very fluent vocal technique, the most rapid passages being easily negotiated. "The Spring Morning" and "I Attempt From Love's Sickness" were particularly delightful.

Cora Charlton of Lakefield possesses an exceedingly promising voice of rich mezzo-soprano quality, and she sings with authority and considerable depth of feeling. The old English folk-song, "Go From My Window," and Brahe's "Piper From Over the Way," were particularly well done.

The program was as follows: Olga Westbye, "Silent Worship," Handel; "Come and Trip It," Handel; Cora Charlton, "What's the Time Blackbird?" Oliver; "On the Banks of Allan Water," Old English; "I Love Thee," Grieg; Alicia Langley, "I Attempt From Love's Sickness to Fly," Purcell; "Still Wie Die Nacht," Bohm; "Snowflakes," Cowen; "Love is Meant to Make Us Glad," German; Olga Westbye, "Se tu m'ami," Pergolesi; "Le Violette," Scarlatti; "Es Schrie Ein Vogel," Sinding; "Sylvelin," Sinding; Cora Charlton, "The Soul at Heaven's Gate," Century; "If Ever I Marry at All," Dunhill; "Go From My Window," Old English; "The Piper From Over the Way," Brahe; Alicia Langley, "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," Quilter; "A Spring Morning," Old English; "Windmurg," Franz; "As I Went a-Roaming," Brahe; Olga Westbye, "O Willow," "Love Will Find Out the Way," English Folk Songs; "Half-Way Down the Stairs," "The Three Foxes," A. A. Milne.

PILOT DISAPPEARS FIGHTING BLIZZARD TORONTO-FORT ERIE

PORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 9 (C.P.).—The blizzard-swept Niagara Peninsula to-day held secret the fate of Pilot Jack Moar, unreported since he left Toronto yesterday to deliver a seaplane to this Niagara River town.

Moar and Pilot Harold Brown, flying another plane, started at noon to ferry their planes here. Brown was forced down by a blizzard at Port Dalhousie, across the Peninsula near St. Catharines, and returned to Toronto by train.

Jack Sanderson, president of Fleet Aircraft Company, said last night he had a report Moar landed in the Welland area. A check with Provincial Police and other sources at Welland and in other district points brought no confirmation of the report.

Flying Club officials at Toronto, however, expressed belief Moar had landed safely at some point without telephone or telegraph communication. A storm in the area had disrupted communications in some parts.

Usual time for the Toronto-Port Erie trip is 30 or 40 minutes. It was not known whether the pilots flew directly across Lake Ontario, a 60-mile hop or followed the shoreline around the lake and then crossed the peninsula to Fort Erie. That distance would be 100 miles.

INSTITUTE BRINGS GIFTS FOR RELIEF

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 9.—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of the hostess of the month, Mrs. F. R. Wells, on Wednesday evening.

The roll call was a white gift, to be donated to the Canadian Legion for the Christmas baskets.

The assistant hostesses of the evening were: Miss M. Brown, Mesdames H. Haacke, J. Gordinier, R. Neal, F. N. Marrett, L. Phillips.

The first part of the evening was devoted to the business of the Institute, and the program followed after this.

Current events were given by Mrs. F. N. Marrett. Mrs. H. Haacke and Miss A. Robb gave a duet, "The Star of the East." A paper on "Health" was read by Miss Brown. Mrs. Schoffield gave a reading on the "Motto" of the month: "Scatter goodness, joy and mirth all along the ways of earth." A game, "Autograph," was played and won by Mrs. K. Armstrong. Bingo was played, after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses.

First To Recover From Dread Malady

While medical science admitted itself baffled by the deadly malady which has snatched the lives of 19 infants in Chicago hospitals in less than two weeks, Nurse Mable Peterson watches tiny Sandra Trask, first of the stricken babies to exhibit signs of recovery. Sandra was released from St. Elizabeth's hospital along with six other babies who contracted the disease and doctors believe they are out of danger. The virus believed causing the epidemic is still unidentified.

Pigs Refuse To Cross Ground On Farm Where Electric Fence was Strung

London, Ont., Dec. 9.

THAT ANY good thing can be carried too far, especially if there is a pig or two in the case, was demonstrated by what happened to one of those electric fences which brought fame to a couple of Middlesex farmers.

The idea was novel and highly effective. A strand or two of electrified wire was run around a field. Pigs and other farm animals bumped against it once, and that was enough. They never again felt curious about the taste of grass in nearby fields.

Came the time when the Carmichaels of London township prepared to take the pigs to market.

All summer hogs had been rooting on either side of the electric fence. But right beneath the wire for a space of a foot or more, there was not a single root mark.

So along came marketing day. Very simple it would be to shut off the current, take down the wires and drive the piggies to the barn—the Carmichaels thought.

But not an inch would those pigs cross on unrooted strip of soil over which had once hung the wires. For two hours they were coaxed and cajoled. It was no use.

Finally it was necessary for men to pick up each pig and carry him over.

REPORT IS GIVEN TO HAVELOCK W.I.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 9.—The Havelock Branch Women's Institute held their December meeting on Monday afternoon in the basement of the town hall, with President Mrs. John Armstrong in the chair. The meeting was very well attended. Each member responded to the roll call by placing a gift, suitable for a child under the age of twelve, on the Christmas tree. These gifts will be distributed on Christmas eve.

The Institute will hold a special meeting this Saturday, for the purpose of packing a bale of clothing for the west.

Since the village elections will be held on January 3rd, the regular meeting date for the Institute, the meeting will be postponed until January 10th.

A most interesting and illustrative report on the 36th convention held recently at the Royal York in Toronto, was given by Mrs. C. Price.

A piano duet, entitled "Happy Games" was presented by Misses Dora Ketchen and Lois Wilson, after which the members sang several Christmas Carols.

Refreshments were served under the convenorship of Mrs. George Iles, assisted by Mesdames Hoffman, Jones and Miss Morrison.

Canadian Farm Product Sales Neglected In United Kingdom

Marketing Head Urges Efficient Representatives and Good Promotion Program

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (C.P.). — Reorganization of the selling force for Canada's farm products in the United Kingdom under the direction of the Department of Agriculture is urged by A. M. Shaw, Director of Marketing Service, in his report to Agriculture Minister Gardiner following a survey of British markets last summer.

The report, made public last night finds opportunities for the sale of Canadian farm products in the United Kingdom have been neglected and advertising and publicity activities in the past have produced little or no result.

Appointment of sales representatives responsible to the Department of Agriculture is essential if Canada is to take full advantage of the British market, the report says, recommending also carefully planned and sustained program of advertising and sales promotion to make Canadian products known in the United Kingdom.

As things stand Canadian products are less known than those of any of the other Dominions and even less than those of some foreign countries, it says.

Grading and packaging methods employed in Canada are in some instances as much at fault as 'marketing methods on the other side.

Urges Long-term Policy.

Mr. Shaw recommended this three-fold long-term policy as the surest way of obtaining a firm foothold on the British market:

"1—Intensive educational and inspectional services in Canada to make sure that a constant and standard supply of high-grade farm merchandise is produced here specifically for the British market.

"2—An extensive campaign designed to impress British food handlers and importers of farm animals with the advantage of developing the Canadian business.

"3—A constant effort to impress the British housewife with the high quality of Canadian agricultural products. Each of the main recommendations is described in great detail in the report and methods of procedure in each instane are proposed."

Other more specialized suggestions were establishment of a definite Canadian mark or lavel to be used only on exports which reached a certain standard of quality. All publicity and promotional work should be directed towards establishing this mark in the minds of housewives as representative of high quality food products.

Lower grade products might be exported but should not bear the Canadian mark. They might be marked "Empire" instead of "Canada."

Canadian cheese and bacon were the best known Canadian products on the British market, and the quality and grading of these products was already up to a satisfactory standard. A publicity campaign might be started on these products at once, but for other products it should not be started until grading, shipping, and distribution arrangements have been improved.

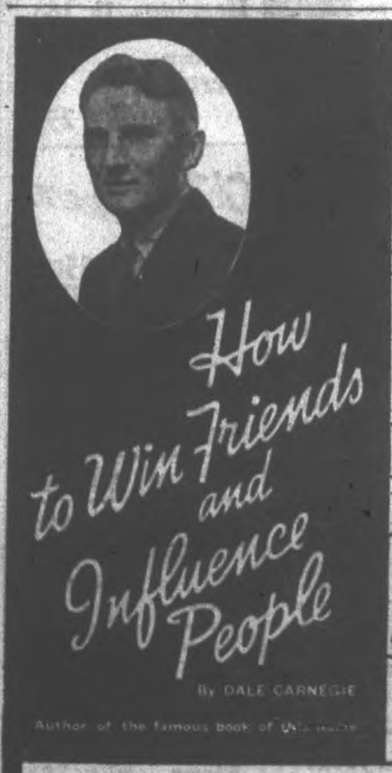
Defends London

A former artillery officer, Major-General Frederick A. Pile, who has served as assistant director of mechanization at the British war office for some time has now been appointed to command of the anti-aircraft divisions whose special job will be defending London in the event of enemy air raids. He succeeds the late Major-General R. H. D. Tomson.



BE A GOOD LISTENER—

"We all enjoy talking when we have an interested listener and few human beings are proof against 'the implied flattery of rapt attention.'

"Often even the most violent critic, the most confirmed kicker, will see the light of reason when simply allowed to talk without interruption. It gets the poison out of his system, as it were."

"If you wanted people to shun you, to make fun of you, even to despise you, one of the very best ways to do it would be never to listen to anyone for long—to talk incessantly about yourself instead.

"We all know people like that—and avoid them like the measles."

"So, if you want to be regarded as good company and a pleasant fellow, learn how to listen. 'To be interesting, be interested.'

"Ask questions that the other man can answer and will want to answer. Give him a chance to talk about himself."

"Remember, we are all more interested in ourselves and our wants and problems than in anything else under the sun. If I have a toothache, it means more to me than war in China or revolution in Spain."

"Think of that the next time you take part in a conversation."

FORT ERIE AREA TIED UP BY SNOW

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(By The Canadian Press)—Business and other forms of activity were at a standstill at Fort Erie to-day as a blizzard that left 30 inches of snow on the ground continued to rage.

Automobile and railway traffic in both Fort Erie and Buffalo, N.Y., were tied up by huge drifts. Busses operating between Fort Erie and Buffalo became stalled in drifts. Traffic between the border town and other Ontario centres was throttled.

The storm, part of winter's onslaught on Ontario, was similar to storms that have hit other sections of the province since the week-end. Blizzards yesterday tied up traffic in Lambton, Middlesex and Simcoe counties and in the eastern section of the province.

Attendance at Fort Erie schools was at a minimum with many pupils and several teachers unable to report because of traffic tie-ups. Many employees in Fort Erie industrial plants were unable to report for work.

Ploughs were clearing the Niagara boulevard. Emergency crews of men were shovelling railway tracks clear in the border town's railway terminal. Street car lines in Buffalo, across the Niagara river from Fort Erie, were reported tied up by the storm.

Middle Asia Fights Women's Vote

MOSCOW, Dec. 8—(AP)—Signs of die-hard opposition to women's suffrage in Soviet Middle Asia, where men formerly were masters of harems, came last night from Uzbekistan.

With polling next Sunday under the new constitution, a Tashkent newspaper reported one man hanged his wife from a barn door to prevent her from attending an election meeting.

It said another stripped his wife and told her that if she must vote she could go to the polls nude.

Both husbands were held for trial by the prosecutor, who criticized local party officials for not taking sufficiently serious views of the two cases.

Rivals Labor Leaders In U.S.

PARALYSIS HITS AUSTRALIA HARD

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 9 (CP-Reuter's).—Infantile paralysis continued to sweep Victoria State today with the number of cases exceeding 1,100. The incidence of 60 in each 100,000 of population was believed to be the highest on record.

Measures are being taken to tighten control in all states. Border patrols between Victoria and New South Wales are halting cars carrying children in an effort to find those with symptoms of the malady and those known to have been in touch with victims of the disease.

The epidemic broke out in July and two weeks later 100 schools were closed. Since then children have been given lessons by radio. Last month the Victoria Government allotted a special credit of $49,968 to finance convalescence of those stricken.

Deaths so far have numbered more than 40, including a number of adults.

ATLANTIC ICEBERG PATROL GOES OUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The United States coastguard made preparations today for its annual war on Atlantic icebergs—a war declared 25 years ago when the Titanic sank.

Rear-Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the service, ordered the cutters Tahoe from New Bedford, Mass., and Pontchartrain from New York outfitted for the vigil.

He directed the cutter Sebago to be held at Norfolk, Va., as a standby. The patrol boat General Greene will study currents and other scientific matters connected with the patrol.

From March until about June, the Tahoe and the Pontchartrain will take turns on steaming back and forth along the Grand Banks off Newfoundland.

The ice patrol is an international affair, 14 nations sharing the expense.

TRUCK LABOR CODE PLANS CANCELLED

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP) — The brighter side of working conditions and wages in Ontario's motor transport industry will be presented to the Cherrier Royal Commission on transport.

L. G. Fabian, general representative of the automotive transport section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, told the commission yesterday that witnesses already heard had presented a "bad picture" but "we have some good operators on the road who endeavor to live up to the laws and regulations and to conduct their business properly."

The brotherhood's proposed labor code for regulation of the motor transport industry in the province has been cancelled and "negotiations are off." Fabian said there had been inferences that the code presented to the Ontario industry and labor board last September was an example for the industry.

The Automotive Transport Association of Ontario endorsed the code. Commission counsel Joseph Singer indicated to the commission that wages in the code submitted to the labor board were one-third less than those proposed in another code presented to the commission.

Arthur Roebuck, automotive transport workers' counsel, told the commission that a report of Fabian's testimony Tuesday—the report was carried by The Canadian Press—erroneously stated a driver for the Montreal-Ottawa Express Lines was paid $13 for an 81-hour week and incorrectly stated another man paid $16.50 for a 71-hour week, worked for the same company.

Roebuck said Fabian's testimony was that the express lines' driver was paid $16 and that the second man, paid $16.50, worked for the Dinstein Transport of Chesley, and not for the Montreal-Ottawa Express Lines.

Roebuck's statement to the commission came when Lewis Duncan, counsel for the Automotive Transport Association, demanded the name of the Express Lines driver. The court today may decide upon the point of allowing the drivers name to be given.

the Crown still to complete its case to-day. Thompson Braden, Stanley A. Darling and Lillian McClellan testified that Hanrahan had bought a $1,000 fire insurance policy on the buildings and contents and later had added $400 on contents. Witnesses who told of their observations at the fire were Oscar Calberry, William Hamblin, Phillip De Rushie, and Martin Sullivan; Charles Caskey, inspector from the Fire Marshal's Department, took the stand just before adjournment.

The buildings were of very old log construction. Inspector Caskey testified he found, on investigating at the scene five days after the fire, the body of a horse burned in the barn, its hind leg broken and in a peculiar position. When he arrived, fresh wood was piled about the horse carcass and Hanrahan told him he intended to burn the remains to get rid of them; the barn fire failing to complete the job.

Costs Toy To Hear Baby Symphony

CALGARY, Dec. 9 (C.P.). — Admission was one toy—old or new—at the premiere of Calgary's Baby Symphony under the baton of Jascha Galperin.

They played violins in four-part harmony, and it was harmony, the music lovers said. The program included classics and simple nursery tunes." With spirit and vitality the children played the first movement of Haydn's Symphony.

Third Degree Methods Used In Obtaining Confession Counsel For Defence Charges

Fire Marshal's Inspectors Deny Charges In The Hanrahan Case

Contending that third degree methods were used in a room in the Hotel Champlain by two inspectors from the Fire Marshal's Office in obtaining a confession from William Hanrahan that he set afire his barn and dwelling in Douro Township, T. J. Carley, K.C., battled this morning to have the confession withheld from the jury. The jury was excluded while the admissibility of the confession was tried as an independent issue.

"Your object in talking to Hanrahan in the Hotel Champlain was to get an admission of guilt, was it not?" Mr. Carley asked Charles Caskey, one of the Fire Marshal's inspectors.

"Yes."

"Did you see Craig strike the accused?" Mr. Carley demanded, referring to the second inspector.

"No, I did not."

"Did you see Craig knock him down on the bed?"

"No, I did not."

Inspector Caskey denied suggestions that he and Craig imprisoned Hanrahan in the room by sitting between him and the door. Hanrahan was free to move in or out at any time, he declared.

Mr. Carley then suggested that questions were fired at Hanrahan by the two in a severe grilling over a thirty-minute period.

"We asked quite a few questions, for there were many things we wanted to know," Inspector Caskey said.

"I wish to ask you if you gave the accused any money on that occasion?"

"I gave him fifty cents as he was leaving."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., re-examined to ask a full explanation of the fifty-cent gift. The witness said Hanrahan told them he was broke and had had nothing to eat all day except a crust of bread in the morning.

"I put my hand in my pocket and found only a quarter," Caskey testified. "I gave him the quarter and Inspector Craig supplied another quarter. We told him to get himself a meal."

Inspector Craig was also examined and cross-examined at length on the occasion in the Hotel Champlain when the confession was dictated and signed by Hanrahan. He denied that any suggestion of third degree prevailed.

"Not many questions were asked, possibly three or four but not many."

Four Statements

Four statements by Hanrahan in all were before the court during the morning. Inspector Caskey told the court before the jury was excluded that he went to see Hanrahan on October 29, several days after the fire, and that Hanrahan volunteered a statement. Read to the court, the statement by the accused said he was awakened by his dog on the night of the fire. He had gone to bed in his clothes and got up to see flames coming from his barn. He concluded he could not do anything and went back to his house, went upstairs and opened a window to throw out three bed ticks. Sparks came in the open window, the statement read.

In the statement, Hanrahan declared that the horse that was burned in the barn had been left in the pasture and rushed into the blaze to its death. "The only way to save the horse was get burnt myself," the text stated.

Inspector Caskey told of further meetings with Hanrahan. He saw him on October 30 and obtained a further statement, he said. "On November 1 when I met Hanrahan he said he would be glad to give me all the help he could when I asked him to come to the Hotel Champlain. Inspector Craig was there and when the statements Hanrahan had given me were read over, Inspector Craig warned him that anything further he said would be put down."

Volunteered Confession

The witness said Hanrahan volunteered the confession statement quite freely after they had questioned him on a number of points. He quoted Hanrahan as saying: "I guess you know more about it than I do." He said no threats or inducements were offered as Hanrahan began talking to Craig and he recorded the statement.

Continuing, the witness said Hanrahan related that he was sleeping in his clothes on the night of the fire and awoke. He began thinking of his debts, he said, so got up, went out and set a pile of hay afire. The horse was in the barn, the statement indicated.

The statement of the accused continued relating that after the fire had "got aholt" he went to house, made a pile of papers and set the pile afire.

"I set the two places afire as I wanted some money to pay my debts," the statement read. Inspector Caskey testified Hanrahan later asked that they add to the statement that if he had been able to thresh this year he would not have had to burn his buildings.

The jury was still in exclusion when the court was recessed at noon today. Counsel were preparing to argue the issue of admissibility of the confession.

NO 'FAKE' SANTAS

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 9.—(AP). — Santa Claus may ride his proverbial sleigh or climb down chimneys, but he can't walk the streets of Omaha, carrying advertising, Mayor Dan Butler ruled to-day.

He asked charity organizations also not to use Santas at their Christmas kettles.

COUNTIES' COUNCIL PAYS TRIBUTE TO DURHAM'S MEMBER

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 9.—The council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham extended to Reeve C. G. Mercer, M.L.A. of Hope township "heartiest congratulations" on his election in October as the member of the legislature for Durham county at last night's session.

"And we sincerely wish him the best of success in his field of endeavor," declared the formal resolution by Reeve P. Stinson of Millbrook, seconded by Reeve R. R. Mallory of Percy.

The council's tribute was expressed by Warden R. O. Jones, who said that although some men who had graduated from the council had gone to larger success in the Dominion and provincial governments, "this is the first instance the honor of election to the legislature has come to a sitting member of this council."

In acknowledging the council's felicitations, Reeve Mercer said that during the seven years as a member of the council he had enjoyed the friendship of the men with whom he was associated.

"It has been a real pleasure to me, and I have endeavored to perform my duty as a councillor as best I could," Reeve Mercer said. "It is with regret I am severing these happy relations, and in the new field I shall strive to further the interests of Durham and also Northumberland. I hope my acts in the legislature will speak louder than my words.

Assessment Question

Reeve Mallory gave notice of a motion that the equalized assessment determined by Judge L. V. O'Connor in 1935 be the assessment for the next three years. He asserted that the compromise assessment, a concession to Cobourg and the other towns, was unfair to the minor municipalities and should be abandoned. A question as to whether the agreement with the towns and villages continued until the end of 1938 was referred to F. D. Boggs, counties solicitor for his opinion.

FIND FARM HAND GUILTY IN CRASH

CORNWALL, Dec. 9. — Albert Leroux, 24-year-old farm hand at Martintown, fourteen miles northeast of this city, was found guilty last night by a County Court jury of criminal negligence arising out of an automobile accident. The jury deliberated for more than four hours before bringing in the verdict, and then added that "the greatest possible clemency of the court be shown Leroux."

Judge M. B. Tudhope remarked that he would have been very much surprised if the jury had arrived at any other conclusion, and he highly commended the members of the jury for their painstaking consideration of this evidence. "I will take into consideration your recommendation for leniency," he added. Sentence was deferred until the close of court today.

Leroux was claimed to have been the driver of an auto which struck Stephen McDonnell, a pedestrian, on a township road near Applehill on the night of June 30 last. McDonnell suffered a fractured leg in the accident, and as a result of the injury his leg was amputated.

Posse Scours Woods On Lone Wolf Hunt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9. — A wolf was seen about two and one-half miles from Campbellford on Wednesday morning by W. Roy Loucks. As he returned through his barn yard about 8 o'clock Mr. Loucks saw the animal which might at first have been mistaken for a large dog, making its way across a field in the direction of the river and Ferris' Woods.

On Wednesday afternoon a posse of farmers set out with shotguns to scour the bush, but up to a late hour last night no reports of the wolf's destruction were received. The Examiner was unable to verify the story being circulated that the animal had been previously seen by Oscar Rannie on Sunday morning as it emerged from the same wood. Although no cattle or poultry has as yet been destroyed by the animal, it is said that traces of its having dug a dead hen from a pile of refuse in a barn yard west of town were clearly evident.

RETURN OFFICERS FOR EMPIRE PLANT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9.—Officers and directors of the Empire Cheese and Butter Company were returned for the year 1938 by acclamation at their annual meeting held on Wednesday afternoon. Leslie Shillingslaw, cheese maker, was also re-hired for the year 1938, and the officers are Fread Peake, president; E. J. Mitchell, secretary; Frank Lee, William Haig, and Ross Stephens. Harry Grills will again be auditor in 1938.

A. G. Thompson and Dairy Inspector John Murray spoke briefly, and the secretary, Mr. Mitchell, gave the financial report which indicated the patrons had this year received $4,784.15 more than last year. The report showed the milk handled was 1,976,927 pounds containing 60,213.4 butter fat. The total value of the cheese produced was $163,889, and the average prices per pound of butter fat 3466 cents. For every pound of cheese 12.06 pounds of milk were used, for which the average price the patron received was $1.05 per hundred. Cheese was sold at an average of .1396 cents per pound and netted the patrons a total of $20,-865.29. Five thousand three hundred and fifty-three pounds of butter were sold at an average price of .21 cents per pound, and brought $1,127.04.

Mr. Murray referred to the large number of second grade cheese which had been prevalent throughout practically every district this year and suggested that the plan of the Empire Factory to have their whey tank cleaned out each week during the summer might be a means of preventing a portion of the rancididty reaching the milk. Patrons returning with whey on the same truck as their scaled milk cans may unwittingly be contributing to the rancididty due to the fact that whey often slopped into the milk cans. Mr. Murray also commended the plan of pasteurizing the whey.

It was suggested that since the dust laden air from the road which ran alongside the factory formed a distinct menace to the production of No. 1 cheese, a delegation consisting of Messrs. Fred Peake and Frank Lee should attend the county council meeting, with a request that the road be oiled where it passed the factory.

HEAVY SNOWFALL CAUSES ACCIDENTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 9.—The heavy snowfall of Sunday and Monday was responsible for several more or less serious accidents.

On Sunday, while Miss Ione Porter, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Fergus Porter were returning home from Orillia, their car struck the new shoulder and turned over.

Mrs. Porter suffered a fractured collar-bone and was removed to the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital at Orillia. Miss Porter was later able to return home. The car escaped with minor damages.

On Monday, Cecil Armstrong was crossing a culvert over a 10-foot drain into the laneway of Mr. William Armstrong, south of the village. The truck, instead of making the turn, slewed on the fresh snow and proceeded head first over the end of the bridge into the deep ditch. How the driver and the truck both escaped injury is regarded as a mystery by the many neighbors and passers-by who soon gathered.

With their help and the assistance of a team hitched in what they call a "triple hitch," the truck was finally extricated after a couple of hours' hard work mentally as well as physically.

Several other motorists of the district, including Arthur Richardson, P. Hamilton and J. Walker were stranded in ditches for a time, but were later able to get out under their own power.

MARMORA

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gray visited relatives in Deseronto on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bell were called to Sulphide on Monday owing to the distressing death of the latter's father, William Lucas.

Ms. P. Sopha is spending a few days in Peterborough with her daughter, Mrs. C. Clarke.

Mr. W. C. Dymond spent Monday at Marble Point Lodge.

Rev. Father G. T. Martin spent Monday in Kingston.

SEARCH CONTINUES FOR BANKER'S BODY IN RIVER TRAGEDY

PLAISANCE, Que., Dec. 9 (C.P.).—Search was continued to-day for the body of Alphonse Ouimet, St. Eugene, Ont., bank manager, one of three persons drowned on Monday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a bridge guard rail into the little Nation River, near here.

Bodies of Charlemagne Landriault Eugene hotelkeeper, and his wife were recovered yesterday. A coroner's jury at an inquest last night held in a hotel room found their deaths accidental.

The jury added a rider to its verdict recommending placing of danger signs with red reflectors at both approaches to the bridge, construction of a strong guard rail and cables along the bridge approaches, and removal of a hump of land on the south side of the highway.

Ulian Bartholomew, accountant at the St. Eugene branch of the Bank of Montreal of which Ouimet was manager, lay in bed in a room adjoining that in which the inquest was held, and told how he managed to escape from the car as it sank in the river.

He said the "First thing I knew of anything going wrong was when the car swerved into the ditch on the right side of the road. The car headed over the embankment into the river without overturning.

"When we struck the river I tried to open the door on my side, but I couldn't. I rolled the window down and I heard Ouimet say, 'I can't open my door.' The water was up to the edge of the window when I crawled out into the river. I tried to open the right front door to help the Landriaults out, but I didn't have time. The car started to sink. I swam to shore and took my overcoat off. I jumped into the river and shouted and Ouimet cried back, 'I'm O.K. Go for help.' I swam back to shore and ran to the nearest farmhouse for assistance. I am sure Ouimet got out of the window I lowered and was in the river when he told me to get help."

R.A.F. Plans Formation Flight To Australia

The squadron of big Royal Air Force flying boats pictured on a trial flight at the top, will shortly start on a 30,000 mile formation cruise with Sydney, Australia as their destination. They will tour the southern dominion taking part in the 150th anniversary celebration of the founding of New South Wales. The route to be followed will be much the same as that travelled by big mail, passenger and transport machines flying to India and Singapore, but will be the longest squadron flight yet attempted. Wing Commander O. R. Gayford (top RIGHT) will be in charge of one section of the flight. Mechanics are pictured (BELOW) fuelling up one of the craft which will make the trip, at the Mount Batten air harbor, near Plymouth.

DRIVERS OVER 65 MUST BE WATCHED

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—The Ontario Department of Highways began tightening regulations on issuance of drivers' licenses to persons over 65. There are 18,500 drivers in Ontario over that age. Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, has ordered greater caution in the issuance of licenses.

A circular to all issuers says: "If you have any reason to believe an applicant, particularly one over 65 may not be a fit person to drive, having regard to his general physical fitness, including his vision, the application for the license should be referred to this office so we may decide whether a re-examination is necessary.

"Issuers are requested to exercise the greatest care in issuing either chauffeurs or operators licenses to persons in this age group."

Queen's Park records show that 2 per cent of Ontario drivers are more than 65 and they are involved in 2.6 per cent of the accidents. An increasing number of such drivers has suffered loss of licenses.

U.S. Hats Shock Paris Modiste

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (C.P.). — In the words of no less personage than Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli, Paris modiste, the hats worn by women in North America are "incredible."

This is in spite of the fact Mme. Schiaparelli has made fashion history with her famous pin-cushion hat, to say nothing of her hat inspired by a lamb chop and another derived from a shoe.

"Those horrible hats," she said yesterday before sailing for Paris. "They're incredible—they are ugly—and do nothing for the face. I like eccentric fashions in hats and gowns but always they must be becoming."

OUT FOR BUSINESS

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—Kingston merchants do not desire to have Monday, December 27, observed as Boxing Day and a holiday, because of the fact that this year Christmas falls on Saturday. As a result of a communication from local merchants, City Council last night decided to take no action to proclaim a holiday on Boxing Day.

ARTHUR ROEBUCK'S DRIVING DOUBTED

TORONTO, December 9—(CP)—Ability of Arthur Roebuck, former Ontario Attorney-General, to drive his car from Toronto to New York in a day with safety was questioned with good humor to-day by Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, chairman of the Royal Commission on Motor Transport.

Counsel for the Automotive Transport Workers, Mr. Roebuck maintained, "It may not be inhuman to have a man drive 20 hours a day under special circumstances as long as the driver does not continue his trip the next day."

He added: "Why I have driven to New York myself in one day." New York is about 450 miles from Toronto.

"Well, I wouldn't want to be with you," remarked the Commission chairman as the court laughed.

A new aerodrome has just been opened at St. Mary's on the Scilly Islands.

At this juncture the party all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." After which, Mrs. Hart, assisted by Miss Sherin opened the pretty and useful gifts. Mrs. Hart made a very suitable reply, thanking her many friends for their gifts. At the conclusion of the party dainty refreshments were served.

Miss Gardiner read a call to worship and Miss Doris Vaughan told a story entitled, "The Angelus." Jean Laidley and Jean McTavish sang a duet, "Jesus Is All the World to Me." The topic of the meeting was "Friendship." Edward Lowes spoke on the reality of friendship; Frances McPherson spoke on the personal nature of friendship with Jesus, and Marion Rea spoke on the inherent power of friendship with Jesus. The president, Arthur Williamson, took charge of the business. It was decided that the Young People would take part in a debate against a team from Bethel. A contest answered by Biblical names closed the meeting.

In her will Mrs. Sarah Cook of East Hanney, England, left funds for "a new bell rope for the fourth bell at the parish church."

BUSY YEAR SHOWN IN ANNUAL REPORT CHEESE FACTORY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 9.—At a well-attended meeting of the patrons of Trent River Cheese Company, held Saturday, December 4, in the factory, the following report was presented by the secretary and unanimously adopted by the patrons:

Pounds of milk, 2,695,063; pounds of fat, 86,936.9; pounds of cheese, 174,290; net S.P. of cheese, $24,423.77; average price, 13.99c per lb.; average yield, 2.61 lbs. cheese per lb. fat; net average price per lb. of fat paid to patrons, 28.8c.

Mr. Moore, Peterborough dairy instructor for Northumberland County, gave a very lucid, instructive address on care of milk, which, if followed, would result in an increased make of high-scoring cheese.

The following is a list of officers for 1938:

President and Secretary-Treasurer, Harold B. Wood; Auditor, Wm. G. Barrie; Directors: Oliver Garneau, Joseph McNeely, Thomas E. Thompson, Harold Vanvolkenburg, James McMillan, John Buchanan, James Simpson, George Newton.

After the business was transacted, those present enjoyed cigars and chocolate bars—the gift of the Bank of Toronto, and they also were presented with a calendar for 1938, the gift of George R. Brooks, the owner and cheesemaker.

Appearances Sometimes Deceiving Grand Jury United Counties Finds

THE Grand Jury's recommendation that a soup kettle be bought for the Counties Home (House of Refuge) evoked a mild remonstrance from Warden R. O. Jones at the meeting of the counties council Tuesday. "We bought two of the best aluminum soup kettles that could be obtained," he said. "So there is something wrong when they say that the soup was being served to the old people out of a pail." Information from Reeve Percy Gooding of Brighton township explained that on the day of the Grand Jury's visit last June a pail of buttermilk had been brought in for those inmates who liked it, and some of the jurors jumped to the conclusion that it was soup, probably "cream de corn" or maybe it looked like the old familiar oyster brew. At any rate it was another example of the old adage "Appearances are sometimes deceiving."

MRS. WM. PURDY NEW W.A. HEAD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Dec. 9. — The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Association of Selwyn United Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Elliott. There were fourteen members and one visitor present, besides the Rev. C. C. Miller of Bridgenorth.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. William Purdy; vice-president, Mrs. J. Rosborough; secretary, Mrs. H. Sanderson; treasurer, Mrs. Ed. Preston; pianist, Mrs. Albert Hughes; group leaders, Mrs. Melville Crapp and Mrs. Clarence Elliott.

Starts Over Again

After living for six weeks in a road culvert near San Jose, Calif., on the brink of starvation and hoping to die, 39-year-old Roy Rogers, pictured here, has taken a new lease on life. He was rescued by Sheriff George Lyle, who learned from the broken man how he had wandered aimlessly for nearly seven years since he shot, but failed to kill a friend who he believed had broken up his home in Corpus Christi, Texas. The sheriff talked new life into Rogers, fed him and found him a job. Rogers has started out with new hope.

RUSSIAN REGAINS HIS CHESS CROWN

THE HAGUE, Dec. 9—(CP). — Dr. Alexander Alekhine, adventurous Russian now living in France, to-day held the world's chess championship after a lapse of two years.

The former soldier and prisoner of war, born Alexandre Alexandrevitch von Aljechin, defeated Dr. Max Euwe, Dutch schoolmaster, in the 25th game of their 30-game match for the title that Dr. Euwe took from Dr. Alekhine in 1935.

Victory last night placed the Russian, now a naturalized French citizen, in a position where his opponent cannot possibly catch him in the remaining five games.

Dr. Alekhine has won 10 games to four losses, with 11 drawn for a point score of 15½ to 9½ out of a possible 30.

Possibility was expressed Dr. Alekhine would soon meet Jose Capablanca, the Cuban expert who surrendered his title to the Russo-French master of strategy in 1927 at Buenos Aires.

UNITS IN INDIA TO BE MECHANIZED

NEW DELHI, Dec. 9 (CP-Reuter's)—Plans for mechanization of some of the British cavalry and infantry units in India shortly will go into effect.

Four out of the five mounted British cavalry regiments stationed in India will be converted into cavalry light tank units. The actual regiments to be converted have not yet been chosen. Simultaneously, four of the British infantry battalions in India will be converted into mechanized machine-gun battalions.

As the cavalry regiments are gradually converted they will take the place of royal tank corps units now serving in India. These, along with the Fifth British Cavalry Regiment, will in due course return to Britain.

The mechanization plans have been approved by the government of India. The British government has recommended to parliament the grant of $3,001,875 to cover cost of the change.

ROAD PROGRAM IS DEBATED AT COBOURG

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 9.—"It wouldn't surprise me a bit if Dutton goes after a ferry or something next, and ends up in Chicago," was Reeve Percy Stinson's exaggerated compliment to Alderman Dutton of Peterborough, interjected into a long county road debate at last night's session of the counties council.

The Reeve of Millbrook did not set out to pin a bouquet on Alderman Dutton for the energy with which he assisted in promoting the Peterborough - Cavan - Port Perry - Orangeville highway which Mr. Stinson is expecting ultimately to reach Chicago, and yet there was a note of admiration in his reference to the rapid extension of the trans-provincial road from a mere short cut to Toronto by way of Pontypool and Brooklin, as it was originally proposed.

Discussion last night recurrently mentioned the several roads across Durham county, and as Peterborough was spoken of occasionally as their easterly market destination, Reeve Stinson thrust a lance in Millbrook's behalf with satiric allusion to Alderman Dutton's rapid marches across Yonge Street and on into western Ontario.

"You know Peterborough started out by talking about a short cut to Toronto," Reeve Stinson said. "At that time they wanted to avoid the traffic on No. 2. Then they straightened that out to Port Perry and Aurora or Newmarket, and it wasn't long until they had reached Orangeville. The last I heard of them they had hit the Blue Water highway, and were still going west so far as I know, but it wouldn't surprise me at all if Dutton goes after a ferry or something and ends up in Chicago."

Clarke vs. Manvers

Whether Mr. Stinson intended his remark to be tribute or sarcasm it was only incidental to the main debate between Reeve C. J. Cummiskey of Manvers and Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke. The special roads commission had recommended that the council assume two roads as county roads, one from Alnwick to Harwood in Northumberland, and the other, by way of balancing the account, in Durham from Kirby through Kendal and Elizabethville to Garden Hill, four miles west of Bewdley on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway.

Kirby is a little community on the road north from Newcastle and ending at Lindsay, and the advocates of the proposed county road emphasized that it would be a link between No. 28 highway and the Newcastle-Lindsay road which Lindsay expects also to be designated as a provincial highway. The members of the commission this year are Warden R. O. Jones, Reeve Robert Innes of Seymour and Fred Lovekin, Reeve of Clark in 1936. And the chairman of the roads and bridges committee is Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke township. Seeming preponderance of Clarke township influence in road matters of the counties council prompted Reeve Cummiskey of Manvers to declare that there was "a nigger in the woodpile," and after Mr. Reid marshalled his arguments for the Kirby-Kendal-Garden Hill road, Mr. Cummiskey, holding out for Manvers' claims for a road from Pontypool to Millbrook, opposed the recommendations of the Commission.

Between times, Reeve Cecil G. Mercer of Hope, recently elected to the Legislature as the member for Durham, and making his last appearance this week as a counties councillor, urged once more that the Kendal-Garden Hill section be assumed. He supported the entire project as assessed by Mr. Reid, but it was evident that he desired to conclude his seven years in the council by having the Hope section of the road taken off his township's hands.

"Treat All Alike"

When the report of the Roads Commission was read, Reeve Cummiskey said it should be laid on the table "until the roads designated as provincial highways are actually taken over by the government next spring, and then that all the municipalities be treated alike in the matter of county roads."

A letter from the Department requested the counties to maintain until April the several roads that have been assumed as provincial highways. One of them is from Cobourg to Hastings, and another is across Manvers and Cavan to No. 28 highway, the road Peterborough has been successfully helping to promote.

"When the Port Perry highway is taken over there won't be a county road across the northern section of Durham after April," Reeve Cummiskey said.

Outlet to Peterborough

Then Reeve Reid went into action. He pointed out on an imaginary map that Darlington, Clarke and Hope townships have no county road traversing them. The proposed Kirby - Garden Hill road begins its course east and west six miles north of No. 2 highway. "Clarke township paid $38,804 into the counties treasury this year, and we have the third highest assessment, and we have only 8½ miles of county road. Some of the best farmers in Clarke and Hope live on that road. It leads to No. 28 highway and Peterborough, and if all the members actually saw it I know they would not hesitate for a moment about taking it over. We never ask for anything unreasonable."

Reeve Cummiskey—I think this road question should be put on the table, and all of us be dealt with equally. I hope Clarke and Hope get their road because Manvers is asking for something too.

Warden Jones and Reeve Innes explained that when the government assumed the Cobourg-Hastings road through Roseneath, Alnwick township was left with not a mile of county road. As their ratepayers were contributing to county road costs, the Commission decided that the township should be considered. For that reason the Roseneath-Harwood road, through Alnwick, Haldimand and Hamilton townships, was recommended to the council.

"If Northumberland got that road and Durham nothing, there might be cause for saying there was a nigger in the woodpile," Warden Jones said. "We looked over the Durham situation, and concluded the best road we could suggest for assumption by the counties was the Hope-Clarke road. We tried to be just to everybody."

Millbrook's Claim

Reeve Stinson—Hope and Clarke are entitled to consideration, but Millbrook has a claim, too. With the highway to the north, and this road on the south, we will have practically a provincial highway five miles away on either side of us, and they are going to have the effect of centralizing business in Peterborough. So our business men have petitioned our council pointing out that the Pontypool to Millbrook road is essential to them.

Mr. Cummiskey said Clarke township had a pavement from Newcastle to Oroto. "When we went into the good roads system in 1916, the northern townships would not agree to it until they were promised over a five year period the expenditure on county roads would be equalized. Then in 1926-7 when the counties started their five-year paving program, a lot of the municipalities got their share but Manvers didn't get a foot of it. The Warden says we have twenty-four miles of county road and one of pavement. We have a little piece of retread if you call that pavement, but I defy any man to show that we have anything like that much county road."

Reeve Mercer said he had asked in 1932 for a county road through Elizabethville. The effects of the depression were felt by the counties, and road expenditure was greatly curtailed, "so we agreed not to force our petition. Then in 1935 Seymour got some road taken over, so did Brighton township, and we feel we are entitled to the 4½ miles we have asked for in Hope."

"I am coming back next year if I can get back," Reeve Cummiskey said, "and I ask the council not to take over those two roads until we can all be considered."

Advises Caution

Reeve Mallory of Percy township advised the council to be cautious about assuming any more county road expenditure. "A few years ago this council spent $640,000 on county roads in one year. Then we dropped down as low as $40,000 a year. We backed up too far, because you can't keep up your roads on that money. Now there is a movement to go up again. During the last two or three years we have been getting out of debt. This year the floating debt will be cleared off, and in 1940 one debenture will be paid and another in 1941. Now we have petitions for 150 miles of county road altogether, and if assumed all of that we would be getting back to where we were. I think we should go cautiously and look at the county road system from the standpoint of what is best for the counties and not simply from a township standpoint."

Reeve Pacey of Alnwick thanked the Commission for recommending the Roseneath-Harwood road. "Since the government took over the Cobourg-Hastings road as a provincial highway we haven't a mile of county road in our township, and not a foot of snow fence. It is just as hard for us to pay our county road tax as it is for the larger municipalities. So the Commission couldn't do anything else but recommend the road to Harwood."

Reeve E. C. McKeel of Campbellford urged that the council revise its county road system, planning it carefully for the future, instead of having it "jig—jag here and there and all over."

On motion of Deputy-reeve Ald. Merrill of Percy, the report of the Commission was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee for a report to the council.

BRITAIN TO DEFEND HER POSSESSIONS

LONDON, Dec. 9—(AP).—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today the government "will defend British possessions wherever they may be" in answering a question about Hong-Kong in the Far East.

Mr. Eden declined to make a statement on the position or composition of Japanese forces near Hong-Kong, British island off Canton, China.

The questioner, Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, persisted, however, asking, "Will he (Mr. Eden) give assurance that it is the intention of the government to defend Hong-Kong under all circumstances?"

Mr. Eden replied: "The honorable gentleman must know very well that it has been stated over and over again that His Majesty's government will defend British possessions wherever they may be."

Enough In One Pine For Dozen Coffins

Albuquerque, N.M., Dec. 9

THE "old pine tree" that was cut down near here recently had enough wood in it to make "coffins of pine" for a chorus of hill-billy singers.

Timber experts who examined a cross-section of the trunk, estimated that the tree was "born" about the time the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. They counted 311 annual rings.

The tree, one of the largest in the mountain forests east of here, produced 680 board feet of timber—enough for at least 12 coffins.

DROPS DEAD IN SNOW

BUFFALO, Dec. 9 (AP).—An unidentified man, about 65 years old, dropped dead while trying to walk through snow drifts in a main business thoroughfare here today.

Three passenger trains from Buffalo, bound for Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., were temporarily unable to proceed beyond Fort Erie, Ont., which is across the Niagara River from Buffalo.

ARSENIC IS USED TO POISON CATTLE

AURORA, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP).—Police to-day investigated the poisoning of cattle on farms bordering nearby Whitchurch and East Gwillimbury Townships during the last week. One farmer lost four or five cows that became poisoned.

Investigation of stomach contents of the poisoned cattle by Professor Joslyn Rogers, Provincial Analyst, showed arsenic caused death. Pieces of chewed turnip found near the animals contained arsenic, he said.

Police said they found two turnips in the area in which arsenic had been placed. A section of the turnips had been cut out and then replaced after the arsenic had been inserted in the hole.

Ball Majors Conclude Session Without Single Player Trade

Appropriate $100,000 To Celebrate Game's Centennial—Writers Change Rule

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—After setting a new record for inactivity the major league magnates and managers headed for home Wednesday without a single trade being made at their annual winter meetings for the first time in years.

In the wake of the three-day session of the two majors the only important development was their breach over the type of baseball to be used in 1938. The American League, boasting of its home run clouters, retained the lively ball, while the National League, priding itself on its pitchers and vaunted defense play, adopted a slightly less lively ball.

Reject Umpire Draft Proposal

Sitting in joint session before Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday, the two major leagues didn't even tiring enough of the controversy over the baseball to mention the subject. For two hours the men who own the major league baseball clubs sat around the table smoking cigars and discussing routine matters.

When the newspapermen were called in Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Commissioner Landis, announced the following:

An appropriation of $100,000 to celebrate baseball's centennial in 1938.

An appropriation of $20,000 for the American Legion to conduct its tournaments in 1938.

Approval of the award of the all-star game to Cincinnati July 6 or 7.

Rejection of the minors' proposal for a draft system for umpires.

Approval of the new Class "E" League formed by the minors in Milwaukee.

Retention of the rule prohibiting any club from arranging a Sunday double-header until after the third regularly scheduled Sunday home date.

The baseball writers of America, holding their annual winter meeting, supplied the day's most important news when they changed the method of selecting the most valuable players.

Get Majority Opinion

Instead of two committees of eight scribes, one from each major league city, picking the most valuable players, the baseball writers voted to have two committees of twenty-four writers, three from each city. The committees will be selected by Irving Vaughan, Chicago, President of the Baseball Writers' Association. The point-scoring system also was changed, with fourteen points instead of ten being awarded for first place. The other places remain the same, nine for second, eight for third, etc.

The main reason for the change was the fact that the system hitherto used didn't reflect entirely the majority opinion of the cribes. For instance, Harry Danning, Giants' catcher, received only one vote last year, and that was for first place. Also Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' catcher, received three first-place votes to two for Joe Medwick, Cardinals outfielder, who won the award by virtue of runner-up ballots.

Skiers' Delight

The winter sun casts their elongated shadows before them, a cloud of snow and tracks that reach far over the crest of the hill mark out their path, as these winter sports devotees speed along a downhill run in the Bernese Oberland at Adelboden, Switzerland.

OSHAWA SENIORS BEAT BRANTFORD

OSHAWA, Dec. 9.—Oshawa opened their home season in the O.H.A. senior series here last night, when they handed Brantford Rangers a 4-2 defeat. All Oshawa counters came in the first five minutes of the last period, when they finally broke through the almost impregnable goal-keeping of Murphy. Oshawa had the majority of the play, with the Smith, Covert and Jamieson line standing out. Torti, on the Brantford defense, went the route, playing a star game defensively, besides notching his team's first counter.

The game had just resumed when McCalpine scored on a nice passing play with Patton. A minute later Barnes put Oshawa ahead on a solo effort. Smith put them two up soon after the face-off on Covert's pass. Smith scored again two minutes later, Covert again making the play. Grieg put new hope into Brantford when he scored with Webster and Kelly at the halfway mark. Oshawa had little trouble holding their lead until the end.

Maroons May Sign Suspended Amateur

MONTREAL, December 9 (CP) — Though he is under a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association suspension, Maurice Croghan may be signed today by Montreal Maroons, President Tommy Gorman of the National Hockey League Club said last night.

The Maroons, badly in need of reinforcements as a succession of reverses keeps them at the bottom of their section, might trot out the big defenceman tonight, Gorman said. If he accepts the club's proposition, the president declared, he will be hustled into uniform right away and thrown onto the ice against Detroit Red Wings here.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

WE WOULD like to go on record now as saying that the local Orfuns are not beaten by the Red Bombers of Dundas yet. That they will play a much better game in Hamilton than they did here last week, and that win or lose—they will battle the big Bombers right to the final blast of the whistle. We don't say the Orfuns will win this O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" final round, seeing as they are 14 points down and playing away from home. We don't even say they'll win the return game. But we wouldn't be too surprised for words if they did win this clash and came mighty close to copping the title! Yeah, we are not selling the local intermediate gridders short. We know they have class and, what is much more important, they have heaps of fight in their makeup—collectively and individually.

* * * * * * *

IF THE Orfuns flash that fighting spirit that knocked the Trenton Fliers into a terrific tailspin—after the Fliers had beaten 'em in the first tilt—and if they dish up that razzle-dazzle style they slapped on the Toronto City Club in semi-finals, the Peterborough rugbyists will just about bomb those Bombers back to their suburban homes! Or at least give 'em the scare of their cocky lives. Orfuns have the ability and the fight, and the players today are freely predicting a win Saturday, claiming they were very off-form in the first fixture and Dundas were very lucky. While we don't altogether agree, still we know that a really battling bunch will sometimes play right over their heads and knock the dope bucket to smithereens.'

* * * * * * *

COACH BILL Turnbull is of the same opinion. He told us yesterday that he figured the Orfuns, if at top form, and with a few breaks, could at least hold their own with Dundas. "They got the breaks here, but our gang will take all kinds of chances from the first kick-off in Hamilton, opening play up wide, and with a few breaks—if the boys click as they should—we will sure surprise that outfit," he stated. Pulkinghorn will not be playing, having suffered a lame leg—a bad one, too—in the last tilt. He will be missed plenty in the line. Begley and Mitchell will start as middles. The team will be the same as usual otherwise. Orfuns drill every night this week either at the "Y" or outdoor, and they're changing some of their plays to meet the Bombers' style of rugby. For instance, local reverse plays will be pulled close in to the line instead of in wide sweeps. But let's not get too technical—or we'll be balled up worse than the readers!

* * * * * * *

TWO SUGGESTIONS we'd like to make to our backfielders. One is for the player taking the kick from the opposing booter to break fast. Local guys were being nailed in their tracks Saturday as they hesitated after catching a punt. So we didn't have any of those valuable runbacks which Orfuns usually make. The other suggestion is for the local heaver of forward passes to make the throw, rather than step around looking for a good opening. Too often he is downed with the ball for a loss, whereas the heave might be taken by a sprinting teammate or the ball brought back to where it started from. However, the Peterborough players readily admit their faults of last Saturday, linemen and backfielders, and they'll be battling tooth and nail against the Red Bombers this weekend. And we're right with 'em to the finish, whatever it is!

* * * * * * *

THIS ITEM in the Lindsay Warder, by an O.R.F.U. player, is along the same line: "Although it seems likely that the Bombers will take the return engagement, you can't count those Petes out yet. They have a fighting band of footballers and, if a dry field should turn up to allow Loucks, Crowe and Kearns to get away on some of those long jaunts they are noted for, then you can expect some fireworks. All week they will be practising hard and you can bet Coach Turnbull will have them fighting mad by Saturday; then, watch out!"

* * * * * * *

DUNNO HOW the returns are coming in for the proposed special to Toronto or Hamilton for the Orfuns' game Saturday. Whether it is run or not, the club will get the $1.85 return rate to Toronto. Bus fare return from Toronto to Hamilton comes to about $1.25 apiece where groups of 25 travel—or more singly. A special train fare, return from here to Hamilton, would come to $2.65 per person. If the special return rate to Toronto is decided upon, the gang would leave here at 7.10 in the morn and leave Toronto coming back shortly after the N.H.L. fixture there that night between Rangers and Leafs. Orfuns' officials have endeavored to secure puck passes for the tilt, but haven't heard as yet. Those wanting to make the special trip to Toronto or Hamilton must leave their names by tonight with Lou Brooks, Bill Turnbull, Ken Bartle, or any of the other officers.

* * * * * * *

THE O.H.A. sub-committee has notified the rebelling Kingston teams that no changes in groupings can be made now. Three or four of the Limestone City squads threaten to drop out unless their groupings are changed as they claim they should have a compact loop around Kingston instead of having to travel to Peterborough and Belleville. The Quinte scribe says he was told by Convenor Carling-Kelly of Trenton Air Force: "I have suggested to Mr. Hewitt of the O.H.A. that Peterborough, R.C.A.F., Belleville, Queen's and Gananoque, if they desire to come in, be included in one group, playing intermediate 'A' hockey." Yeah, so far so good—but here's another angle:

* * * * * * *

MANAGER EDDIE Thomas of Belleville is agreeable, provided it is an interlocking schedule. "I will play intermediate 'A' hockey," he says, "with any club in the east except Peterborough and the Air Force; those two clubs be made to retain their senior 'B' rating. They are somewhat stronger than Ganonoque or ourselves, but I'm willing to help them form a league, providing the Redmen retain a lower classification than the other two." Well, that is really too nice of Mister Thomas—he wouldn't be figuring on having the Petes and Fliers help Belleville form a league, now would he? And maybe he will want any Belleville wins over us to count but none of ours over Belleville to figure in the standing, just as he did in that silly interlocking thing last winter. Ixnay on these exhibition tussles.

* * * * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Gus Ryder and Bob Leith will again officiate at Orfuns' game Sat'day in Hamilton . . . . Oshawa opened the senior O.H.A. series last eve with a 4-2 win over Brantford in the Motor City; the Smith-Covert-Jamieson line shone . . . . East Peterborough Junior League—must be a district circuit—will send a team into O.H.A. junior "C" playdowns . . . . Annual O.H.A. referees' meeting will be Wednesday at 3.00 p.m. at the Royal York Hotel; all referees and coaches invited . . . . Albert College of Belleville has sent congrats to P.C.I. senior grid champs . . . . Scouts' Hockey League meeting is tonight at eight at St. James Church . . . . Jim Sutherland, the big O.H.A. guy in Kingston, is in Florida—hence the hockey mixup down that way . . . . Limestone City scribe points out that there are seven O.H.A. and Intercollegiate teams splitting support at the Kingston rink, hence they can't afford long trips . . . . Lindsay's next grapple show will see a gee named "Scarlet Scourge" rasslin' someone—no doubt a rather rash young redhead, or a red rash . . . . Local gridders last week were hoping they could hang an Xmas sock on the O.R.F.U. secretary's schnozzle; but they'll need all their socks for the snowy Hamilton gridiron.

Muscles Strained At Barrier

BERT PATCH WINS THREE STRAIGHT

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—That there was fast and spirited racing over a hard track at Dufferin Park Wednesday afternoon was shown by the fact that the rather cheap horses in the second classified event were stepping around the 2.15 mark.

Bert Patch, owned by M. E. Wilson of Mono Mills and driven by Sanderson, captured the first three heats, and then went to the barns under the rules in vogue for Little Saratoga's winter harness horse racing. Blue Mountain Chilcoot, a Toronto horse, captured the fourth heat.

Sharkey Grattan, A. B. Vaillancourt's pacer from Chelmsford, was piloted by Lindley Fraser to two wins in the first classified event. R. K. Grattan took the first dash, and Charlotte's Boy captured the fourth one. There were eleven-horse fields in each of the events, and no spills or accidents occurred.

Last Saturday's postponed program at Dufferin, featuring the lady drivers' race and free-for-all pace, is to be presented this Saturday.

Tom Yawkey After More Ball Players

CHICAGO, Dec. 9 (A.P.). — If anyone insisted on awarding a "money spending" blue ribbon for activity during the 1937 major leagues baseball meetings, it would have to be pinned on the gilt-edged Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox obtained young Ted Williams, an outfield star, from San Diego for two players and cash. The New York Yankees offered $35,000 for Williams, so it can be assumed that Tom Yawkey, Red Sox owner, "laid it on the line" for the West Coast youth.

The National Circuit re-elected Ford Frick president for three years, and renewed an agreement permitting Cincinnati to play seven night games next season. The Junior Circuit, in which the term of President William Harridge still has a year to run, turned down Cleveland's application for night ball.

Quebec Amateur Association Defies Parent Hockey Body

Duncan Makes Announcement After Learning C. A. H. A. Rulings Disregarded

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—(CP).—President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said last night he had suspended the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association from the Dominion body, and that a Commission would be set up to control hockey in the Province.

Duncan suspended the Quebec body after having been shown press reports from Montreal, stating three decisions of the C.A.H.A. had been disregared at a meeting of the branch last night. Contrary to Duncan's orders, Don Wilson and Cy Allen were given permission to play in all future games of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, and Boston Olympics were admitted to the Quebec Provincial Senior League.

"I am exercising the authority given to me under the constitution of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and have suspended this branch from membership in the association," said Duncan in a statement issued at his home, where he has been confined for a week with illness.

ST. MIKE'S WINS S.P.A. HOCKEY CUP

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP) — St. Michael's College Majors last night won the Sportsman's Patriotic Association trophy for the second year in a row, defeating Toronto Marlboros 4-1.

Leading St. Mike's attack was Guy Roach, who scored two goals. Paul McNamara and Demers got the other scores for the winning team. Harris notched the lone Marlboro tally.

Anxious Maxie

Serious faced and gnawing his nails, Max Baer, former heavyweight boxing champ, is shown in an Oakland, Calif., hospital, where he awaited the arrival of the stork, hoping his wife, the former Mary Ellen Sullivan of New York, would present him with a boy. His wish was granted when his wife presented him with an eight pound son.

"Kid" Chocolate, flashy negro battler, retained his featherweight title at New York five years ago to-night with a close 15-round verdict over Fidel Labarba. He relinquished his crown two years later to compete as lightweight, and now is staging a comeback.

RAMBLERS JOIN TIE GAME CLUB IN MINOR LOOP

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP).—Philadelphia Ramblers, just when they considered themselves immune from the "tie fever" that has gripped other teams in the International-American Hockey League, were bitten by the bug.

Nearly a third of the 39 scheduled games so far in the league have ended in draws, but with Ramblers it was always a win or a loss—until last night. Previously they had won seven and lost four and were the only team of the league's seven not to have played in a drawn game.

But last night Ramblers and Providence Reds went through 70 minutes of hockey to a scoreless draw. Pittsburg Hornets and Cleveland Barons played the only other game of the night and it isn't hard to guess what the outcome was. The draw, 2-2. Barons, so far, have played the greatest number of drawn games with six ties in 12 games. New Haven Eagles come next with four, while Providence, Springfield Indians and Hornets have three apiece. Syracuse Stars have tied two and Ramblers one.

Tight Defences.

The defences of both Ramblers and Reds were impregnable in their contest. Players seldom had a clear shot at the goalie because the forwards back-checked so closely. Ramblers had an edge in the play, dominating action in the third and overtime sessions.

The other game produced scoring but was almost as tight. Barons took the lead in the first period when Lorne Duguid scored, but Ken Dorsty evened the count in the second period when he whipped one by Goalie Alfie Moore of Pittsburg. The teams battled through a scoreless third period, and then went into overtime.

Barons again went ahead in the extra session when Les Cunningham scored after a passing play with Jean Pusie and Brenneman, but Hornets came back to tie the score on a goal by Deacon off passes by Dede Klein and Johnny Sorrell.

Barons in First Place Tie.

Barons, by the point gained on the split, climbed into a first place tie with Syracuse in the league's Western section. Both teams have 12 points, while Hornets are only one point behind. The Philadelphia-Providence clash left the standing unchanged in the Eastern division.

Steve O'Neill Takes Bison Managership

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 9 (A.P.).—Buffalo International League Bisons have a new boss—square-jawed Irish Steve O'Neill.

John Gehm, president of the club, said to-day the board of directors had retained O'Neill for the next two years as field and business manager. O'Neill succeeds Ray Schalk as field manager and Leo T. Miller, who resigned several weeks ago, as business manager.

FROZEN GRIDIRON GREAT ASSISTANCE TO BALL CARRIERS

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP).—There's nothing like cold weather for a hot backfielder. Keep him away from snow-drifts and a fast broken-field ball-carrier will make the tacklers look ordinary or worse most of the time.

It's coming up cold for Saturday when Toronto Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers face-off in their duel for the Canadian football championship. The Varsity Stadium field probably will be frozen, the spectators will shiver and the tacklers will wish they had stayed home.

Bummer Stirling of Sarnia ran the kickoff back 50 yards against Ottawa in the last annual freezer. He merely touched off the spark that set going a series of long gallops over frozen turf. In the 1935 final, Fritz Hanson led Winnipeg's Bombers to victory over Hamilton with one touchdown gallop that measured 75 yards.

So long runbacks of kicks and wide sweeps around the ends may be events of paramount importance Saturday. If this is the way it's to be, neither side will do any advance worrying. They both have backfield speed to burn. Let the ankle-clutchers do the worrying.

Only a year ago now Ottawa's starry ends, Rick Perley and Tony McCarthy, were being hailed as super-tacklers. On dry fields and wet they stopped everything. But on a frozen track they were helpless. Sarnia's fleet backs ran rings around them on the hard-topped turf.

At the moment the tacklers they shout about are Wes Cutler, Teddy Morris and Bill Bryers of Argos. The way they stopped Sarnia ball-carriers in the Eastern final last Saturday was something to see, but you could have seen it any Saturday this season by attending Argo games.

Saturday they meet up with Hanson, fastest and most elusive of all Canadian backs, the golden ghost who runs them all ragged in the West and made a show of the intersectional final two years ago. And on a frozen field. Hanson starts with the edge.

Fritz Not In Favor Of Eastern Rules

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 9 (CP) —The east may be seeing Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the last time when they clash with Toronto Argonauts Saturday for the Canadian rugby title. Win or lose, Coach Bob Fritz doesn't believe Bombers will return in future years.

"I think it's the last time I'll bring the Winnipeg club east," he said. "It's a nice trip, but we don't play eastern rules, and don't want to. I believe the Americanized style of game we adhere to in Western Canada is much better."

The Manitoba huskies invaded this University of Michigan stronghold Sunday to train for the Argo scrap. Since then they've not only been bucking difficulties of changing their style of play to conform with eastern rules but have been forced to practice in Arctic-like temperatures on a snow-covered field.

War Admiral Gets U.S. Racing Award

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 9 (A.P.). —War Admiral, unbeaten three-year-old owned by Samuel Riddle of Philadelphia, to-day was awarded the United States highest honor when he was judged the outstanding race horse of 1937 by 256 sports writers.

Although they never met in what would have been the race of the year, the Admiral and Mrs. C. S. Howard's four-year-old Seabiscuit staged a nose finish in the poll conducted by the Turf and Sports Digest. Only 18 votes separated them in the final count.

War Admiral, a son of Man o' War, polled 621 votes on the basis of three points for first, two for second, and three for third. Seabiscuit, a grandson of Man o' War, received 603. The pair had the race all to themselves as William Ziegler, Jr.'s Esposa, which finished third, tallied only 140 votes.

HAMILTON FOUR WINS SENIOR CUP

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP).—Dr. A. W. Walkey and his Hamilton Victorias rink held the seniors' trophy today, Premier award of the fifth annual Ontario seniors' bonspiel.

The Walkey rink succeeded W. A. Watson of Sarnia who won the trophy last year, and although beaten by Dr. Walkey's rink in their first match this year, continued from that point undefeated to win the secondary prize, the Hudson-Ross trophy.

Dr. Walkey and his expert curlers came from behind to defeat the Milton rink skipped by Fred Robinson, 10-6, in the finals yesterday. Watson's rink had little difficulty beating J. S. Webster and his Galt rink 15-2 in the secondary finals.

The finals climaxed one of the best spiels in the history of the event. Play throughout was keen, with four extra-end games and very few one-sided events. Rinks were represented from all parts of Ontario when the 32-rink event started Tuesday.

Members of Dr. Walkey's rink were F. Hall, J. Rickaby, and C. H. Choate. Watson's rink was J. Shannon, A. B. Johnson and A. G. Gardiner.

Band Spreading
TUNE IN SHORT WAVE as Easily as Local
Marconi, with Band Spreading, ushers in a new era of tuning ease. You don't have to hold your breath to tune in short wave. You have all the scope in the World to bring in your favourite stations in full, rich, resonant tone, actual "face to face" reception. Think what this means in added entertainment. Think of the fun in store as you embark each evening on a simplified "Marconi Tour" of the World's great radio stations. Remember, Marconi has everything — Ten-Station Automatic Tuning, Electric Tuning, exclusive Exponential Baffle and Band Spreading, the greatest forward stride of the day in simplified tuning. So why be satisfied with less when Marconi brings you so much more at no extra cost.
MODEL 118 A.C. 11-tube performance
This sensational set gives you 10-station Automatic tuning . . . "Fan-Spreading" on every short wave band . . . plus the exclusive Marconi Exponential Baffle at an amazingly low price. Gorgeously beautiful matched walnut cabinet $189.50
MODEL 98 A.C. 6-tube performance
Covers standard broadcast and police band (550 to 1725 kcs.). Metal cabinet in colourful finishes $32.95
MARCONI
THE GREATEST NAME IN RADIO
CANADIAN MARCONI COMPANY
Vancouver Toronto MONTREAL Halifax St. John's, Nfld.
Actually it is easier to tune short wave on the Marconi band spread dial than to tune your local station on standard broadcast. The reason is simple: on the new Marconi dial the standard broadcast band and each of the five short wave bands have separate scales as shown on diagram, upper left, each clearly marked and extremely easy to read. Old style receivers had one scale for standard broadcast and only one scale for all five short wave bands, shown at lower left. That means many stations crowded into very short space, making separation and tuning very difficult.

FOR EXPERT P

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark, of St. Louis, in his senior year. Jerry finds that Lionel is a cousin of Mimi Le Brun, a girl he had admired several years before while visiting Washington with his uncle. Mimi, granddaughter of a late senator, is about to make her debut. Lionel tells him. Jerry and Lionel are writing a play together. Lionel receives a letter from Mimi in which she writes about Olga, a young woman who married their grandfather, and his wealth, shortly before he died.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 10

IT WAS in June of that year that the miracle happened. I call it a miracle because it seemed nothing less than that to me. I was invited to spend a month with Lionel Clark at his step-grandmother's camp in the Maine woods.

"Mimi will be there, and her cousin Bernice," Lionel told me. "Olga says in her letter that I may ask any fellow who will fit in, and it seems to me it will be a great chance for us to finish the play."

At first glance, his reason for asking me might have seemed selfish, but I am sure it was more than the play which made him want me above all others. Our intimacy of the winter had knit us more closely together than either of us realized at the time, although we were to know it in the years to come. In spite of our utter differences in training, were were alike in this, that we soared to the skies when the mood was on us. We touched the stars! There was no limit to our aspirations.

I accepted the invitation with avidity. I could not, however, understand Lionel's willingness, and Mimi's to be under such obligations. I hinted as much one night to Lionel.

"It seems to me I'd rather starve—"

He shrugged his shoulders. "After all, in a sense it is ours, and we've always been to grandfather's camp in summer."

Mimi wrote that Olga had been "rather decent."

"She had bought me a lot of new clothes, and she is entertaining a large party of my friends and yours, Lionel. Mother won't go. She says it would remind her too much of the old days. So she and Aunt Bernice will stay with the Barrys at their place on Lake Michigan."

Aunt Bernice was, I learned, a sister of Mimi's father. Her husband was a doctor of excellent standing and it was her daughter, Bernice Barry, who was to go with Mimi to the camp in Maine.

I wrote to my father that I would be with them in August. I had spent all of my summers hitherto at the parsonage, and I felt I had earned a change of scene. Yet my mother was not well, and I was sorry to be away from her. She had been failing for several years and had lost her old energy of body and spirit. She leaned on my father. He did much of the housework, even cooking a meal now and then, and when I was there I helped him. The previous summer there had been, too, a strong young woman, Rose Drury, who came in when a feminine hand was needed for such work as canning fruit or getting up special meals for visiting clergy. Rose was buxom and red-cheeked, and in contrast my mother's paleness and frailty had been appallingly apparent.

I wrote that I wanted them to have Rose regularly, and I would pay her wages. I had saved something from my allowance, and there had been an extra gift of money from Uncle Jerry.

In all my years at college, I had not seen Uncle Jerry. I wrote to him regularly, and now and then he replied. He spoke of me always quite grandiloquently as his heir, and his letters had always that dashing effect which was so much a part of his personality.

He was never, it seemed, long in one spot. His letters came to me from Texas and Arizona, from Alaska and the South Sea Island. I wondered why he did not stay on his ranch, yet envied him his opportunity for travel.

My father was, I think, sorry I did not come straight home. He wrote that he hoped I would not prolong my stay in Maine. My mother was yearning to see me. Her disappointment was keen.

I would have given up much for both of them, but I could not give up this chance of meeting Mimi. But I insisted they must have Rose Drury, and sent them a check.

As the time approached for our journey, I was tense with excitement. I was afraid, yet not afraid, to meet Mimi. I was afraid because I was sure I could never measure up in any way to the men among who she moved. I was not afraid because I felt that Fate could not be so cruel as to separate our futures.

Lionel advised me as to the things I should need: a belted jacket and knickerbockers for everyday wear, and white flannels for evening. It was not, Lionel said, the custom to dress in camp, but there might be motor rides which would take us into more formal atmospheres.

Automobiles had come by this time into rather common use among people of means; but I had no friends who owned them, and in the country horses were still the main dependence of the farmer. My father would not, indeed, have exchanged his old mare for anything run by gasoline.

My idea of a camp was, I must confess, based somewhat on my own experience in the camps where my father and I had fished and hunted. Remembering the poetry of those nights under the stars, beside the perfume-swept pool; it seemed to me that my meeting with Mimi Le Brun could have no more perfect setting.

I was not prepared, therefore, for the luxury of the place to which we came after a 30 mile motor ride from the train. The house was low and long, built of logs with the bark on, and back of it stretched primeval forests of pine and tamarack, of spruce and fir, fringed at the edge of the cleared spaces with a lighter growth of white birches, juniper and oak.

Stately, mysterious, great evergreens reached toward the sky. And in that enchanted forest I was to walk with Mimi, talk with her. I was overwhelmed by the thought of it.

When we arrived, rather late in the afternoon, at the great log house, there was no one in sight on the porches. We entered and found a blazing fire, for in spit of the sun-

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FEATHERED DRUM

"Don't ever take a Christmas present from Uncle Wiggily," said the Bob Cat.

"Why not?" asked Fox.

"Because it will be a choo-chooer!" said the Bob Cat.

"What do you mean a choo-chooer present?" asked the Fox.

"I mean a sneezer!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Oh, so you got fooled, did you?" asked the Wolf. All three Bad Chaps were in the den of the Fox, talking things over.

"Yes, I was fooled," admitted the Bob Cat. "I thought Uncle Wiggily had left a present for me in Baby Bunty's handkerchief. But it was only full of sneezes. Wait until I catch him!"

"What's the use of waiting?" asked the Fox.

"What do you mean?" inquired the Wolf.

No Presents

"I mean," said the Fox, "I just saw Uncle Wiggily hopping to the woods We can sneak after him and catch him."

"But don't take any presents," warned the Bob Cat.

"Was Uncle Wiggily alone?" asked the Wolf.

12-9

"Who was that drumming?"

"Yes," said the Fox. "Not even Baby Bunty was with him."

"Come on, then!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"You don't mean to say you are afraid of that orphan rabbit, Bobbie!" cried the Fox.

"No," answered the mewing Bad Chap. "But I am afraid of any sneezing presents she might have in her handkerchief. Come on!"

So the three Bad Chaps left the den of the Fox to go after Uncle Wiggily, who was adventuring in the woods.

Along and along and along ran the Bad Chaps.

Along and along and along hopped Uncle Wiggily.

All of a sudden the rabbit gentleman heard the sound of a drum.

"Ha!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Can that be a Christmas drum that Santa Claus is trying out here in the woods? I must look for him."

But soon after, besides the drumming sound, Uncle Wiggily heard a cry of "Help! Help! Help!"

"Ho! That doesn't sound like any of the Bad Chaps," thought the rabbit gentleman. "I'll do what I can to help! I'm coming!" he called as he hopped toward the sound of the drumming.

When he reached it he saw a bird colored somewhat like a turkey. The bird was standing on a log. Around his neck was a ruff of feathers, like a collar.

"Who was that drumming?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

Thump! Thump!

"I was," answered the bird, shaking his feathers. "I am a ruffed grouse and I drum like this:" Quickly the ruffed grouse flapped his wings — thump — thump—thump—rup—ru—errrrrrrrr!

"My! What fine drumming!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Is that a hollow log on which you are drumming?"

"The log cabin has nothing to do with my drumming," said the grouse. "I make the sound by beating my wings fast against the air. Like this:" Once more the grouse drummed. It was like a band of soldiers.

"That's fine," said Uncle Wiggily. "But why did you call for help, Ruffed Grouse?"

"Because I am in trouble," answered the bird.

"What sort of trouble?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"String trouble," replied the bird. "I'm caught fast here on this log, where I do my drumming, by a tangle of string on my leg."

"I will help you get untangled," said the rabbit gentleman.

This he did and then he had another adventure which I shall tell you about in the next story—Uncle Wiggily's parade.

And I hope the church steeple doesn't lean over to see what's the matter with the automobile and then puncture a tire.

MORE UNDERGRADE CHEESE REPORTED INSPECTOR SAYS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9.—There has been more undergrade cheese in the district than at any other period during the past two years, Dairy Inspector John Murray told officers and patrons of the IXL Cheese and Butter Company at their annual meeting held on Monday. This undergrade cheese may be largely due to a quantity of bitter milk getting in and causing the rancid flavor. "When the whey is not pasturized it is very difficult to prevent this flavor unless it is very well cared for," said Mr. Murray.

William Anderson was re-elected as president for another year, and the appointment of a new secretary was left in the hands of the directors due to the absence of Robert Waddell, the former secretary, whose salary was $45 per annum. After considerable discussion it was decided to auction the salary for next year and this resulted in a reduction to $35.00. Directors remained the same with the exception of William Mackenzie, who replaced Robert McCulloch, the balance of the slate as follows: Charles Clark, Howard Clark and Douglas Rutherford. Ralph Rutherford was appointed auditor at the salary of $10.00.

President William Anderson stated that since the resignation of the cheesemaker, Thomas Heath, had been received, four tenders had been received for the position. The matter of hiring a new maker was left with the directors. The make for the year had been 5,183 cheese, stated Mr. Anderson.

Referring to the cheese show in Belleville last week, when a number of prize cheese were exhibited, Mr. Murray drew attention to the fact that everyone was now endeavoring to put up a good product in seeking to gain the British market.

Three Grades Proposed.

A dairy inspector of Belleville brought forth a plan to have all milk divided into three grades at the factory and paid for on the basis of special, first grade and off grade. According to Mr. Murray, special grade would be clean, of good flavor and free from sediment and acidity—less than 20-100 of one per cent. This grade of milk should be delivered in clean, bright, sanitary cans. No. 1 grade would show about 22-100 of one per cent. acidity when delivered in cans showing slight rust and sediment. Off grades which would not be accepted at the factory would include milk showing considerable rust together with higher acidity and leaky cans.

"There are those who insist in sending an inferior grade of milk to the factory, and if there was a slight premium on better grades it should serve as a stimulant," said Mr. Anderson.

J. D. Mills, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Campbellford, addressed the meeting briefly, saying that the farmer had had a better year, with the production of cheese up 20 per cent., and with the average price about 1 cent higher than in 1936. This increase when considered with the fact that the export to Great Britain was 152 thousand above last year, or roughly 15 million pounds, is quite naturally reflected in the pockets of the farmers. Cattle prices are up 15 per cent., calves 25 per cent., hogs 8 per cent., and our shipment of bacon and hams to the Old Country amounted to 182 million pounds or about 132 million dollars, which is a marked improvement over the shipments of 70 million pounds four years ago. "We are now getting within measurable distance of our quote to the British market," said Mr. Mills.

District Agricultural Representative A. H. Martin pointed out that although the increase in shipment to the United Kingdom was 35 per cent. the total increase was offset by a falling-off of the United States market, which left the total increase for export cheese at 17.8 per cent.

Production Increases.

The agricultural representative gave an interesting comparison of the production and prices of cheese and butter during the past two years, when cheese gained 7 per cent. in 1937 and butter advanced an average of 12 per cent.

Twenty-six thousand seven hundred and eighty-six boxes of cheese were boarded and sold on the Campbellford Board when boarding was practically compulsory during the past year. Prices on the Campbellford and Belleville boards were practically the same, with Belleville ahead for 11 weeks and Campbellford ahead for 11 weeks, and the two places even for three weeks.

If the market demands special grade milk in shiny new cans from T.B. tested, mastitis free, certified cattle they must be prepared to pay a premium for it, said Mr. Martin.

Money could be well spent in boosting the sale of cheese in Canada, where we eat as little of our own product as any other country in the world. The prize cheese recently exhibited in Belleville was viewed by nearly two thousand people and was purchased at as much as 35 cents per pound. It would not cost much to have this type of display placed in the various large centres such as London, Toronto, Montreal, suggested the speaker, and this would have the effect of increasing consumption and popularizing Canadian Cheddar cheese.

The Crippling Effect Of Rheumatism

Rheumatism is a constitutional disease caused by an accumulation of uric acid in the blood and is greatly aggravated by cold and dampness. It generally leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain and agony is almost unbearable.

Burdock Blood Bitters by invigorating the digestive organs, and eliminating the uric acid from the system will help in giving you relief from this torturing trouble.

Mr. Henry Thornton, Beeton, Ont., writes:—"I have been a well digger for the past fifteen years, and five years ago I got rheumatism in my left hip and knee from the dampness in the wells.

I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do me any good until our druggist advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and it was only a short time until the rheumatism was completely out of my system."

POTATO CROP WAS COMPLETE FAILURE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 9.—Stanley Fife, of Hastings, received the following letter from Esk, Saskatchewan, acknowledging receipt of parts of car sent from this district to the drought-stricken West. The letter said in part:

"I wish to thank you for sending us these beautiful potatoes; each family in the district received five bags. We are very grateful as our potato crop was a failure; we did not even get our seed back. The same thing applies to everything. We had seeded 200 acres of wheat and threshed 242 bushels. I was on the committee and the relief car was dealt out in all fairness to everyone. Each one received 3 cans of corned beef and 3 packages rolled oats.

"I have a family of five children, four going to school, and the oldest boy is eighteen. He wants to farm, but farming is not very encouraging these days.

"We certainly appreciate the fine spirit of you people to send us this relief. If this spirit was practiced throughout the world, there would be no war, want, or poverty. We hope some day we may return it. Wishing you God-speed and prosperity in the New Year and for years to come."

Fraternally,

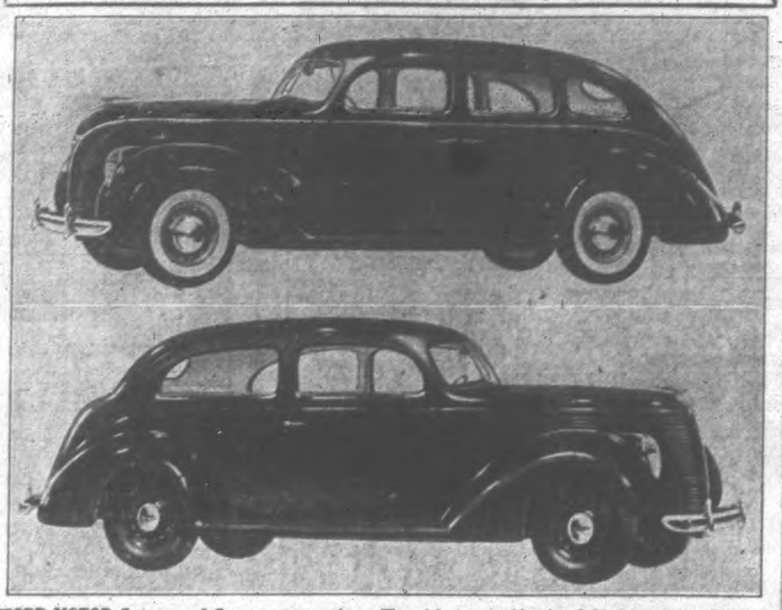
Two New Ford V-8 Cars for 1938



FORD MOTOR Company of Canada, Limited, announces the new Ford V-8 cars for 1938. For the first time Ford presents two distinct lines, the De Luxe Ford V-8—a big luxury car—and the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 car is entirely new in appearance, longer, roomier and more streamlined. The front design is modern and distinctive. Fenders are deeper and more massive. The rich interior appointments of the car match its outward beauty. Longer bodies provide more room and comfort and there is larger luggage space in all models. The De Luxe car is powered with the proved 85 horsepower V-8 engine. Shown above (top photograph) is the De Luxe Fordor Sedan.

The Standard Ford V-8 for 1938 brings new styling with a longer hood and flowing curves. Interiors are spacious and neatly appointed. New instrument panels have knobs recessed for safety. The radiator grille louvres continue back into the hood to present smooth flowing body lines from bumper to bumper. It is built on the same 112-inch wheelbase as the new De Luxe and has the famous Ford V-8 engine. The new Standard Tudor Sedan is shown above (lower photograph).

KLIM CLUB GIRLS TRY OUT AT HOME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 9. — Mrs. Russell H. Smith gave the use of her kitchen for the fortnightly meeting of "The Klim Club" on Saturday afternoon, with thirteen members present.

The newly-elected president, Jean Belch, took the chair for the business period, when the roll was answered with suggestions on "Do's for the Dairy." Ruby Fallis gave a demonstration in pasteurizing milk, and Jean Belch and Kathleen Smith, "The Use of Cream Sauce on Vegetables." The leader, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, showed the proper way to make a custard, and also took up the topic which dealt with various uses for milk such as milk drinks, puddings, scalloped dishes, chowder, gelatines, etc.

For their home assignment, each girl is to make a creamed, or scalloped, dish and serve it at a family meal, reporting on this at the next meeting, and for that gathering, each member is also to bring a small custard, on which she will be scored for points.

The dishes prepared for demonstration were enjoyed in the lunch at the close, and the vote of thanks to the hostess was sponsored by Ruby Fallis and Ethel Belch.

Duke Of Kent's Double Visits Halifax Sets Whole Town Agog

Halifax, Dec. 9 (CP).

STAID Halifax was aflutter last night—for awhile—because of a man a lot of persons thought resembled the Duke of Kent enough to be the Duke of Kent.

Newspaper offices' telephones buzzed with queries. "Is it true the Duke of Kent is in town? Did you know the Duke of Kent is in Halifax? What is the Duke of Kent doing here? . . ."

The stranger was seen in many and varied places, in fact everywhere from hotel lobbies and the gangplank of the steamship Carinthia. Reporters scurried hither and yon in search of the elusive visitor.

One wamon inquirer indignantly informed an exasperated editor, "It is the Duke of Kent because I know him. I saw him at the Coronation."

She was wrong, he assured her. The Duke of Kent was in England—officially and definitely.

shine the day was cool. In front of the fire, in a big chair over which was thrown a black bearskin, sat a woman, stiff-corseted and imposing. Her blonde hair was swept up into a curled pompadour. Her cheeks were pink, and her rose and white beauty seemed to stand out from the shadows as if painted on canvas.

It was not until Lionel spoke, however, that I realized this was Olga, the Ogre who had stolen his inheritance and the inheritance of Mimi Le Brun.

Olga welcomed me graciously giving we her hand when I was presented, and telling the man who had brought in our bags to serve us some refreshment.

"The girls hoped to be here when you came," she said, "but a party rode over from Stanleys' camp and insisted that they should go fishing. Mimi left word for you, Lionel, that you were to ride over to the lake and meet them."

"Are they on horseback?"

"Yes. Drake can tell you the road they took."

FRENCH 'BLUEBEARD' MURDER CHIEF SURRENDERS

Gang's Executioner Ousted As Thief By Canada In '30

Confessed Strangling of U.S. Dancer With 4 Others Bring Fall of Death-Syndicate Head and Mistress.

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 10—(CP-Havas)—Roger Million, the asserted scarfaced chief of an abduction-death syndicate whose "expert in murder" Eugene Weidmann slew Jean de Koven, American dancer and four men, surrendered to police here tonight.

Earlier in the day Million and a woman companion had eluded a police net thrown around a hotel at Nantua, near the Swiss border, where they had been living. Police believed him to be the man who attempted to obtain $500 ransom from the slain American dancer's aunt three days after Miss de Koven disappeared. With Million was his accomplice, Jean Le Blanc and Million's mistress a blond Frenchwoman.

The trio fled, police said, after a mysterious telephone call to their apartment. Leaving all their baggage behind.

The authorities believed Million to be the man who employed Eugene Weidmann, 29-year-old German ex-convict, as killer for the gang. Weidmann has confessed killing Miss de Koven and four men, one of them a member of the supposed syndicate in crime.

Deported From Canada

Weidmann was an immigrant to Canada but returned to Europe in 1930. He was sent out as a lad of 19 by his parents who thought he might mend his ways in the Dominion.

However he was deported from Canada in 1930 after serving jail terms for theft and forgery, immigration officials said today after searching through files.

Police said a third suspect was Jean Leblanc. All had been staying at Nantua, some 250 miles southeast of Paris, for the past month.

Their hotel was surrounded by police in the early morning and their arrests were announced. When inspectors entered the building, however, the trio had escaped.

JAPANESE CORDON STORMS NANKING FROM ALL SIDES

SHANGHAI, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Japanese forces struck from all sides of Nanking in a general attack which the Japanese spokesman declared tonight had put the Chinese capital "in the process of falling."

The attack was launched when the Chinese commander, General Tang Seng-Chi, refused to heed Japanese General Iwane Matsui's ultimatum to surrender the city by noon or face a general assault.

Four hours later Japanese asserted a part of the 100,000 troops encircling the city had captured Purple Mountain overlooking Nanking. Chinese positions on the hill previously had kept the Japanese from a frontal assault.

Six hours later the Japanese spokesman said he "assumed" that Japanese troops already had penetrated Nanking's great wall and were engaged in "mopping up operations," which he explained meant street fighting. The spokesman said he had no details of the operations.

Asked about his prediction yesterday that Nanking would be captured within 24 hours, he said the Japanese victory was not yet achieved, then added:

"But the city is in the process of falling."

Earlier reports from the front said bitter hand-to-hand fighting was in progress outside Nanking's walls.

Ploughs Fail as Gale Keeps Blowing Roads Full; Storm Continues in Niagara—3 Feet at Pt. Colborne

TORONTO, Dec. 10—(CP)—Blizzards struck with renewed intensity at the Niagara Peninsula today. Port Colborne bore the brunt of the gale-borne snow that isolated the Lake Erie town as the battle against the elements in other sections of storm-swept Ontario settled down to a struggle to maintain communications.

For more than 50 hours the storm has battered Port Colborne, piling snow to a height of four and five feet over roads leading from the town. Residents reported by telephone early today the blizzard was the worst in the history of the district. They said the force of the wind varied from 35 to 50 miles an hour.

In other sections of the province where blizzards have blown since last week-end, the situation was improving. The storms appeared to be blowing themselves out. But in their wake they left many villages and towns cut off by snow drifted roads from other sections, closed schools and crippled transportation lines.

The Hamilton and Toronto districts have escaped the storms and only a few inches of snow have fallen over Northern Ontario. There, the white blanket mas more of a help than a hindrance to citizens. Lumbermen welcomed the snow as an aid to their operations.

Blizzard Briefs On Many Fronts

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 10—(CP)—Four snowploughs were reported stuck in drifts in Lambton County to-day as the area continued to dig out after two days of snow and gales. Highway 7, running to London is open as far as Warwick. From there detour must be made via Chatham. Highway 22 is blocked.

Villages of Camlachie, Oil Springs and Alvinston were inaccessible to motor cars. Food deliveries are being made under difficulties.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 10—(CP)—Most of the district west and north of London are still snowbound and isolated to-day.

The towns of Forest, Goderich, Clinton, Seaforth, Wingham and Kincardine were cut off from all road communication early to-day. At Sarnia only one highway route to the south was open and it was badly drifted. Bothwell was cut off from highway communication only a few miles away by huge drifts through which plows were bucking their way.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO — Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today he would complete arrangements with Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec sometime today for the holding of an interprovincial conference designed to prepare a brief on behalf of Ontario and Quebec to the Rowell commission. NAPANEE — Breaking down a snow plough at work near Napanee today caused a tie up of traffic here today. Police at Napanee stopped east and west bound traffic and the result was that dozens of transports and cars were stranded.

MANILA—(Saturday)—The Radio Corporation of America station here heard a radio conversation early today which indicated the Dollar liner President Hoover was aground at Hoishoto Island, south of Formosa. FIRE INSPECTORS ARE REPROVED BY JUDGE D. COLEMAN

Bringing to a conclusion a day-long battle of counsel over submission to the jury of a confession obtained from William Hanrahan of Douro, on trial on a charge of arson, Judge D. B. Coleman soundly reproved Inspectors Charles Caskey and David Craig of the Fire Marshall's office for methods he found they used to obtain the confession. He directed that the trial proceed Friday morning before the jury, the written confession withheld.

Contention of T. J. Carley, K.C. defending Hanrahan, that third degree methods had been used on Hanrahan by the inspectors when they obtained the confession in a room of the Hotel Champlain was the feature of the lengthy independent trial of the issue. Announcing his finding when arguments of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., and Mr. Carley had been concluded at 5 o'clock, Judge Coleman said:

"I think we must look at the question of the admissibility of this evidence in the light of the brutally frank statement made by Mr. Caskey in his evidence as follows: 'We were endeavoring to secure an admission of guilt'." Considering that statement the decision on the admissibility of the confession was not difficult, he said.

Inspector Craig

"You will notice that Craig states he carried on the examination purely for the purpose of obtaining the truth but unfortunately the inspector carried on the examination in order to induce the prisoner to confess."

The judge disapproved the tactics of Caskey in his first visit to Hanrahan at his farm, stating it was apparent from Caskey's own evidence he disarmed the suspect of suspicion by a pose of friendliness. When Caskey met Hanrahan a second time in the office of S. A. Darling in Peterborough "he has with him an officer of the law, I suppose

Transport Firms Ordered To Throw Books Open

Countenance No Secrets At Probe Says Judge Giving Commission Full Power

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (C.P.). — The Royal Transportation Commission has full powers to request detailed information concerning the business of motor transport companies, Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier ruled at the commission session to-day.

"Though we do want that information, we realize interested parties might receive it with some concern," he said.

"We do not want to interfere unduly with their business. This probe is not in the nature of an inquisition. We hope the companies will continue to co-operate with us."

He suggested companies' counsel meet with commission counsel tomorrow to determine in what way the request of the commission, outlined in subpoenas issued to many transport operators, could be met by the companies.

"We ask for and do not countenance any secrecy about it," Mr. Justice Chevrier said.

Companies' counsel objected at yesterday's session to terms of subpoenas calling many transport operators as witnesses. The subpoenas would obligate the companies to provide the commission with wide information concerning conduct of their businesses.

Owner Protests Evidence.

Edward Whitworth, proprietor of Whitworth Cartage of London, Ont., took the witness stand to protest evidence by L. G. Fabian that Whitworth paid drivers "around $18 a week." Fabian is general representative of the Automotive Transport Section, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

"I have five drivers on the Toronto-London run," Whitworth said "One driver gets $24 a week, two get $22 and one gets $20. It was two years ago that I paid two drivers $18.' He said his night drivers work 45 hours a week and his day

Game Warden Checks Trapping Operations

ICE skating is being extensively employed by Game and Fisheries Officer I. J. Lyons these days as a rapid means of locomotion in covering his extensive beat on the lakes throughout Peterborough County. He is at present making his annual check-up on fur trapping operations in the county and wintry weather has forced the canoe he uses in the summer months, to take a back place in his scheme of things. When the weather gets really tough and roads become blocked with snowdrifts he will substitute his motor car for toboggan and snowshoes.

CANADIAN JAILED AS PLOT SUSPECT IN FRENCH COUP

PARIS, Dec. 10.—(CP-Havas)—A man of Canadian birth, Charles Tenaille, was arrested to-day as police continued their investigation of Les Cagoulards, secret society of the hooded men accused of plotting to set up a monarchy and dictatorship in France.

Born at Maple Creek, Sask., in 1905, Tenaille is now a Paris engineer. He is a brother of Andre Tenaille, arrested Oct. 4 as an alleged leader of the armaments section of the conspiracy.

It was alleged that Charles Tenaille sent several loads of arms to a boarding house in the Rue Ribera.

Francois Marie Metenier, 41 year old industrialist of Clermont-Gerrand, also was arrested to-day, in a small apartment which he maintained in Paris.

Tenaille and Metenier were ordered by examining Magistrate Betelle to be held in the Sante Prison here.

As friend and collaborator of Eugene Deloncle, regarded as the chief of the plotters, Metenier was said to have been fully informed of the activities of the chiefs of the Csar (Secret Committees for Revolutionary action).

Provincial Expert Asked To Solve Odd Paris Death

Aged Paris Woman's Body Found in Her Cellar; Body and Head Are Cut—Blood on Pillow of Bed

PARIS, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP)—Dr. A. J. Craven, chief coroner of Brant county, today asked provincial authorities for the help of Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario attorney-general's department, in solving the mystery death of Mrs. Sarah Brooks.

Body of Mrs. Brooks was found in the cellar of her home yesterday. There were head and body abrasions. Bloodstains were on the pillow of her bed. Dr. E. B. Patterson said death was caused either by accident or foul play.

Today a post-mortem examination was made by Dr. F. Munro and Dr. T. Younan. Dr. Craven then conferred with Coroner Dr. Patterson and Dr. Younan and decision was reached to call Dr. Frankish. He was expected here this afternoon.

There was no fire in the house though plenty of wood was stacked around the cellar. Mrs. Bell went to help Mrs. Brooks with the noon meal but there was no answer to her knock. It was several hours later when she became alarmed and searched the house.

Sidney and Gerald Brooks, Paris district farmers, are sons of deceased.

It was believed Mrs. Brooks, who was 78, was well-to-do but police search of the house found only one dollar in cash. Police would not say the amount entered in a bank book also found.

Mrs. Brooks had lived alone for many years. She was last seen yesterday morning by Harold Bell, son of a neighbor, as he went to work. He said she was scantily clad and her legs were blue with cold.

RELIEF DROPS OFF 44 P.C. PAST YEAR

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP).—Labor Minister Rogers announced to-day a decrease of 44 per cent from the October, 1936, total in the number of employable persons receiving material aid was indicated by early approximations from the National Employment Commission's registration figures for October, 1937.

The minister said that last October the number of employable persons receiving material aid was approximately 119,000. He explained this total contained all classes of employable persons—family heads, individuals and employable dependents—but excluded farmers (resident farm operators) receiving agricultural material aid.

The total of employable persons receiving aid in October indicated an increase of 3.8 per cent compared with September.

A drop of approximately 36.35 per cent from October, 1936, in the total number of persons on non-agricultural aid was indicated by figures from October, 1937, Mr. Rogers said.

Dealing with agricultural material aid, the minister said early figures

Crimean War Steamer Back in Harness

Melbourne, Victoria, Dec. 10. THE steamship Edina, built 84 years ago as a troop transport for the Crimean War, was back at work today as an excursion steamer on Port Phillip Bay.

Her first trip of the season was made at an average speed of 11 knots an hour. The Edina is one of the oldest steam-driven ships in the world, but her crew expected she would break some of her own speed records during the year.

Believe Time Coming When Cars Will Be Propelled By Mine Product

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Dr. Thomas E. Baker, President Emeritus of Carnegie Institute of Technology, offered "liquid coal as a substitute for diminishing supplies of petroleum and a stimulant for the mining industry.

Asserting the United States is studying liquefaction of coal because the "price of petroleum must rise," the founder of the Institutes coal research laboratory said last night in an address:

"The time will and must come when great quantities of coal will be used to propel motor vehicles. Coal is already furnishing what the Germans call "ersatz" (substitutes) for natural substances and chief of these is a substitute for petroleum."

He predicted that costs of manufacturing the derivatives soon would decline, opening a vast new market for coal producers.

But Arno Fieldner, government expert, declared in a simultaneous address to the Coal Mining Institute of America, it would be advisable from a "conservation point of view" to delay the manufacture of gasoline from coal "as long as possible."

The chief of the technological branch of the Bureau of Mines told

Burglars Fail To Kill Woman And Her Tip Jails Both

Murder Husband As He Recognizes Them In Raid For Wife's $2,000 Inheritance Money

CRETE, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP).—Two men named by a farm wife as the robbers who killed her husband and then shot her in an attempt to cover their identities were seized today.

Sheriff's deputies who organized a hunt for the gunmen after the slaying last night took John Jeliga, 33, into custody at his home in Whiting, Ind., and later arrested Mike Munjas, 45, at his Indiana Harbor, Ind., home.

Capt. John Surdukowski of the Whiting police, said Mrs. Hulda Pansa, 38, identified them as the robbers and that both had confessed. He said guns used in the slaying were found at their homes.

Mrs. Pansa told the story of the slaying after crawling and staggering a half mile over a snow-swept road in near zero weather to the home of her brother-in-law.

Her husband, Edward Pansa, 45, was shot to death as he lay on a sofa in his home with hands bound, pleading for his life. The robbers then walked to the bedroom in which they had pushed Mrs. Pansa and shot her in the head.

Mrs. Pansa said the men, whom her husband recognized, visited the farm earlier in the day, returned shortly before dark, pulled guns and demanded $3,000 in "inheritance money" which, they said, she had received recently. Enraged when told she did not have it, the robbers hit the farmer over the head, bound him and then ransacked the house, finding $77.

The farm wife said she heard her husband pleading for his life as she crouched in the bedroom. One of the robbers said: "We've got to bump you off: You know who we are."

Lost on Horseback in Prairie Storm Orphan Perishes in Snowbank

Shaunavon, Sask., Dec. 10 (CP)

VICTIM of a blinding blizzard that swept southwestern Saskatchewan Monday, Dallas Heth, 15-year-old orphan, froze to death in a snow drift a few miles from the country schoolhouse where he had gone to shepherd his small nephew home.

Dallas lived with a farmer brother, Jacob Heth, in the Bench district. When the storm blew up Dallas saddled a horse and rode a mile and quarter to the school.

At the school he found the teacher planned to keep the children at a nearby farm for the night, due to the storm. The teacher urged Dallas to stay, but he preferred to go home.

Mrs. Heth, his sister-in-law, believed the boy must have stayed at the school and was not alarmed by his absence until Wednesday. She went to the school to inquire for him. A search party was organized and his body was found.

King to Broadcast Empire Message At 10 a.m. on Christmas Day

London, Dec. 10 (CP-Havas)

THE king will broadcast a Christmas message to the Empire from Sandringham on Christmas Day, it was announced officially today.

This year's message probably will be at 2 p.m. (10 a.m. E.S.T.)

The King's message to his peoples, relayed round the world by beam radio, became a feature of Christmas observance in many Empire homes after the late King George V adopted the practice in 1931.

There was no broadcast last year as King Edward VIII's 11-month reign ended two weeks before Christmas and it was felt a message from his successor would be out of place while the abdication emotions were still fresh.

King George V's last message was on Christmas afternoon of 1935, less than a month before his death.

Aims At Pressure On Premier King To Permit Export

Hope at Least to Have Question Put to Parliament; New Beauharnois Contract Likely Be Signed To-day

TORONTO, Dec. 10—(CP)—The Toronto Globe and Mail says in a newspage story today it has been learned Premier Hepburn will "immediately" seek the co-operation of Premier Duplessis and the Quebec government "in inducing Prime Minister King and the federal administration to permit the unrestricted export of power in large blocks to the United States."

The newspaper added it was understood Mr. Hepburn, accompanied by Attorney-General Conant, Mines Minister Leduc, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, and Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of lands and forests, will leave for Quebec as soon as a conference is arranged with the Quebec cabinet.

The paper continues:

"While the reported primary purpose of their mission is to reach agreement on the various submissions which the two provinces will make to the Rowell commission, it is definitely known the power-export issue on which Mr. Hepburn failed to make much headway with official Ottawa two weeks ago is, at the present time, of the greater concern to them.

"This afternoon, it is expected, Queen's Park will give formal ratification by order-in-council to the long-negotiated new Beauharnois contract. Of the 'surplus' power which the Ontario Hydro Commission must take under this contract between 90,000 and 110,000 horsepower, can, it is understood, be sold to Niagara-Hudson, provided the virtual Ottawa ban on export is lifted.

Up to Parliament.

"If Premier Duplessis' co-operation can be secured the Ontario Government will be able to bring

EXECUTIONER IS OUSTED AS THIEF

While detectives in Paris continued cross-questioning, Weidmann, husky confessor of the five slayings, others began a systematic excavation around the St. Cloud villa outside Paris, where yesterday were found the bodies of Miss de Koven and Printz Frommer, linked with the gang.

Confession Starts Roundup.

It was Weidmann's confession to the five slayings which put police on the trail of the gang, allegedly headed by Million.

During questioning, police said, Weidmann said Million made an attempt to collect ransom of $500 from Ida Sackheim, Miss de Koven's aunt, several days after the dancer was killed.

The detectives also believed Million and his blond mistress were the man and woman who pased several of the $500 worth of traveller's cheques which Weidmann took after slaying the dancer.

There was still the possibility, the officers said, of connecting Million and the woman with two of Weidmann's other victims—a taxi driver and a broker.

After the body of the broker, Roger Leblond, was found, police said Million and the blond vanished from their apartment near the central markets of Paris. The woman was known to police as "Renee" or "Colette" Tricot.

She is 27 years old. Million, 26, identified himself as an accountant's assistant. Both he and she are French.

Investigating Magistrate Georges Berry said Million was the man whom Weidman had named as giving him money to rent the suburban villa where Miss De Koven's body was buried, her necklace knotted deep into her neck.

Tomb For One Other.

The isolated villa also was a tomb for Fritz Frommer, identified by police and Weidmann as an original member of the gang. Frommer's body was unearthed yesterday. The soft-spoken Weidmann said he had shot Frommer. Once the two were cellmates in a German prison.

The killing of Frommer about two weeks ago, Weidmann confessed, was the upshot of a discussion of their finances after the flight of Million and his companion.

Weidmann had been left without money, he said, but Frommer told him he had some money saved from the proceeds of earlier robberies.

"I went into the kitchen and got a gun and killed him," Weidmann was quoted. "He lied. He had only 300 francs."

The other victims of Weidmann's gun, according to his confession were:

Raymond Lesobre, a real estate rental agent, whose body was found in the cellar of another St. Cloud village on Nov. 28. (It was that discovery which led Versailles police Tuesday to Waldmann).

Jean Couffy, a taxi driver, found slain near Orleans last September.

Roger Leblond, a broker, found dead in an abandoned automobile at Neuilly-Sur Seine last summer.

A Mystery Solved

The gruesome confession of the 29-year-old Weidmann, a fugitive from German military service, permitted French authorities to close the bulging four-month dossier on the disappearance of Miss de Koven.

It also delineated the twist of a killer's mind. In soft voice—almost regretfully—he related how he had enticed the girl to the lonely villa last July.

"The memory of this crime is more atrocious than that of the others. She was gentle, trusting and glad to have someone with whom to talk English, which I have known since my sojourn in the United States and Canada . . ."

VET COMMISSION TO WAIT RULING BY PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—(CP).—Government action on recommendations of the War Veterans' Assistance Commission must await assembly of Parliament, according to Pension Minister Power.

The report, made public yesterday by the Minister, recommends numerous reforms which Mr. Power estimated would cost the country about $7,000,000 a year if adopted.

Recommendations included payment of monthly allowances to indigent Great War veterans, $18.50 for single men, $30 for married men with dependent wives changes in civil service rules to admit more returned soldiers, regulations to reserve defence department projects for war veteran labor and demolition of age barriers from the War Veterans' Allowance Act.

The Minister said co-operation of War Veterans' Associations was expected and their reaction to the report would be awaited.

It has already been announced the chief business before the biennial convention of the Canadian Legion, which meets Jan. 31 at Port William, will be consideration of the Commission's recommendations. Ample time will be given Legion delegates to digest the report and from their deliberations some expression of the policy of that organization will be forthcoming.

Legion Accepts Task.

The Dominion Council is expected to send a representative sub-committee to Ottawa to confer with the Government an dadvise how best various matters raised in the report may be tackled. The Legion has accepted the responsibility it was indicated here, having regard to the fact the Commission was created at its behest and the Commissioners were drawn from its membership.

Concerning immediate relief problems, the Commission urges the position taken by many of the be accepted, in that relief of indigent and unemployed ex-service men is Dominion rather than a local responsibility. With this in mind the report recommends a definite scale of relief amounting to $18.50 a month for single men and $30 for married men with dependent wives be established under administration of the Pensions Department.

TORONTO Dec. 10 (C.P.)—Calves led an opening gain of $1 cwt. on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week to close steady, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported. Cattle prices were irregularly 25 cents lower on most grades of weighty steers, butchers and cows with fed calves 50 cents and more lower. Hogs picked up 10 cents during the week, while sheep and lambs held steady.

The light cattle run included only 350 from the West. Trade was dull throughout with about 400 head unsold. One load of good weighty steers sold at $8 with other steers from $4.50 to $7.50. Common to medium butcher cattle brought $3.25 to $5.25. A few good butcher steers and heifers reached $6 on Monday roads were blocked. Essential services were carried on and there was no milk shortage. All available men, trucks and teams were clearing drifts. If no more snow falls, it was expected all roads will be opened by to-night. In Willoughby and near the Niagara Boulevard roads were blocked and many persons marooned. In many places in Willoughby bread was scarce and housewives were making bread or substitutes.

GANANOQUE, Dec. 10—(CP)—Delivery of bread in the district around this Eastern Ontario town was made today with difficulty over snow-blocked roads. No transport trucks have moved over No. 2 highway through this town for 36 hours.

ST CATHARINES, Dec. 10—(CP)—Main highways have been opened after a blizzard that stalled traffic for nearly two days. Street cars were running on time and streets were being cleared of snow.

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Snow hampered communications in parts of Europe today. A 20-hour fall in Germany delayed trains and air service.

Much of the Rhine Valley was under three feet of snow, wires were down in many sections, and severe cold and more snow were predicted for East Prussia.

DEWAR LAKE, Sask., Dec. 10—(CP)—So severe was the blizzard early this week in this district 140 miles west of Saskatoon that school children at Prairiedale spent the night in the school house because, drifts in places were piled 10 feet high.

WINDSOR, Dec. 10. (CP)—For the first time in five years, ice threatened Windsor's water supply today, gathering at the filtration plant's intake. Low temperatures caused the accumulation of "needle" ice yesterday, J. Clark Keith, general manager for the Windsor Utilities Commission, said.

VERONA, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP).—Twenty-two children were marooned four hours in a bus near this village 20 miles north of Kingston yesterday before a gang of volunteers shoveled snow drifts away to allow the bus to reach its destination. The bus was carrying pupils from Sydenham High school.

TRENTON, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP).—A Royal Canadian Airforce plane roared off from Trenton air-base to-day to survey highway conditions between here and Kingston after a snow storm yesterday.

Captain G. Carling-Kelly made the flight to determine if the roads were passable for a bus which is to carry the Air Force hockey team to Kingston to-day for a game with Kingston Garrison.

The officer reported sighting traffic moving on the road, so the game will be played to-night as scheduled.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 10.—(AP).—Its traffic arteries virtually paralyzed by a 3-day blizzard, the populous suburban village of Kenmore appealed to Governor Lehman to-day for an immediate assignment of National Guard troops "for use in case of emergency."

Five Lured To Villa, Murdered For Total Of $625 Cash

Brooklyn Dancer And One Other Body Dug Up At German Bluebeard's Estate In Paris

PARIS, Dec. 10.—(UP)—A young German "Bluebeard" boasted last night how his compelling eyes lured 22-year-old Jean de Koven, pretty blond dancer from Brooklyn, to a death by garroting behind the high walls of his suburban villa, where he buried her and at least one of his four other victims.

"My magnificent eyes fascinated her," said the confessed killer, 29-year-old Eugene George Weidmann, who murdered for the small sums of money his victims carried.

"I met Miss de Koven last July at a tea dance at the Hotel des Ambassadeurs; then I saw her at Fouquets on the Champs Elysees and presented myself under the name of Karls.

"She was entranced by my eyes, and agreed to come to my villa."

Strangled Her With Cord.

Then, he said, after the blond dancer has spent two or three idyllic days with him, while her aunt seached franctically throughout Paris, and appealed to the American Embassy, he strangled her with a cord. She was believed killed about July 25, the first victim of the "money" slayer.

The other victims—three Frenchmen and a German—suffered a kindlier death than the American girl. They were shot in the back of the head.

Agents of the Surete Nationale following Weidmann's calm directions, dug behind the walls of his Sain Cloud villa—close by historic Malmaison, which Napoeleon gave to Josephine—and came upon the bodies of Miss de Koven and another victim of the man who mur-

FINN WOMAN ASKS RIGHT TO PREACH

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10 (CP).—United Church of Canada officials today considered the application for admission to the church ministry of Miss Elma Hjelt, who served as a Finnish minister to the Congregational Church of the United Church.

The application came before Winnipeg Presbytery of the United Church. It was sent from the Presbytery of Sudbury, Ont. It is proposed the woman's work be among the Finnish people of Sudbury district.

Winnipeg Presbytery took no action, and final decision will be made by Toronto conference.

Entry of Miss Hjelt into the United Church ministry would make her the second woman to hold a pupit in this church. The first was Rev. Lydia, pastor of a Moose Jaw, Sask., church. Miss Gruchy, a former school teacher, was ordained about a year ago.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

December wheat moved more than a cent higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day on intermarket and local spreading operations. Scarcity of offerings was a feature of the quiet session with final quotations unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, December $1.20¼, May $1.15⅛ and July $1.11⅛.

Volume of business was small and dealings in the pit were at a standstill for long periods. A light demand for Canadian wheat at Liverpool and declining outside markets was practically ignored by the grain trade here. Selling at no time threatened to send futures sharply below the previous close.

May and July options, however, moved irregularly on both sides of yesterday's close as these futures came under light liquidation due to intermarket and local spreading. New sales of Canadian wheat for export were small, reported only as a few odd loads.

OFFER LIQUID COAL AS SUBSTITUTE

the 500 coal operators that present conversion methods were "ingenious" and "thermally wasteful ways" of obtaining power.

The cost of making motor fuel from coal in British and German plants, he said, had been estimated at three or four times greater than of producing gasoline from petroleum.

"About four tons of coal," Fieldner continued, "are required for the manufacture of one ton of gasoline by one method. The gasoline obtained contains only 40 per cent of the energy of coal."

MRS. E. C. ROBERTS RE-ELECTED HEAD ST. JOHN'S W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10.—The Women's Missionary Society of St. John's United Church held their annual election of officers at their meeting held in the ladies' parlors of the church on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. E. C. Roberts was made president for a second term.

The question, "What are the W.M.S. people doing at Christmas time?" prompted a very interesting program which was led by the president, who was assisted by Mrs. Grills, Mrs. Sykes, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Malcolm, Miss Payne, Mrs. Greig, Mrs. Turner, Miss Keir, Mrs. Mills, and Mrs. Hutcheon. Following this each of the groups extended a Christmas greeting to the other groups and at the close Mrs. George Hammond led in prayer.

A vote of thanks was extended the president for her splendid work throughout the year by Mrs. G. A. Kingston to which Mrs. Robert replied thanking the members for their co-operation.

Following the secretary's and treasurer's reports the election of officers was held with the following being elected: Hon. Pres., Mrs. H. B. Longmore, Mrs. G. W. Hammond, Miss Wood, and Mrs. Rannie; Pres., Mrs. E. C. Roberts; 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. W. H. Ashton; 2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. A. I. Bonney; 3rd Vice Pres., Mrs. C. W. Palliser; 4th Vice Pres., Miss Jordan; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. D. Bennett; Cor. Sec., Mrs. J. A. Mitchell; Treas., Mrs. G. A. Kingston; Secretary, Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. J. D. Mills; Strangers' Sec., Mrs. A. E. Southworth; Supply Sec., Mrs. H. T. Free; Temperance Sec., Mrs. A. E. Wragg; Missionary Monthly Sec., Mrs. Buehner; Literature Sec., Mrs. H. B. Neal; Press Sec., Mrs. C. W. Turner; Flower Sec., Mrs. C. W. Palliser; Peace Sec., Mrs. James Saunders; Mission Band Leader, Mrs. Allan Watson; auditors, Mrs. S. L. O'Hara and Mrs. George Hammond. It was planned to have the January meeting take the form of a rally and an invitation was extended to the study class to meet at the home of Mrs. A. D. Bennett on Friday of this week.

Loyalists Turn Rebels Back

MADRID, Dec. 10 (AP)—Insurgent infantry attacks that shattered weeks of comparative quiet on the Aragon and Madrid fronts were reported today by government military authorities to have been beaten back.

Dispatches from the Aragon region of the northeast where government forces have been arrayed for weeks to block an Insurgent big push toward the Mediterranean told of desperate fighting from the Ebro River to Martin Del Rio.

A half hour of hand-to-hand combat at Monte Sillero and on a road between Mediana and Puebla de Alborton in the Ebro River valley about 18 miles southeast of Zaragoza ended in an Insurgent rout.

'Harry The Hugger' Wanted In 'Peg

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10 (CP)—Police today sought a man, described as "Harry the Hugger," who has molested three north Winnipeg women during the last two weeks.

A young woman of West Kildonan reported to police last night a man slid his arm around her waist but she was able to scare him away by screaming.

Police said they believed the man to be the same individual who molested a woman in the same district two weeks ago and who last Monday used a lead pipe in an attempt to beat Miss Irene Arsenych, 21. Miss Arsenych was able to escape.

U.S. QUESTIONS HER WORKLESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(CP)—Government printing presses are rolling on an order for 60,000,000 cards to be used in the census of unemployed in the United States.

The cards, to bear a message from President Roosevelt and 14 questions, are expected to be ready for mailing November 17 to an estimated 31,000,000 families. Recipients will be requested to return them, completed, within three days to John D. Biggers, Director of the National Unemployment Census.

Within six weeks of Nov. 20, Biggers has promised, he will furnish the country with the first reasonably accurate, scientifically-compiled figure on the total number of unemployed.

Besides the usual queries on name and address, trade, age, sex and race, the cards seek answers to the following: Are you able to work? Are you totally, or only partially, unemployed? How many hours did you work last week? What was your total cash income last week? How much work have you had in the last 12 months? How many other workers in your family are unemployed? How many dependents have you?

Biggers said every effort would be made to obtain a complete response to the check with even postmen doing follow-up work on their routes.

"For instance," he said, "they will visit every trailer camp and leave registration forms in every trailer. They will go to shacks along the rivers and railroads where transients gather.

M.P.P.'S INCREASE PAY

VICTORIA, Dec. 10 (CP).—Members of the British Columbia Legislature yesterday approved pay increases for themselves, Cabinet Ministers and the Premier.

The increases, provided by amendment to the Constitution Act, bring members' indemnities to the level of Ontario Legislature members. They boost the indemnities $400 to $2,000, Ministers' salaries $1,500 to $7,500, and the Premier's salary $1,800 to $9,000. All are made free of income tax assessment.

Even the children in Japan dress and play war. Here are a few little tots, dressed as miniature generals and admirals, leading a procession to the Meiji temple in Tokio. Some day soon they will be expected to don the gold braid in real procession or, perhaps, the drab khaki of the troops in China.

FASCIST GRAND COUNCIL MEETS

ROME, Dec. 10—(CP-Havas)—The Fascist grand council was called today to meet Saturday.

Interest in this announcement was whetted by the persistence of unconfirmed rumors Italy would withdraw from the League of Nations before the end of this week.

"Whatever is decided upon will be announced immediately to the people from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia," said the communique announcing the grand council meeting.

Irked by the league's refusal to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, the Rome government decided to withdraw it was reported, after conferring with Germany and Japan.

These countries, with whom Italy has joined in a pact against the Comunist international, have both resigned from the Geneva organization.

Since the league decided to apply economic sanctions against Italy early in the Ethiopian war, Rome, though maintaining its membership and paying its share of expenses, has taken no active part in league affairs.

(League circles at Geneva were skeptical of the rumors of Italy's impending withdrawal, pointing out that no intimation of such action, even of a semi-official nature, had been received there. Italian circles in Geneva also doubted the report, which, they pointed out, has often circulated previously without anything coming of it.)

England Is Short On Sunshiny Days

HARPENDEN, England, Dec. 10—(CP)—Deficiency of sunshine was still the most prominent feature of the records, declared W. G. Cochran of the government experimental station discussing England's No. 1 topic of conversation—the weather.

He produced statistics to show every month this year and 10 months of last year had experienced below-average sunshine periods. The number of hours of sunshine from May to September, he said, was 797 hours—or slightly more than five hours a day. This was one hour less than the normal average for the period.

During the period, however, rainfall, while not markedly below normal, was concentrated in short heavy spells and interfered little with holiday pursuits. An example was the unusually full program of completed matches in the county cricket championship this summer.

FRANCE CHECKS ON FOREIGNERS

PARIS, Dec. 10—(CP)—France, traditional haven for the world's political exiles and hatching spot for many of its intrigues, is bearing down on supposed centres of conspiracy.

A series of terrorist bomb outrages has prompted the government to put a close check on foreigners—more than 2,000,000 strong—living in this country. Agents of the Surete Nationale, France's Scotland Yard, are increasing their vigilance while a government commission is drafting bills for new restrictions on foreign residents.

Since the Great War, wanderers of all kinds—white Russians and Red Spaniards, anti-Fascist Italians and German Jews, South American Communists and North American expatriates—have found shelter in liberal, democratic France. They have settled in colonies, speaking their own language, maintaining their own customs.

Foreign residents are already required to bear identity cards, issued by the prefecture of police after an investigation of the applicant. One of the new measures is expected to provide that each card also contain the foreigner's finger-prints to permit a closer check on identity.

The campaign was caused specifically by the simultaneous bombings of the Paris offices of the General Confederation of French Employers and the Union of Metallurgical Industries Employers, which caused the death of two policemen.

Other bombs had exploded earlier in a private airport near Paris, in a train running to the south and in the Cerbere tunnel, leading from France to Spain's government-controlled provice of Catalonia.

FUSSY BURGLARS

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 10—(CP).—City detectives to-day were searching for a gang of pie-eating burglars who broke into a dairy lunch here.

The gang stole between $25 and $30 in cash, smashed a pin-table and a music machine, and carried off cigarettes, chocolate bars and pies.

Evidently fond of pies, the burglars spent some time in the shop sampling the different varieties. They tried four of five different kinds of pies, eating a few bites out of each one, and tossing the remaining portion on the floor.

Useful Mayoral Timber

The announcement that Ald. James Hamilton has consented to become a candidate for the mayoralty has been welcome, The Examiner is sure, to all those citizens who know the qualities of this veteran member of the council and who have had an opportunity to guage the work he has done in his many years of service in public life. The fact that his candidature carries the approval of other members of council, as attested by the decision of his fellow aldermen that so far as they are concerned, Ald. Hamilton will be unopposed, is possibly the highest recommendation that could be given him. When men who have been associated with him for years and who have had an opportunity to estimate his worth at first hand decided that he is the man for the mayor's chair the public is given a useful lead.

Never seeking the limelight, Ald. Hamilton has been satisfied to perform the duties that have come his way with a minimum of noise and usually a maximum of efficiency. He has never been the brass band type but in his own quiet way he has handled a number of big jobs in council, including the chairmanship of the Board of Works and the Finance Committee and handled them effectively and well. He has the qualities and has had the experience that should make him useful mayoral timber.

We have no means of knowing whether or not Ald. Hamilton will be opposed at the polls but it is clear that his associates, who have had the best opportunity of measuring him, are anxious that he should not be.

Labor Candidates

One way and another, it looks as if Peterborough is in for an interesting municipal election, the advent of a slate of labor candidates adding spice to the proceedings. We have never been able to look with a great deal of enthusiasm upon suggestions that men should be elected to civic offices simply because they represented, or professed to represent labor, any more than we have found any reason for supporting other men because they called themselves Liberals or Conservatives, or because they had red hair, or for any other similarly unimportant cause. The only yard-stick worth trusting in selecting members of civic bodies, we feel, is their ability to contribute useful and efficient service.

At the same time there is no reason to look upon labor candidates with any great amount of fear and trembling. We have had labor men in the council before and they did not turn the place upside down. On the whole they were neither worse nor better than the average run-of-the-mine alderman. If they had radical notions before they were elected they were soon cured, either because of the responsibilities of office, or because they found that the theories that seemed so sound and the reforms that seemed so easy to institute, were so wound up in restrictions and red tape that there was very little they could do about it.

From one viewpoint, the decision of organized labor to toss its hat into the municipal political ring may prove to be a blessing. It is quite likely to have the effect of stirring up more than the usual amount of interest in civic affairs and that would be a boon. It would prevent Peterborough from encountering the experience of a number of other Ontario municipalities which in recent elections have seen only about 35 per cent of the folk on the lists turning out to vote. If the labor campaign brings out an increase over that percentage it will not have been launched in vain.

We Can Afford Them

We are glad to hear from such a matter-of-fact publication as The Financial Post that there is no need of becoming concerned over the effect cutting Christmas trees may have upon Canada's resources of timber and that this country can really afford to splash itself in matter of using these beautiful evergreen for Yuletide purposes.

Almost every Christmas season some one starts the doleful warning going around that the little trees found in the homes of most Canadians on Christmas morn represent a serious loss and as the Post puts it, little folks are told that if the trees had been allowed to mature there would have been so many more tons of newsprint, so many more square feet of flooring.

That being so, it is reassuring to learn, from those who know the facts, that Canada can cut millions of young evergreens every Christmas without suffering any loss and that as a matter of fact that if these trees were not used for Christmas purposes, they would in most cases have to be cut down anyway.

The Post's article explains why. It seems that if a barren hillside is being reforested, trees must be planted at the rate of at least two to three thousand trees to the acre, yet at maturity, half a century or so hence, less than a hundred trees per acre can be allowed to remain. Close planting is adopted merely to prevent the development of objectionable side branches with their knots and cross grain. Every few years in the interval between planting and maturity thinnings are made which reduce the original stand by 50 per cent each decade. The harvest of Christmas trees is usually the first crop so that if the removal is conducted as a proper thinning operation no harm, but rather good, follows.

Voters Determine Issues

Hon. G. N. Gordon has introduced a dash of novelty into the municipal election picture by resigning from the council to which he was elected last January for a two-year-term and offering himself as a candidate for re-election, the idea behind this unusual move being to get an expression of public opinion upon Mr. Gordon's attitude toward the C.G.E. lease of Nassau power. The trouble with this action is that it may not succeed.

As individuals and political parties have found in the past, voters have a habit of deciding for themselves what issues shall determine the manner in which their ballots are to be marked. There is difficulty in getting them to accept any particular question as the vital factor in an election. Mr. Gordon may stress the C.G.E. matter as the issue at stake but the chances are that folk will vote for him in spite of the fact they believe he is wrong in his stand on this particular question just as other people will vote against him, although convinced that he is quite right in his attitude.

It is a matter of not very ancient history that the members of the city council suddenly decided to vote themselves some remuneration for the time they spent in attending to civic business and there was a veritable storm of indignation when the announcement was made of their intention. The move was denounced as a "salary-grab" and a straw vote taken at the time showed the public as 100 to one against the aldermen being paid. Came the next election, and what happened? Nothing except that all the old aldermen who offered themselves for re-election were victorious and some of the candidates who had opposed the salary policy were left at home. The electors had voted for former members of the council, not because they approved of what they had done in the matter of salaries but because they believed they were best qualified to give useful service.

The "salary grab" issue never entered into the thing at all when the final test came and that is quite likely to be the case with the issue that Mr. Gordon has tossed into the ring.

Not A Very High Motive

It is difficult to quarrel with the position taken by Judge McKinnon in the Guelph court when he held over applications for naturalization from two aged citizens or with his statement that "British citizenship is not so cheap as to be handed out to enable a man to obtain money from the government."

One of the applicants was 83 years of age and had lived in Canada 56 years, and the other, 70 years old had been a resident of this country 53 years and neither of them in all that long time had made any move to acquire Canadian citizenship until now when the obvious motive is to make themselves eligible for old age pensions.

We are inclined to believe with Judge McKinnon that citizenship in Canada should be based on a loftier plane than the hope of getting "$20 a month out of the public treasury."

These men were, apparently, quite willing to live in the Dominion and take advantage of what the country had to offer them in the way of freedom and opportunity but they were not in the least interested in assuming the responsibilities of citizenship until the time came when such citizenship had a cash value and could be set down in terms of the pocket book. Then they were all for becoming Canadian citizens.

There is a possibility, of course, we are misjudging this elderly pair. The idea of becoming naturalized in order to obtain old age pensions may not have originated in their minds; it may have grown out of the ingratitude of children anxious to shift the responsibility of caring for parents from their own shoulders to the state.

But wherever it started the mercenary motive behind the move will cause many people to feel that the applications in all such cases should be withheld permanently.

What Is Communism?

A correspondent writing to this paper "not necessarily for publication," is rather alarmed regarding what he terms the spread of communism. He says "We do not want the wicked thing at all. We do not want to be a second Russia. That country has given to the world a demonstration of what Communism is like and we know sufficient of conditions there to be certain we want nothing of that kind in Canada."

Trouble is there seems to be confusion regarding the form of government which exists in Russia. According to the recognized theory of communism that form of government does not exist in Russia at all. If Russia were a communistic state then there could not possibly be a centralized government at Moscow, nor could there be one man at the head of the government. Russia, although denying the fact, actually has as much or more fascism than has Italy.

The communist believes in the organization of society on the basis of the common ownership of the means of production and of the goods produced. It does not believe in the private ownership of property, and all goods produced must be for common use and not for private gain. In those particulars it is much the same basically as the theory of socialism or anarchy.

But right there the line between communism and socialism stops. The communist does not believe in centralized government. For that he would substitute a number of smaller groups or communities, in which all things would be equally shared and where no one would have more prestige, power or wealth than his fellows. That is why the hand of the communist is against government as we know it. He would seek first to break down our form of government and all the institutions associated with it in order that he might make effective his idea of the smaller groups or communal orders.

There is nothing new in the theory of communism; in fact it is very old, and it actually preceded the private ownership of property in the early stages of mankind. It is still to be found among some of the primitive races. It existed for centuries in the East among Buddhist and Christian races, but the movement was always voluntary. In the Middel Ages it was practiced by Catharists and Anabaptists. To some degree it exists on a small scale even yet in the Shaker communities which were founded in United States in 1787. A number of communist colonies were founded in the States in the 19th century by followers of Robert Owen, Cabet, Noyes and others. Some lasted three years and others continued 40 years, but eventually they all collapsed.

Today we have no actual and true-to-type communistic state where one could go and make observations to decide if the thing worked well. It does not exist in Russia and the individual who points to that country as an example of communism has become badly confused both in theory and the actual working out of a theory. If we were to have communism in Canada it would be necessary for all our factories and homes and farms to become common property; we would have to do away with all our present forms of government, and then organize the country into a number of small groups where all things would be shared in common and where the profit system would be entirely discarded.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The storm that brought December here
Has passed; now cloudless twilight falls,

Of footprints wanders through the snow.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

THEY GOT LESS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In the course of his Presidential address to the Annual Meeting of the Bank of Montreal yesterday, Sir Charles Gordon made the following hopeful reference to the wheat situation from the Canadian angle: "this partial failure of our greatest cash crop is partly offet from the national standpoint by the higher price for this year's crop and by the fact that the general crops in every other part of Canada have been, on the whole, remarkably good."

The swing of the price pendulum, to which Sir Charles refers, works both ways unfortunately — so I thought your readers could come to their own conclusions on the following comparative figures, indicating the bushelage and revenues for the two years indicated:

Year:	Bushelage:	Dollar Value:
1936 ——	165,498,000	$147,714,058
1932	372,001,000	$122,027,000

The bushelage refers to the amount delivered by Western Canadian wheat farmers at country elevators or loading-platforms. It will be observed that in 1932 those growers received $25,587, 058. less than in 1936, though they delivered an extra 206,508,000 bushels of the breadgrain!

That kind of business happens nowhere but "down on the farm," Mr. Editor—and the people of Canada are paying for such unfair practises, right now.

WHEATGROWER.

REPLIES TO DREW

Editor Examiner:

SIR: Colonel George Drew, speaking at the George St. Open Forum, last Sunday, made statements that are too far from the truth in most cases and debatable in others. Here are some as I have marked them down. Firstly, he said that Mussolini bluffs when he threatens war. Granted, it is true. But Mr. Drew did not tell us that in the Fascist countries and also in England, the ruling class is more fearful of peace than of war. The reason is that these countries are living today in a sort of war prosperity. They are therefore afraid to shut down the ammunition factories and demobilize the armies.

Mr. Drew said Hitler was elected to power, whereas the whole world knows that it is not true. The fact is that Hitler was invited by Hindenburg to take over power at a time when the Nazi star began to wane as was shown at the last democratic elections in Germany before Hitler became dictator. In this election the Nazis lost some five million votes and the communists gained four million votes. You are right Mr. Drew, the fear of Communism was there, but it was the Kruppe and the Steins and the entire privileged class of Germany who were frightened when they saw the danger of losing their privileged positions in society by the Communists coming to power.

To prove his point that Communists believe in bloodshed and revolution, he pointed to the horrible museum of the revolution he saw in Moscow where they show guns, bombs and everything. The fact is, Mr. Drew, that it was the foreign interventionists who started the counter-revolution in Russia which resulted in bloodshed. Mr. Drew knows that he was not telling the truth when he said that the Communists want to gain power through bloodshed. The fact is, that the Communists are against bloodshed because they know that it is the workers' blood that is being shed, be the worker in overalls or in policeman's or soldier's uniform. The ruling class always hires workers to do their fighting.

Mr. Drew said that it was madness to have Tim Buck speak from a pulpit, but more than forty-four thousand people in the city of Toronto voted for Tim Buck, which proves that tens of thousands of people in the city of Toronto prefer Tim Buck's Communism to Col. George Drew's Fascism.

Mr. Drew said that a form of Fascism is being established in Quebec because of fear of Cummunism, but Mr. Drew knows that the only ones in Quebec who are afraid of Communism are the exploiters of the Quebec people. It is the strike-wave which took place last summer that frightened the gentlemen of St. James Street, because they saw the danger of diminishing profits and dividends. Then, and then only did Mr. Duplessis pass his fascistic legislation, the infamous padlock law, and the official blessing to hooliganism in that province.

Mr. Drew, it is the poverty and misery of the people on the one hand, and the unbelievable wealth and luxury on the other which is in the possession of the few. So it is the few who are organizing Fascist gangs in Quebec against the people of Quebec to maintain their privileged positions.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this valuable space in the Examiner.

Equalizied Assessment Issue To Fore in United Counties

After Two Years Of Peace Battle Is Evident in Counties' Council

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 10.—After two years of peace, if not of complete contentment, in the assessment structure of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, the council decided on a division of 28-14 Thursday afternoon to try to upset the bylaw of 1936 embodying the compromise with Cobourg, Port Hope and several of the other urban municipalities, which forestalled their threatened separation from the counties.

Reeve R. R. Mallory of Percy township moved that the equalized assessment for the next three years until 1940 be in accordance with the valuation made by Judge L. V. O'Connor late in 1935. He said that the present equalized assessment was unfair to the minor municipalities and that the Cobourg special Act of the Legislature gave the council permission to discard the Cobourg agreement after two years. Reeve Mallory's resolution was seconded by Deputy-reeve Edmonstone of Bowmanville.

The recorded division of the council was as follows: For the resolution—Boggs, Brisbin, Burrhon, Carruthers, Campbell, Crosby, Cummiskey, Devinney, Devitt, Edmonstone, George, Gooding, Honey, Ireland, Jones (2), McBride, Mallory, Mercer, Merrill, Pacey, Pascoe, Paton, Prouse, Shield, Troop, Waterman and Wood.

Against the motion—Calver, Carveth, Crowhurst, Currie, Dodge, Fairman, Greenaway, Innes, McKeel, Reid, Snider, Stinson, and L. H. Wilson (Cobourg) two votes.

A provision in the Cobourg Act declared that the agreement could be nullified after a two-thirds vote. Counties Clerk MacNachtan suggested this condition also applied to the Mallory resolution because it was directed at the assessment by-law.

Reeve Mallory contended that the two-thirds clause applied only to the bylaw which was in preparation for Friday's session.

F. D. Boggs, K.C., counties solicitor, was asked for his opinion. "The Act says nothing about a resolution," he replied, and Warden Jones declared that it had carried. Col. Boggs also said that if the equalized assessment was to be altered for next year the change would have to be made during the present sessions.

Mallory's Argument

"This assessment dispute goes back to 1931 when three valuators were appointed," Reeve Mallory recalled. "They submitted their report, and the council did not accept it. On appeal the question went to Judge O'Connor whose valuation was accepted as a basis of assessment for five years. The township of Darlington protested at the end of that time that they had been assessed too much, and I think it was generally agreed that they had a strong case. When the council failed to adjust the matter here, Darlington appealed to the Judge. He made a new valuation for the next five-year period, but Cobourg and some of the other towns and villages took the matter to the Legislature. It isn't common sense to say that Judge O'Connor was right in 1931 but he was wrong in 1935 when he had more experience and knew the counties that much better. It is generally admitted that Colborne suffered in the assessment of the last two years, and I think that assessment was the most unfair thing put through this council since I have been a member."

Reeve L. H. Wilson, Cobourg, said the Cobourg Act nullified the Judge's 1935 valuation. "If you throw away the bill now, you will have to go back to where you started before 1936, and you come under the provisions of the Municipal Act. In other words you will have to have a new vauation. So you are just going from the frying pan into the fire."

Col. Boggs told the council that if the bylaw was amended the assessment would revert back to Judge O'Connor's valuation in 1935 which would then become effective.

Belgium's Premier

Here is Paul Emile Janson, new prime minister of Belgium, who formed a government to succeed that of Paul Van Zeeland, and indicated a policy of sweeping internal reform coupled with "a strong military effort." His government, he declared, was determined to defend the independence of Belgium in its relation to other European nations.

ONCE MISSIONER DIED ROUSTABOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(CP).—Joe Garabed colorful figure of the early fighting days of the Salvation Army in the United States, died here at the age of 82. Nicknamed "Joe the Turk" because of his picturesque uniform, which was partly that of a bandmaster and partly that of an officer in the Turkish Army, Garabed built up a reputation for himself in army ranks as a hardbitten evangelist and a versatile musician.

He preached, sang, played the cornet, bugle and saxophone, and acted as bouncer and roustabout, landing in jail 53 times for his missionary and musical activities without once drawing down a punishment.

An Armenian by birth, Garabed came to the United States a young man and opened a shoe store in San Francisco. When the Salvation Army came to the city in 1884, it was persecuted by hooligans. Meetings were broken up and participants were roughly handled. Garabed enrolled himself as "bouncer" for the army.

In Chicago one day he discovered one of the early saxophones and introduced it to the Salvation Army music. In later years tales of arrests against him grew, mainly for obstructing traffic and creating a public nuisance.

KEPT ON NEWSMEN CONSTANT WATCH BY JAP SLEUTHS

TOKYO, Dec. 10 (AP)—The foreign newspaperman realizes soon after his arrival in Japan that he no longer leads a private life.

No matter where he goes or what he says, it is all likely to be recorded carefully by Nippon's ever-present police.

The Japanese sleuthing is efficient, but it is done with little effort at concealment, nearly always is polite, free from roughness or unpleasantness.

But the police know where you live, when you go to and from your office, what books you read and probably whether you brush your teeth with paste or powder.

Any journey outside is fully recorded in your dossier in the foreign affairs section of the metropolitan police bureau. This was brought home to the writer recently in an interview with an official.

In reply to a question the government man countered with, "Didn't you get that information from Mr. So-and-so?" He named a man seen several weeks previous.

He smiled indulgently at an expression of surprise and went on to name three or four other men interviewed in the interim and the substance of the conversations.

Acquiring such information is not difficult. A policeman sees you in a taxi, notes its number. Later he asks the driver where you went. Even if it was to a restaurant the waitresses are asked whether you tried to extract "military information" from them.

Another way of watching reporters is to examine their waste paper baskets.

U.S. GRAIN SHIPPERS CHEER NEW PACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (CP)—United States grain shippers today looked to the contemplated Anglo-American trade treaty to bring back to the port of New York its former thriving commerce in Canadian grain.

Small test shipments to the United Kingdom went through here recently, almost first Dominion grain to move by this route since 1931, when a fleet of ships went to Europe with 51,000,000 bushels. This traffic halted the year following, when the Ottawa agreements went into effect.

Prior to midsummer of 1932 much Canadian wheat came down the Great Lakes and canals to the United States Atlantic seaboard for trans-Atlantic shipment. It constituted the major part of cereal shipments from the Atlantic ports, as most of the exportable surplus of the United States crop goes via the Gulf of Mexico.

Grain men here say they have a virtual undertaking of the State Department that the question of simplifying the British Customs regulations will go on to the conference table when representatives of the two countries meet to formulate the trade pact now in prospect.

At the Imperial Conference in Ottawa, Canadian grain was guaranteed a preference on the United Kingdom market of two shillings a quarter (about six cents a bushel) over non-Empire grain. The regulations required grain be shipped on "direct consignment" from Canada, with a direct bill of lading from a Canadian shipper to a United Kingdom importer, thus maintaining its identity throughout. The obvious difficulty of securing a through bill-of-lading balked shipments via the United States.

Donnybrook In Syria As Police Clash

Already perturbed by disorders among native residents in conjunction with Arab-Jewish disputes in Palestine, French authorities in Beyrouth, Syria, ran head-on into more trouble when rioting broke out when police sought to break up a demonstration staged by a group of Phalanges, a banned organization. The recent decision of the government to abolish all political societies in Syria was indirect cause of the rioting. The donnybrook is shown in full swing in front of the government palace.

Fighting Chicken Pops Farmer In Eye With Egg As He Wrings Its Neck

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP)—Did you ever hear the one about the outraged chicken which hit the farmer in the eye with an egg?

It was one of the oddest accidents of 1937 and was recounted yesterday in "Public Safety," the National Safety Council's magazine.

It seems that Charley Cox of Macoupin county, Illinois, selected the hen for a Sunday dinner. He wrung her vigorously by the neck. In the midst of the ultimate gyration out popped the egg. A physician removed the shell fragments from the patient's optic.

Mother and Daughter Banquet.

A delightful event of last evening was the Mother and Daughter banquet held by the members of the C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's Church, in the dining room of the Sunday School Hall.

The guests sat at a U-shaped table, charmingly arranged with silver baskets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and tall yellow tapers in silver holders. Cedar boughs decorated the walls and pillars of the diningroom. A pretty idea were the place cards in the form of decorated folders containing the program and menu.

The toast to the King was proposed by the president Miss Dorothy Boyle who was toastmistress for the evening and was responded to in the usual way; to "the Mothers", was proposed by Miss Margaret Henry, with response by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro; and to "the Daughters" by Mrs. F. E. Johnston, with reply by Miss Ruth Robinson. The Rev. E. W. Young in a delightful and humorous little speech, congratulated the C.G.I.T., and also expressed thanks to the waitresses, members of the Alpha Mission Circle, the Misses Muriel Wilson, Betty Pilling and Marjorie Reid, and Miss Catherine Hodgins of Trinity Mission Circle. In the intervals between courses, the Group leader, Miss Eleanor Stacey, led in a lively singsong.

The guest speaker was Miss Clara Morris, Reg.N., who gave an entertaining account of her recent adventures around the world on a freighter. Miss Morris was introduced by Miss Eleanor Stacey and a vote of thanks was moved by Miss Mildred McIntyre. During the court of dinner, a delightful piano duet was played by the Misses Mildred and Jean Moore.

The guests at the head table included the Rev. E. W. Young, Mrs. J. A. McKone, leader of the Girls' Council and Miss Clara Morris, also present were Mesdames W. J. Stacey, H. A. Christmas Tea
Murray Street W. A.

The ladies of Murray Street Baptist Church W. A. held a most attractive tea and sale of Christmas gifts on Thursday afternoon, at the parsonage, 491 Water street.

The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. J. H. Sutcliffe, and the president, Mrs. B. Jackson. In the long living room, pretty handwork and knitted things were arranged on one table; on another was a display of delicious looking home-made cooking, and at a touch-and-take table, attractively wrapped little parcels were hidden among "snow" and Christmas decorations. Mrs. H. Webber, Mrs. C. Cox and Miss Nellie Stenton were in charge of the fancy work. The home-made cooking was sold by Mrs. S. Cottingham, Mrs. A. Ray, Mrs. T. Irwin and Mrs. W. Kidd, and the touch-and-take table was looked after by Mrs. Gerald Stenton and Mrs. D. Loomis. In the hall, home-made candy was sold at prettily decorated tables in charge of Mrs. S. Valentine, Mrs. A. Rightmeyer and Mrs. H. Wells. Treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. R. Gavine.

Presiding at the tea table in the dining room were Mrs. Arthur Collison and Miss Aileen Morgan, and asistants were Mrs. R. White, Mrs. Budin, Mrs. McCreery, Mrs. L. Brown. Mrs. H. Scott and Mrs. L. The lace-covered table was most artistically arranged with red and green Christmas decorations and green candles, with a large central cluster placed with colored balls on a round reflector.

A most enjoyable musical program was provided by kiddies, and included: Piano solo by Adele Fitzgerald; vocal solos by Jack Sutcliffe, accompanied at the piano by Raymond Sutcliffe; vocal solos by Betty Mather, accompanied by Adele Fitzgerald, accompanied by Adele Gaskell; vocal solos by Gray and Thelma Zavitz, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. P. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

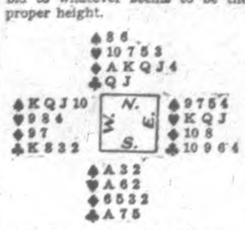
SAFE TO JUMP

SUPPOSE your partner has bid no trump, and your hand contains a solid suit, including every possible stopper in that suit. Don't you know that it is the only unstopped suit in your partner's hand? Consequently, don't you know that he can block the run of any other suit by the defenders and then run all of the tricks in your setup suit? Of course you do. It is therefore perfectly safe to jump his no trump bid to whatever seems to be the proper height.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

In a recent duplicate this deal arose and two South players, in the third position, decided to try 1-No Trump with their holdings. Where the North player responded with 2-Diamonds, the contract was allowed to remain at that contract.

One North player, however, figuring that he had passed what amounted to five or six tricks at a no trump contract, immediately jumped the contract to 3-No Trumps. The declarer lost three spades and one club, making game.

The South player could hardly be blamed for passing 2-Diamonds, as North had originally passed and with only three bare tricks in his own hand could hardly imagine a game was in sight.

Suggestions For Hollywood Party

(By GLADYS GLAD)

One of the greatest love stories that I have ever read was that tale of the beautiful romance between frail Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning. Elizabeth, you know, was a weak, sickly individual, yet she won the love of the talented and handsome Robert Browning. And one of her grandest attributes was her perfect serenity and repose.

Of course, our bodern beauties are living in a much more high-powered age than the gentle Elizabeth Barrett'e time. But—and perhaps it's because of this—they are acquiring a lot of nervous but unnecessary habits that detract from their charm. Repose and serenity are two words that modern girls should study, for there's nothing quite so annoying as a girl who is continually twitching her hands, tapping her foot, wriggling about in her seat or drumming on things. Such a lack of serenity is not only disturbing to others, but betrays the girl's own lack of poise and self-confidence.

The serene, well-poised woman is always free from flutter. Because her hands do not wave or wiggle idly, when they do move they seem to contribute to her expressiveness. In contrast, the woman who fidgets and seems ill at ease cannot give expression to her feelings naturally. Her tension prevents her from exercising her powers. She acts fussed and uncomfortable. And she appears fussy to her associates. Her gestures lack charm and meaning because she herself lacks poise.

If you are of this type, you can correct the conditions and increase your calmness and poise by learning to relax. Withdraw all nervous energy from your muscles. Let them lapse into quiescence.

Women Must Try For Big Things

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(CP). —The most startling thing about "Last Flight," which is the story of Amelia Earhart's broken journey around the globe, is on the back of the jacket, for all to see, says The Associated Press reviewer.

It is the reason she undertook a former dangerous flight, expressed in a letter written by her for her husband should that flight actually prove her last. She writes:

"Please know I am quite aware of the hazards. I want to do it because I want to do it. Women must try to do things as men have tried. When they fail, their failure must be but a challenge to others....I want want to do it because I want to do it...."

And the statement would apply to the last trip as well. She was lost far out in the Pacific July 2.

Fashion Service

These cosy little outfits include single or double breasted coat, leggings and hat. Sister will probably like her coat to be single breasted while brother will prefer the double breasted model. The matching leggings have zippers at the sides. . . So easy to put on . . . . Elastic holds them snug at the waistline. The gunning hat "pulls down" well on the head, and "stays put."

The pattern and the material will make a delightful gift to your niece or nephew. Soft plain woolens in dark or light shades, tweedy woolens, Scotch plaid woolens, etc. There's a choice!

Style No. 3369 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 54-inch material for coat, hat and leggings; and 1¼ yards of 39-inch lining.

His Princess Won After 37 Years

Pictured after their wedding at the register office in Paddington, London, Eng., are Major Ralph Peto and his bride, the former Princess Lichnowsky, and thereby hangs a tale. The princess and the major were sweethearts 37 years ago, but she gave him up and married Prince Lichnowsky, German ambassador to England at the outbreak of the war. The prince died in 1928, and recently the major met his princess on the French Riviera. He proposed, she said "yes", and so they were married.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"To prize ourselves by what we have, and not by what we are, is to estimate the value of the jewel by the golden frame which contains it. Grace and gold can live together; but the smallest degree of the former in the heart is preferable to a chain of the latter about the neck."
—W. Secker.

Dear Friends:

One thing I will never understand is, how anyone can think they are big because their possessions are big. The accident of birth, of being born into riches, we can give ourselves no credit for.

If our efforts have been crowned with success, must we not give the glory to the One who enabled us to do this? I think so. How many have worked early and late, striven and sweated, yet success passed tem by?

They are just as good as the successful ones, maybe better, but the material things which would show the world how clever they are is denied them, and it does seem unfair.

But, when they see those who have acquired money, or inherited what another acquired, put on airs and take all the credit, it is galling in the extreme.

It is like a woman or man acting proud because they are good-looking. No matter how your looks are, if YOU personally are not sincere, if you have no dependability, if selfishness predominates, all you looks go for nothing at all.

So it is with riches. If there is nothing to you but money, do not think it will gild you and don't get all puffed up over the fact, for riches like looks can disappear in an hour.

We have all seen it happen. We have seen kings and queens deposed, killed, exiled. All the pomp and glory taken away from them. We have seen or heard of princes and dukes working as waiters, as chauffeurs, as gigolos mingling with people they would have scorned to know when fortune smiled on them.

We have seen or read of, men who put money above all the virtues serve time in prisons, all the things they had sold their souls for, taken away from them.

We have read of men throwing themselves out of high windows, or shooting themselves, or using poison, because they put more faith in the golden frame, than by the jewel it surrounded.

Don't mistake me. Money is very necessary. You cannot live without it, it can buy luxuries and make life very pleasant if you have it, and most unpleasant if you don't.

Neither would I have you think that all those with money are to be despised, that there is no good in them. But it is when it is elevated above humanity, when it makes a person purse-proud, when it takes the place of character, that it becomes harmful.

You remember Demas in the bible, who pushed our Lord into telling him what he could do to become more righteous? He had obeyed the commandments, lived a good life, been charitable, and I think he wanted Jesus to tell him how good he was.

But when He told him to "sell all thou hast and give to the poor, and come follow me," Demas couldn't take it. He loved God, he loved to be considered good, but he loved his riches and the power it gave him, more. Time's up.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Rubber Tiling Quiet

In rooms where quiet is desired there is no better floor covering than rubber tiling. A new floor style in this sound-absorbing material shows a field of black-white mixture, a star inlay pattern of white, and bands and border of white-black and black-white.

COOL BEFORE STORING.

Bread should be cooled thoroughly before it is stored. In hot weather, especially, each loaf should be inspected daily for mold. The bread box also should be cleaned and aired frequently and kept in as cool a place as possible.

STYLE IN NOTEPAPER.

White notepaper is not the most fashionable at the present time. It is correct to use it for "family" use, and for letters of sympathy, but for personal notepaper grey or blue are in the best possible taste. Chartreuse is later still. This color is bound in green, brown, or royal blue, with matching monogram.

The smartest notepaper is very small, and all notepaper is now double, and of the finest quality. The correspondence card is out. Single sheets of notepaper, however, are perhaps you have overlooked the fact that soap and water get just as tired as you do.

As long as the water is clean and the suds abundant and sparkling, they do their job of attaching themselves to every particle of dirt so that it can be easily rinsed away. But when the suds grow flat and gray, don't expect them to accomplish miracles.

Let the water out, draw a fresh supply, and whip up a frothy new lather. Only then can you be sure of the best results, for you will be putting the burden on the soap and water where it belongs, instead of on yourself.

Suds That Satisfy

When you scrub and rub and rinse until you're ready to cry with discouragement, yet the clothes come out of the wash tub not quite clean,

Gingersnaps

Two-thirds cup shortening, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one cup New Orleans molasses, one tablespoon vinegar, two tablespoons cold water, 4½ cups flour, one tablespoon soda, one tablespoon ginger. Cream shortening with sugar. Add beaten egg, then molasses, vinegar and cold water. Sift flour, soda and ginger and add to first mixture. Stir in as much of the flour as you can, and knead in remainder. Roll out, cut in desired shapes and bake 10 to 12 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees and 375 degrees F.). These are delicious made either thick or wafer thin. Thick ones, cut in stars and sprinkled with sugar before baking, are fine Christmas cookies.

MUST HAVE A CARE

NEW YORK—(CP).—Paul Moss, commissioner of licenses, has warned city housewives they run the risk of having dishonest or diseased servants in their home through hiring help from unlicensed agencies.

GRANDMA KEEPS FIT

LONDON—(CP)— Grandmothers, even great, are not unusual in the many "keep-fit" classes throughout England, providing "physical jerks" for all classes of women between 20 and 70.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Saturday, December 11

A day of conflicting auguries is indicated by the prevailing planetary configurations. While there are signs of decided gain and prosperity, there are also omens of sudden and hasty moves, excitement, some duplicity and a sorrow or bereavement. The latter may account for the unexpected prosperity, through a bequest, inheritance or trust. Keep calm and be especially tactful with superiors and employers.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of contradictory circumstances, with much gain and prosperity, but also a sorrow or bereavement. The gain may arise from such a source as a will, insurance, trust or property or business inheritance. Refrain from rash or offensive conduct with superiors or employers.

A child born on this day may be practical and energetic although deep, studious, aloof and serious-minded. It may lean to the occult.

FIRE IN ASH HOUSE GIVES BOBCAYGEON SCHOOL NEAR CALL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 10.—Bobcaygeon High School had a narrow escape from destruction by fire at an early hour Thursday morning. Ewart Quinn was aroused from his sleep by a reflection in his bedroom window, and on investigating noticed that the ash house in the rear of the school was in flames. He summoned help and after a fight the fire was supposedly extinguished. An hour later Chief of Police Hardy visited the scene of the blaze and found the school fence on fire in close proximity to the woodshed. The blaze was again extinguished and the property watched until daylight.

Mrs. W. J. Tilly, town, sustained a severe scalp wound, which required several stitches, Wednesday, when a car driven by her husband collided with a car driven by Everett Imrie. The slippery condition of the road caused the collision.

Sonya Williamson, who was arrested at Peterborough on Monday on the nominal charge of vagrancy, was taken to Whitby of Chief of Police Nesbitt,of Port Perry. The accused, who spent some days in Port Perry, is charged with entering McDonald's garage in that town, opening a money box and taking $135 and a new car. The accused had spent all the money. It is reported that he also stole a car in Toronto.

J. Caldwell, a well-known farmer of Sonya district, Mariposa Township, died in Port Perry Hospital this week from injuries received on his farm. He was loading a wagon with wood when the horses became frightened and made a break for liberty. Mr. Caldwell was thrown to the ground, the wheels of the wagon passing over his body.

A former resident of Campbellford, in the person of Mrs. Eugene Austin, died in Lindsay on Wednesday. The deceased has been a resident of Lindsay for the past two years, and is survived by one daughter, two brothers and three sisters.

Mrs. Fergus Porter, of Janetville, was in the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital at Orillia this week, suffering from a broken collar bone, which she sustained in a car accident. Accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Porter was motoring to Orillia when the car struck the soft shoulder on the highway and turned over. Miss Porter escaped unhurt, and the car was only slightly damaged.

Romance Rumors Link Niven And Shearer

Does this mean romance for Norma Shearer? Hollywood gossipers for some months have linked the names of beautiful Norma and the distinguished appearing British actor David Niven, and this party, at the home of screenster Basil Rathbone, lends credence to the report. Niven cavaliered Miss Shearer during the evening and together they are shown at dinner.

BRITAIN VIEWS HER OPEN DOOR

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP)—The boast that England holds wide open her doors to all who would enter therein is losing favor in some quarters. "Home for the Oppressed" is an old theory that needs some looking into, says the new school not so keen on unrestricted entry.

The Evening News of London congratulated M. Chautemps for proposing that France should set up new laws to cope with undesirable aliens. Said M. Chautemps: "There are far too many foreigners living in France who have left their countries for political reasons and who continue their activities on French soil.

The News commented: "It's the same here. Actually it's worse here, because far too many aliens who have left their own countries for criminal reasons find it easy to get into this country. London is the international crook's home from home.

"We want newer and stricter anti-alien legislation, and to get it we must abandon the old self-complacent presumption that the alien who prefers a British domicile to his native land is an intelligent and praiseworthy fellow who it will be a privilege to have in our midst. He may be intelligent but the presumption should be that he is a wrong'un."

RAISE SANCTIONED EMPLOYEES IN 'PEG

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—Pay increases of 10 per cent for the Winnipeg police force and five per cent for other civic employees were recommended either unanimously or by the majority of the board of conciliation which investigated the employees' demand for restoration of pay cuts.

The board consisted of Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart, chairman, Marcus Hyman, representing the employees, and Travers Sweatman, representing the city. The reports were made public today by the Department of Labor.

Four reports were presented, a unanimous report dealing with working conditions generally, a majority report recommending a five per cent increase in civic employees' wages, a minority report by Mr. Sweatman recommending no increase, and a unanimous report recommending a 10 per cent increase in wages for the police force.

The report on working conditions said this question had been withdrawn from the board's purview by an agreement between the city and the employees under which a permanent committee to be known as "the civic employees adjustment committee" would be set up. This committee would deal with all minor complaints and wages.

The majority report on wages recommends that increases take effect from Jan. 1, 1938.

CONFESSION IS NOT ALLOWED IN ARSON CASE

for the purpose of making the scene all the more impressive. I know no other reason."

Crowning Scene

Continuing, Judge Coleman said: "Then we have the crowning scene of this little drama. Caskey finds the accused on the street. This time he has another inspector down there, Mr. Craig who has ben already taken up to his room and to whom he has explained the circumstances."

The judge announced his finding of what took place in the Hotel Champlain bedroom. "They got another statement from this man after warning him. Then they sat down and deliberately cross-examined him and it was none too gentle a cross-examination. You can see the kind of cross-examination it was. This man knew Hanrahan was subnormal, of low intelligence and had a bad memory."

Mental Capacity

"A confession obtained under these circumstances I have set forth I could not possibly accept. I certainly will not permit it to be placed before the jury. Because of his mental capacity, I do not feel that any reliance can be placed on his confession or his statements. I feel that under these circumstances it is essential that the court throw a mantle of protection over one so obviously weak."

Earlier in the afternoon, Hanrahan had been placed in the box by his counsel. Referring to actions of Craig in the hotel room, he said: "He used me in a very dirty manner. He slapped me twice and grabbed my coat. He knocked me back on the bed two or three times. He asked me who burned the buildings and I said I didn't know. He tried to make out I burned the buildings but I said I didn't. Mr. Caskey was doing the writing."

Wanted Insurance

The accused continued: "I understood it was insurance they wanted to give me and I signed the paper. The first I knew what was on the paper was when it was read in police court."

Questioned further by Mr. Carley, Hanrahan declared: "He struck me twice in the stomach and here (indicating his chest). I started to leave once and Craig said 'Hold on, I'm not done with you yet."

"Why did you sign these papers, Mr. Hanrahan?"

"Because I thought it would get my insurance."

"Can you read?"

"No, I can't read."

"Did any person read the paper to you?"

"No"

"You can read, can't you Mr. Hanrahan," Mr. McElderry suggested as he commenced a cross-examination.

"No, I can't."

"Can you write?"

"A little."

"Then, of necessity, you must be able to read."

"No,I can't."

Letter Produced

Mr. McElderry produced a letter from Hanrahan to the Farm Loan Board and the accused admitted he might have written it.

Hanrahan denied to Mr. McElderry that he told Caskey and Craig he had had no lunch the day of the Hotel Champlain affair. He admitted he took 50 cents from the two inspectors, claiming they forced him to take it.

"I might have said it for a joke or something like that," Hanrahan said, admitting finally that he did tell Caskey and Craig he had no lunch.

Mr. McElderry called Inspector Craig to the stand. The inspector said: "I deny that any violence, threats or any blows was done by me or Mr. Caskey."

"Will you tell me if you put your hand on him at any time?"

"No, I did not. The only time I put my hand on him was when I shook hands with him when I was introduced to him."

ALL-NIGHT DANCE

A Cough Won't Go Away Of Itself

Many people get a nasty cough and do not pay any attention to it, saying, "Oh, it will wear away in a short time," but even should it, serious injury may have been done to the bronchial tubes by the prolonged, harsh, racking coughing.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cold or cough it should be gotten rid of immediately, as failure to do so may prove a serious matter to the general health.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been on the market for the past forty-eight years, and we can recommend it as being one of the best remedies for colds and coughs you can possibly procure.

Miss Agnes S. Fraser, R.R. 4, New Glasgow, N.S., writes:—"I had a terrible cough. I used to cough a lot at night. I could not get rid of it. A friend told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It relieved my cough right away."

AIMS AT PRESSURE ON PREMIER KING

such pressure to bear on Ottawa that the least Prime Minister King could do, it is calculated would be to submit the question to Parliament for a decision.

"Queen's Park is said to take the attitude there is no valid reason why power for which it may have no immediate need should not be exported to a ready market across the border, as long as the export is safeguarded with recall provisions, and particularly when the province, the Federal Government, and Hydro consumers, indirectly, would benefit immeasurably from such sale.

"Mr. Hepburn returned unexpectedly to Queen's Park late yesterday from his St. Thomas home, where he has been laid up for a few days with a recurrence of his early-winter bronchitis. He is believed to have conferred with several ministers concerning the proposed Quebec visit and with emissaries from Niagara-Hudson. Last night he refused, however, to admit that any power questions were under discussion."

PORT HOPE-QUEBEC TRAFFIC HALTED

to Quebec, was hard hit by the blizzards, reported last night as abating. Four hours all road traffic east of Belleville was halted by order of police. Snowploughs strove ineffectually to keep highways open. Brockville and Campbell's Bay, Shawville and Quyon in Pontiac County, Quebec, were isolated. Drifts 10 feet high were reported.

A similar situation exists in Western Ontario. Highway crews were slowly reopening roads closed by two and three feet of snow. Vehicular traffic could not enter or leave the northern half of Bruce county and many cars were abandoned in snow drifts. Seaforth in Huron County was isolated. Only one road remained open into Alton, in Peel couty 50 miles west of Toronto.

Goodwill, Christian Service Are Required to Put Across Youth Training Program

Movement Explained As Community Effort On Behalf Of "The Lost Generation"

"It is goodwill; yes and the consecrated Christian service behind that goodwill that is necessary if this movement is to succeed," Dr. Charles Sinclair asserted in an urgent appeal to all sections of the community on behalf of what he termed "the lost generation" of unemployed youth.

Director of the Youth Training Program in Ontario, Dr. Sinclair addressed a public meeting in the Collegiate auditorium last night under auspices of the local committee of the Dominion - Provincial Youth Training Program. Carl S. Browne was in the chair.

Introduced by Alex L. Elliott, M. L.A., as "a former newspaperman, foreign correspondent and qualified consulting psychologist," Dr. Sinclair gave his audience, which was largely composed of young men and representatives of industry and commerce, a comprehensive review of the aim and purpose behind the Youth-Training Program.

Open Door of Industry

Under the plan, he said, it was hoped to train new people for industry and commerce and to open the door of opportunity to those young people who left school during the depression years to find the doors of industry and commerce barred to them, "An interruption in the normal flow of the economic system," he said, "made it impossible for them to find employment, and today there is an army of young people around 22, 23 and 24 years of age, untrained and without ability of any particular kind whom the plan wishes to aid. They wander from factory to factory asking in vain for employment."

"The Lost Generation"

Describing them as "the lost generation" and "the wounded soldiers of an economic upheaval," Dr. Sinclair asked, "Are not the lives of these young people just as valuable as the lives of those other boys who sleep in France and Flanders?"

Speaking of the danger of wrecked lives which are often the result of enforced idleness and the inability to give expression to the mating and homemaking instincts, the speaker stressed "unless we do something about the youth problem there is grave danger that the fabric of society may become decayed and undermined."

Throwing out a direct challenge to youth he urged that a lot would depend on themselves in the manner in which they approached the opportunity which the government was offering through the Youth Training Plan. He emphasized they would have to practise self-sacrifice and learn the importance of reliability in adapting themselves to the tasks that lay before them.

Pointing out that the plan did not profess to be a cure all for the unemployment problem, but that it was designed primarily to help the class of unemployed previously referred to, Dr. Sinclair stated, "We cannot put our hands into sacks and pull out jobs. But the government has appointed representatives to canvass industry and commerce to try and find openings for young people by training them to take their place in industry, agriculture and commerce."

Representative Introduced

He introduced Douglas Stewart who has been appointed by the government as representative for this district. It was explained Mr. Stewart's work would be to canvass employers of labor in the city and district in an endeavour to find placement for the unemployed youth of the city.

Dr. Sinclair dealt with some of the results already attained through the Youth Training Plan in other parts of Ontario, declaring, "The plan is showing youth they do not stand alone and that society is trying to give them the opportunity which is theirs."

"We see in the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Plan," he said, "a new hope for unemployed youth."

Agreeing that opposition to the plan had been met with from some skilled workers in industry who fear the project might mean their own displacement, Dr. Sinclair stressed, "In no case are young people being taken into industry where they will displace other help. We do not intend that they shall."

Urged to Register

Under the Plan all unemployed young men and women are urged to register for employment with the Employment Service here, the superintendent of which is Dan Douglas. Applications on file will then be gone through and young men and young women will be selected and sent to an employer. The employer will reserve the right to select those he will employ.

Of particular interest to unemployed young women was Dr. Sinclair's announcement that applications for the second course in homecraft training which would probably be started in the New Year, may be sent to Miss Dorothy Jackson, superintendent of Welfare, Queen's Park. He said many splendid openings would be available to young women who qualified in the course.

Commending the work of the local committee Dr. Sinclair said young people were discouraged and disillusioned and did not know where to turn for advice. In this connection he suggested the service clubs and businessmen could be of great help by offering "counsel, guidance, and assistance." It was just as much a spiritual problem as it was a physical one, he believed.

Courageous Youth

In defence of modern youth, whom he said had been grossly libelled by many of their elders, Dr. Sinclair spoke from some of the personal contacts he had made with unemployed young men in Toronto where a tragic situation is to be found. He said he had found men with good educational backgrounds living in dire poverty but facing life with a grim courage. All of them were true to their earlier home training and would not hear of any loosening of their moral code.

Reiterating his appeal Dr. Sinclair pleaded, "I ask the people of Peterborough to give wholehearted support, soul, body and mind to this work. It is the goodwill; yes, the consecrated Christian service behind that goodwill that is necessary if this movement is to succeed."

Buy Canadian Goods

He reminded his audience that in asking local employers to find places in industry for unemployed youth, so as to enable them to make a living in their own land, the community generally must be prepared to support those manufacturers by buying only Canadian goods wherever possible.

Mayor George A. Macdonald and J. J. Duffus, M.P., voiced the thanks of the meeting to Dr. Sinclair for his address and the latter said he believed he was right in stating, "Peterborough industry and Peterborough county agriculture will be found ready and willing to cooperate to the fullest extent."

A question period followed among those participating being Alderman James Dutton, Alexander Mowat, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, and Fred Johnston, director of vocational training at P.C.I. and V.S. among others.

GRAND JURY URGES ARTIFICIAL LEG BE SECURED FOR MAN

Grand jurors deviated from the usual practice of grand juries to urge that authorities concerned undertake the matter of obtaining an artificial ley for Robert King, an inmate of the House of Refuge, as they made their report to Judge D. B. Coleman at the General Sessions of the Peace sitting to-day.

"We would like to bring before your notice the case of R. King, a young man about thirty years of age, who was admitted to this institution due to the los sof a leg," the report tendered by Thomas Kay, foreman, said. "This man was promised an artificial leg and he has been here nine months and not heard any more about it. We would like to see something done for this young man, so that he could try and earn his own living."

Inspected Institutions

The jury found conditions in seven county institutions which they visited eminently satisfactory and commendations for the supervisors and caretakers were frequent in the report.

Recommendations made concerning the House of Refuge were that a snow fence be erected from the main building to the farm building; that the matron be given permission to hire extra help to compensate an under-staffed condition, and that several hand chemical fire extinguishers be provided the institution.

The jury recommended that the ante-room used by the grand jury and the magistrate's chamber at the Court House be redecorated. Wood flooring on the ground floor of the county gaol should be repaired, the report suggested.

Dealing with the Children's Shelter, the jurors found: "The children of this institution were found to be well cared for, well fed, very well looked after. We would like to make the following suggestions: That a new and larger cook-stove be installed as the present one is far too small for the requirements of this establishment; that several hand chemical fire extinguishers be provided; that the steam pipe in the cellar be insulated to conserve the heat wasted in the cellar."

Dismissing the jury with his thanks for their efforts, Judge Coleman commented: "I have seldom seen such a thorough and comprehensive report as you have placed in my hands to-day."

250 VOICES TO SING OLD MASTERPIECE

LONDON, Dec. 10 (C.P.).—Byrd's "Great Service," masterpiece of the Elizabethan music which was recovered a few years ago from a mass of ancient manuscripts, will be performed by a choir of 250 voices at Queen's Hall to-morrow.

One of the most elaborate examples of Tudor choral compositions, the work was discovered by Canon E. H. Fellowes, leading authority on the "Golden Age" of English music. Sifting through a heap of the Cathedral music, some of which hadn't seen the light of day for more than 300 years, Canon Fellowes soon realized he had come across important work by the famous composer.

After diligent labor Canon Fellowes succeeded in restoring to musical literature the "Great Service." The music is a setting of English matins, evensong and parts of the Communion office.

The work had its first performance since Elizabethan days at Newcastle Cathedral in 1924. It was sung at the tercentenary observance of Byrd's death.

He was then informed that the confession had been published not only in yesterday's newspapers, but in issues at the time of Hanrahan's preliminary hearings when the confession was first made public. The judge ordered the jury called back to their box and repeated to the twelve men a warning that they must not read any newspaper overnight.

C.G.E. ORCHESTRA PRAISED.

The C.G.E. Orchestra under direction of Reg Dyer provided a pleasing program of music at a meeting held in the Collegiate auditorium and addressed by Dr. Charles Sinclair, director of the Youth Training Program in Ontario. At the close of his discussion of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Plan, Dr. Sinclair suggested to his audience that in view of the nearness of Christmas, "We might get together in a few moments of fellowship and sing a carol." His suggestion was received with enthusiasm, but was not acted upon because most of the musicians who had earlier featured on the program, had left the auditorium. The guest speaker graciously commented on the quality of the musical program that was provided and called on those present to express their approval with a round of applause.

Stumped When It Comes to Sewing, Firemen Ask Women to Help

THE Santa Claus workshop at the Fire Hall is crammed full with toys that will be distributed at Christmastide to gladden and delight the heart of some child, who might otherwise be overlooked.

Gleaming with new paint the toys have been all rebuilt or repaired, and serve as a tribute to the patience and skill of the firefighters who contribute so generously to this effort year after year.

There is scarcely a thing the fireladdies cannot do, when it comes to collecting old toys and making new ones out of them; that is with one exception.

They can perform marvels of plastic surgery on hapless doll casualties that have been the victims of many a nursery battle, and from a collection of heads, torsos, arms and legs can skillfully manufacture dolls every bit as good as those that come straight from doll factories.

But when it comes to dressing them, the smoke-eaters are stumped. Fingers that can display such dexterity with saw and hammer, or paint and brush, are all thumbs when it gets down to a question of sewing doll clothes.

They have decided that fagotting and hemstitching (if those are the correct terms), are better left to other hands. Accordingly an appeal is made by the firemen to women's or girl's organizations and to individual needlewomen to come forward and undertake the work of dressing the dolls.

There are several dozen dolls in the toy shop lying around in a state of complete or semi-nudity, and with Christmas Day fast approaching the firemen are anxious to get them all dressed and ready for adoption by some little child-mother.

AGED HULL MAN FOUND

HULL, Que., Dec. 10—(CP)—Eugene Decosse, Hull district police investigator, said last night he had received word 75-year-old Aime Soullere, missing from his home here since Saturday, had been found in a lumber camp near Kingsmere, a few miles north of here.

Decosse said he would leave tomorrow to check the report, one of several received since Soullere, only lightly clad and without food or money, disappeared.

MASS PRODUCTION HAS OPENED UP NEW INDUSTRIES

Mass production methods have not increased unemployment but have opened up new industries and provided more work than ever before for labor, according to Professor A. E. Allcutt of the University of Toronto. Professor Allcutt was the speaker at an extension lecture on "Mass Production and its Consequences," held at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

A survey of the unemployment situation made in Great Britain in the midst of the depression, in 1933, revealed most men were thrown out of work in industries lacking mechanization, least in those where mass production methods were in force, the speaker claimed. He attributed the ability of modern mechanized plants to absorb increasingly more workers to an ability to produce goods more cheaply, so increasing sales.

Chief problem to be overcome now is faulty distribution, Professor Allcutt said. "By substituting mechanical slaves for human slaves distribution has fallen far short of production," he asserted.

Scores Commissions.

He scored repeated government commissions on unemployment for their failure to include among their number engineers who have brought about mass production methods. "People wonder why the men they blame for unemployment's increase never try to bring about an end to it," he said. "It's because they have never been asked."

He outlined causes for the growth of mass production as, ability to force delivery of exactly required products from wholesalers; cheapness of raw materials; lessened cost of production and transport; lessened waste; ability to make by-products from left-over materials; advantage of large sales and advertising programs.

Benefits.

Mass production methods have increased not only the number of workers but have been responsible for better pay and working conditions, he maintained. He defended efficiency schemes in principle but admitted that they are often used by unscrupulous employers to the detriment of labor. "I hold no brief for the Bedeaux system, because I know it is unnecessarily complicated, but where it has caused trouble is where it has been improperly used," he asserted. He found the chief problem facing this country today to be one of training youth in industry and urged scientific planning for years ahead to determine anticipated employment capacity.

PENNY BANK HAS TOTAL $17,650.40

Children in the city's public schools had a total of $17,650.40 to their credit in the Ontario Penny Bank at the end of October, the current report issued by J. R. Littleproud indicates. As compared with the figures of a year ago, it was an increase of $1,476.46.

Queen Alexandra School was in the lead locally with 84 per cent. of the pupils making weekly deposits. King Edward School was a close second with 76 per cent. of the pupils depositing weekly.

There are now 499 schools operating the Penny Bank, and at the recent meeting of directors, a gratifying statement was presented, showing that the children of the province had on deposit as at June 30 last, a total of $1,350,792.74, an increase of $52,000 by comparision with the same period of the previous year. The chairman of the local Board of Education was placed on the directorate at the annual meeting of directors.

HASTINGS WOMEN WILL DISTRIBUTE CHRISTMAS GIFTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 10.—Mrs. C. M. Baker, Front Street, Hastings, extended the hospitality of her home on Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Hastings Women's Institute for their December meeting.

A special program with Christmas very much in the foreground featured the meeting, which was presided over by the president, Mrs. C. M. Baker. The roll call was answered by a verse containing the word "Peace" or "Christmas."

Christmas cheer gifts were brought by the members for the needy and shut-ins of the village or district. Gifts included warm clothing, scarfs, gloves, fruit, etc., also the beautiful woollen quilt, quilted at the home of Mrs. Grant Sine by the members. These gifts will be packed at the Council Chambers at 2 p.m., Monday, December 20th.

An urgent appeal is made for as many members as possible to be present to help pack and distribute the gifts before Christmas. Anyone in the village or district who can contribute suitable gifts for this needy cause may do so, by leaving them with the president or bringing them to the meeting, where they will be gratefully received by the Institute.

Mrs. Baker, president, and Mrs. G. Kerr, 1st vice-president, were requested to interview the Hastings Council on the evening of December 15 in regard to erecting an illuminated Christmas tree on the Park grounds.

The program included a very inspiring paper by Mrs. G. Sine on "Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men," also an interesting report by Mrs. J. A. MacDonald on "Highlights of the Belleville area convention. Mrs. J. A. Walsh read a poem entitled "Let's Have a Tea."

Before the close of the meeting, votes of thanks were extended to Mrs. J. A. MacDonald and Mrs. G. Sine for their splendid papers, also to Mrs. Baker for her hospitality.

Luncheon was then served, refreshments being provided by Mrs. S. Spooner, Mrs. V. Findlay and Mrs. J. A. Brown.

Programs were distributed for meetings for the year.

Wants No Nazis

Leading a fight of long-time residents of Southbury, Conn., against establishment of a Nazi camp of the German-American Bund in the little town, is Miss Jennie Hinman, shown here, a descendant of a revolutionary war veteran, who settled in Southbury many years ago. The real fight against the German-American party opened last Sunday when police invoked an old blue law and arrested two members of the bund, charging them with working on Sunday. They were allegedly clearing brush for the proposed camp.

Business in Brussels, Belgium, was affected by the slump in Wall Street.

THE NOISE BECAME MUCH LOUDER ON THE FLOORS BELOW, CAME UP THE STAIRS, STRAIGHT TOWARD SCROOGE'S DOOR. RIGHT THROUGH IT AND INTO THE ROOM! IT WAS MARLEY'S GHOST!

"I AM HERE TO WARN YOU THAT YOU HAVE YET A CHANCE OF ESCAPING MY CHAINED AND FETTERED FATE. YOU WILL BE HAUNTED, EBENEZER SCROOGE," CONTINUED THE GHOST. "BY THREE SPIRITS."

"EXPECT THE FIRST SPIRIT TOMORROW, WHEN THE BELL TOLLS ONE, A SECOND THE NEXT NIGHT AT ONE, AND THE THIRD THE FOLLOWING NIGHT AT TWELVE." WITH THESE WORDS THE GHOST BOUND UP ITS JAWS, MOVED BACKWARD TO THE WINDOW AND FLOATED THROUGH IT.

AFTER THE SPECTRE HAD DEPARTED, SCROOGE LOOKED OUT AND SAW COUNTLESS PHANTOMS WANDERING ABOUT; MOANING AND LAMENTING. MANY HAD BEEN KNOWN TO SCROOGE WHILE THEY WERE ALIVE.

PALESTINE HARD ON ITS RULERS

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP). — Sir Ronald Storrs, himself a former military and civil governor of Jerusalem, has come to the defence of British officials in Palestine where Britain is policeman under mandate.

"They are blamed by everybody," he said in a speech at Ealing, London suburb. "If they take action they are called brutal. If they don't take action they are called slack."

Sir Ronald, who was in Palestine himself in an official capacity for nine years, said David Lloyd George was the only man he knew who "instantly saw the whole position.' He recalled a conversation with the former Liberal prime minister on the occasion of his first leave from Jerusalem.

"He greeted me rather sternly and said: 'General Storrs, I have complaints against you both from Arabs and from Jews.' I said: 'It is perfectly true, sir. I am trying to be perfectly fair to both sides.' He said: 'Don't forget, General Storrs, the moment one side stops complaining you will be dismissed'."

BELLEVILLE AREA BLOCKED 36 HOURS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 10 (CP) —Snow fell again to-day in this area as Provincial Highways Department struggled to open No. 2 Highway, now blocked from this city to Marysville, 13 miles east. No traffic has moved over this stretch for more than 36 hours.

Scores of transport trucks and motor cars were tied up here waiting a chance to go East. From Napanee west to Colborne, snow was about two feet deep.

Trains were close to schedule, but bus traffic to the East was suspended. Extra snow ploughs and other road equipment worked through the night in a discouraging battle against winds that drifted the snow.

Ten miles north of Belleville and eight miles to the south seem to be the limits of the storm. The 18-mile wide storm has extended, however, along the Bay of Quinte shore in all its intensity.

FISHERMEN CHANGE YACHTSMAN FINDS

CHARLOTTETOWN, Dec. 10. — (CP)—Young men, "clean-cut smart young fellows from 18 to 30 years old," had taken the place of "all the old-time fishermen of the North Side as I knew it many years ago," Fred E. Morris, president of the Northumberland Racing Association, said following a cruise along the north coast of Prince Edward Island.

He suspected the change had taken place through the introduction of the gasoline engine into the fishing business.

"One can see that they know their engines from the way they handle them, and they seem to keep them in first-class shape, ready to start at a moment's notice. I took a short run up St. Peter's Bay with one of them, and I noticed that one twirl of the engine wheel was all that was necessary to start it.

"And speaking of this very noticeable change in the personnel of the fishermen, the most amazing thing about them was that they arrived in dozens with their bathing suits on, and played in the water for a long time, diving and swimming off the roof of our cockpit.

"In the old days a fisherman who could swim was a rarity and the change in this respect astonished me."

STORM HARD ON NETS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 10 (C.P.). — Fishermen on the Bay of Quinte don't like the storm that has been raging for two days. They can't lift their nets because of the ice. It is too thin to support a man walking, yet too thick to allow boats to pass without a great deal of trouble. High winds don't make things easier either.

Dawnay, army instructor at Imperial Defence College, and former controller of programs at the British Broadcasting Corporation has been appointed director of public relations at the War Office. paign" rally, the Prime Minister said Imperial preference "has benefited the Dominions, for whom it has found expanding markets and increased purchasing power. It has also benefited this country, for it has filled our factories with orders and found employment for many thousands of our workers."

The Prime Minister described the Ottawa economic conference of 19 as "the historic conference" which established "the principle of Imperial preference among the principal partners of the Empire."

Mr. Chamberlain indicated that Dominion collaboration with the United Kingdom should not be limited to economic questions, but should be developed in the domain of foreign policy and defence of Empire communications.

He would "seek and seize" every opportunit which "presents itself for collaboration with other partners in the Commonwealth in the means of defence, in our attitude and relations with foreign powers, in the development of the means of communication between us, and in the improvement of Empire resources by the assistance of British science, British enterprise and British finance."

Partnership with the "other great democracies" of the Empire raised Britain from the "status of a fourth rate power to be the heart of an empire which stands in the front rank of all powers in the world," he declared.

Figures Prove Russia Gained Under The Soviet Government

People Better Clothed, Fed And Educated Than Under Czars

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP).—In his educational, cultural and scientific progress from that of a backward nation of illiterates to that of a country pioneering in flights over the North Pole was emphasized on the Soviet Union's 20th birthday, Nov. 7, celebrated in the midst of the campaign for the general election Dec. 12.

Soviet leaders constantly remind the masses how much better off they are materially and mentally than under the czars. Foreign observers agree that the material and mental lot of the masses has risen from what, before the war, was almost zero.

Visitors who were in Russia several years ago report that the Russian, while far from being well-dressed, now is better clothed. Food now appears sufficient, if not overplentiful. It no longer is rationed.

Thirty million children are going to school in Russia, where there were only 7,800,000 before the revolution. Illiteracy has been reduced from 67 per cent to 10 per cent. The young Russians have 92,000 playgrounds, where they had only 125 under the czars.

Until Soviet Russia's struggling industrial development catches up with the needs of the 170,000,000 inhabitants, there is unlikely to be any unemployment. New areas have been settled and are being developed notably the great region above the arctic circle.

A drive is noticeable to develop new political leaders in the younger generations. Managers of factories and other industrial leaders likewise are being recruited among the younger workers who have shown outstanding skill.

One reason for the reliance on youth is its loyalty to the communist regime as headed by Joseph Stalin, since the new generation was born and educated to it. It is perhaps significant that fathers, mothers and grandparents have been the terrors of the past, the forced asked to tell their children "about labor which bent backs in capitalist factories and fields for fat owners and landlords, the mockery of the people by the czar's dogs—the police."

Conversation Guarded

Although the dread political police watches over the loyalty of the soviet citizen, the purge appears to have affected the ordinary Russian little, except to make him shirk dangerous responsibility, keep his mouth shut tighter so far as politics is concerned and avoid contact with foreigners, lest he be suspected of treating with spies.

What the Russian talks about in the one room assigned his family in the overcrowded cities is thus denied foreign ears. In the streets, where the great majority of Russians seem to pass most of their leisure time, the talk on any political or international question adheres strictly to the formulas of the official press.

"Free love" in the Soviet Union once was an object of criticism in the outside world. Relations between the young of the sexes appear free and easy enough now. But family life has become more stabilized, vital statistics indicate, by the abolition of legal abortions, encouragement of child-rearing and discouragement of divorce by making it more costly. Soviet Russia, like other countries of Europe, is intent on rearing a lot of healthy young men for the next war. It is said that one out of every three women in Moscow is an expectant mother. That is an exaggeration, statistics indicate only one in seven.

The year-old constitution, providing for direct, secret elections, indicates the soviet leaders consider the revolution over and the people ready for the ballot. Whether the current purge will end the state of civil war, through which, critics say, Russia is still passing, is one of the manifold mysteries of Russian life.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

WORLD IS BETTER FOR JESTER SHAW

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (CP)—Russians new book "Great Contemporaries," Winston Churchill labels Bernard Shaw "the world's most famous intellectual clown." But the brilliant author-statesman admits that "certainly we are all the better for having had the jester in our midst."

Through the 21 sketches in Mr. Churchill's reflections run similarly picturesque descriptions, generally in a kindly mood yet brightened by thrusts with a ringing blade. Only in fashioning Trotsky does he lay down the rapier in favor of the bludgeon.

Haig, Foch, King George V, Clemenceau, the Kaiser, Chamberlain—all appear in Churchhill's parade of greatness in characteristic dress and phrase. There is no woman. As a personal friend of most of his subjects, Churchill has stripped them of state dress and presented them in lounge suits.

To get back to Mr. Shaw: "Few people practice what they preach and no one less so than Bernard Shaw," writes Mr. Churchhill. "His spiritual home is no doubt in Russia, his native land is the Irish Free State, but he lives in comfortable England. No one has ever lived a more respectable life. He derides the marriage vow and even at times the sentiment of love itself, yet no one is more happily or wisely married—yet, and it is the essence of the paradox, no one can say Shaw is not at heart sincere or that his life's message has not been consistent.

JUDGE APPROVED WORD 'ALLEGED'

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP).—Approval of the use of the word "alleged" in newspaper stories of court news was contained in one of the last judicial opinions of Sir Rigby P. W. Swift, senior judge of the King's Bench division of the high court of justice, who died Oct. 18.

During the hearing of a case involving The Evening News, Sir William Jowitt, K. C., appearing for the newspaper, said that, while the writ in the case referred to claimed damages "for fraud and breach of contract," the newspaper said damages were claimed for "alleged" fraud and "alleged" breach of contract. Sir William held that statement was entirely accurate.

During the argument Mr. Justice Swift stressed the point, saying:

"When the newspaper put in the word 'alleged' it indicated to everybody: 'There is a dispute about this. It doesn't mean that these defendants have been guilty of fraud; it merely means that somebody is suggesting that they have, and they are denying it.'"

Lord Hewart, lord chief justice of England, in giving judgment for the newspaper, said the plaintiff suggested that publication of the nature of the writ and the names of the parties was calculated to prejudice a fair trial of the action in which that writ was issued.

"That argument is, to my way of thinking, altogether too far fetched," Lord Hewart said.

BAHAMA RESIDENTS TELL EXPERIENCES IN JAILS OF CUBA

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP).—Hoping—Experiences of 10 residents of the Bahaman island of Inagua in a series of Cuban jails in which they were interned for having firearms in their possession when they landed on the island were related here.

The 10, including Josiah M. Erickson, owner of a salt manufacturing plant on Inagua, had been forced to sail to Cuba because of wind and tide when the engine of their motor boat broke down a few miles off Inagua. They had been at sea four days.

Landing at Cannanova, they were taken in custody and later taken by truck, on foot, and by train to Mayari, where they were lodged in army barracks. The first food they received was given them some 12 hours after their capture.

Until their arrival at Mayari they had been refused permission to get in touch with Bahamas and secure identification, they said. There they bribed an army officer to allow them to telephone the Inagua administrator, who told them to proceed to Antilla where the British Consul would have the necessary information to obtain their release.

The prisoners were able to bribe other officials to have them transferred to Antilla, but upon arriving at that place found there had been no British Consul there for several years. They then communicated with the American Consul who said he would get in touch with British and American Consuls at Santiago. The prisoners were then returned to the city jail at Mayari and placed in a small cell "occupied by about 50 filthy prisoners."

Later they were taken to Santiago where they were refused permission to contact the British or American Consuls, and placed in two cells already crowded with prisoners, some of whom were convicted murderers and "filthily diseased."

"The prisoners promptly pounced on us for money and cigarettes," their story said. "we told them we had none. We sat with our backs together, ready for any emergency.

One Last Bribe.

"One final bribe and the guard got a message through for us to the American Consul. About two hours later there was a great commotion upstairs. The Americans (six of the prisoners were Americans) were taken upstairs to find that the American Consul had arrived and, for the first time, some action was being started. All he could arrange that night was that the whole party was shifted to a cell by themselves.

"Day followed day with promises of release. It was not until third day after our arrival at Santiago that the British Consul showed up. He said it was up to the British Consul-General in Havana to give them instructions."

Finally the men were released, eight days after their capture, with the assistance of friends. "The Ericksons had telephoned the State Department at Washington and influential business men in Havana, while the Colonial Office in London kept in contact with Havana," their story said.

COMMUNITY HALL FOR MINING TOWN

TBARKERVILLE, B. C., Dec. 10.—(CP)—A modern community hall will soon replace one of the Cariboo interior's earliest buildings — the Theatre Royal which served residents of this mining town as recreation place for 65 years, and from time to time as fire hall and undertaking parlor.

The theatre was built in 1869, less than a year after a fire on Sept. 16, 1868, destroyed the beginnings of the town. When it was opened the Barkerville Amateur Dramatic Association staged "Still Waters Run Deep."

The fire-bell, mounted in a tower over the main entrance, was rung for every fire for more than six decades, but it crashed to the ground this autumn when a group of men, eager to help ring it for the last time, pulled too hard on the rope.

When it was built, the theatre was two storeys high, but in 1872 the bottom storey was cut off and the building was set on posts to protect it from tailings that washed downstream from placer workings.

In September, 1933, the Theatre Royal, renamed the Northwestern, was opened as a moving picture house. Fourteen months later it was closed as a theatre when Fire Marshal J. A. Thomas of Vancouver condemned it as unsafe.

Last September it was opened for one night, when a dance was held to raise money for the new hall.

BRITISH SYSTEM URGED AS SOUND

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP). — Dr. Horder, physician-in-ordinary to the King, believes regimentation of a nation in achieving physical fitness is undemocratic and unsound. The government had deliberately chosen the individual method, which took longer, was more difficult and less dramatic, but typically British.

Germany and Italy, he said, had accomplished much in the physical improvement of their peoples. They had been healthier than they were. "But I do not think the argument very sound that takes the regimentation that has happened in Germany as proof that their great leader is the greatest psychologist of the age," he declared. "It takes some psychological acumen to get power over men, but between having power over men and curing their troubles is a far cry."

The physical training system adopted in the British Isles, he described as the big great test of democracy.

"If we can do it democracy lives; if we fail it dies."

Argos-Bombers On Even Terms For Dominion Rugby Classic

Too Much Fritz Hanson For Game Speculators To Take Chances

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP).—A five-day bear market on Winnipeg football hopes stiffened today as the Blue Bombers prepared to invade Toronto for Saturday's Canadian championship battle against the Argonauts. The Bombers leave their Ann Arbor, Mich., training quarters tonight.

Just why sentiment against the Western champions should have warmed as the weather got cold was obscure. Reports from Ann Arbor have stressed the difficulties Coach Bob Fritz was having in freezing weather, and Argos looked and felt like champions all week.

But the fact is odds on Argos are either scarce or non-existent. It's an even-money bet nearly everywhere in town. The bulls were in the football market for the Scullers without doing anything about it. The market has settled.

Too many considerations have entered the struggle between the West's Blue Bombers and the East's Argos for comfort. There's the weather for one thing. The intersectional classic may be staged in a foot of snow or merely on the field hard as granite.

Too Much Hanson.

There's Fritz Hanson. Since the golden ghost brought about the upheaval of 1935, leading Winnipeg to smashing triumph over Hamilton tigers, a singular tendency to avoid wagering against him has been noted across the country.

Then there's Coach Bob Fritz himself, a great line-plunger. Nobody has forgotten how Fritz ripped the Hamilton line to shreds.

Nor has anyone neglected to consider that fingers become numb in freezing weather and that Argos, who toss the ball around as though it were a hot potato, may fumble. As ball-handlers, the Scullers are amazingly capable but perfection in winter is too much to expect.

Barring pre-game snowstorms, Canadian Rugby Union heads expect a crowd of from 12,000 to 15,000 for the game in Varsity Stadium. If snow-clogged roads in Eastern Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula are opened and the weather is fine, 15,000 may be a conservative estimate.

Even if Halfback Art Stevenson is declared eligible to play, the Bombers will be under-strength. Ole Midgarten, snap, and Martin Gainor, middle, have been in Canada less than a year and are ineligible. Gainor is regarded as a great roving secondary defenceman.

In his place will be Bert Oja, one-time Minnesota all-America, but Oja's injured shoulder may go out of joint with the first heavy tackle. Should the blond husky escape injury he will provide Winnipeg with the defensive power they need.

Expect Stevenson Decision

Stevenson, attending University of Manitoba, doesn't qualify under the one-year residence rule but Winnipegs claim he is eligible because he entered Canada as a student.

Decision on the claim is expected to be handed down today by President W. C. Foulds of the C.R.U. who conducted a vote of executive members. Stevenson trained with the Bombers at Ann Arbor.

Argos will be without Annis Stukus, quarterback and place-kicking star whose back was injured in the Sarnia game last Saturday. In his place will be Brother Bill, also a capable signal-caller. The younger Stukis can pass and run back kicks.

Probable starters on the Sculler halfback are Ted Morris, Johnny Edwards, Bob Isbister and Red Storey. Coach Lew Hayman may put Art West on the field instead of Edwards or use Doug MacPherson at the start instead of Storey.

Winnipeg's halfline includes Greg Kabat, Hanson, Steve Olander or Stevenson and Cliff Roseborough. All except Olander have played before in East-West games, Roseborough when Regina Roughriders were beaten by Hamilton in the 1933 final.

Ross Married

Welterweight champion Barney Ross got his contract for a long-term job, but it's not for his services in the ring but in the home. He is pictured here as he embraces his bride, Pearl Seigel, of New York city. A private ceremony in a Chicago hotel was the setting for the marriage.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP).—Unless his health improves a lot, Connie Mack, 74 and ill, will have no active part in the management of the Athletics next season, and may not even accompany the team south... Buddy Baer says you just ought to see Maxie toting his new baby around... When the Oklahoma City University football team held its annual banquet, the players presenting Coach Toby Greene with a travelling bag... Of course, that had nothing to do with the fact that the team lost nine of its 10 games this year. . . .

Nobody in Boston will admit it, but there's every reason to believe Jimmy Foxx definitely is on the market... "Recession" or no, the New York Rangers pulled in 70,732 customers for their first five home hockey games this year, against 48,732 for the first five last season...

Bill McKechnie, Cincinnati pilot, always smokes a curved-stem pipe because it enables him to shoulder his gun while hunting without removing the pipe... Too bad about Harry Kipke, but it wasn't unexpected.

KIPKE RELEASED AS MICHIGAN U. FOOTBALL COACH

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 10.—Harry Kipke, dismissed as head football coach at the University of Michigan Thursday in a surprise move by the Athletic Board, indicated last night that he would seek another coaching position.

Director of the Wolverine grid teams since 1929, Kipke was ousted by unanimous vote of the board. His present contract will terminate next June. No further changes in the football coaching staff, which includes Hunk Anderson, line coach, were indicated by the board, nor was there any mention of a successor to Kip.

"Distinct Surprise."

"The announcement comes as a distinct surprise; it's all been rather sudden," Kipke commented. "I don't know exactly what I'll do. I have never considered any other coaching job, although I have been approached on several occasions."

He said he would attend the meeting of American football coaches at New Orleans during the Christmas holidays, hinting that he might accept a new job after conferring there with athletic directors of other colleges.

"There is the possibility that I will know more about my future after that meeting," he said.

News of Kipke's removal came as a surprise to many alumni and followers of the Michigan eleven. He had directed the Wolverines through a comparatively successful 1937 schedule in which four games were won and four lost. Three of the victories were against Big Ten foes, the fourth over Pennsylvania.

During his nine years as Michigan football coach, Kipke's teams won forty-six games, played five tie games and suffered twenty-six defeats. His football men won two national titles and four Big Ten championships. Grid stock at Michigan improved greatly this year and all indications had pointed to the retention of Kipke for at least another season.

HOCKEY INTEREST HIGH AT HASTINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 10. — Three hockey meetings are slated for this district within the next week. In Hastings to-night (Friday) the Hastings Hockey Club is holding its first meeting for the coming season at 8 o'clock in the Clarendon Hotel to elect a 1938 executive. It is expected that the Juniors, who have joined O.H.A. in Group C in the East Peterborough League, will get their financial situation cleared up.

At Norwood on Monday, December 13, the executive is calling a meeting to discuss plans for the Rural League. Invitations have been sent to the surrounding villages to have representatives present.

A general meeting will be held in Campbellford on Wednesday evening, December 15, where plans for the East Peterborough Hockey League will be brought up for discussion. Six teams have been mentioned as likely to make up the league. The group as given by O.H.A. lists Norwood, Havelock, Hastings, Belleville, and Peterborough as forming a B Group, and in the playoffs the first three teams mentioned would receive a bye to play in Group C. The plan under way at present is to have the six teams, namely: Lakefield, Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood, Warsaw, and Havelock, form a league and play C hockey throughout the season.

Girls' Cage Loop Re-organized Here

The Ladies City Basketball League was reorganized last evening at a general meeting in the Y.W.C.A., and a six-team Intermediate circuit resulted. Teams in now are: Westclox, Y.W.C.A., two St. Johns entries, and two Quakers. Entries will be accepted for another week, prospective teams being asked to notify Miss Ecobichon or Miss Littlefield at the Y.W. An executive meeting will be held within two weeks to draw up the schedule. It will be drawn in two halves, and the first three teams in the first half will play as a Senior group in the second half, the other three remaining as an Intermediate unit.

Officers elected for the year were: Hon. President, Mrs. R. E. Cutting; President, Joe Cooper; Vice-President, Whitty Thirnbeck; secretary, Sybil Ecobichon; treasurer, Shirley Zacks; schedule committee, Harold Cutting, Miss C. Littlefield and Whitty Thirnbeck; executive will consist of captains of each team.

C.G.E. and Westclox Senior teams will play in the J.O.B.A. League of Central Ontario, and the local circuit has agreed to allow these teams to hold some of their games on regular basketball night at the Y.W. Other teams from here are invited to join the Peterborough circuit within a week.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'uckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT HAS become the custom to pan the Ontario Hockey Association, clubs, scribes, players and fans indulging in this pastime pretty much the year 'round. We too have done our share. We'd like to lay off the puck body now—and even slip the O.H.A. sub-committee a boost for its firm stand regarding Kingston teams' threat to drop out—but we have another criticism or two. True, 'tis much easier to knock than to boost—and Heaven knows the O.H.A. executive gets plenty of blasts. Nevertheless, it strikes us that the O.H.A. is using the wrong angle. It is not using good judgment in lining up some of its main groupings and playoff systems. Some even border on the absurd. Give a listen for a minute.

* * * * * * *

THE REASON four Kingston teams—Garrisons, Queen's R.M.C. and City Club—have been threatening to abdicate is because these teams aren't put in a compact group together. With seven teams using the Harty Arena in inter-city games, these Limestone City clubs naturally feel that they can better afford an all-local group, or even take in Gananoque, rather than have to travel to Belleville and Peterborough, particularly this latter 130-mile hop. Original groupings were: Belleville, Gananoque, R.M.C. and City Club in an intermediate "A" setup; and Trenton Fliers, Petes, Garrisons and Queen's in a senior "B" loop. And with winners of each group playing off.

* * * * * * *

BESIDES THE odd O.H.A. grouping—which evidently was made to help out Peterborough, Belleville and the Fliers in providing good league competition—the powers that be in puckdom pulled a peculiar play in telling the winners of these groups to playoff. How come a senior "B" winner and an intermediate "A" victor meet in O.H.A. playdowns? To cap it all, the O.H.A. forms a senior "A" group of Toronto, Port Colborne, Oshawa, Brantford and Kitchener—but orders two sets of playoffs in this group. First three playoff for senior "A" honors, and doggone if the two last clubs in the standing—yeah, all five get into the money series!—don't fight it out for a "B" group title. The "B" team from this senior "A" group—it's a Ripley—goes on into senior "B" playdowns. After playing in a senior "A" group all season, against the best amateur competition in Ontario, and on artificial ice—with many more games than we get—this "A-cum-B" crew is sent in against such teams as the Petes or Fliers! Quite ridiculous, but it's an order.

* * * * * * *

WHILE WE appreciate that the O.H.A. is trying to suit the majority and keeping as many clubs as possible satisfied re groups and playoffs, we still see a shaky structure in the whole setup. The Ontario body has the wrong slant in trying to kid clubs by juggling these "A" and "B" classifications and sending group winners, regardless of their calibre, against each other in Provincial playdowns. Why not come out honestly, forcibly and logically? Don't try to buffalo intelligent people and force clubs where they might better be coaxed. We'd suggest the O.H.A. forget that senior "B" angle in the five team senior "A" group. Why should two "A" clubs get a second chance of going into the playdowns? And here's another suggestion:

* * * * * * *

WHY NOT an eight-team group, as someone suggested at the local Hockey Club meeting last eve, of the four Kingston teams, Ganonoque, Fliers, Belleville and Petes? With top three at the end playing off, the winner to step into senior "B" playdowns; next three then declaring a winner for the intermediate "A" playdowns. May not be perfect but it's not a bad idea. The Kingston squads would only have one trip here each, whereas the poor Petes would have to travel four times to Kingston and once to Ganonoque! If the O.H.A. insists on a senior 'B" series down this way, this might work out okay to the satisfaction of everyone.

* * * * * * *

SANDY BURROWS, Belleville's O.H.A. member, was in communication with Secretary Bill Hewitt yesterday regarding this mixup in Central Ontario and another plan has been suggested. It is that, provided Kingston City Club, Garrisons and R.M.C. drop out—as they seem to have done already—a four-team group be run with Queen's, Fliers, Petes and Belleville in it. Have the two finishing first playoff to send a team in senior "B" playdowns, while the last two meet to declare a team for intermediate "A" playdowns. The group would be called senior "B" and all games would count as wins and losses. All clubs are reported to have agreed to this tentative arrangement, except Queen's, and the latter has promised to consider it. Like the other plan, there is still too much juggling of "A" and "B" classifications—but it may turn out to be the only workable plan yet.

* * * * * * *

BILL (PICK) Hines, former noted puck coach in London and Windsor, last night agreed to become coach of the Petes' senior "B" team for this winter. Harley Weir, well-known in hockey circles here (and vice-prexy of the local Hockey Club) will be manager. Pat Hayden, former O.H.A. player and a sports' officer here for some time, will manage our junior Colts. The club will enter an intermediate "B" team in that group with Port Hope, Whitby and Oshawa. No manager has been named yet, but Herb Payne is considering it. He has managed teams in the E.P.L. and in O.H.A. playdowns, being Senior City League referee here last year. More again on this matter. Local officers are busy trying to get more draw ducats sold before Xmas, and they hope to have ice at the Brock St. rink within a week.

* * * * * * *

ORFUNS LEAVE at seven tomorrow morning on the regular a.m. train for Toronto, going from there to Hamilton by Grey coach for their O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" final fixture at the H.A.A.A. grounds 'gainst the Dundas Red Bombers. Down 14 points, the locals feel they have a fighting chance yet, and anything may happen when numbed fingers try to catch the pigskin in this frigid weather. Besides the big squad of players and officials, 50 reservations have been made for redhot fans—and these have been taken now. Players will see the N.H.L. fixture in Toronto at night, Conny Smythe promising them a reserved spot. The Orfuns meet tonight at seven in the "Y" for final arrangements, and every player should be on deck. Local grid fans will join with us now in wishing Coach Bill Turnbull and his gang all kinds of luck—except the bad variety—in their tussle tomorrow.

Bombers Await Official Sanction In Regards Stevenson's Eligibility

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 9 (CP) —Winnipeg Blue Bombers, champing at the bit while in training here for their Canadian rugby titular bout with Toronto Argonauts in the Ontario city Saturday, awaited word from the Canadian Rugby Union as to whether backfielder Art Stevenson will be eligible for the fray. Coach-quarterback Bob Fritz believes Stevenson will be okayed by the Dominion officials.

"Stevenson is the greatest punter I've seen on a Canadian field, and we'll need him Saturday if we have to play in snow or rain," Fritz said. "We also have Steve Olander available for punting duties."

Formerly of Hastings College, Nebraska, Stevenson joined Winnipegs this season. He enrolled at University of Manitoba as a medical student and according to Bomber officials registered in Winnipeg in August.

Team officials argue Stevenson is eligible under C.R.U. residence rule covering students and said they had supplied Dominion officials with evidence of the collegian's compliance with residence rules.

Henry Armstrong Has Eye Set On Ambers' Lightweight Title

Little Thunderbolt Outgrows Featherweight Class—Wants Higher Rate

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Henry Armstrong, black thunderbolt among the little fellows, is featherweight champion of the world, but he won't be that for very long. Armstrong plans abandonment of the feather title, and a crack at the crown worn now by Lou Ambers.

Armstrong reveals his ambition through Eddie Meade, manager. A well-educated young Negro, showing amazing command of the language, Henry says, "I feel strong and capable enough now to maintain myself among fighters of increased poundage, and with that purpose in mind, desire a meeting with Ambers."

How Eddie Says It

Eddie Meade put it this way: "Henry cant make the feather limit no more and keep his power. We want Ambers."

Offhand, it appears Ambers is in for a bad evening. Armstrong is just about the meanest ringful of fighting man an opponent ever tackled. Loosed in the ring, he is a bounding bundle of fury, throwing punches from every direction, and he has tremendous strength. With the hips and legs of a bantam, he has shoulders and arms a middleweight might be proud to own. Henry wears a size 16 collar, which give you an idea of his tapered build.

Overpowers Opponent

Armstrong has rolled up a string of knockouts from here to there during the last 18 months. He is one of those boys who is constantly punching, after the pattern set by Terrible Terry McGovern, bringing down his opponent by sheer speed and punching power, rather than boxing ability. He recently added another victim, Tony Chavez of Mexico, to his string of knock-out victories.

An Ambers-Armstrong fight is the next big card the ring has to offer—and it wont be long.

TACKLE LOST TOOTH

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (CP). — Michigan's one-point victory over Iowa cost Tackle Bill Smith a front tooth. He blocked Iowa's try for the extra point with his face.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Argonauts squeezed out a 4-3 victory over Sarnia Imperials, O.R.F.U. champions at Toronto four years ago today for the Dominion rugby title. Argos had previously whipped Winnipeg, Western Canada winners, 12-0 in the semi-final.

SMALL BUT MIGHTY

ARBROATH, Scotland—(CP). — Arbroath's remarkable play in major Scottish football this year has upset all pre-season "dope" sheets. They have 14 players and sometimes have difficulty fielding a fully-fit team.

HINES TO COACH LOCAL PUCKISTS

At an executive meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club last evening in the Chamber of Commerce, a coach and two team managers for local A.H.A. teams this winter were appointed. William E. (Pick) Hines was named coach of the senior "B" Petes, while Harley Weir will manage this squad. Pat Hayden will manage the Colts in junior "B" competition. The club will definitely operate an intermediate "B" team, but the manager has not yet been appointed, though Herb Payne was mentioned as a prospect.

Besides some discussion regarding finances, the meeting was inclined to favor a suggestion that an eight-team group be former—owing to Kingston's protest over being grouped with Peterborough. The suggested group would take in four Kingston teams, Canonoque, Fliers, Belleville and Petes. The first three at the end of the schedule would play-off, winner going into senior "B" playdowns; the next three would playoff, winner going into intermediate "A" playdowns. It will be suggested to the O.H.A. Local officers hope to have ice here next week and to have the teams start practising.

Hockey's Big 7

(By the Canadian Press).

Marty Barry of Detroit gained a second-place tie with Harvey Jackson of Toronto among the National Hockey League's scoring leaders last night, even though Barry was given 20 minutes in misconduct penalties at Montreal. He figured in both the Red Wings' goals in the 5-2 loss to Maroons to raise his point total to 13, three behind Gordon Drillon of Toronto. Other members of the big seven remained unchanged, with Nels Stewart and Sweeney Schriner of Americans, Rod Lorrain, George Mantha and Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens and Paul Thompson of Chicago all tied for sixth place.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Drillon, Toronto	8	8	16
Jackson, Toronto	7	6	13
Barry, Detroit	6	7	13
Horner, Toronto	2	10	12
Apps, Toronto	3	8	11
Stewart, Americans	7	3	10
Schriner, Americans	7	3	10
Lorrain, Canadiens	5	5	10
Mantha, Canadiens	5	5	10

No Longer League 'Bad Man'

REG. "RED" HORNER

One of the biggest surprises in the National Hockey League this season is the remarkable change in the playing of Reg. "Red" Horner, of Toronto Maple Leafs. During past seasons he has been the regular "bad man" of the league but this season he seems to be attending more to playing hockey and keeping away from fisticuff, high-sticking and all the other things that might bring penalties. At this early stage of the race, he is well up with the first four or five leading point-getters. Incidentally, he has only spent 16 minutes in the penalty box so far this season, yet by this time other years he had probably spent the equivalent to half a game in the "cooler."

Stew Evans Stars In Maroons' 5-2 Victory Over Detroit

Wings Remain In Cellar Of U.S. Division—Croghan Joins Redmen

MONTREAL, Dec. 10 (CP).—King Clancy may not have to beg his way out of retirement after all. His Montreal Maroon defencemen seem to have learned a few Clancy-isms and the battle-scarred King probably will continue as a non-playing coach.

Until last night the old Irish idol was pretty determined about waiving the terms under which Toronto let him join Maroons. The agreement was that he was not to play, and King had grown more dissatisfied every night as he saw his charges drop game after game.

But last night, when Maroons came to life and walloped Detroit Red Wings 5-2 at Montreal, everything changed. The defencemen figured in four goals and King mellowed under the result.

"Gee! They didn't look too bad out there, eh?" he pondered afterward. "Cy Wentworth was fooled on that first Detroit goal but he looked like a million after that. And did you see that man Evans?"

None among the meagre 3,000 who attended could have missed seeing Stew Evans, who banged up from his defence position to score the third and fourth Maroon goals—his first of the year—in the third period. Wentworth shone, too, scoring once and assisting in another counter.

Croghan Joins Redmen.

Clancy didn't say so, but probably a main reason for the transformation of the veteran guards was the signing of Maurice Croghan, who played with Quebec's amateur aces last year. Croghan lined up on the defence last night and young Dea Smith warmed the bench.

Marty Barry, American division scoring leader, adjudged last season the N.H.L. player best combining clean play and effectiveness winning the Lady Byng Trophy, went berserk in the third period when a Detroit power play was halted by a penalty to Mud Bruneteau for hooking Earl Robinson.

Barry argued with the officials and was given a five-minute penalty. He started using names and the sentence was raised to 10 minutes. When he kept at it, 10 more were added. He stopped talking then, but it looked as if the Lady Byng award, which he won with only six minutes in penalties last season, had slipped from his grasp. He now leads his section in points, goals, assists—and penalties.

Blinco and Ward scored Maroons' other goals. Barry and Laurie Aurie notched for Detroit.

CAMBRIDGE BEATEN 25-3

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(CP Cable)—Newport defeated Cambridge University 25-3 in an English Rugby Union match played Thursday in county championship matches. East Midlands won 17-3 over Notts, Lincs and Derby at Northampton and North Midlands edged out a 12-10 decision over Warwickshire at Coventry.

Former O.H.A. Men As All-Time Stars

How great a contribution the O.H.A. junior series has made to major hockey will be realized more fully than ever if candidates for the mythical all-star, all-time team are considered. Former O.H.A. juniors who would be strong contenders for the various positions would include:

Goal—George Hainsworth.
Defence—Earl Seibert, Babe Siebert.
Left wing—Harvey Jackson and Harry Watson (never a professional, but a truly great player).
Utility—Reg. Noble.

DIED AFTER WHIST

EASTBOURNE, England — (CP). —When prize-winners were being announced at a whist drive here, Roger Platt, an elderly player, collapsed and died.

Q.A.H.A. SURE OF SUPPORT IN ITS STAND

MONTREAL, Dec. 10 (C.P.). — Claims of overwhelming support in its stand were put forward last night by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association as it counted noses among affiliated leagues after President Cecil Duncan ordered it suspended from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"We're positive of every league in the province," declared Q.A.H.A. Secretary-Registrar Alphonse Therien. Already, he said, the Province's larger leagues had been in touch with the Q.A.H.A. and had promised to "stand by" it.

The secretary-registrar asserted his association was "perfectly satisfied" with Duncan's order from Ottawa last night suspending the Quebec body after its violation of the parent body's ruling on three cases. Had Duncan not got in the first blow, he said, the Quebec organization would have voted itself out of the C.A.H.A. anyway.

Though the C.A.H.A. head planned a commission to govern Quebec hockey under its aegis, Therien was of the belief there would be little hockey outside the Q.A.H.A. for it to rule in the Province. The Quebec Senior Hockey League, most powerful amateur loop in the Province, already has indicated it supports the Q.A.H.A., and so has the Provincial League.

Hector Bovin, president of the Provincial League, declared to-day his body would support the Q.A.H.A. solidly in view of the fact that it allowed Boston Olympic into the circuit after the C.A.H.A. had ordered that Olympics must not play.

George Slater, head of the Q.S.H.L., said he was sure all teams in his organization likewise would back the Provincial Association.

It was a conflict over the eligibility of two Q.S.H.L. players that touched off th suspension. The C.A.H.A. had ruled Don Wilson of Verdun Maple Leafs and Cy Allen of Montreal Royals were not eligible. The Q.A.H.A. said last night they were, "regardless of any decision by the C.A.H.A."

The Dominion president promptly declared the Q.A.H.A. suspended. Tonight, while no official notification of the suspension had been received here, the Quebec officials were accepting it and looking for new affiliations.

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By the Canadian Press.)

Stew Evans, Maroons, scored two third-period goals to lead Montreal to 5-2 triumph over Detroit.

Herbie Lewis, Detroit, laid down passes for both Detroit goals at Montreal.

Manchukuo's exports increased nearly 40 per cent. in the last year.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark of St. Louis in his senior year. Jerry finds that Lionel is a cousin of Mimi Le Brun, a girl he had admired several years before while visiting Washington with his uncle. Mimi, granddaughter of a late senator, is about to make her debut. Lionel tells him. Jerry and Lionel are writing a play together. Lionel receives a letter from Mimi in which she writes about Olga, a young woman who married their grandfather, and his wealth, shortly before he died. Lionel invites Jerry to spend part of his vacation at his step-grandmother's camp in Maine. Jerry is elated as he anticipates meeting Mimi who will be there too.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 11

We WENT to our rooms in the great log house at the camp and got into riding clothes. The house was lovely, spreading out so that all the rooms were on one floor. The furnishings were in keeping with the wilderness of the surroundings, but pre-eminantly comfortable. In the great living room where Olga had sat, the heads of animals decorated the walls—moose and deer and elk—and the mantel was made of a huge log split lengthwise and supported by rough-hewn blocks of granite.

The bedrooms were bright with Indian rugs and Indian blankets, and sweet with the fragrance of bay and cedar. There was a bath with its water piped down from the lake. I felt my pulses pounding. It seemed to me that at any moment the masquerade might end and I should find myself back in the parsonage, milking the cow or washing dishes for my mother.

Yet I was uplifted and eager in anticipation of my meeting with Mimi, and I chatted quite freely and confidently with Olga when we went back to the living room to have tea and sandwiches in front of the roaring fire.

Our hostess talked to us of our trip. I knew at once that she was not at ease with Lionel, and his manner to her held a touch of half-insolence which I resented. He was a guest in her house, and it seemed to me he should have remembered it.

When we had finished our repast we mounted our horses and started out to meet the others. Lionel knew the way, and our horses took the road at a good pace. We came to the lake to find a dozen people gathered in gay canoes and on a low, long pier which ran out into the lake. They shouted when they saw us, and one of the girls detached herself from the rest and ran to meet us.

She had a scarlet handkerchief round about her head so that I could not see her hair, but I felt that it must be Mimi, and I was assailed by a sort of dizziness.

Then I heard Lionel saying, "Bernice! Bless your heart, old girl, but I'm glad to see you!"

As she came up to him, he lifted her to his saddle-bow and kissed her. She was a little thing, with dark flashing eyes and an oval, olive-tinted face.

"This is Jerome Chandler," Lionel said, "familiary known as Jerry."

She swung herself up to my saddle-bow as she had swung herself up to Lionel's, "Shall I kiss him, too?" she asked, and I was aware of the invitation of her lips and eyes, as years ago I had been aware of it in the lips and eyes of Theresa.

Well, I accepted the challenge. No man could, I am sure, have done differently without creating an awkward situation. Yet I hated it, although I carried it off as easily as any. But I had come, a knight riding to his lady, and I felt that this dark sprite had stolen something which I had treasured for another.

"Where's Mimi?" Lionel demanded.

"She went on ahead to meet you."

"We must have missed her."

"Oh, well, we are all going back in a minute," Bernice said. "We caught loads of fish, and we are dying for our dinner."

"Olga gave us something to eat when we arrived," Lionel told her. "She's a great old bird, isn't she—dressed up to the nines in a place like this!"

"She isn't bad," Bernice stated. "She was never chaperoned, and so she gives us a loose rein. We break all the rules, and we've had some high jinks."

I don't know what I had expected of Lionel's friends, but I am perfectly sure that I had not expected this—a daring siren who asked for kisses, and a crowd who broke the rules.

Some of the others came up just then, and Lionel and I dismounted. I was presented to everybody, and they seemed to talk all at once. I smiled and said little. There was, indeed, little to say. They talked a language which was unknown to me. I should, I think, have felt crude, uncomfortable, in the midst of them, if my mind had not flown beyond them to my meeting with Mimi. She filled my thoughts to the exclusion of self-consciousness, so that I looked on with a feeling of detachment at the picturesque group gathered by the lake, as if I were audience and they the colorful chorus of some comic opera.

As we rode back Bernice was beside me. "Why didn't Lionel tell me you were so good-looking?"

"Perhaps he wanted to keep it as a surprise."

She flashed her dark eyes at me. "He should have given us warning."

We laughed together, and I began to feel at ease with her.

"Lionel says you are from New York. I adore it! When I die, it will be my heaven."

"I am not from New York City; my home is in the western part of the state."

"Oh, really?" She swept on from that to, "Lionel says you are writing a play."

"He is writing it."

"He says that he turns all of the love scenes over to you."

"Well, he does."

"Have you had so much practice in real life?"

"I haven't had any."

"You needn't tell me that!" Her slanting glance was provocative.

I was repelled by her manner, yet I was not a prig nor a prude: I was merely a romantic boy, holding fast to my worship of one woman. I was, too, impatient. I wanted to spur my horse on and on until I found her whom I sought. She belonged to this world of golden shadows and of waving branches. I felt she must be different from all the rest; that if she were like Bernice, I should die.

Presently Lionel rode back to talk to Bernice, and I gradually dropped behind. I did not want to mingle with that comic opera crowd. From the viewpoint of today my youthful arrogance is astounding. They were

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PARADE

"Thank you very much," said the Ruffed Grouse bird after Uncle Wiggily had untangled the string from its leg.

"You are quite welcome," said Uncle Wiggily with a low and polite bow of his pink, twinkling nose. "How did you happen to get caught in the string?"

"Oh, I didn't notice it when I flew down to perch on the old log to drum with my wings," said the grouse. "I was sort of waltzing around when, before I knew it, I was caught. It's a piece of string from some small animal boy's kite, I think."

"Yes, I think so," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "I hope it was none of my rabbit boys," he added.

"Oh, well, it wouldn't be their fault," said the grouse. "When a kite breaks away with a tangle of string no one can tell where it may come down."

"Very true," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "But are you all right now?"

"Oh, yes. I can drum much better. Listen! I shall drum a tattoo just for you to show you how grateful I am for having helped me."

Bird Call

Once more the ruffed grouse bird perched on the log, no danger now of being string entangled, and, flapping his wings rapidly, made the drumming sound which only birds like the ruffed grouse can make. It is their woodland call to other grouse.

"You certainly are a fine drummer," said the rabbit. "But where are you going now?" he asked the bird who seemed ready to fly away.

"No place special. I am waiting for Mrs. Grouse. Meanwhile I can walk with you in the woods. What are you doing here, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Looking for an adventure."

"I hope you find one."

"I have already had a nice little adventure, thank you," said Mr. Longears. "Untangling you from the string was one."

"It seemed to be a sad adventure for me until you came to my rescue," said the bird. "And I hope I may be able to do you a favor to pay for the one you did me."

"Pray do not mention it," said the rabbit.

"If you don't want me to, I will not," said the bird.

So he didn't.

But if Uncle Wiggily had only known it, another adventure was coming his way. It was the three Bad Chaps—the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat looking for him.

"Ha! There he is!" suddenly growled the Wolf.

"Where?" asked the Fox.

Bobbie's Afraid

"Just coming from behind that tree," said the Wolf.

"Has he a Christmas present with him?" mewed the Bob Cat. "If he has, keep away—it will be full of ker-chooee and ker-snitzious."

"He has nothing with him," said the Wolf for, just then, the ruffed grouse was behind a bush.

"Come on then! We'll get him!" mewed the Bob Cat.

Out rushed the three Bad Chaps to catch the rabbit.

But just then the ruffed grouse, not seeing the Bad Chaps, said:

"Well, I must leave you, Mr. Longears. But before I go I will drum for you once again." Then the grouse wildly flapped his wings and made a loud rub-a-dub-dub drumming sound. Hearing it, the Bad Chaps stopped short and the frightened Bob Cat cried:

"There he goes again! Uncle Wiggily has a whole parade of drumming soldiers with him—parade soldiers with guns! We don't dare touch him! Scram!"

So all the Bad Chaps ran away, having heard the drumming of the grouse but thinking it was a parade. So Mr. Longears was saved.

And if traffic policeman will give the rubber tire a ticket to the movies I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's name bird.

Council of United Counties Endorses Resolution Passed By The Peterborough Reeves

Report On County Roads Submitted By A. S. Miller, Road Superintendent

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 10.—Expenditure of $65,109.11 on the county roads of Northumberland and Durham, during the period from December 1, 1936, to October 31 this year was reported to the counties council yesterday by A. S. Miller, road superintendent. Actual work on the roads cost $42,452.16, gasoline and oil for road maintainers cost $1,040.16, and general expenses of the department were $21,616.79.

Mr. Miller's statement indicated that the final outlay this year will be, as planned, considerably more than in 1936 when with only $40,000 appropriated, and half of that sum paid by the government, the county roads showed many signs of disrepair. In drawing up their budget for 1937 the council decided that it was false economy to neglect the proper maintenance of the roads. Mr. Miller was provided with more funds, and from all accounts the result was apparent by autumn in many evidences of improvement.

The distribution of $42,452.16 among the municipalities of the united counties was as follows:—Alnwick, $142.58; Brighton township $860.96; Cramahe $1,109.97; Clarke $1,822.75; Cavan, $4,785.40; Cartwright $2,689.91; Darlington $813.72; Hope $1,564.59; Haldimand $1,928.22; Hamilton $2,913.52; Manvers, $3,686.-69; Murray $6,368.71; South Monaghan 253.20; Percy $4,166.61; Seymour $6,148.98; Boundary and county bridges $1,480.96; Cobourg $10.90; Campbellford $9.30; Brighton $456.-80; Colborne $227.06; Hastings $269.63; Millbrook $1,978.77; Newcastle $12.

The road commission's recommendation of an increase in salary for Mr. Miller was referred to the incoming council.

Both the Alnwick-Harwood road and the Kirby-Garden Hill road, the subject of a long argument Wednesday night, were recommended by the commission for assumption, and the roads committee yesterday endorsed the recommendation.

"If the farmers don't try to do something for themselves, who will?" was the interrogative comment by Reeve Cummiskey of Manvers when the Peterborough resolution to the Dominion government for an enquiry into the spread between prices paid by farmers for necessary commodities and the prices they receive for their own produce was briefly considered by the Agricultural Committee of which Reeve C. G. Mercer is chairman.

The resolution was unanimously adopted. It was sponsored by Peterborough county council at their November session on Reeve Gifford's motion, seconded by Reeve Anderson, and it found ready response here Thursday afternoon. However, the Peterborough county daylight saving resolution was rejected, and another relating to the administration of Children's Aid Societies was held over until Friday pending a previously arranged conference with an official of the Port Hope society.

Gift to Warden

Warden Jones was presented with a gold watch by the members of the council at a dinner in the British Hotel last night. Deputy-reeve G. A. Edmonstone of Bowmanville was the after dinner chairman. The presentation was made by Reeve Robert Innes of Seymour, and a congratulatory address was read to the Warden by Reeve Frank George of Brighton township. Some of the former Wardens were present, the program was entertaining, and a warm tribute was paid to Warden Jones for his spirited leadership of the council this year.

Picture Received

Reeve Cummiskey presented to the council yesterday an enlarged photograph of Joseph Hickson, formerly of Manvers township and now residing in Lindsay. As reeve of Manvers Mr. Hickson was Warden of the United Counties in 1913. His picture will be hung in the council chamber with the photographic company of many of the Wardens who preceded him, and others who have since succeeded him.

Lioness Mother Of Quints

Here is the lion family belong to the St. Louis, Mo., zoo which has been nicknamed the 'Dionnes'. The lioness, a native of Tanganyika territory in Africa and only recently acquired by the zoo, gave birth to five cubs and Director George P. Vierheller immediately designated them "the quints," while marvelling at the multiple birth. It's most unusual for a mother lion to give birth to more than three cubs in one litter, he pointed out, and while there are occasionally four, a quintet is almost unheard of. Three males and two females make up the litter.

not so shallow as they seemed, nor was I, indeed, so serious.

I turned my horse to the right and was presently riding under the great trees, parallel to the road but away from it. Here was no sunlight, but rather a faint greenish illumination shading off into a sheen of amethyst where a pool lay quiet among the deeper shadows, unearthly as a mirage, shining as a steel blade.

To my exalted state of mind the forest seemed a place of real enchantment. I should not have been startled if before me had arisen some dryad whom I might pursue, faunlike, through the dim aisles.

My horse, walking on pine needles, made no sound. No bird-note broke the stillness. From far off came the dull beat of hoofs as our party galloped gayly towards home. There was, too, the faint echo of laughing voices. And then, at last, as I loitered—silence.

And something in that silence and loveliness seemed to beat against my heart so that I was half suffocated by it, and I found myself all at once worshipping beauty as my father had worshipped. I stopped my horse and bared my head, and I seemed to head my father saying, "God made it!"

Though I did not know it then, that moment was the last in which I looked out upon the world with a boy's enraptured gaze. A turn of the road, as one might say, brought me to man's estate. I have often wondered how my life would have tended if the message had come to me that morning which arrived 10 days later and took me back to the farm.

LONDON SNOWED IN

LONDON, Dec. 10. (CP-Havas).—Snow lay so heavy today in wide districts near London, Southampton and Bristol that full details of storm damage could not be obtained because of interruptions to communications services.

The Salisbury, Bournemouth and Exeter regions were believed to be most seriously affected. Many roads were blocked by snow, and overturned trees and telegraph poles lay near abandoned automobiles.

5 LURED TO VILLA AND MURDERED

dered for a meagre livelihood.

Her body and the body of Arthur Frommer, a German, were the only ones immediately found buried at the villa, but police believed others might yet be disinterred.

Hear Third Body Found.

(Other sources report that a third body was found, that of Raymond Lesorbre, real estate agent for the villa, and one of the five known victims. According to this version, the bodies of Frommer and Lesorbe were discovered in the basement. Miss de Koven's body was said to have been encased in red clay and her hat was still on her head. Buried with her was a white leather pocketbook from which a fountain pen, pencil and some letters protruded.)

Weidmann, convicted of theft in Germany when he was 16, was formally charged with murder and robbery tonight by Examining Magistrate Maurice Berry at Versailles.

Once Convicted in Saskatchewan

It was revealed that the slayer emigrated to Canada in 1926 and was convicted at Sinlac, Sask., in 1926, on a charge of stealing wheat from a granary. He was expelled from Canada after serving a one-year prison term and returned to Germany.

While Weidmann, who came to France eight months ago to escape doing Nazi military service, boasted in his cell, police throughout Europe were mobilized in a hunt for three accomplices suspected of having helped him in the murders. One, they said, is a woman; another a lacquered-haired "gigolo" who has persuasive ways with women.

Landru Crimes Recalled.

While Weidmann, who shot and wounded two police officers who went to arrest him yesterday after a trail of investigation that led to Germany and back, was held in prison under double guard. Police referred to him as "the new Bluebeard.'

His was the most appalling mass murders since the crimes of the infamous Henri Desire Landru, who murdered ten women and a boy between 1915 and 1919 in the course of a matrimonial swindle involving 283 women.

Weidmann's cell in Versailles Prison, near the palaces and gardens of French kings, adjoined the one where "Bluebeard" Landru lived out his last hours before he was guillotined at dawn on Feb. 26, 1922, above the cobblestone paving outside.

It was a grim coincidence that Weidmann's murder villa to which he enticed his victoms is directly opposite an abandoned and run-down house in which Landru lived at one time during his career of killing.

Police said that the German slayer, by his calm and boastful confession, also has consigned himself to death beneath the axe of "Monsieur de Paris.'

Captive Tells of Crime.

Weidmann describing how he seized the girl by the throat, held her through her death struggles and buried the body beneath the porch of his villa, revealed that his only revenue from the crime was 800 francs (about $20) and $500 in American Expres straveilers' cheques which Miss de Koven carried in her purse.

Nearly penniless when he was seized, Weidmann said he cashed a few of the travellers' cheques by forgery, but stopped "when the trail got too hot."

His other victims, none of whom had much money on them, were Raymond Lesorbre, Robert Leblond; Frommer, the German and Frommer's chaffeur, Jean Couffy.

They were murdered after the slaying of Miss de Koven, and it was the killing of Lesorbe on Nov. 29 that tripped Weidmann and led to his arrest. Lesorbe, a renting agent, was given a card by the German containing the name "Herr Schott." Later he was shot behind the ear in the villa.

Police found the card and learned that Frommer, the German, had an uncle by the name of Schott. The uncle, feuted at Nice on the Riviera, recalled that he had given his card to Weidmann, a friend of his nephew.

Two Policemen Wounded

Yesterday Inspectors Poignant and Bourguin knocked at the door of the villa and Weidmann appeared, opening fire with a revolver without warning. Both officers were wounded, but they rushed him, knocked him over a divan and beat him almost into unconsciousness.

"If I could have killed those two policemen you never would have taken me," the German said in his cell.

For several hours Weidmann refused to talk to officers, insisting that he could not speak French. A German interpreter was produced, but he remained sudden until a detective arrived from the villa with the fountain pen and suspenders of the murdered Leblond.

A few minutes later another detective arrived with Miss de Koven's cheque book.

Writes Confession.

Weidmann gritted his teeth and gulped several times.

"Last July I did something terrible . . . ," he began. The detectives crowded around him, waiting.

"It was terrible."

He burst into sobs, and motioned for pencil and paper.

On a detective's pad he scribbled de Koven.

The amazing confession of the five murders followed.

Weidmann said it was he who wrote kidnapping notes demanding $500 ransom to Miss de Koven's aunt, Mrs. Ida Sackman, at the Studio Hotel in the Rue du Vieux-Colombier in the Latin Quarter.

The blond dancer was dead when he wrote the notes, and he later telephoned to Mrs. Sackman—who thought the man was of Swiss nationality—informing her that her niece was dead.

Weidmann, in his confession, said that the five murders that may send him to the guillotine netted only 16,400 francs (about $625) and Miss de Koven's travellers' cheques which he was afraid to cash.

Lived as Interpreter.

Weidmann said his true name was Eugene George Weidmann and that he was born in Frankfurt-sur-Main, Germany, in 1908 and came to France last March to avoid military service. He became an interpreter for foreigners visiting the Parish International Exposition and that was his only income until he took up murder for money.

Ploughs Unavailing, Drifts Wall In Central Ontario

Toronto Ships Snowbound Niagara Milk by Rail; Storm Continues at Barrie, Many Other Centres

TORONTO, Dec. 11—(CP)—Central Ontario was to a large extent shut off by road today from the Niagara peninsula, Eastern Ontario and the Georgian Bay-Luke Huron areas by walls of snow.

Ploughs were unavailing against the drifts that choked highways and back concessions. Shortly after one snow barrier was cleared another would form and more snow was forecast for today to round out a week of blizzards.

Hit hardest was the Niagara district. At Fort Erie 10 freight cars on the Canadian National-Wabash line were derailed last night. No one was injured. Four freight trains on the Wabash and Pere Marquette Air-Line routes were stalled in deep drifts.

Dairies in the peninsula stopped deliveries as did also some bakeries, thus threatening a shortage in some commodities. Retail business stood still. From Toronto the Ontario Milk distributors' association sent 40 cans of milk to beleaguered Port Colborne by rail as the Lake Erie port reported its supply exhausted.

All Time Record Fall

An unabated five-day storm left an all-time record of snow on Port Colborne, a centre of the disturbance. A consignment of automobiles from Detroit was stranded at Humberstone.

The Peace bridge connecting Fort Erie with Buffalo, N.Y., was kept clear for traffic by a snowplough running over the high arch. The International Railway Bridge at the same place was cleared by a snowshovel crew. The crew was strengthened today by 75 men from Toronto brought by special train.

In Eastern Ontario Mayor E. K. Staebler of Gananoque appealed to the Ontario Department of Highways for snowploughs to clear side roads so a milk company could supply the town with milk from farms isolated by the snow.

All roads in the Brockville area were blocked but merchants reported no danger of a food shortage. Hotels were filled with marooned motorists. Winds piled high the ever-falling snow that has made highways impassable for four days.

Eight Ships Icebound

Eight ships were stranded in great fields of ice in Livingstone Channel at the mouth of the Detroit River last night. Southerly winds piled ice from Lake Erie 10 feet high at the mouth of the frozen river. Veteran rivermen said it was the fastest freeze-up in their memory.

The main highway from Sarnia to London was opened late yesterday after being blocked for more than 48 hours by the snowstorm. Many villages in those parts of western Ontario were isolated, however, but extra snowploughs were on hand to help release four ploughs stranded

WM. HANRAHAN IS FOUND NOT GUILTY ON ARSON CHARGE

Returning to the court room one hour and forty minutes after Judge D. B. Coleman sent them out to debate a verdict in the trial of William Hanrahan on a charge of arson, the jury announced a finding of not guilty at 8.30 o'clock last night. The judge released the prisoner without comment on the verdict.

Late in the afternoon, the court room had been stirred by the charge of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., that, in addition to setting fire to his barn and dwelling, Hanrahan had previously driven the horse whose carcass was found on the barn floor into the structure and broken its two back legs with an axe or a crow-bar in order that the animal could not escape the flames he was about to start. The object was to gain the insurance coverage on the animal as well as the insurance on the barn and house, the prosecutor claimed. T. J. Carley, defending Hanrahan, scouted the charge.

"For a horse to come two or three times and jump into a blazing barn is too much to believe," Mr. McElderry said as he addressed the jury. "The two back legs of that horse were broken—a horrible thing. How did that happen? Do you think a beam fell on that horse and broke one leg six inches above the hoof and the other leg three feet above the hoof? Do you think the horse stayed in there long enough for a beam to fall on him?

Axe Or Crow-Bar

"I think you will find that explanation preposterous. I think it will occur to you just how those legs were broken. Hanrahan had an axe or a crow-bar with him the night of the fire and he explains it by saying he tore some boards loose from the concerning a visit to the scene of the Four Are Hurt: When two cars tangled in collision at Charlotte street and Monaghan road Friday night, they came to rest in the position indicated in the picture. James Doran, 12, and William Hickey, 13, in a northbound sedan driven by Jack McNulty went to hospital. Roy Bick, driver of the roadster and his passenger Roy Hutchinson were also injured. As a result of the impact the roadster made a complete about face. It had been proceeding west on Charlotte street.

35 Passengers Die In Scottish Express Wreck

Flyer Telescopes Second Stopped in Blizzard; Scores Dragged Injured From Flaming Debris

CASTLECARY, Scotland, Dec. 11—(CP)—Haggard rescue workers, hampered by a swirling snowstorm, dug into the battered wreckage of two passenger trains today for additional victims of Britain's worst railway disaster in 22 years. The death toll mounted to 35 when one of the injured men died in a hospital and four more bodies, one of them a woman, were added to the rows of dead in a wooden mortuary shed near the track, at this small station, 13 miles east of Glasgow. Others, possibly including children, still may be pinned within the wreckage. Of the 91 persons injured, 24 still were being treated in hospitals. Six of the recovered dead were women and one was a child.

Twenty-five persons were in hospital seriously injured. Thirty-three received hospital treatment for minor hurts but did not have to remain in the institutions over night and 34 others were given first aid treatment.

As a blinding snowstorm roared over Scotland, the Edinburgh to Glasgow Express sped through this station. Just as it passed the few buildings it crashed into the Dundee-Glasgow Express, stopped for some unknown reason.

A scene of horror resulted as the moving and stationary trains buckled under the impact. All cars were derailed.

Wreckage Takes Fire

Ambulances flocked to the scene from Glasgow and other nearby cities. Railway workers gathered bits of broken cars into piles and set them aflame to give sufficient light for rescue operations.

During the night, as snow continued to fall, the derailed cars caught fire, threatening to cremate bodies still pinned in the wreckage. Firemen from Falkirk hurried to the spot in an effort to douse the frames before the bodies should burn.

Included in the dead extricated from the broken cars were five women and two soldiers of the Royal

Mean Total Saving Of $78,923,000 In Next 38 Years

Beauharnois, Gatineau, Maclaren Pacts Revised; Price Cut $15 to $12.50—Long Dispute is Closed

TORONTO, Dec. 11—(CP)—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and three Quebec power companies, new power-purchase agreements signed and ready for legislative ratification and long-standing disputes and litigation at an end, entered upon a new stage in their relations today.

A net saving to Ontario power consumers of $78,923,000 within the next 38 years was estimated by the commission in announcing last night contracts voided by the provincial legislature in 1936 had been amended and adopted as the basis of new agreements of purchase. A special cabinet meeting yesterday approved the new agreements.

In a statement, Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, commission chairman, said the new agreements revise the former contracts with the respective companies, reducing the price in all cases from $15 per horsepower to $12.50. The companies concerned are the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company; the Gatineau Power Company and the Maclaren-Quebec Power Company.

Use Staggered Basis

Power will be delivered to the Niagara system under a staggered basis, a maximum of 610,000 horsepower being purchased. Beauharnois contracted to deliver 125,000 horsepower immediately, increasing the amount yearly until the maximum of 250,000 horsepower is delivered in 1943. The new agreement expires November 1, 1976.

The Gatineau Company will deliver a maximum, to be reached in 1939, of 260,000 horsepower. The contract ends November 30, 1976. A maximum of 100,000 horsepower — 20,000 horsepower less than that called for in the original contract— will be delivered by the Maclaren-Quebec Company. The maximum will be reached in 1944 and the agreement ends October 31, 1976.

In the case of the Gatineau and

TWO BOYS INJURED RETURNING FROM TOBOGGAN PARTY

James Doran, 12, and William Hickey, 13, were admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance around nine o'clock Friday night suffering injuries sustained when the car in which they were returning from a tobogganing party was involved in collision with a westbound automobile at the intersection of Monaghan road and Charlotte street.

Roy Bick, 21, a roomer at the Y.M.C.A. here, alleged driver of the second car involved, and his passenger, Ken Hutchinson, 23, 359 Aylmer street, were also injured. The former received lacerations on the left side of his head, and Hutchinson had his right arm hurt.

100-PASSENGER AIRLINER BIDS ARE REQUESTED

For Run New York to Any European Capital

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Looking at least three years into the future, Pan American Airways has asked eight aircraft manufacturers to submit bids for a fleet of huge transports capable of flying "at least 100 passengers" from New York to almost any capital of Europe.

Requests for the liners of revolutionary size—likely to be twice the tonnage of the 85,000-pound flying boats now under construction for the trans-Atlantic service — were made in letters sent to the manufacturers yesterday.

The bids were returnable to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of Pan American's technical committee, who emerged from semi-retirement in England last Sunday to direct final conferences here before the airline's plans were made public.

Under normal building schedules the machines, expected to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 each, probably will be in operation over the Atlantic and Pacific by 1941.

JAPS ARE HELD UP AT NANKING GATES

SHANGHAI, Dec. 11—(CP-Havas)—Japanese forces attacking Nanking launched a vigorous new offensive to-day after suffering heavy losses in all-night fighting resulting from a stiffening of the Chinese defence, according to reports received here.

Heavy fire from the Chinese greeted the new Japanese attempt to get a permanent hold on the capital after having forced their way through Kunghwa Gate yesterday, the reports said.

A Japanese Army spokesman told correspondents he believed the attackers were meeting strong Chinese resistance facilitated by the gigantic walls of the city.

He said Wuhu, Yangtze River port, 50 miles south of Nanking, was occupied to-day.

Japanese army commanders said occupation of Wuhu would make impossible a Chinese retreat from Nanking along the south bank of the Yangtze.

Japanese sources said the heaviest fighting last night centered in an attempt to drive back a heavy Chinese force which emerged from the southern "Gate of Glory" at midnight, and was not driven back until dawn.

The Chinese soldiers were said to have used tear gas as well as machine-guns and hand grenades in effort to break through the Japanese lines.

While infantry struggled on the ground, Japanese bombing planes were unopposed as they dropped large amounts of explosives on Chinese troop concentrations inside the walls, and on the city gates.

SECOND AMERICAN FEARED MURDERED

PARIS Dec. 11 (A.P.). — Workmen spaded the grounds of Paris' eerie villa of death to-day for new victims of a murder-for-profit syndicate as police expressed fear that a second American might have been caught in the syndicate's web of robbery and death.

Possible involvement of a thus far unidentified American man in the gruesome machinations was attributed to Eugene Weidmann, 29-year-old German ex-convict and self-identified triggerman-strangler of the gang.

Weidmann had confessed putting to death four men and Miss Jean de Koven, lissome, brunette dancing girl from Brooklyn, N.Y., whom he lured last July to the wooded villa in suburban St. Cloud.

Woman Gives Tip.

Collette Tricot, 25-year-old mistress of Roger (Scarface) Million, whom Weidmann called the organizer of the gang, was directly responsible for the tip on the possible second American victim.

Relief Committee Will Ask Where Hepburn's Jobs Are

Fine Type Of Young Man Applying To Work In Peterborough

Premier Hepburn's recent statement there was lots of work in the province for young men, was misleading so far as Peterborough was concerned the Relief Committee stressed at a meeting Friday night.

While he did not believe the problem of single unemployed men was as serious here as in some centres, Alderman James Dutton, chairman of the committee wondered whether the case so far as work was concerned had not been overstated.

Anxious to keep the city from being swarmed by young single unemployed men who come here in the false hope they can obtain employment, the committee instructed the city clerk by resolution to write to the Ontario Department of Labor urging them to notify the government employment service here where the jobs Premier Hepburn spoke of were located.

The chairman of the committee said not in a long time had he seen young men of such fine type applying for work as those who make the daily round of the factories at the present time. "They are men one would be proud to take into an organization if it were possible", he said. Mayor George Macdonald agreed with this contention.

Luxury Liner Hits Reef 380 Reach Island

Destroyers, Empress Of Asia Streak For Scene In Pacific Off Formosa

MANILA, Dec. 11—(AP)—All passengers of the reef-bound trans-Pacific liner President Hoover were landed safely on barren, volcanic Hoishota Island, near Formosa, today; several hours after the $8,000,000 luxury vessel went aground. Radio reports said the passengers numbered at least 380.

Two U.S. destroyers streaked northward from Manila, approximately 500 miles from the helpless ship, and the liner Empress of Asia, changed her course to reach the vessel. The German ship Preussen stood by the Hoover.

Many hours after the 21,900-ton liner struck in the darkness this morning, Glove Wireless received a message saying the passengers were landed on the volcanic island, some 50 miles northeast of Formosa's southern tip, and 18 miles offshore.

"All passengers safe, landed island," said the dispatch.

Sources conflicted regarding the number of the liner's passengers and her predicament.

In San Francisco, it was reported there were 650 passengers and 408 crew. Information here said there were approximately 380 passengers, including 300 Chinese steerage, and 33 crew.

Hong-King dispatches reported the liner was pounding heavily with a large hole in her bow, but line officials here and at San Francisco headquarters said they were without such information.

Dollar Line officials said they had not received information concerning the cause of the grounding. The ship was making its first journey over a new course between Japan and Manila, where she was due to-day.

Dollar officials here said their advices indicated whether conditions were fine and the sea moderating, and that captain Yardley landed the passengers because he decided to take every precaution.

West N.Y. Storm Takes 6 Lives

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 11 (AP)—Rescue parties threaded their way through huge snowdrifts today to the relief of isolated suburban communities north of Buffalo, as abatement of a three-day blizzard gave ploughs their first chance to clear the roads.

Six persons have died in extreme Western New York from causes attributed to the storm.

Aid or actual rescue was effected for a number of large parties of motorists who had been huddled in farmhouses and garages since the suddenly descending blizzard stalled their cars Wednesday.

Freight Piles Up in Drifts

FORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP)—Derailment last night at the entrance of Fort Erie railway yards of 10 freight cars on the joint Canadian National-Wabash Line aggravated the troubles of snowbound Fort Erie. The cars were part of a fast freight train from Detroit to Buffalo.

Four freight trains on the Wabash and the Pere Marquette Air-Line routes were stalled in deep snowdrifts, two of them since three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

R. E. Pringle, from Canadian National Railways offices, arrived here from Toronto to supervise the rail situation.

No package freight has moved in box cars from Fort Erie transfer terminals since Tuesday morning.

No one was reported injured in the derailment when the cars came to a stop leaning against huge snowbanks.

Winter Relief Grants Seen Only Snag In Budget

Experts Hopeful Dunning May Balance It With Revenues Running Well Up

OTTAWA, Dec. 11 (CP)—Political observers, armed with an optimistic treasury report for the first eight months of the fiscal year, speculated today on Finance Minister Dunning's prospects for a balanced budget next spring.

The report, issued last night by the office of the Treasury Comptroller, showed receipts from April 1 to November 30 of $360,330,130, an increase of $59,198,245 over those of the previous corresponding period, and expenditures of $321,756,647, a decrease of $2,427,546 in the same comparison.

In his budget speech last February 25 the Finance Minister estimated total 1936-37 revenue at $482,123,000, expenditures at $530,518, and hoped to overtake an $87,395,000 deficit by next April.

With four months to go and collections in advance of last year's, many believed Mr. Dunning would win the race. Others, however, cautioned the worst might yet be to come in grants to provinces for relief of unemployed during the winter.

Over Half On Relief.

In this connection it was noted Hon. R. J. M. Parker, Saskatchewan's Minister of Municipal Affairs, told the Rowell Dominion-Provincial Relations Commission yesterday at Regina that 500,000 of his province's 928,000 people might be on relief this winter.

(Secretary of State Rinfret last night told a Liberal audience in

DESERTED WIVES ACT CHANGE SEEN

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP). — Attorney-General Gordon Conant said in an address here last night the Deserted Wives and Children Maintenance Act may have to be amended so all cases under the Act would be handled by county judges to place constitutionality of jurisdiction beyond question.

Addressing the Ontario County Law Association, Mr. Conant said: "I am not making a statement of settled policy but may I observe that the only remedy is to amend the Act so that all such cases in future can be taken by the county court judges. There is no other remedy apparent ergn although it may mean setting up additional facilities and machinery to take care of them.

His statement, he said, was prompted in a recent decision in Toronto in which the magistrate was declared to be without jurisdiction and also by a more recent attack, made in Hamilton at an appeal hearing, upon the jurisdiction of magistrates and juvenile court judges.

90,000,000 Russians Ordered to Vote Ratifying Unopposed Nominees

Moscow, Dec. 11 (AP)

RUSSIAN citizens were reminded for the last time today they were expected to vote tomorrow for a Supreme Soviet in elections that will amount to little more than ratification of unopposed nominees.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, said 90,000,000 citizens were expected to vote in the elections, the first in the Soviet. A full turnout was expected because the names of voters will be checked off on a list of all qualified to vote.

Although the election will be the first nationwide, secret, direct balloting for a federal legislative body since the Soviet Union was created 20 years ago, there was only one dominant issue—stalinism. A vote for any candidate is a vote for Stalin.

Food Runs Low in Snowbound Areas Lying North of Brockville

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 11

HIGHWAY department workers still struggled today to clear highways leading out of Brockville of snow that had fallen and drifted in the district during the last five days.

Highway officials announced today No. 2 highway was open to traffic from Toronto to Montreal; No. 29 clear from Brockville to Carleton Place; No. 42 open from Forthton to Newboro; No. 15 passable from Kingston to Ottawa and to be fully opened today; No. 16 clear from Johnstown to Ottawa.

Side-roads in the district, however, were clogged and no rural mail moved out of Brockville yesterday.

Nearby villages of Algonquin and North Augusta have been without bakers bread for 36 hours. A farmer in the district was reported to have telephoned in to Brockville last night to say he had only enough food in his house to last one day.

ARTHUR RUNIONS BEEN APPOINTED TO KEMPTVILLE

Promotion of A. D. Runions, Peterborough County's popular agricultural representative, to the post of instructor and extension specialist at the Kemptville Agricultural School was announced at Queen's Park today. The transfer will be effective January 1.

Leaving several monumental memories to his service in this County, Mr. Runions will conclude four and one-half years' service here on his departure. In his new post he will have charge of livestock and field crop work and will be in general managership position at the widely-known Provincial institution. He succeeds Errol Nephew who is retiring from the staff to enter commercial agriculture and will serve under the principalship of James C. Bisearet.

F. C. Patterson, Welland County agricultural representative, was announced as Mr. Runions successor in this County. Mr. Patterson is already known to agricultural interests in Central Ontario through service in Durham County. He held a representative post also in Norfolk County.

Graduated in 1927

The distinction of Mr. Runion's career in agriculture first manifest itself while he was an undergraduate at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph where he graduated as a specialist in animal husbandry in 1927. He scored there the unusual achievement of membership on all three O.A.C. livestock teams in his fourth year.

His team scored first place at the Royal Winter Fair and Mr. Runions was the first winner of the Stonehouse Memorial Trophy as high man in dairy cattle. On the O.A.C. team to the National Dairy Show at Detroit, he had his part in the second place victory. He served also on the team which scored 13th place for Ontario at the International Livestock Show in Chicago.

He started his career in the Agricultural Representatives' branch as assistant in Middlesex County, going from there to Napanee County where he served for just short of five years. He succeeded Jack Nelson here in 1933.

Junior Judging

Outstanding achievements of his junior livestock judging teams have been regarded as one of his feature accomplishments in Peterborough County. In 1935, his team won first place at the Ottawa Winter Fair in livestock judging and a team to the Royal Winter Fair duplicated the feat a week later. In 1936, first pisces were again obtained at both fairs.

Of even greater significance to the County through its economic implications has been his work in establishing a white winter wheat area in the County. Through this program, the County is believed to have a profitable future as a commercial producer of true strain wheat in store for it. With the backing of his Department, Mr. Runions prosecuted the program as his personal project, starting four years ago by inducing fourteen farmers to sow registered or certified seed and progressing to the point that 2,000 acres were sown this year with descendant seed.

During his tenure of office, Peterborough County obtained its first seed cleaning plant and organized its first County herds for showings in Toronto and Ottawa. The representative's activities in organized agricultural interests were manifold since he held office in almost all County agricultural organizations including directorships of the Peterborough Exhibition and the Lakefield and Norwood fairs. The district will remember him particularly as the man who built up the junior farmers' division of the Peterborough Exhibition to one of the most important divisions of the entire show.

Mr. Runions is president of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

TORONTO, Dec. 11 (C.P.). — J. C. Steckley, agricultural representative in Brant County since 1934, has been appointed superintendent of the Western Ontario Experimental Farm at Ridgetown, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, announced to-day. Mr. Steckley succeeds W. R. Reek, recently appointed Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Mr. Steckley takes over his duties on December 15.

Runions Promoted.

Other appointments announced by Mr. Dewan follows:

A. D. Runions, agricultural representative for Peterborough, appointed instructor and extension specialist at Kemptville Agricultural School; A. M. Barr, agricultural representative, transferred to Petersince 1930, transferred to Brant County, as representative; F. C. Paterson, Welland agricultural representative, transferred to Peterborough County as representative; Joseph Wilson, Hastings representative, is transferred to Welland; and H. L. Fair, Kincardine, appointed to the Hastings position. H. G. MacLeod of Dunvegan, Ont., acting as assistant agricultural representative in Prince Edward County since October 1, becomes agricultural representative for Grenville County. All appointments take effect on January 1.

Mr. Steckley has been in the agriculture service since 1911. He was agricultural representative in York county from 1911 till 1922, when he went to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, as Assistant Professor in Animal Husbandry. On the death of Prof. Wade Tool in 1928, Mr. Steckley was made head of the department. In 1934 he was transferred to Brant as agricultural representative and has remained there since that time. He is looked upon as one of the outstanding livestock men of the province.

Ten Years in Service.

A. D. Runions who succeeds J. E. Nephew at Kemptville, is regarded as an outstanding young agricultural representative and has been in the agricultural service since graduation from O.A.C. in 1927.

He was assistant in Middlesex until 1929, when he went to Lennox and Addington for four years. In June, 1933, Mr. Runions was transferred to Peterborough county. His judging teams of junior farmers have always stood high in competitions at Ottawa and Toronto fairs and won two years in succession. Mr. Runions is a graduate of Kemptville Agricultural School as well as the O.A.C.

A. M. Barr goes to Brant, graduated from O.A.C. in 1930. He was assistant in Huron county and a representative in Grenville for seven years. He, too, is a graduate of Kemptville. Both Messrs. Runions and Barr represented the O.A.C. on livestock judging teams at the Royal Winter Fair, Chicago International Exposition and National Dairy Show. Mr. Barr's team of junior farmers won the judging competition this year in competition with 37 counties.

Fair Goes to Hastings.

H. L. Fair who goes to Hastings, graduated in 1930 at the O.A.C. He was on the college livestock judging team at the Royal and held a number of executive positions at O.A.C. while a student. He has acted as assistant representative in several counties and has lectured at a number of short courses in agriculture.

H. G. MacLeod is a graduate of both Kemptville and O.A.C., and was high student in the field husbandry option at Guelph in 1937. He is president of the Kemptville School Alumni Association, and was district weed inspector for the past two summers.

NO NEED OF GLOOM, ADVERTISING HEAD SAYS OF NEW YEAR

TORONTO, Dec. 11 (C.P.).—Canadian business was advised to "shed prevailing gloom" and look forward to "a prosperous 1938 by" E. W. Keighley, president of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, at their final convention session here last night.

After five years of depression Canada got away to a good start this year, but after fine spring and summer business came a period "of doubt and uncertainty." Some managements were now doubtful of accepting 1938 advertising appropriations, but Mr. Keighley believed "we shall be wise . . . to share the opinion of United States business leaders when they say steady progress upward will be resumed in 1938."

Agriculture, except for Saskatchewan, industry and retail trade had boomed in Canada this year. He looked for a new record of newsprint production in the coming year.

John Basset, president of the Gazette Printing Company, Montreal, told the convention the Canadian's first loyalty was to the King.

He said he disagreed with a recent statement by Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General, who said in an address in Montreal on October 12: "A Canadian's first loyalty is not to the British Commonwealth of Nations, but to Canada, and those who deny this are doing, to my mind, a great dis-service to the Commonwealth."

The Montreal publicher told the banquet gathering that "I would rather accept that ancient loyalty which has stood the stress of centuries." He added: "It is not a separate and distinct King of Canada to whom we have sworn allegiance."

1 DIES, 6 OVERCOME FROM GAS FUMES

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Dec. 11 —(CP).—International Nickel Company officials planned an immediate investigation to-day into a gas accident in their plant here that killed one workman and sent six others to hospital.

Alex Herrick, 41, of Port Colborne, former Sudbury athlete, was dead on arrival at hospital after the accident last night. Two other workers—J. Wall and Harold Beck of Port Colborne were in critical condition.

The other victims were Walter Solach, L. Martin and Edward Rogers of Port Colborne and Joseph Franko of Humberstone.

Beck and Herrick, electricians, were reported to have been repairing a pump set in a pit below a sulphide bleaching tank. A quantity of hydrogen sulphide, resulting from the bleaching process is believed to have leaked from the tank and overcame the pair.

The other workmen were reported to have been overcome by the fumes when they rushed to the aid of their companions.

HEADS STOCKMEN

SASKATOON, Dec. 11 (C.P.). — John Graham, Carberry, Man., prominent Canadian live stock breeder, was elected president of the Western Canada Live Stock Union as sessions of the annual convention ended here yesterday.

CANADIAN STOCKS STILL BAFFLING

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—(CP).— A week of narrow price movements contributed little or nothing to a solution of the question as to whether Canadian stocks were on the way up or down. Industrial shares gained .64 and the miscellaneous mines added 2.46 to the index standing of a week ago while the gold share indicator lost 1.48.

Industrials and golds remained throughout the period below the highs registered in November but the miscellaneous mines index, which includes the western oils, posted a new high since the break of Oct. 19. The high point was reached Wednesday and the two succeeding sessions were marked by losses.

Stocks are getting no support from commodity price movements which continue to show more weakness than strength. The copper quotation in the last week or more dropped the greater part of the gain achieved in November.

Trade in the industrial section was marked by general firmness in the steels, oils and utilities and weakness in the beverages. The dividend voted on Brazilian Traction common cheered the Brazilian following and the price was hoisted $1.35. Steel of Canada common firmed more than $1 and the bridge issues were quiet.

Price cutting in the United States by distributors of liquor rendered Walkers common and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams less attractive and both issues sold down, the former issue losing $2.25 and Distillers 50 cents. Beer stocks were firmer. Canadian Dredge stood out among the weak issues with a loss of $2.50.

Some of the medium-price golds attracted buyers in that group and these changed hands in volume at slightly stiffer prices. Moderate gains were boarded by O'Brien, Pamour, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock and Canadian Malartic.

Aside from gains of $2.25 for Consolidated Mining and Smelting, $1 for Noranda and 70 cents for Ventures, changes in the base metals group were narrow.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation of W.M.S. life membership certificates to Miss Burgess and Mrs. Waddell by the society.

Following the program a Mission Band tea was served.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 11 (C.P.). — Wheat futures ended a drab session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with values unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Principal business was intermarket and local spreading through offerings throughout were on the light side.

Absence of export business in Canadian wheat and failure of Chicago to hold early gains accounted for Winnipeg futures easing from the high points 1¼-⅜ cents above Thursday's close.

Other world markets closed lower causing a bearish influence in North American wheat pits. Buenos Aires in late trading was 1¼ to ⅜ cent down. Liverpool ended trading 1½d to ⅞d lower. Sharply increased supplies of new crop Australian wheat bulged stocks in sight to 42,496,000 bushels, double the amount at this time last year.

Lack of interest in cash wheat resulted in lower prices. Durums were neglected.

The only trade of note in a quiet coarse grain market was that of minor purchases of barley.

PRE-CHRISTMAS LULL HITS GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 11—(CP).—First pre-Christmas lull in the grain trade was evidence in North American markets during the past week as large-scale traders waited definite information on crop yields in Southern Hemisphere countries.

Despite drab dealings on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange wheat futures advanced on renewed interest in United States hard winter wheat, and average exports sales of Canadian varieties. Belief the Argentine would not be an important competitor in high grade wheat for at least another year was one of the chief market stabilizing factors.

Winnpeg wheat closed the week yesterday 4¼ to 1¼ cents higher, December at $1.20¼, May $1.15⅛ and July $1.11⅛.

Though Canadian export sales were scattered, estimated business for the week was placed at 1,000,000 bushels, equal to the volume of the previous two weeks.

Chicago also closed the week higher because of United States leadership as an exporter. Hard-winter wheat was taken to the extent of approximately 2,000,000 bushels by the United Kingdom and Continental interests for mixing purposes. Attention was drawn to reports both Germany and France have insufficient supplies for home requirements.

Owls that hunt foxes have been found in northern Siberia.

CLEARED IN SHOOTING

OTTAWA, Dec. 11—(CP)—A jury early yesterday acquitted Lorenzo Bond of Ottawa, on a charge of shooting at Constable Thomas Walsh with intent to do bodily harm.

Judge E. J. Daly told jurymen "You might just as well, on the evidence, have found a verdict of guilty, but that is your responsibility, not mine."

Bond thanked the jury for its "just verdict."

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

A BIBLE STUDY

There came a leper to Jesus, beseeching Him, and kneeling down to Him, and saying unto Him, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean.—St. Mark 1:40. St. Matthew 8:2. St. Luke 5:12.

What is the value of Bible reading? Many people fall into the sin of Bibliolatry, worshipping the Bible. They read it through and through and think this is of spiritual value. It must be digested. "I did eat the book and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness."

We would suggest that you write out this short account in your note book, leaving alternate lines blank. Then compare St. Matthew's and St. Luke's accounts, writing on the blank lines the changes, or bracketting what St. Mark only relates. You will be astonished what light it throws upon the miracle. You will see how the other two Evangelists copy almost word for word from St. Mark.

THERE CAME A LEPER. Leprosy even to this day is a horrible disease. It spells separation from his family and friends. To the Jew it typified sin and consequent separation from Jehovah. When I sin I seperate myself from God. I am "unclean, unclean"; the bitter cry of the leper when a stranger approaches. Is your sense of sin and uncleanness deepening as the years go by?

TO HIM. Think of the attractiveness of the Blessed Lord. "When he saw Jesus." What a volume in this sentence. He looked upon the face of the Son of Man and saw there something which convinced him that he could break the law and draw near. When the professional beggar picks you out as "easy" he pays you a great compliment. He sees something of the pity, compassion, sympathy and kindliness of the Lord in your face. No matter how full of sin and uncleanness you are draw near to Him. "Come unto Me" is His own invitation. "He that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."

BESEECHING HIM. Pouring out his heart and soul in supplication; and agony of hope and desire. He knows the awfulness of his disease; its separation; its pain. How deep is your supplication and desire for healing and pardon?

KNEELING DOWN TO HIM. To the western mind kneeling is an unpleasant and painful attitude. To the leper in his dire need it was the natural posture. Moreover the oriental kneels in an attitude of complete prostration, head touching the ground. "He fell on his face." If you are in middle life you have had your sorrows and troubles; times when you poured out your soul in agonizing supplication. You prostrated yourself before God, if not in body, in soul and mind. You will understand his attitude in the Presence of the Healer. The strangest test of deep conviction of sin is that those who are growing in holiness are the first to cry: "God, be merciful to me, a sinner." Why? The clearer the glimpse you get of His purity the deeper is the contrast with your own sinfulness. "Lord, open mine eyes that I may see."

SAYING UNTO HIM, IF THOU WILT THOU CANST MAKE ME CLEAN. He is sure of His power but uncertain of His will. He is willing at all times to help you. He is "the same yesterday, today and forever."

JESUS, MOVED WITH COMPASSION. Compassion—"to have the bowels yearning" is the interpretation in Young's Concordance. It means: "moving towards with the outstretched hand." Only St. Mark uses the word. He is writing for the Romans, who looks upon compassion and mercy as signs of weakness. When you are face to face with distress does your hand go out instinctively to help? "Not grudgingly, or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver."

HE TOUCHED HIM. With unshrinking Hand. The "clean Hand" touched the unclean. Why? The man "was full of leprosy." Can He make me clean? Is the unspoken doubt. The Master's touch revives his faith, and his will and soul respond to the words: "I will, be thou clean." He touches me, because He is man, bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh. He is my Elder Brother. "Who for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made Man."

STRAIGHTWAY THE LEPROSY DEPARTED FROM HIM AND HE WAS CLEANSED. No delay, no long convalescence. Complete and immediate restoration of health and strength. The life from the Son of Man entered into Him and he felt the new life bounding in his veins. "Because I live ye shall live also." "The life that I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, Who loved me and gave Himself for me."

"Thanks be unto God for His unspeable gift."

Golden Text

I John 1:3—"Our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ."

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

Britain is slowly beginning to understand and realize that, instead of disaster, she stepped involuntarily into freedom when forced off the gold standard. Like a child at the sea-side, she is "inching" forward into the waters of freedom, and finding them good. She has all the real wealth of the Empire, and of the world at her feet, and finds that it can indeed be produced and distributed by sterling notes in themselves without value. She is only to the ankles yet; but the whole ocean of freedom is before her; and step by step, she is venturing in, and saying to the nations: "The water is warm and pleasant, buoyant and safe; come in."

There are certain principles which the Lord God Almighty insists shall be observed in the Kingdom of God. The community life shall be founded upon the family life of the people. Land holdings, together with all the wealth the land contains, shall be held by the families of the people, and not by the nation.

Those who would make of Jesus Christ a socialist, should understand what kind of a socialist He was, and is. He stands by the family holdings of land. He stands by the law that while the inheritance shall be permanent and the entail unbreakable, the title by which it shall be held shall be limited to the term of 50 years.

The reason for this is clear. God is the Law Giver. A judge once said in a British Court of Justice overseas, in reply to a question, "I am the Law." He meant that he was in his own person at that moment the embodiment of the law. God is the embodiment of the law. He is also the great Law Administrator. Now while it is His unswerving purpose that the land of the Kingdom shall be held by family tenure forever, it is also His unswerving purpose that He will not entrust the disposal of the land to any generation for more than 50 years. This puts an effective barrier to all exploitation of the lands for speculative gain.

All titles fall in at the end of the Jubilee period. All lands, save city property, revert to the heirs appointed of God at that time. All leases and transfers expire. Liens and mortgages are forbidden and unknown in the Kingdom of God. So the land is kept free from permanent encumbrances.

Thus we see that all wealth comes to the people of the Kingdom of God by inheritance from God and not by purchase. We are "heirs of God."

Where Was Jesus In The Parade?

The minister of St. Andrew's church will speak on the question, "Where was Jesus in the Santa Claus Parade," Sunday night.

The Santa Claus Parade in Peterborough was one of the great events of the year. The mayor estimated that there were 20,000 persons on the streets of the city to see the procession. There were many motor cars passing to and fro. The main streets were thronged with people waiting patiently for the cavalcade. It came, and went. There were policemen on motor bicycles, the fire chief in his red car, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides, the lorry with Santa Claus, the Bands, the crowd of boys and girls picking up the "Kisses", the Skiing Club, Mickey Mouse, Bunny Rabbit, the Mayor and Aldermen, all in grand parade. Everybody that could walk or run was there; the world and his wife were on the streets to see "Christmas" in symbol and pageant on a glorious winter night.

There was one notable omission, however; Jesus was absent, the organizing committees had forgotten about Him. No one had been appointed to invite Him. His name was not on any banner, there was no representation of the manger or the babe of Bethlehem, the angels and the shepherds were left out. We looked wistfully as the procession passed on George street but we could not see Him. We did get one glance of his face however, He was looking out of a window in a dark house, but His face at times was illumined by a passing light and there was a look of extreme disappointment on his face, and few persons looked in His direction, or saw Him in the lonely dark chamber in which He sat with downcast eyes.

What is the meaning of Christmas, anyhow? Is it merely a time of increased trade, of fun and frolic, or is it rooted in the Incarnation of our blessed Lord?

At the morning service the quarterly Communion service will be held, and the reception of new members by profession of faith in Jesus Christ, or by certificate from other churches.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 12 is 1 John 1:1-7 and Revelation 21:1-7, the Golden Text being 1 John 1:3, "Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.")

AT THE creation of man Jehovah, his Creator said, "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helpmeet for him." Having been made in the image and likeness of God he was like God in that his nature called for fellowship through which he might express his love.

Jesus and Fellowship

Our Lord Jesus recognized this need of fellowship when he "sent his disciples by two and two." The early church recognized the same in sending forth Barnabas and Saul, Paul and Silas, Barnabas and Mark, Peter and John, etc. This "knitting of the soul of Jonathon with the soul of David" is an expression of one of the most deep-seated and universal characteristics of human nature. And our Lord was so thoroughly human that he shared this trait with us. So we hear him saying to his disciples, "with desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer"; and again, "my soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: abide ye here and watch with me." As Son of God he enjoyed fellowship with his Father from eternity. John says, "That which was from the beginning, that which we have heard, that which we have seen with our eyes, that which we beheld, and our hands handled of the word of life. And the life was manifested, and we have seen, and bear witness, and declare unto you the life, the eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us."

The Disciples' Fellowship

Our Lord's eternal fellowship with his Father, which he extended to include his first disciples is still further broadened to include all who will accept it through faith in him: "That ye also may have fellowship with us: yea, and our fellowship is with the father, and with his Son Jesus Christ." The privilege of such a fellowship should move us to want to fit ourselves for it by bringing our lives into harmony with the Divine: "In him is no darkness at all. If we say that we have fellowship with him and walk in the darkness, we lie, and do not the truth: but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Continual striving after holiness must result from our desire for fellowship with God. To be with him is to be like him. Fellowship begets likeness. Light has an affinity for light and darkness for darkness. Fellowship with the good will strengthen the good within us. So Christ established his church for the strengthening effect of its fellowship upon his disciples. Together the coals burn with light and warmth, while scattered to themselves the fire goes out.

Eternal Fellowship

Death does not destroy this fellowship. It persists beyond the grave in the church triumphant: "He shall dwell with them, and they shall be his peoples, and God himself shall be their God; and he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain, any more: the first things are passed away. Behold, I make all things new."

Branch Notes

ST. MARY'S, MANVERS

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Mary's church, Manvers had a very successful social at the home of Miss Marjory Page, on Wednesday evening.

The delegates to the provincial conference, Robert Reid and Harold Page gave their report of the program and their impressions of the Garden City and its population which proved very interesting and enjoyable.

A contest of questions and answers of the human body was conducted by Helen Smith. General post office was then put on with everyone present taking part.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. held their last regular meeting before the New Year on Thursday evening with a good attendance. It was announced that on December 16 special prizes will be put up in the A.Y.P.A. bowling league. The short devotional period was under the leadership of B. Pammett assisted by Mrs. P. Forbes and Miss C. Long. Later many varied games were enjoyed under the joint supervision of W. Hill and E. Bell. Delicious refreshments brought the evening to a successful close.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Even as the universe is an outward expression of the thought of God, so is man the outward expression of His love, and man's soul the focal point of the consciousness of the Most High. But man, having fallen into the illusion of separateness, due to his material environment is, to say the least, no longer on speaking terms with his soul. Therefore, not realizing that in essence God and his soul are one, he creates various conceptions of God according to his objective thought, and seeks Him without, when He is to be sought more truly within. He fondly thinks that he, the outer objective self, is immortal and does not realize that conscious immortality arises from the union of God with the inner self, by which the God-man arises from the dead outer self. True, in a sense, everything is eternal and immortal, for the sum total of the universe remains the same, but true immortality consists of an eternal continuity of consciousness, and not, as with most of us, a series of isolated and separated experiences. And this continuity cannot be obtained until the inner psychic self is united in consciousness with that eternal spark of the Divine Love we term the soul. Only so can it partake and become one with the eternity of God. This is why we say that the Way of Life is a way of becoming; of evolving into a higher and nobler state of being; or to put it into terms of Christianity, of being one with the Christ, even as He is one with the Father; of abiding in Him even as He abides in us. The outer self, which supplies the will power, must be polarized in the love of God, so that the inner self may also become polarized. Then the inner consciousness and the outer becomes as one, then these twain being expressive of God become His instruments and at one with Him, whether incarnate here on this earth or elsewhere. To such a one, as with St. Paul, the three worlds are open. He is no longer bound by death, for his consciousness being at one with God is eternal. There is no break, no separation of being in going from one chamber in the House of Life to another. In fact, except for the purpose of helping humanity there is no need for such a one to ever again experience birth or death. Hence he that liveth and believeth in the Christ shall never die. Looked at in this light it is easy to see why Jesus emphasized the straitness of the Way; the narrowness of the gate, and the comparative fewness (in each generation) of those who found it. For while most of us are content to walk by faith and so approach the goal very slowly, yet there are a few daring souls who cannot be content with such slow progress and who seek the way more directly so that they may the sooner take upon themselves the burden of the Cross. Spiritually ahead of their generation they move unnoticed, unseen, their inward vision bent upon the goal, pressing forward so that they may become more helpful, more efficient servants of God.

Christian Fellowship — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I John 1:1-7; Revelation 1:1-7.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

John, "the disciple Jesus loved", enjoyed the closest fellowship with Jesus. He says, "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you also, that ye also may have fellowship with us."

Of this fellowship John says, "Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ . . . If we say that we have fellowship with him and walk in darkness, we lie."

In his old age as an exile on the Isle of Patmos, St. John was given a vision of the continuance of this fellowship in "a new heaven and a new earth."

From God's throne he heard a voice saying, "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them and God himself shall be with them." (GOLDEN TEXT—I John 1:3)

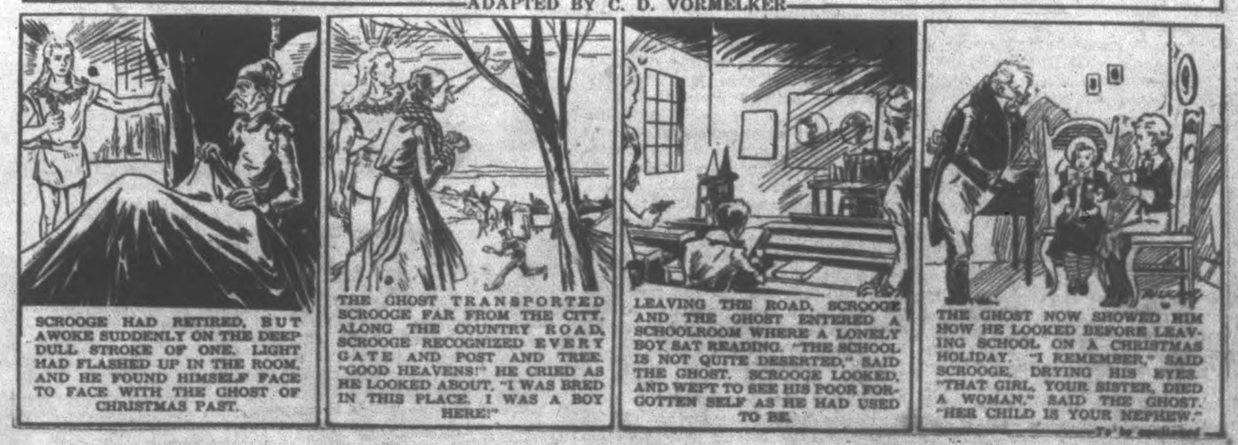
Dickens' Christmas Carol

Illustrated by Alfred J. Buescher, CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

ADAPTED BY C. D. VORMELKER



SCROOGE HAD RETIRED, BUT AWOKE SUDDENLY ON THE DEEP DULL STROKE OF ONE. LIGHT HAD FLASHED UP IN THE ROOM, AND HE FOUND HIMSELF FACE TO FACE WITH THE GHOST OF CHRISTMAS PAST.

THE GHOST TRANSPORTED SCROOGE FAR FROM THE CITY, ALONG THE COUNTRY ROAD. SCROOGE RECOGNIZED EVERY GATE AND POST AND TREE. "GOOD HEAVENS!" HE CRIED AS HE LOOKED ABOUT. "I WAS BRED IN THIS PLACE. I WAS A BOY HERE!"

LEAVING THE ROAD, SCROOGE AND THE GHOST ENTERED A SCHOOLROOM WHERE A LONELY BOY SAT READING. "THE SCHOOL IS NOT QUITE DESERTED," SAID THE GHOST. SCROOGE LOOKED, AND WEPT TO SEE HIS POOR FORGOTTEN SELF AS HE HAD USED TO BE.

THE GHOST NOW SHOWED HIM HOW HE LOOKED BEFORE LEAVING SCHOOL ON A CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY. "I REMEMBER," SAID SCROOGE, DRYING HIS EYES. "THAT GIRL, YOUR SISTER, DIED A WOMAN," SAID THE GHOST. "HER CHILD IS YOUR NEPHEW."

Bad Advertising

The Examiner feels that the verdict given by the ratepayers of Niagara Falls the other day on the question of fixed assessments has a significance that should not be lost sight of in our own community. The electors of Niagara Falls were asked to pass judgment on a bylaw which set forth the principle of fixed assessments for new industries locating in the city and the answer was decisive.

No fewer than 1,609 people voted for the bylaw and only 250 opposed it or putting it another way, almost 90 per cent of the folk who voted expressed approval of the practice of encouraging industries by the granting of fixed assessments.

Commenting on the result, the Niagara Falls Review remarks with a good deal of truth "That vote will be noted elsewhere and will make other possible locators view this city with a more kindly eye." That is undoubtedly the case for it is quite evident that there is to be keen competition among municipalities for plums in the form of new industries and in that competition no city that hopes to add to its manufacturing resources can afford to be handicapped by a bad name in the matter of its treatment of industrial concerns.

The Stratford Beacon-Herald stresses that point when it says that "no city or town can afford to become badly advertised relative to its industrial policy." That is quite true. Manufacturers seeking a location to establish new plants, are not likely to be even mildly interested in places where shortsightedness has resulted in shabby treatment of existing industries. Where other factors are on a par, they will, as a matter of course, select those cities where industry has been encouraged by liberal and friendly dealings on the part of the municipality. The place with a record of fair treatment for its manufacturing plants at least starts even in the race for new factories; and has a big lead over the town that has earned itself an unenviable reputation for its niggardly policy in that respect.

About the poorest way for any centre to complete for new industries is to start cracking down on those it already possesses.

Spinach Debunked

This particular item is published solely and exclusively for the protection of and in the interest of children and we hope that parents will play the game and make sure that those for whom it is intended will get the full measure of benefit.

For years the world has been told of the almost-magical properties of spinach as a body builder and the thing has been stressed so long, so often and so loudly that it has grown to be accepted as practically an axiom that a child that did not take on board a sufficient quantity of this green vegetable with its inevitable accompaniment of sand was handicapping itself for life. It did not matter that the majority of youngsters did not like the stuff; they were practically forced to shovel in large gobs of it as a lifesaving item of diet.

And now along comes Dr. Carl R. Fellers of Massachusetts States College to make a 100 per cent job of debunking the spinach theory. Dr. Feller is a food technologist and is reputed to know his stuff so that when he up and tells the world that spinach no longer occupies a position as a great body-builder that means something. The Massachusetts man admits that it does contain a lot of iron and calcium but those minerals are in such a form that the system cannot very well assimilate them. As for the vitamin C, most of that to be found in spinach is lost in cooking so that folk who are looking for that particular vitamin can get more of it in lettuce or raw cabbage.

On behalf of the children we move a vote of thanks to Dr. Fellers. He has made life happier for millions of juvenile spinach-slaves and for that he deserves juvenile gratitude even though in wrecking an old fetish he has also shattered the reputation of a certain nautical hero of the comic strip.

Going After Tourists

The annual meeting of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association which is to be held here on Tuesday night and will be attended by folk from all sections of the surrounding tourist district is a very important gathering. The Association in its initial year set up an excellent record of achievement but it cannot rest on its oars—the spadework done this year will have to be followed by a constructive policy of tourist promotion this winter and in the spring and we believe from the enthusiasm shown during 1937 that a progressive program will be laid down and effectively followed.

It is apparent that the wisdom of a Federal tourist body advertising Canada generally and of each section looking after the publicity for its own district is being accepted in a good many parts of the Dominion. Various associations are making plans to go after the tourist business in a big way and undoubtedly those districts that are most effectively publicised can count upon getting a lion's share of the business, particularly in the case of tourists making their first visit to Canada.

That being so, this section of the province cannot afford to sit back and wait for the tourist army to beat a path to its doors. When other tourist centres are sounding the tom-toms we have to make sure that we at least get a fair proportion of the new army of visitors that will cross the border next summer, and that is the raison d'etre of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association. It should have the active support of all those in the district who supply goods or service to tourists, as well as of the various municipal governments.

Tuesday's meeting is an event therefore of considerable significance, with interest added through the fact that the guest speaker, C. K. Howard, manager of the convention and tourist bureau of the Canadian National Railways is a recognized authority on tourist promotion activities.

Doing A Fine Work

It is to be hoped there is nothing in the story started by a weekly newspaper that the Provincial Archives branch of the Ontario government may be abolished. Snap judgment might say that this is one of the government services that could be dispensed with but we are satisfied that once the importance of collecting and storing historic data is realized public opinion would say that the work instead of being scrapped should be expanded.

Canadians as a people have been lax in this regard. We have been so busy trying to develop the vast resources of this great land, overnight as it were, that we have never stopped to take time out to consider the history of the country or the debt of gratitude we owe to the pioneers whose courage and patience and determination enabled them to carve homes out of a wilderness and set up a rich heritage for the Canadians who were to follow on. In most districts we know all too little about the early days of our own communities, of the men and women who laid the foundations for the prosperity and comforts of today. We have been careless about preserving important documents, just as we have let old landmarks disappear and much of the history of the settling of a great deal of the Dominion has been lost to posterity because the importance of keeping the records safely was not recognized in time.

There is a great deal of most important work that the Archives branch can and is doing and we hesitate to believe that even under the guise of economy there is any desire on the part of the Ontario government to curtail this most desirable activity. It is true that one of the first acts of Mr. Hepburn after his first victorious election was to "fire" with a blare of publicity one of the most distinguished of Canadian archivists, in the belief that he was a political henchman who somehow or other had got himself placed on the public payroll—but that was merely a mistake on the part of the Premier who acted before he got at the facts in the case. We would hate to think that the policy of the administration on this vital matter of preserving historic data was truly indicated by the precipitate beheading of this particular expert.

Defective Automobile

The Examiner has more than once commented on the fact that very little attention is paid to the mechanical condition of automobiles upon which licenses are issued in Ontario. Almost anything that will move under its own power will be fitted out with the necessary markers, if the owner has the money to pay for them, and there are no questions asked.

It would be helpful to know just how much this lax policy contributes to the appalling accident toll along our highways. We have sometimes seen the statement made that defective mechanism is responsible for only a small percentage of motor mishaps but it has always seemed that those who make that assertion are at best only guessing.

The state of Massachusetts some time ago made inspection tests of motor cars compulsory and some illuminating facts have come out of the examination. Up to this stage, 118,000 cars have been inspected and it has been discovered that 9,817 cars had faulty steering gears and in the case of 1,407 other machines parts of the gears had to be replaced. In other words defects in one of the most important parts of the mechanism have already been discovered in 11,224 automobiles while minor weaknesses were found in thousands of others.

In the matter of lights the cars examined have made an even worse record. It has been found that 39,728 needed to have their lights re-adjusted which means that if the same proportion prevails until the end of the test, some 120,000 cars have been travelling up and down the Massachusetts highways with lights improperly adjusted.

With thousands of cars operating with faulty steering gears and many thousands more with lights out of focus, it does seem that to say mechanical defects play little part in automobile accidents is to take too optimistic a view of the situation. Massachusetts is on the right road in insisting upon an annual inspection of motor vehicles and we have an idea that the regulation will play an important part in causing a drop in the number of traffic accidents. The motorist who starts out with his machine in good condition mechanically surely has the edge on the driver who has to overcome the handicap of a defective steering gear or of badly focussed lights.

Recognizing Bravery

The granting of a Royal Humane Society parchment certificate to George Graham of Lakefield for a heroic attempt to rescue a woman who was imprisoned in an automobile beneath the water of Lake Katchewanooka is a recognition that was richly merited.

Mr. Graham indeed played the role of a hero on that tragic occasion. Called to the scene by an eye-witness of the accident and told that a woman was still beneath the surface of the water, he might quite easily have refused to do very much about it. The water was cold and deep and Mr. Graham was only a fair swimmer and handicapped by wearing fairly heavy clothing. If he had contented himself with remaining on the wharf and waiting until more expert swimmers arrived to attempt the work of rescue public opinion would not have criticised him very severely.

He was not however built that way. A woman's life was ebbing away beneath the cold surface of the lake and there was a fighting chance that he could effect a rescue. Without hesitation the Lakefield man dived into the lake and succeeded after extreme difficulty in releasing the victim from the sunken car. It was too late to save her life but Graham had done all that a real man could do under the circumstances. He had faced death to save another—it was not his fault that the attempt was too late to be successful.

It is well that the attention of the Royal Humane Society should have been called to this brave action and better that the officers of that organization should have acted promptly in giving proper recognition to the hero of the occasion. Mr. Graham's certificate was truly earned.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto's city council will contain two Communists next year. In spite of that condition we hope the Queen City will be able to keep out of the Red.

The horrors of war increase. The Spanish government's carrier pigeons have been killed and served at a banquet.

Canadian field crops this year reached a total value of $556,382,000, a figure that indicates why farming has a right to be called Canada's basic industry.

Washington motorman was fined for driving a new stream-lined street car too fast. He would have had a better chance of getting off if he had been at the wheel of a motor car.

Premier Aberhart says the only place his government need fear defeat is in the cities. He may, however, find that the farmers will refuse to be fooled all the time.

A dog poisoner has been active in Winnipeg and already a dozen animals have been destroyed. We could think up a lot of punishments that would be suitable in a case of this kind.

American magicians are up in arms against their number who have been showing how tricks are performed. The public which always likes to be fooled will doubtless share their indignation.

Chess has been reorganized to meet German standards and to teach the rudiments of military strategy which appears to be getting close to the limit in regimentation—even in Germany.

The establishment of a mental hospital at St. Thomas is expected to create a shortage of houses. It might almost be imagined that the building of the institution would have a directly opposite result.

Dr. Smith who was the defeated Liberal candidate in Dufferin-Simcoe has been appointed Chief Medical officer of the Department of Health. Sometimes it almost seems that a candidate is better off getting licked at the polls.

CLIMBING HILLS

There's always been
Something symbolic about climbing hills—
You plod along one slow step after the other,
And by and by you get to where you're going,
(Provided you've kept at it long enough!)
But here's the thing that's always puzzled me—
Whether the better plan, all things considered,
Is to fix the eyes on some far, shining peak,
And struggle uptowards it, day after day,
Not minding stones and thorns—or just to look
One single step ahead, and be surprised
How soon you've got there!

ALTHOUGH THE number of insured workers has jumped 326,000 in a year and now stands at 14,611,000 it is stated that London still has more than 3,000 destitutes and of these, counted during a one-night census, 42 were sleeping out although 800 free beds were vacant in hostels and homes.

✧ ✧ ✧

According to the Chief Public Assistance Officer down-and-outs sleep out from choice. Although they know that good beds are available to them many prefer to frequent crypts, chapels or mission halls thrown open at night where men sleep on newspaper-covered floors.

In coming months it is estimated that the number of homeless in London will decrease. Young men and women who left poorly-paid village work to seek higher wages in London are returning to the country. Works and offices of armament factories are working overtime within short distances of most homes.

Girl Savage Found.

OUT OF GRIM uncharted Arnhem Land on Australia's bleak northeast coast stories have lately crept of a savage, fantastic English-speaking woman named Clara, leader of a nomad killer tribe of aborigines.

Having penetrated the depths of Arnhem Land's dreary tefritory Dr. Donald Thomson, young anthropologist ran Clara to earth recently and found that she is a wild half-naked girl who speaks fluent English but is not of of English birth.

She is not a fierce Amazon of the type who would inspire tribesmen to murder and was abducted from her own tribe and brought to Caledon Bay where she has lived ever since.

Thus once and for all the rumor was dispensed with that Clara was the daughter of an Englishwoman captured by natives when the Australian survey ship Douglas Mawson foundered in Caledon Bay in 1928.

Unarmed and alone Explorer Thomson walked and canoed 1,500 miles in Arnhem Land before he discovered the girl-savage. At times he was forced to eat snakes and in the wet season saw Aborigines swinging about in the trees with ape-like agility. Although Arnhem Land's natives are ruthless killers Dr. Thomson became so friendly with them that he was made a "blood brother," allowed to photograph ancient ceremonies and shown the secret quarries where these stone-age warriors fashion their spearheads.

TWELVE MONTHS after the outbreak of war Myra Curtis became a civil servant in the War Trade Intelligence Department of the British government. Several weeks ago she was informed that on January 1 she will take over the post of director of women's establishment of the treasury at a salary of $6,500 a year. There she will supervise 70,000 women, aged 17 to 60, more than 20 times the number she now controls for the General Postoffice.

Lloyd George Carries Very Little Weight

Has No Great Political Party to Back His Views; Says Dangerous Things Which Mean Very Little

(From the Montreal Star)

LLOYD GEORGE is a conspicuous example of what happens a man without a party. Ramsay MacDonald was another. No matter how strong the man is or how popular his appeal, he is little more than a voice crying in the wilderness unless he has a nation-wide organization behind him.

If Lloyd George were still the leader of a powerful Liberal party sitting across the House of Commons from the present British Government, his dramatic demand that there be no "theives bargain" with Germany today would reverberate throughout the world and have a marked effect on British policy. It would be as fateful as Gladstone's repeated "atrocity" crusades when Disraeli and Salisbury were doing their best to keep on good terms with "the unspeakable Turk" and the ruler whom the then Liberal leader pleasantly referred to as "Abdul, the Damned."

But, standing alone, even the eloquent Lloyd George is only a futile, if furious, old man, utterly without responsibility, urging bold and dangerous action which there is not the slightest chance that he himself will ever be in a position to take. Consequently his effect on British policy will be practically "nil."

Yet it is probably the truth that the great majority of the British people, both at home and overseas, will respond like a swept harp to the virile Palmerstonian tones that flowed from the lips of our only living War Premier. What he urges is what we should all like to see the British Empire able to do. But we have learned prudence in the last three decades, and we no longer imagine that we are the overlords of creation.

Lloyd George paints a black picture. But some of his strokes at least would elicit denials from calmer observers. Mr. George for instance, says that "if a Great War came again, the Mediterranean would be closed to British ships." But Mr. George must be forgetting that a Great War implies that all the old antagonists would again be engaged. We should have not only the British Navy but the French Navy and possibly contributions from the American Navy on our side. Against us would be the Italian Navy and the German U-boats. The German surface ships could not get out of the Baltic.

We were admittedly uneasy about our position in the Mediterranean during the Ethiopian trouble, but that was because we were alone. As Sir Samuel Hoare said, "the French had not moved a gun or a ship." Indeed, for a time, they would not even guarantee us the use of their ports. But with active French co-operation, the naval strength of the Allies in European waters would be overwhelming. If we could not tempt the Italian warships into action, we could at least seal them up in the Adriatic and so keep a lane open between Gibraltar and Egypt, the only danger being from bombers and submarines.

While this danger would be serious, what would be the position of Italy? She would have a great part of her army stranded in Ethiopia, in Libya and possibly in Spain, and would be entirely unable to succour these exiles with men or munitions. With her chief ports exposed to bombardment and her army tri-sected how long could even the most Mussolini-inspired nation hold out? She must fight her foes where she could get at them on land—that is, in mountain-protected Savoy. The Allies could land armies at any surprise point on the Italian coast.

While these conjectures are unpleasant to make with reference to a friendly nation, it would seem as if Mr. Lloyd George were unduly pessimistic.

There would not seem to be the slightest reason to doubt the sure ability of the anti-Fascist nations to win a war over any combination likely to be brought against them. Victory is still theirs for the taking. It may not always be, but it is now. The trouble is that every one of them is convinced that a war—any war—would be so stupendous a disaster in itself that they had far rather risk whatever consequences may threaten than risk such a war. War alone is to them the ultimate evil.

"COURTESY."

(Kansas City Star)

WHAT a difference it would make if all corporations acted on a policy of courtesy. What a difference if the honest businessman of the nation paid as much attention to courtesy as the gyps, crooks, fly-by-night promoters, and scalawags who have only one stock in trade—a courteous address and manner. What a difference if business became polite and stayed polite, not only to the public but to itself. In short, what a difference if we all took the curt out of courtesy.

THE "SAVINGEST" MAN.

(New York Sun)

CLEVELAND, in Ohio, has just lost a citizen, William C. Martin, who having worked for 53 years at an average salary of $2,400 left an estate of $162,062. He was "the savingest man" Daniel E. Morgan, who was city manager was his boss, ever knew. Mr. Martin served a steel company as a clerk for 33 years and as an auditor in the city water department thereafter. He lived to 76.

Mr. Martin received $132,000 in salary. His domestic responsibilities are not disclosed; no doubt he discharged them, for to be saving is not to be miserly. The secret of his accumulation lies in the fact that he was a regular saver. Pay day was for him bill day from the savings bank. His spendable income was not the sum the cashier handed to him; it was what was left of that sum after he had made his regular deposit. This is a practice as easy to understand as it is easy not to follow.

One thing is sure. President Roosevelt never asked Mr. Martin to balance Uncle Sam's budget.

VERY DISCOURAGING.

(Calgary Albertan)

BUT IT IS all very discouraging to the man on the street. While the depression was at its height—or should it be depth?—we used to hear politicians and money magnates declare that a new system would have to be devised so that a disaster could never, never occur again. Cheerfully, as the curve of business swung upward, they began to present us each with his own plan for assuring future immunity from the unhappier consequences of the economic cycle. And now when we believe we have emerged from the woods what do we find? The reformers are putting their plans back into pigeon holes and the financiers are in a huddle talking of how to soften the blow when the next depression comes.

THE SLOT MACHINES.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

NEWSPAPERS are devoting a lot of space these days to the decision in the appeal made by a Kingston man against slot machines.

The Ottawa Journal says that the Ottawa police came to a decision years ago that the slot machines were gambling devices and no slot machines have operated in the capital city since.

By the simple plan of letting it be known that aside from all other penalties the person installing a slot machine would forfeit automatically his cigarette licence, or any other civic licence he was holding in Ottawa, this form of petty gambling—that has created a problem in many parts of Ontario—has been exterminated from the Capital.

Sounds to us like an effective method which might be tried in other cities.

DIFFERENT WAYS.

A STORY is told in the Edinburgh Dispatch which may be new to some people. At the armistice, two chaplains who had been in the same mess took leave of each other at the London station. One was Church of England and the other was Presbyterian.

Mediterranean Holds Key To Domination Of World

Kiwanis Club Observes Its Sixteenth Anniversary With A. L. Deachman Speaking

"Whatever nation dominates the Mediterranean dominates the commerce of the world," said A. L. Deachman, secretary of the Toronto Riverdale Kiwanis Club, guest speaker at the 16th anniversary banquet of the local Kiwanis Club Friday evening, the occasion being also past presidents' night and ladies' night.

Speaking on "The Mediterranean Situation," Mr. Deachman pointed out that Mussolini's main object is to wrest that domination from the British Empire by gaining control of the strategic points. Mentioning the position of the Garden of Eden between the Tigris and the Euphrates Rivers, the speaker said, "This area has always had a strange and subtle influence on the minds of men." For economic reasons all the ancient civilizations flourished around the southern shores of the Mediterranean, whose position became more strategically important to the nations after the Industrial Revolution. The most important points are Gibraltar, fortified by Great Britain; the Suez Canal, "life-line of the British Empire," and controlled by Britain, with France and Holland. "These three countries can blockade the Suez at will," said Kiwanian Deachman. "There is a treaty that prohibits this, but we know we live in an age when treaties are made to be broken first and kept after." Third position, the Dardanelles, Britain attempted to gain control of during the war, but was prevented by the Turks, "armed with British guns," and lastly from the island of Malta, Britain dominates the fourth position.

Promises Forgotten

When Italy entered the Great War on the side of the allies, she was promised certain possessions, which were forgotten when the Treaty of Locarno was made. Two of these, Austrian seaports, were taken by Italy later, when Mussolini was a corporal in the army. "From then on Mussolini started to expanded," said the speaker. "If Britain could gain control of the Mediterranean, he felt he could too." He has fortified strategic points each a wedge driven into the face of a cliff, as bases for bombing planes, from which they can swarm out over Gibraltar or the Dardanelles. Ships passing through the Red Sea must pass under Italian guns at Abyssinia. "Mussolini has sworn to wrest Egypt and Malta from Britain," declared Mr. Deachman, "but to do this he must fight the British Empire. Britain has waged forty campaigns since 1670 to keep the Mediterranean control, but she now controls so much of the world that she hesitates to plunge it into war." Reading a long list of annexations made in recent years by the empire, he continued, "I hope I will not be thought in any way unpatriotic, but we must admit that Britain has 'hogged it'."

It has been agreed that Germany's lost colonies, for which Hitler is agitating, will be returned when Italy's control of the Mediterranean has been established," the speaker contended.

Arms Industries Will Profit

Speaking of the arms industries, Mr. Deachman said, "Most of the world's wealth is tied up in this international group, trafficking in the blood of innocence." No matter what nation fights the arms industries will profit. "We see why the Mediterranian situation seems the most critical of all the critical situations in the world today," said Mr. Deachman, adding that he thought it probable that in the near future will come the battle on the ancient battlefield of Armageddon. A warning note was sounded as to the position we in Canada would occupy in another world war—in the limelight, hopelessly vulnerable, and "there is nothing we can do about it, but to turn more to the spiritual rather than the temporal, striving to develop international love and understanding, and living soberly and honestly."

Kiwanian Deachman was introduced by Past President Isaac P. McNabb of Toronto, and Past President J. R. Marshall expressed the vote of thanks.

According to tradition, last evening's banquet was presided over by the immediate past president, the honors this year falling to Harold R. Scott, who led the evening's spirit of good fellowship, mingled with friendly banter.

The toast to the King was proposed by Kiwanian Scott, and replied to in the usual manner. The ladies and guests were toasted with wit and gallantry by Past President Dr. J. J. Craig, with response for them made in the first person by Past President John Turner in a speech that brought down the house. Decorating the head table was the handsome Kiwanian birthday cake cut in due course by Past President Isaac McNabb.

Arranged by Clifford N. Hall, the musical program included selections by Miss Helen Ludbrook on her electric Hawaiian guitar, accompanied at the piano by Miss Margaret Hurley; and vocal solos, in fine voice, byFrank Oldfield of Toronto, who was accompanied by Kiwanian Leslie Unitt.

President Al Sharpe had charge of the booster prizes, donated by the members of the new executive. The competitions were won by Mr. and Mrs. Jack McKone, who as a penalty had to sing, and by Mr. and Mrs. J. Low. Prizes were also won by, on draws by Mrs. V. Foster, Miss Kindall and Past President Harry Boyle. Past Presidents J. A. McKone and C. S. Browne were given awards for having produced the best program during the year.

STILL IN KALADAR COSTS 3 MONTHS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 11.—Fred Woodcock Kaladar, was committed to the county jail for a period of three months in default of payment of a fine levied in County Police Court, following the accused man's conviction on charges preferred by the R.C.M.P., of being in possession of a still suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. Woodcock was arrested and arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd by the R.C.M.P., following his arrest after being found in possession of the illicit still. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed as provided under the Excise Act.

Charged with wounding Joseph Dawson, 20, at Mountain Grove with a shotgun, Jonathon Elliott, 62, who resides in South Hastings, was allowed his liberty on bail of $1,000. Elliott was taken into custody by Provincial Constable Patterson. Dawson, who is said to have fifty-seven shotgun pellets in his body, is in Kingston General Hospital, but his condition is not regarded as serious. The affair is said to have been the aftermath of a charivari in that vicinity.

James Bennett was arrested by Detective Semple in Toronto early this week and was held by authorities in that city pending the arrival of Chief Constable Hayes of Tweed, who went to the Queen City, returning with the accused man. Bennett, when he appeared before the Magistrate, was given two months in the county jail.

Bennett was arrested two years ago, in Tweed, after having taken orders for silk stockings, delivery of which was never made to several Tweed purchasers. At that time he was released but failed to recognize the conditions of the release; he has since been sought by the police, and it was not until this week that he was apprehended. Bennett refused to give any information to the police regarding his whereabouts since November, 1935, when he was taken into custody by Constable Hayes.

John Rath, Tweed, while working on his farm, was accidentally knocked to the ground by a hog, striking his leg on an obstruction. He was removed to Belleville General Hospital, where an X-ray revealed a fracture at the knee.

Slippery roads were responsible for several minor accidents, none of which proved serious in consequence. Rev. R. R. Nicholson, while proceeding to Sulphide, ran off the road, the fenders of his car being slightly jammed.

Reeve Sapers, while returning from County Council sessions at Belleville, was involved in a minor collision near Thomasburg. He was accompanied by his wife and two other ladies, but none of the occupants were hurt, all escaping with a shaking up.

During the past twenty-four hours, the roads in the northern part of Hastings County have become blocked, making motor vehicle traffic practically impossible. Eight and one-half inches of snow have fallen during the first part of the week, and it has drifted with the high winds, resulting in a tie-up in traffic on the roads of this district.

LINDSAY, Dec. 11.—A verdict of not guilty, after several hours' deliberation by the jury, was returned at the General Sessions Thursday night in the criminal negligence charge preferred against Lorne Tallman, of Bracebridge, and formerly of Victoria Road. After the charge to the jury by His Honor Judge Smoke, of Peterborough, Hugh Grant, of Orillia, who acted for Tallman, claimed in the charge he had favored the Crown's evidence on certain points. His Honor, after declaring that he had never before been accused in this manner, called the jury back and carefully reviewed the evidence referred to by defence counsel.

The charge arose out of an accident near Victoria Road last August, when Leona Bell, a young girl of that village, was struck on the head allegedly by a trailer at the rear of the car driven by the accused.

Charles McKay, a young farmer of Mariposa, was given suspended sentence by Magistrate Gee on two charges—attempting to commit suicide and driving a car while intoxicated. He pleaded guilty to both charges. Some days ago McKay was found by a motorist under the rear of his car in the ditch near the village of Woodville. He had the motor running and was apparently trying to suffocate himself with carbon monoxide gas. He had spent fourteen days in the county jail.

At a meeting of the directorate of the Lindsay Central Fair held this week the financial statement was presented, showing that the Fair made a profit of $1,500.15 for 1937. The Board discussed the advisability of inviting Lieutenant-Governor Matthews to open the Fair in 1938.

BANNER COUNTY?

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP).—With all its potentialities and great resources, Middlesex County should have double the rural and urban population it now has in the opinion of Reeve Harold Currie of Adelaide Township.

Reeve Currie was one of the speakers last night at a banquet tendered by Warden George B. Laidlaw to the county legislators and officials who have worked with him during 1937.

Just as Canada is the jewel in Britain's crown, and Ontario is the chief province of Canada, so Middlesex is the banner county of Ontario, Reeve Currie said, toasting the county. Its population, including London, of 118,000 should be doubled, he said.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home
It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.
To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.
First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.
Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.
Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.
And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy and lets you get restful sleep.
Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Use Favorite Greenery in Winter Window Box

Green things growing in your window will banish winter from your thoughts. A north window? Fine—if there is no radiator under it.

Boston fern likes a strong light without direct sunlight. It shows its independence by demanding elbow room. Give it some slim Sansevieria—or snake plant—for its neighbor. Add several glossy grapefruit plants, easy to raise from seeds in a pot of earth. None of these requires coddling or sunlight.

Boston fern needs a temperature around 60 degrees; a weekly soaking by placing the pot in a pail of water; also spraying with soapy water often enough to discourage pests. The reliable snake plant stands almost any treatment and keeps sleek as its namesake.

House plants need special care this time of winter. Our 32-page booklet gives information on fertilizers, pests, watering, repotting. Advice on dish gardens, pottec bulbs, flowering plants.

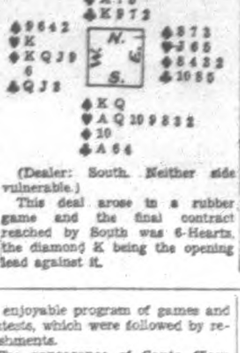
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

GUARDING YOURSELF

WHEN YOUR side has nine triumps headed by the A and Q, your best chance to make all of the trump tricks is to finesse the Q. But if you can afford one loser in the suit and not two, the safety play is to come up with the A on the first round and deliberately give up any chance for an overtrick unless the A happens to drop the singleton K. In case it does not drop that K, you still stand to lose only one trick except in cases where you find both the missing K and J to your left, together with a small card guard. Your correct play on the second round, unless the fourth player shows out at the start, is to come up with the Q.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the final contract reached by South was 6-Hearts, the diamond K being the opening lead against it.

When the declarer won this trick with the diamond A, he reasoned there was no problem to the hand if he could confine his loss in the trump suit to one trick. He, therefore, finessed the heart Q, which lost to the K, and when in the lead again, laid down the heart A, feeling that the remaining trumps would drop. When this was not the case, he lost a trick to the heart J and was set one.

The safest play for South to have made on the first trick was the heart A. This would have provided for every adverse situation, except had West held three to the K-J, in which case the contract would not have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If South happens to open this deal with a weak call of 1-No Trump, what is North's best response?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Sunday, December 12

Sunday's horoscope is a very important one, with social, intellectual, philanthropic and religious matters under excellent stimuli for growth and expression. Adventure and romance also figure, but in all there is need of discretion and a close curb on tongue and temper, as quarrels might undermine much constructive work and personal happiness. Be wise with writings and shun possible litigation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of very important activities, with much growth, expansion and prosperity, if they will control quick and caustic speech, strife and careless writings, and shun litigation. The private associations promise adventure, romance and novel experience.

A child born on this day may be energetic, ambitious, quick and biting in speech, crafty in writings or contracts, but personally friendly, likeable, romantic, adventurous and fond of the unusual or experimental. Elders are its friends.

For Monday, December 13

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of decided opportunity for growth, expansion, promotion and gain, both in business and employment. Secret elements or intriguing circumstances may figure; be wise in these. Seek promotion, favors from superiors and aim high, but with industry and sound plans and propositions. Emotional urges also seek expression.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of excellent promise for promotion, preferment, financial, and worthwhile culminations for application, diligence and sound projects. The private and sentimental lives also have their gratifications. Secret matters call for discretion.

A child born on this day may be capable, industrious, steadfast and also proud, ambitious and responsible. It will likewise be gentle, lovable and sentimental, attracting many friends.

Constable Had To Hire Horse

BROCKVILLE, Ont. — Snow-piled highways do not deter Constable James Hunter of Smith's Falls in line of duty. Bringing Paul Paul here to face a charge of driving a car in an intoxicated condition, Hunter had to abandon his car five miles north of here and rent a horse to make the rest of the 22-mile journey.

Fears Snow Ploughs Been Pawned

TORONTO—Leopold Macauley, Conservative House leader said last night "The Liberal party must have pawned the highways department snow ploughs to raise money for the pre-election highway program. While they spent $30,000,000 before the election, work is now at a standstill, and even the snow ploughs are not out."

Gordon Matthews Is Seeking Fifth Term On Utilities Been Chairman Past 9 Years

No Debentures Issued In Electrical Department Since 1927 Chairman Reports

Members of the Utilities Commission for the past twelve years and chairman for nine consecutive years, Gordon S. Matthews, today intimated to The Examiner he intends to seek re-election for another 3-year term.

"I have tried to assure to the citizens of Peterborough a constant supply of electricity, water and gas at as low a cost to them as was practical and in doing this I have aimed to keep the city's financial position unimpaired and maintain our equipment in good state of repair," he said.

Pointing out that he would seek a return to office on the Commission on the strength of his past record of service, Mr. Matthews maintained the citizens of Peterborough had received a fairly constant supply of electricity as evidenced by the fact than in the last ten years the shutdowns caused by power interruptions have only totalled two hours and fifty-four and a half minutes, or approximately seventeen and a half minutes a year.

That the city's strong financial position had been maintained was indicated by the fact that in the electric department no debentures were issued since 1927, and in the further fact that by 1943 the Commission will have retired $330,000 of the $526,000 debentures outstanding.

Similar in the water department no debentures have been issued. On the contrary the last seven years has seen a reduction in debentures outstanding from approximately $1,-100,000 to $726,000.

Gas Department

The gas department was purchased in 1930 for $356,000 and Peterborough debentures were accepted in payment for it. By the end of the current year the Commission will have retired $50,000 of these debentures and will have set up a depreciation reserve amounting to slightly over $80,000.

Equipment has been maintained at a high standard and in the past ten years the Commission has rebuilt 27 miles of transmission lines in the city. This is approximately one-half of the total transmission milage.

Mr. Matthews commented on the fact that the transformer capacity has taken care of a power load that has increased from 4,930 horse power in 1926 to 9,600 horse power in the present year. To do this, he recalled, the Commission was forced to purchase three 3,000 K. V. A. transformers at a cost of approximately $35,-000. At the moment there is a fourth transformer on order.

In the waterworks department during the ten-year period under review by Mr. Matthews, the Commission eliminated a number of dead ends, and relaid one-third of the water services. A large pump in the pumping station was also replaced with a modern water-wheel driven unit. This latter pump has a capacity of 4½-million gallons per day, as compared with the 3-million gallon capacity of the former pump.

In the gas department the Commission has spent $22,000 on its distribution system since the gas plant was purchased.

Tried to Co-operate

Mr. Matthews claimed the Commission had always tried to encourage the community spirit and had co-operated with other authorities by installing special colored lights at Christmas time each year, and at other special times as occasion demanded. An illuminated fountain was built at the filtration plant, and a wild life sanctuary is being developed there.

"During the time I have been on the Commission," Mr. Matthews said, "the loyalty of our men has been all that could be desired. I know that the men we employ are efficient. We have adopted a pension and insurance scheme, on a contributary basis, that gives them protection in later years. In 1932 we commenced giving our hourly rate employees holidays with pay."

"Electric, Water, and gas rates are now substantially lower than when I first became chairman of the Commission," he declared, "and if re-elected I will strive to further improve the service and cost of electricity, water and gas to the citizens of Peterborough."

COUNCIL ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF CITY SOLICITOR

Accepting the resignation of City Solicitor John R. Corkery to take effect on the last day of the current year, the committee of the whole council last night decided to advertise for applicants for the office and referred the new appointment to the incoming council.

After Mayor George A. Macdonald, in the chair read the city solicitor's letter of resignation, a motion accepting it was made by Alderman Robert S. Cotton and Alderman James Dutton.

The former voiced the appreciation of the council for "the wonderful service Mr. Corkery gave the city during his tenure of office." He included in his motion the recommendation that the city clerk write to Mr. Corkery conveying to him the regret of the council at his retirement from office.

Mayor Macdonald intimated there would be another meeting of the 1937 council before the end of the year to put through by-laws in respect to outstanding business.

Eggs Drop to 30 Farmers' Market

Eggs declined on the Farmers' Market today when large supplies went at 30 to 36 cents a dozen. Farmers reported they had difficulty contracting with local stores for their surplus eggs this morning.

Butter was unchanged at 30 to 32 cents a pound. Chickens brought 16 to 23 cents a pound, ducks and geese 25 cents a pound and turkeys a general 28 cents. Beef quarter prices on the outdoor market showed a tendency to increase, farmers asking 9 and 11 cents and as high as 10 and 12 cents. Pork was 13 and 15 cents and lamb 16 and 16 cents.

Little change was evident in the price of potatoes at 60 to 75 cents a bag. Apples remained firm at prices ranging from 25 to 50 cents a peck. Main Street

Collegiate Notes

THE CHAMPIONS.

The champions seem none the worse after last Saturday's glorious battle, and are now back to their routine school existence. All week the school has been rejoicing.

Tuesday morning, Captain Haig Kelly presented Dr. Kenner with the rugby ball which the team carried to victory. The ball, autographed by all the players, and interlaced with the school colors, will command a prominent position in the school's trophy case. The players were called to the platform and were introduced by Coach Harvard Bamforth to the cheering assembly. Dr. Kenner expressed his congratulations to Capt. Bamforth and his team for bringing the coveted honor to the school. Letters have been received from schools throughout the province expressing congratulations on their well-merited success, it was said.

Thursday morning, Mr. Bamforth received three sample windbreakers for his rugby team. The players will decide which style is most preferable, and then each will receive one of the chosen garnet-and-grey pigskin jackets.

As a further lasting token each player will be given a golden school ring to signify that he played on the 1937 Interscholastic Rugby championship team.

COMMENCEMENT.

This year the school joins heartily in congratulating Wilda Saunders and Ronald Dick, who won the much-coveted honors of being chosen Princeps Alumnae and Princeps Alumnus.

Wilda, commonly known as "Babs," is very popular throughout the school. She is a keen member of the basketball team and is a good sport, not only in athletics, but in all her activities. She is secretary of the Girls' Athletic Association and also secretary of the Badminton Club. Her scholastic ability was demonstrated at her first appearance in the school when she won the Nicholls scholarship.

Selection of Ronald Dick was widely approved among the students. Ron's scholastic ability has been outstanding. In third form he won the special French prize. In third and fourth forms Ron. was awarded the Nicholls scholarships. He is keenly interested in sports, although he does not participate actively.

The Girls' and Boys' Glee Clubs made their first appearance at the Commencement exercises. The girls presented selections from "Il Trovatore"; the boys "The Lost Chord" and "Hop You Grasshoppers, Hop." The selections were much enjoyed by the students and their parents.

Adrian Macdonald of the local Normal School, delivered a fine address to the graduating classes. A reception was held in the gymnasium at the close of the program, followed by a dance in the evening.

It is reported that the City Council is giving a banquet for the P.C.V.S. rugby champs, with their coach, Mr. Bamforth. . . . A number of nimble-footed students demonstrated "The Big Apple," to the syncopated swing of Bob Graham and his orchestra.

TRUCKER PREDICTS AID IN SET RATES

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—(CP).—Evidence concerning wages and hours of work for employees in the Ontario motor transport industry featured hearings of the Chevrier Royal Transport Commission this week with a labor union executive charging wages were "disgraceful" in many cases and that there was intimidation by empolyers to prevent workers joining unions.

The Commission, set up by Ontario Order-in-Council to investigate tolls, rates and labor conditions in the industry and compare them with railway charges and conditions, ended its second week's hearing here yesterday with the head of a small trucking concern on the witness stand.

Wilfred Kingsley, manager of Kingsley Transport of Orillia, operating one truck on the Toronto-Orillia run, told the probe a fixed standard of rates would assist his business if the railways were included in the agreement.

Under cross-examination by various counsel, he said railway competition had a "pretty serious effect on my business."

He said railway competition forced him to lose a sugar hauling contract from Toronto to Orillia.

A dispute developed late in the week concerning power of the Commission to request detailed information from business records of the motor transport companies. Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, Commission chairman, ruled the Commission was empowered to demand such information.

Counsel meet to-day to consider method of obtaining this evidence. It has not been decided whether or not it will be given publicly.

KIWANIS' YEAR

UNFAIR CRITICISM IS OFTEN OFFERED

Lack of information about affairs of their public bodies is too frequently responsible for unfair criticism by taxpayers, W. R. Shaw, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, told members of the Friday Night Supper Club last night. Nine times out of ten criticisms would not be forthcoming if the critics were properly informed on the subject of their criticism, he said.

Head of the well-known Toronto Shaw Schools, the speaker spoke informally to his audience with random observations on educational affairs. He explained in detail the administrative set-up of the Board of Education in Toronto, presenting interesting statistics on per capita costs of education in various Toronto schools. Amusing were his citations of a number of classic schoolboy "howlers" encountered on examination papers in Toronto schools.

Mr. Shaw was introduced to the club by Chairman Charles Shaw, and heard an expression of thanks voiced by Grant Morrow. Alex DeMaio entertained with a vocal solo, accompanied by Martin Chenhall at the piano. It was DeMaio's first public appearance and he earned a fine reception. A quartette consisting of DeMaio, Don Kennedy, George Hall and Noel Barr performed.

WORK OF FIREMEN AIDED BY COUNCIL WITH GRANT OF $50

Commending the work which members of the fire department are doing each year on behalf of the city's needy children, a committee of the whole council last night voted a fifty-dollar grant to the firemen's toy repair shop.

The grant was earmarked for workshop materials and tips, and was made on motion of Alderman R. S. Cotton, seconded by Alderman James Dutton.

When Alderman E. R. Wilson, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, remarked on the fact there was a balance of $415 on the committee's appropriation of $34,743, it was Mayor George Macdonald who suggested the idea which resulted in a grant being made to the toy shop.

"The firemen are to be congratulated on the splendid work they are doing in repairing broken toys," His Worship stated, "and I feel in view of the fact there promises to be a small surplus on the committee's appropriation at the end of the year ,we could well afford to show our appreciation in a practical way."

Alderman Wilson said not one cent of public monies had been used to buy materials for the toy repair shop, the money for this purpose so far having been donated by individuals who wished to encourage the firefighters in their efforts on behalf of the children of needy families.

Harness Sport Hits New High As Old World Marks Smashed

'Good Old Days' Coming Back As Trotting Ring Spreads To New Territory

By Central Press Canadian

GOSHEN, N.Y., Dec. 11.—A highly successful and expanded season climaxed by the best Old Glory sale of yearlings in many years is the nutshell record of the 1937 trotting horse sport, it was announced by the Trotting Horse club, chief governing body of the United States.

In spite of recession, depression or whatever it is, the last minute barometer of the harness racing turf did not fail the sport, with total sales at the Old Glory for trotting and pacing yearlings reaching $206,710, a gain of $16,639 over 1936.

This late season increase climaxed a year which saw purses climb $100,000 to reach nearly $2,000,000; 50 additional race meetings bringing the total for the entire country to 800; the Grand Circuit sporting 32 meetings and 14 weeks of racing, which is one meeting and two weeks more of racing than in 1936; and attendance gains of 20 per cent.

"Good Old Days"

"If 1938 continues at the same pace which this season set, and there is reason to expect next year will surpass 1937, the trotting sport will be back to the 'good old days,' said E. Roland Harriman, chairman of the Trotting Club. "The 1937 season was the best I've seen in many a long day.'

Signs point to an extended Grand Circuit in 1938, with the recently formed Penn-Jersey Circuit in the east kicking off competition as early as next May. Amateur racing by both men and women received tremendous impetus during 1937 by the establishment of the new trotting speedway at Aiken, S.C., gains in interest at Pinehurst, N.C., in Florida, on Long Island, and in California.

Those who saw Peter Manning establish the world's trotting record of 1.56¾ at Lexington, Ky., in 1922, decided that the ultimate in trotting had been reached. At least they were right for 15 years. But this past fall, also at Lexington, Greyhound smashed the old mark by sailing around the Blue Grass track in 1.56.

New World Marks

Two other new world records were chalked up during 1937, and imposing array for future aspirants to shoot at. When Miss Alma Sheppard, 11-year-old Hanover, Pa., driver, piloted Dean Hanover over the mile in 1.58½ she established a new world mark for this three-year-old trotting colt. Not to be outdone at the pacing gait, Billy Direct, three-year-old side-wheeler, set a new world mark of 1.58 for pacers of that age this season.

Other champions, their owners and records, follow:

Champion two-year-old trotter, Dale Hanover, 2.03¼, owned by Elbridge T. Gerry, New York City.

Champion two-year-old pacer, Chief Counsel, 2.03, owned by B. C. Mayo, Tarboro, N.C.

Champion three-year-old pacer, Billy Direct, 1.58, owned by P. J. Downey, Worcester, Mass.

Champion aged trotter, Greyhound, 1.56, owned by E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill.

Champion aged pacer, Dominion Grattan, 1.59¼, owned by Paul Bowser, Boston, Mass., and Lee Hanover, 1.59½, owned by Homer D. Biery, Butler, Pa.

Champion race winning driver, Dr. Hugh M. Parshall, Urbana, O., 142 heats.

Leading money winning driver, Henry Thomas, earned $30,000, Hanover Shoe Farms.

A Honey of a Game

It was my lot last Sat. Mac to see the P.C.I. kids and the Runnymede team clash up at the Oval for the interscholastic honors and it was a honey of a game. Mister Bamforth's bambinos win by 11 to 3 but it was a close fit and the home talent only grabbed off the title because they could produce a scoring play when they got into Runnymede territory while the big lads from the outskirts of Toronto bogged down at the P.C.I.'s quarter line and from there in didn't have a play that would click. The Toronto gang had plenty of size and plenty of foot but the garnet and gray crowd after cutting loose with a hipper-dipper attack in the 1st cupple of mins. that earned them a touchdown battled the big red team all the way to the finish and finally put the game on ice by onside kicking a 2nd major counter.

School Spirit Busts Out

The feature of the doings, outside the grand work of the P.C.I. team itself, was the school spirit that developed in the student body. It looked like every lad and lassie from the Confederation Square knowledge factory was out there Sat. rooting for the team to win and they staged all kinds of antics before, during and after the game. The little battle over Riverside Park earlier in the week put a lot of tobasco in the school outfit and they were out to show the world they was behind their team, no matter where, how, who or when they played. It was a great day for the 2ndary school outfit.

Orfuns Get Bumped

Meanwhile, Mac, down at Riverside, our Orfuns was taking a licking from the Dundas Red Bombers. Of course I only know what I been told about this here struggle but it seems to me that the home gang was up against a tough aggregation and on top of that they didn't get clicking like they been doing. They had played 3 very smart games in a row and mebbe the law of averages was working against them but, making allowances for the class of the opposition, Mister Turnbull's lads didn't turn in the stuff they been dishing out during the latter part of the campaign.

The Dundas team had a lotta weight and a lotta experience and they both counted in the 15 to 1 beating they handed our lads.

They Done All Right

I can't even hazard a guess as to what is going to happen in Dundas in the 2nd game but if it should mean curtains to the Orfuns here's thanking them for a lotta smart football and some enjoyable thrills during Fall Saturday afternoons. They got the honor anyway of staying in the running about as late as any Peterborough team I ever heard of.

That's about all the space will call for today so comment on hockey, if any, and on the Blue Bombers and Argos battle will have to get a week's hoist.

Take care of yourself in the Christmas shopping rush.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

MONTREAL SKIIERS HIT PARK AVENUE IN COLOR COSTUME

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.— (CP).— The skiing prevosts, Fritz, Jerry and Pierre of Montreal, are now the talk of Park Avenue. The brother combination representing Canada at New York's second annual indoor winter sports show, caused quite a stir along the exclusive boulevard as they paraded in their blue capt blazers, slacks and boots.

Spokesman of the trio, 27-year-old Fritz stretched himself lazily in his suite in one of Manhattan's swankiest hotels to-day, as he explained the spill-packed performances of the Prevosts in the early stages of the Madison Square Garden show which started last Tuesday.

Fritz holds the Canadian cross-country record for travelling 60 miles uphill with a pack of 54 pounds in 12 hours, 15 minutes, and the way he floundered downhill on the first few efforts here, made it look as though he missed the bundle on his back. But there was a story behind those spills.

"You see that hill is made of ice, not snow," said Fritz discussing the 85-foot slide. "In Montreal we use ice to put in our drinks, not to ski on."

Their First Attempt.

Indoor skiing is new to the Prevosts and they weren't up to the trade tricks. They used "fast" wax on their skis and travelled down the icy slope like rabbits, while the rest of the performers who had just come from a Boston show, used wax that retarded their speed.

The Canadian team was the only one which did not use steel edged skiis to cut in and act as breaks in the pulverized ice which forms the slide.

"It's a wonder we didn't break our necks," said Fritz adding that his brothers and he had not been on skis previously this winter. It snowed the day they left Montreal.

"But it was a lot of fun and we'll be back next year and watch young Pete (Pierre's nickname) go then. He's only 21 and gets better all the time."

All professionals in Montreal, the brothers agreed that what is needed most in Canada to develop skiing, is first class instructors. They hope to see some Austrian skiers in the east next winter, to instruct in down hill and slalom technique.

"You never get tired of skiing," said Fritz. "Why Jerry there has been at it 27 years."

"Say you better make it clear I started when I was five or they might think I'm an old guy," Jerry interjected.

"You're never too young nor too old to learn to ski," said Fritz. "If you can dance, you can ski. It's all a matter of following." But if you fall over your partner's feet when you dance you'll never make a skier."

TORONTO BLANKS OSHAWA SENIORS

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—Scoring once a period, Toronto Goodyears opened the O.H.A. senior series locally with a 3-to-0 shutout victory over Oshawa's G-Men at Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night.

With a distinct margin in condition, which was reflected in the play, the Toronto squad took the lead early in the first period and were never headed as Harry McQuesten warded off all Oshawa attacks that got past a strong defense.

Remember When—

One of the most memorable National Hockey League games in history was played at Boston four years ago tomorrow night. Crashed to the ice by Eddie Shore, Irving (Ace) Bailey, Toronto Leaf forward, was rushed to hospital with a serious brain concussion. Shore had seven stitches in his head when struck by "Red" Horner, Toronto. Bailey's playing-career ended and he now coaches University of Toronto pucksters.

"French Without Tears," the play, took in more than $505,000 in its first year, just completed, in London.

Diving Champion Recovering

Sustained by the courage that won for her the woman's Olympic diving championship in 1928 and 1932, blonde Georgia Coleman is bravely fighting the hardest battle of her career. Home from the General hospital—and surrounded by trophies and flowers and sheafs of telegrams from well-wishers, she was confident of winning her fight.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'ackle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ANY GALS' cage team interested in joining the Ladies' City Basketball League this winter, playing at the Y.W. regularly after New Year's, had better look lively. Notify the secretary at once. Six team form this intermediate circuit now, two from St. John's, two Quakers, a Y.W. squad and a Westclox team. Then, the senior C.G.E. and Westclox outfits of the L.O.B.A. league, will play some home games at the Y.W.C.A., too. Officers of the City Circuit are: Hon. Prexy, Mrs. R. E. Cutting; president, Joe Cooper; vice-prexy, Whitty Thirnbeck; secretary, Sybil Ecobichon; treasurer, Shirley Zacks; schedule committee, Miss C. Littlefield, Harold Cutting and W. Thirnbeck. Captains of each team make up the executive. Schedule will be drawn up within a couple of weeks—and then whoops for the hoopers!

* * * * * *

IT IS decidedly doubtful if the local Orfuns—after they win the Ontario title today over Dundas in Hamilton—will meet Montreal Rockland outfit for the Dominion championship! Who said; ya dern' tootin', they won't? Well, anyway—as we were saying before getting interrupted so abruptly—it would be a silly series, this so-called Dominion final, because it would not mean a thing. It would not even bring in a few extra bucks, and the boys would have to be thawed out in an ice-box afterward. In 1934, St. Thomas Yellow Jackets knocked off our Orfuns in Ontario finals and then won over the Quebec champs. But the C.R.U. failed to help the playoffs and declined even to recognize it as for the Dominion title. So the Orfuns won't bother.

SAYS BAZ O'Meara of Ted Reeve, humorous columnist and Queen's grid coach: "The long-legged typewriter tactician Ted Reeve must have something on the ball beside the seams. Queen's think he is all right and signed him up again for the sixth year in a row . . . Long Ted pulled up his socks, the whole five feet of each, and went to work. By changing the tempo of the Queen's locomotive yell, and mixing up the Warner, Rockne and metric systems, he worked out such a defence that the rules committee should think of raising the touchdown to seven points in the college union. There is nothing complicated about the Reeve system. He keeps a long-distance booter handy, a placement kicker hard by, and 40 swinging fists in the offing. He likes to see the other team with the ball and it is his profound conviction, born of years of study of the best works of Leacock, Twain, Nye, Lardner and Rogers, that the best play is still the fumble behind the other fellow's line."

TUESDAY IN the gloaming at eight chimes, the Junior City Hockey League will hold its annual re-organization meeting in the Duffus' Board Room. All teams interested in joining should be represented at this session, and Bill Prindible tells us that the entries will close at this first meeting provided there are enough to form a circuit. First come, first served. The junior puck circuit is sponsored by the local Hockey Club for boys under 20 years by Jan. 1st and is a direct farm loop for the O.H.A. junior team. Several graduate each winter from this league to the Colts. Bill Prindible of the Hockey Club is chairman. All games played are at the Brock.

* * * * * *

MUCH CHATTER around town these days concerning our O.H.A. groupings. Our junior setup of Belleville, Havelock and the local Colts—bad as it was—doesn't even seem to be very definite now, what with Havelock playing in the East Peterborough junior circuit, which sends a team into the O.H.A. playdowns. That intermediate "B" group of Oshawa, Whitby, Port Hope and Peterborough, is about the best, but we haven't got a manager yet. No doubt, Peterborough will ice a darned good intermediate "B" team, there being a wealth of players of that class here. Our senior "B" group is still a headache.

* * * * * *

IT WILL probably wind up in an interlocking schedule with four squads aboard: Belleville Redmen, Trenton Fliers, Queen's U., and the Petes. Top two playing off to send a team into senior "B" playdowns and the lower pair playing off to provide a team for intermediate "A" playdowns. Just why they can't all operate as intermediate "A" teams—what's in a name, anyway?—and declare one team for the Provincial playdowns, we dunno. You can bank on Eddie Thomas of Belleville not to accept the short end of it, that's a cinch. He refused forcibly last winter to rate the Redmen in the same class as the Fliers and Petes, which was intermediate "A", and then his Quinte gang went through to win the intermediate "B" championship. At that, we suppose he is a smart hombre.

* * * * * *

LOCAL OFFICIALS suggested to the O.H.A. an eight-team circuit taking in Kingston City Club, Garrisons, R.M.C., Queen's, Fliers, Belleville, Gananoque and the Petes. Top three playing off for a senior "B" team in playdowns, and next three declaring an intermediate "A". It would at least provide fans with more teams to see in action and would keep those Kingston rebels in the O.H.A., if they agreed to make one trip here each through the winter. No word on this yet from the O.H.A. Meantime, Coach Pick Hines of the Petes and Manager Pat Hayden of the Colts are anxiously awaiting ice at the Brock St. rink to look over their material. And now we'll have to think up a new name for our intermediate "B" gang. Any suggestions, puck fans?

SPEAKING OF boxing—well, we will be any day now when the Riverview A.C. announces its next card here—Bud Shaver tells this amusing one in his Detroit Times column: "I like the one attributed to the late Charley Moore, the boxing manager who spoke delightful Brooklynese. Charley was discussing with some of the other brothers of the boxing dodge the age-old question of the value of aggressiveness in scoring a fight. The occasion was one somewhat similar to the first Adamick-Rosenbloom fight which caused such a sharp cleavage of opinion. 'I always figgered it like dis, see," said Charley. 'It's like bold huntin'. If the gee with the gun takes a pop at the bold, see, and misses, I figger dat's one for the bold. You can't score it any other way.' "We suppose you can't, at that.

The Southend Hockey League holds a meeting Monday eve at eight at the Sacred Heart rink; another midget and another juvenile team are wanted . . . . Brock St. rink may be flooded the first of next week . . . . Local Hockey Club officers will go to Belleville Sunday to confer with O.H.A. officials on a senior "B" grouping . . . . Pick Hines, new puck coach here, played ball with Mickey Murray—of this town—for Toronto Leasides some 15 years ago . . . . Half-time and full time scores of the Dundas-Orfuns grid final in Hamilton will be wired here this afternoon . . . . Do your Christmas shopping early.

INTERFERENCE IS BLAMED FOR LACK OF TRADES

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. — After ten days of trooping the hotel lobbies of Milwaukee and Chicago with baseball's big and little wigs, we respectfully submit the following as our personal opinions:

1. Failure of the majors to make more trades is due mainly to the fact that too many officials have to be consulted before a deal ca nbe closed. Many a deal was made by a manager who couldn't get the okay of his boss. Only Connie Mack of the Athletics, Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox, and Billy Terry of the Giants are given carte blanche and don't have to consult any one before closing a deal.

Relations Strained

2. Relations between the two major leagues are far more strained than appears on the surface. American leaguers believe that the National League "double-crossed" them by announcing their adoption of a slightly less lively ball the day before the joint session. The American League had been led to believe the announcement would be made after the joint session.

3. Bill McKechnie, Cincinnati, and Oscar Vitt, Cleveland, will be the two most talked about managers in 1938. McKechnie will work wonders with the Reds' young pitchers, and Vitt will end Cleveland's reputation as a haven for lazy ball players.

4. The dominating names among the players next season will be Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Rudy York, Gerald Walker, Joe Medwick, Dizzy Dean, Billy Herman, and Cliff Melton. Names to watch among the newcomers are Charley Keller and Joe Beggs of the Yankees, Ted Williams of the Red Sox, George Case of Washington, Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals, and Willard Hershberger of the Reds.

Live Wires Of Minors

5. The outstanding minor leagues' officials are Judge W. G. Bramham, President of the National Association; J. Alvin Gardner, President of the Texas League; Earl Mann, President of the Atlanta Southern Association Club, and Dan Hill, President of the Piedmont League. They are among the livest wires in baseball and put some of the smug, self-satisfied major leaguers to shame with hard work, sincerity and enthusiasm.

6. The biggest explosion in baseball is likely to occur within the ranks of the Chicago Cubs as a result of the hiring of Tony Lazzeri as utility infielder and coach. Until the status of Lazzeri is clarified the Chicago scribes are quite likely to make life miserable for Owner P. K. Wrigley. And if Lazzeri's position should be clarified as Charlie Grimm's successor, there may be a rebellion among the Cubs' fans, who favor Gabby Hartnett to succeed Grimm, if and when a change is made.

DROUILLARD WILL CHANCE AT TITLE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 11 (C.P.). — There was more than an outside chance to-day that Orville Drouillard, 135 pounds of fighting dynamite from Windsor, Ont., would get a chance to mix blows with Henry Armstrong, the dusky featherweight champion before long.

Drouillard combined fine ring generalship with some top-rate slugging here to gain an eight-round victory over Kid Sila of Detroit last night. He did it in such impressive fashion that matchmaker Roy Brotherhood announced the Windsor scrapper had earned a bout with the featherweight king on his exhibition tour.

But another Canadian battler, Frankie Bataglia of Winnipeg did not do so well here. Battaglia, who in New York two weeks ago to Solly Kreiger of Brooklyn, dropped a 10-round decision to George Black, Milwaukee middleweight.

Football Dispute Disappoints Regina

REGINA, Dec. 11 (C.P.). — Keen disappointment was expressed in the Regina Dales camp on Thursday night when it was learned Windsor Grads and Hamilton Italo-Canadians had not been able to arrange an Eastern Canada rugby play-off for Saturday.

Dales, Western Junior champions, want to go East to play some team for the mythical Canadian title.

"We cannot understand why the Eastern teams wrangle over a guarantee or where the games should be played when we have gone to the trouble of raising $1,800 and practicing under weather conditions unknown to Eastern teams," said Paul Dojack, Dale coach.

SEWANEE WANTS BERNIE BIERMAN

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—(UP).—If the football wolves begin to howl at Minnesota, Bernie Bierman can escape to Little Sewanee University where they've "got to have a big football team and money's no object."

So far the silver-haired Minnesota coach apparently had his critics well in hand, but so did Harry Kipke while Michigan was on top of the heap.

Walter V. Fort, a slim Texan who once played fullback at Sewanee, weighing only 139 pounds, guaranteed Bierman's football yesterday by offering the Gopher chief a coaching job at Sewanee, Tenn., on a ten-year basis.

"We want a football team down there, and money's no object," drawled the Texan, who said he represented a group of wealthy alumni. "We can match the salary he could get anywhere."

Sewanee, sometimes called the University of the South, has an enrolment of only 250. Seventeen men reported to Coach Heck Clark and with this handful, Clark played all the big teams of the south. He won two, lost seven.

No Word Received As Yet On Eligibility Of Stevenson, Winnipeg Star

TORONTO, Dec. 11 (CP)—Critical eyes of the east's football experts were trained today on the gridiron spectacle of the year — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Fritz Hanson against Toronto Argonauts and Bob Isbister.

From every part of snow-clogged Ontario came newspaper writers, coaches of senior and lesser teams, spectators who refused to let freezing weather keep them from the intersectional struggle to decide Canadian football supremacy. A highly-critical audience was on hand.

And scheduled to play leading roles in the drama were Hanson, the runner, and Isbister, the kicker. The big question revolved around Winnipeg hopes that Hanson would carry the ball as far as Isbister kicked it, meaning 50, 60 or 70 yards.

Sports writers were on hand from a score or more of cities, the Western Ontario Sports Writers' Association making a mass descent on Varsity Stadium for purposes of reviewing the game. Coach Art Massuoci and his Sarnia Imperials, beaten by Argos in the eastern final, also attended in a body.

No Word On Stevenson

While fandom impatiently awaited the Canadian Rugby Union's 11th hour decision on the eligibility of Art Stevenson, Bomber backfield star, interest in the engagement reached fever height. It was estimated in some quarters that Stevenson might swing the tide to Winnipeg with his presence.

President W. C. Foulds of the C.R.U. planned to interview the former Nebraska player this morning, concerning his eligibility under the residence rule, and then decide whether he should join Hanson, Greg Kabat and Steve Olander on the Bomber back division.

Frozen hard, the field was fast for running backs. It was considered ideal for Argos and their sensational extension plays with Art West, Isbister and Morris handling the ball. Hanson would have every chance to flash his tremendous speed.

Even should Stevenson be declared eligible, Bombers planned to have Olander do their punting. The Winnipeg youth, former junior star, kicks a high ball but gets many yards less distance than Isbister.

British Lawn Tennis Body To Train Young Players

Overseas Association Determined To Regain Davis And Wightman Cups

LONDON, Dec. 11.— (AP).—As a preliminary step in a program designed to regain the Davis and Wightman Cups from the United States, the British Lawn Tennis Association to-day decided to set up a training system for promising young players.

Somewhat similar in plan to the junior Davis Cup squads established in the United States last summer, the system calls for a thorough survey of all the material available. Those players signifying willingness to devote sufficient time to practice then will be groomed carefully for international competition.

At its annual session to-day the British L.T.A. also took protective steps against "shamateurism." It empowered a Council to inspect the tournament accounts of member clubs in order to "keep amateurs from fattening on the game."

Most of the discussion, presided over by Sir Samuel Hoare, who was re-elected President, centred about this proposal. The opposing faction contended it would not work since clubs could "cover up" illegal expenses.

The formation of the special Council finally was approved by a vote of 89 to 1 after the minority group had moved the matter be referred to the committee and asked that amateurs be allowed expenses eight weeks out of each year, as now is done in the United States.

Hoare, in outlining the new player-training plan, said: "We are very much alive to the urgent need of leaving no stone unturned to get back the two great international trophies. We have already communicated with a number of players, asking whether they would be available for practice. As soon as we get the answers, the Selection Committee will start intensive training for both the Davis and Wightman Cup teams."

BURKE RETURNS TO OLD GUARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(CP).—Manager Cecil Hart of Montreal Canadiens last night showed for the second time in two years his belief that his Stanley Cup squad of 1930 and 1931 was a truly great hockey outfit.

He brought back to Montreal Marty Burke, whose unspectacular but sound defense work was a main bulwark in those two successive cup victories.

The experiment aroused keen interest in the hockey world which last year marvelled when Hart rescued Howie Morenz from the hockey doldrums and started him on his last, great season. Morenz then sparkplugged Canadiens to the top of the International Section in a spectacular, high-scoring season before death interfered.

To get his former chunky defenseman again in the bleu-blanc-rouge uniform Hart delivered to Chicago Black Hawks Bill Mackenzie, 26-year-old defenseman, who entered the National League via Montreal Maroons and later went to Canadiens. Mackenzie, a Winnipeg product, first attracted the professional scouts while with the Montreal Royals of the senior group.

AUSTRALIAN PAIR BEATS BUDGE, MAKO

MELBOURNE, Dec. 11 (A.P.). — Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath of Australia yesterday defeated Donald Budge and Geno Mako of the United States, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5, in the men's doubles final of the Victorian tennis tournament.

Budge had shoulder trouble which prevented him from serving at a fast pace. McGrath was the outstanding player.

Adrian Quist and Donald Dunbull defending titleholders, were eliminated in an early round.

Budge teamed with Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., to win the mixed doubles final, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, from Jack Crawford and Thelma Coyne of Australia. The Australian team of Mrs. Harry Hopman and Nancy Wynne scored a 7-5, 6-1 victory over Joan Hartigan and Miss Coyne to take the women's doubles title.

Band Spreading
TUNE IN SHORT WAVE as Easily as Local
Marconi, with Band Spreading, ushers in a new era of tuning ease. You don't have to hold your breath to tune in short wave. You have all the scope in the World to bring in your favourite stations in full, rich, resonant tone, actual "face to face" reception. Think what this means in added entertainment. Think of the fun in store as you embark each evening on a simplified "Marconi Tour" of the World's great radio stations. Remember, Marconi has everything — Ten-Station Automatic Tuning, Electric Tuning, exclusive Exponential Baffle and Band Spreading, the greatest forward stride of the day in simplified tuning. So why be satisfied with less when Marconi brings you so much more at no extra cost.

MODEL 118 A.C.

MARCONI
THE GREATEST NAME IN RADIO
CANADIAN MARCONI COMPANY
Vancouver Toronto MONTREAL Halifax St. John's, Nfld.

Actually it is easier to tune short wave on the Marconi band spread dial than to tune your local station on standard broadcast. The reason is simple: on the new Marconi dial the standard broadcast band and each of the five short wave bands have separate scales as shown on diagram, upper left, each clearly marked and extremely easy to read. Old style receivers had one scale for standard broadcast and only one scale for all five short wave bands, shown at lower left. That means many stations crowded into very short space, making separation and tuning very difficult.

BORN

WHITEHOUSE.—To Mr. and Mrs E. J. Whitehouse (nee Elva Ann McIntyre), Park Hill Road, at Nicholls Hospital, on Thursday, December 9, a daughter.

DIED

IN MEMORIAM

BOWLER.—In loving memory of a dear Wife and Mother, Mary Ethel Bowler, beloved wife of Milton Bowler, who passed away December 12, 1936.

God knew that she was suffering
And the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."

The Golden Gates were open,
A gentle voice said, "Come";
With farewells unspoken
Our dear Mother entered Home.

—Ever remembered by her Husband and Children.

ANDERSON.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Ada Anderson, who passed away in Peterborough December 12, 1935.

Her faint last wish we should like to have heard;
And breathed in her ear one last parting word.
Only those who have lost, are able to tell
The pain of the heart in not saying farewell.

—Ever remembered by Stewart and Family.

ANDERSON.—In loving memory of a dear Wife and Mother, Mrs. Ada Anderson, who passed away in Peterborough, Dec. 12, 1935.

Two years have passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away
God took her home; it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

—Sadly missed by Husband and Family.

SLAUGHTER.—In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, who passed away December 11, 1934.

His memory is as dear to-day, as in the hour he passed away.

—Ever remembered by Wife, Sons, and Daughters.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, enters Yale, thanks to a wealthy uncle. Because of his commonplace background, he feels himself an outsider until he meets Lionel Clark, of St. Louis, in his senior year. Jerry finds that Lionel is a cousin of Mimi Le Brun, a girl he had admired several years before while visiting Washington with his uncle. Mimi, granddaughter of a late senator, is about to make her debut, Lionel tells him. Jerry and Lionel are writing a play together. Lionel receives a letter from Mimi in which she writes about Olga, a young woman who married their grandfather, and his wealth, shortly before he died. Lionel invites Jerry to spend part of his vacation at his stepgrandmother's camp in Maine. Jerry is elated as he anticipates meeting Mimi who will be there too. Taking to horses, after meeting Olga, as soon as they reach camp, Lionel leaves Jerry for a moment to join one of the other young people.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 12

My horse and I came at last to an open space which was clear of trees. As we approached it, my eye was caught by something which lay directly in our path. It was a woman's hat, a little Alpine-pealed thing of soft green felt, and stuck in the side, so that it slanted above the crown and caught the light in a gleam of iridescence, was a peacock's feather!

Cinderella's Prince was no surer that the glass slipper belonged to the maiden he sought than was I that the hat with the shining feather belonged to Mimi Le Brun. I felt she must be near yet though my eyes swept the open space and the shaded depths beyond, I could see no sign of her. I picked up the hat and had it in my right hand when a man appeared suddenly at my right, rounding a great tamarack tree which had hidden him. He was on foot, was very tall, very dark, and wore riding clothes of irreproachable style and finish. He frowned when he saw me standing with the hat in my hand.

"Give it to me," he said. "Miss Le Brun lost it."

I did not like his manner, but I handed him the hat, saying: "I am Jerry Chandler, Lionel Clark's guest. The rest of the party have ridden on."

He did not asknowledge my introduction of myself by giving me his own name. "We heard them go," he said, and his words confirmed my belief that Mimi was not far away.

I felt, however, that the presence of the dark man struck a jarring note in my romantic symphony. I would go away at once and leave her to him.

But he surprised me by handing the hat back to me. "You might as well take it to her," he said, "and I'll catch up with the rest."

He had hardly finished his sentence when he strode on to where his horse was hitched, and presently I heard the pounding of departing hoofs.

In a whirl of conflicting emotions I dismounted and went toward the place where the man had emerged. At first I saw no one; then suddenly I was aware of a bright banner flaming against the naked whiteness of a group of birches. I had to look twice, however, to discover that the bright banner was a woman's hair. Her riding clothes were of a rough gray cloth that melted into the background. She was leaning against one of the trees, and her back was toward me.

She was taller than when I had seen her last, but her hair was tied with a black ribbon, just as it had been tied when as a child she had lunched with her grandfather in the senate restaurant.

A twig snapped under my feet, and without turning she said, "I told you not to come back, Andy."

"It is not—Andy."

She flung herself around and looked at me, and it was then I saw she had been crying.

"Who are you?" she demanded.

"Jerry Chandler."

"Lionel's friend?"

"Yes. I found your hat, and the man who came out of the woods said you were here."

"Andy Fuller—" She hesitated, but confessed the truth. "We were having a peach of a quarrel. I told him to go away and not to come back."

I just stood looking at her. It seemed to me incredible that I had met her at last, lovelier than in all my dreams of her, in spite of the tears which stained her cheeks.

"I always cry when I am angry," she said. "It is a silly thing to do, but Andy made me furious. And I told him what I thought of him. I think he was afraid to come back."

"I am sure he must have been," I told her; "he looked it."

We sat down on a log and she took her hat from me, then stood up as if to scrutinize me better. "So you are Jerry," she said. "Lion has told me a lot about you. How did you happen to come through here? Where's Lion?"

"He went on with the others. But this was all so wonderful that I wanted to be alone with it."

She looked at me with evident interest and returned to the log. "Yes," she said, "it is wonderful. You've never been here before?"

I smiled down at her. "I've never been anywhere."

I surprised her, I think, by my honest confession. I surprised, indeed, myself.

"How interesting to know that you have it all before you!"

"Well, it is." I was afraid to breathe lest I spoil the enchantment of the moment. It was almost impossible to believe that she was really there, so delicate, so fine.

"This isn't the first time I have seen you," I went on. "You were in the senate restaurant years ago, with your grandfather, and my uncle and I were eating lunch near you."

"How did you know who I was?"

"I asked my uncle, and he said you were Mimi Le Brun."

Her dark-irised yese were shadowed. "It was the last time I had grandfather all to myself. The next year he married Olga."

She seemed to float away from me on a sea of memory. I brought her back.

"You had a peacock's feather in your hat then. Do you always wear them?"

"Oh—yes." She stood up. "We must be going or we shall be late for dinner." She lifted her face to me. "When I get back to the camp, will everybody know I have been crying?"

I had to admit, "They might."

"I'll wet my handkerchief in the

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S NAME BIRD

Once upon a time as Uncle Wiggily was hopping near the Hollow Tree School he heard a voice in a field near calling:

"Bob! Bob White!"

"Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman, "if I didn't know that was a quail bird I would think it was some one calling a name. Hello, there, quail bird!" he shouted.

"Hello! Bob-Bob White!" answered the whistling call of this bird which really seems to say "Bob-Bob White."

A small brown bird flew out of an old corn field and perched on a fence near the school.

"I didn't know any of you quails were still around here," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, there are a few of us left the hunters didn't shoot," was the answer. Then in his happiness the quail again whistled: "Bob White!"

Teacher Studies

Out of the Hollow Tree School came the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"Why!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, "This is Saturday. I didn't know there was any school, Miss Mouse."

"There isn't," said Miss Mouse. "I just stopped into study a lesson I am going to teach my animal boys and girls next Monday."

"What sort of a lesson?" asked the rabbit.

"It's a lesson about birds," said

What sort of a lesson?"

Miss Mouse. "I have a book on birds but I must have lost it. I can't find it and now I fear I shall not be able to tell the children what I want to."

"Oh, if it's something about birds," said Uncle Wiggily, "why not tell them about this name bird here?"

"Name bird, where?" asked Miss Mouse.

"I suppose he means me," whistled the quail.

"Call the name," suggested Uncle Wiggily. So the quail called.

"Bob! Bob White!"

"Oh, how cute!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "I must tell my nature class about you on Monday—Bob White." and she smiled at the quail.

"There are other name birds," said Uncle Wiggily. "But many of them are only around in Summer."

"Tell me some others," Miss Mouse requested.

"Well, there is the Phoebe bird," said the rabbit gentleman. "It seems to call that name when it sings or whistles. Phoebe! Phoebe!"

"Don't forget the Whip Poor Will," said the quail.

"Is there a bird which calls that name?" asked Miss Mouse.

Contest

"Oh, yes," answered Uncle Wiggily. "But that doesn't mean Poor Will gets whipped. Then, Miss Mouse, there is the Kill Deer bird whose call sounds like those words and also the cat bird."

"Oh, I know him!" laughed Miss Mouse. "He mews like a cat."

"If you want to have a guessing contest in your nature class," said Mr. Longears to Miss Mouse, "ask them which bird asks questions."

"I am not sure I could answer that myself," said Miss Mouse.

"He means the Owl," laughed the quail. "The Owl seems to ask: 'Who? Who? Who' when it calls."

"Oh, how clever," said the animal teacher. "I am sure my nature class will be a success on Monday."

Then Uncle Wiggily hopped back to his bungalow. On the way the Bob Cat sneaked after him. But the quail, seeing the Bad Chap, cried out loudly: "Bob! Bob! White!" Then, thinking it was one boy calling to another, the Bob Cat went slinking away without harming the rabbit gentleman.

"I don't want any Bob White boys chasing me, even if my name is also Bob," snarled the Bad Chap.

So everything happened for the best. And if the rice pudding will stop throwing its raisins at the face of the clock, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's funny football.

Reeve Percy Stinson Appointed Secretary Of Pensions Board

Special Committee Named To Investigate Criminal Justice Accounts

COBOURG, Dec. 11.—Reeve P. Stinson of Millbrook was appointed secretary of the joint Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances Boards for Northumberland and Durham at the final session of the Counties Council Friday.

Information from the Department of Public Welfare advised the Council that a separate board should be appointed for each county, but the two services in each county are to be merged in future. In the past, Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances have been administered separately, but they are combined under one board beginning in January. The Council appointed two members, and the government appoints three.

For Northumberland, the Council's representatives are Reeve Fred. Waterman of South Monaghan and Mrs. Elvie Vincent of Brighton, and for Durham, Reeve A. L. Pascoe and Mrs. M. Nicholls of Bowmanville.

Assessment Unchanged.

Reeve Ray Mallory of Percy failed to persuade the Council to alter the equalized assessment of the counties as fixed two years ago in the Cobourg agreement. His by-law was defeated in the second reading Friday by 22 to 19. Sentiment had altered considerably over night. Mr. Mallory's resolution to have a new bylaw prepared was adopted Thursday afternoon by a vote of 28 to 14. Opponents of his action to revert to the valution made by Judge O'Connor in 1935 were apparently well armed with munitions of figures and other argument, including comparison of assessments showing especially adverse effects for some of the municipalities whose members had voted previously for the resolution. All the persuasive pressure apparently had been applied in the meantime, for the bylaw was halted in its second reading by a resorded vote of 19 yeas and 22 nays. Reeve Wilson of Cobourg asked that the Council be polled.

Special Committee.

Warden Jones appointed as a special committee to investigate the criminal justice accounts, Reeve J. C. Cummiskey of Manvers, Reeve P. Stinson and Reeve L. H. Wilson. They are to report to the 1938 Council in January. This enquiry was the result of a letter from Police Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell, calling attention to a case in which court costs had been unnecessarily incurred by calling attention to a case in which court costs had been unnecessarily incurred by calling witnesses to Cobourg for a trial which was ultimately settled out of court in Toronto. The council last Tuesday got the impression that it might pay them to look into the criminal justice accounts, and find out "where the money goes."

$97,000 For Schools.

Reeve E. C. McKeel of Campbellford presented the report of the Schools Committee, showing 1937 grants to primary and secondary schools within and outside the counties amounting to $97,000. Some of these payments were as follows: High Schools and Collegiate Institutes — Campbellford $13,205.77; Bowmanville $14,086.25; Cobourg $15,070.07; Brighton $5,212.93; Colborne $6,318.31; Newcastle $2,000.15; Port Hope $12,898.33. Also Peterborough $1,377.92; Havelock $82.14; Lindsay $1,057.19; Norwood $380.46; Omemee $198.03; and others in the district.

Surplus Expected.

Major E. L. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, read an interim financial statement for the eleven months ending November 30, which he requested not to be published because a similar statement, given for the information of the members as they returned to their municipalities, last December, was published in The Examiner as an incomplete statement, but was copied in a district paper and misinterpreted by a reader who stirred up unwarranted criticism. The clerk stated that from the present outlook the Council would show a slight credit surplus when all the accounts were compiled. His books are kept open until January 20 next because December accounts are generally heavier than most of the other months.

Indemnity To Contractor.

The Finance Committee, of which Reeve Cummiskey of Manvers is chairman, reported that the Roads Commission had met the commission of Peterborough County in October and agreed to pay F. R. Williford and Company of Lindsay an extra $600, providing the Department of Highways contributed a similar subsidy for the unanticipated expenses in connection with the rebuilding of a pier at Wallace Point bridge. The Department had agreed to the proposal, Reeve Cummiskey reported. Freshet conditions at the bridge over the Otonabee River last Spring had created a problem that could not have been foreseen by the contractor, who appealed to the two councils for consideration of the heavy expenditure he had to meet.

Two Roads Assumed.

The Council approved the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee, of which Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke is chairman, assuming as county roads the road from Rosneath to Harwood in Northumberland, and the road from Kirby to Garden Hill in Durham. The Manvers Township petition for the assumption of the road from Pontypool to Millbrook was left over for further consideration next year.

Reeve W. A. Wood of Cavan, chairman of the Reforestation Committee, reported that 90 per cent. of the young trees planted early this year at Orono had died, and some of the old ones had also succumbed to adverse weather conditions. Newly planted trees in the Haldimand plantation had also suffered, but not so severely. Thirty per cent. of the white pine, oak and hickory had died. Some of the original pines were dying, and it was suggested that they be cut down for lumber. The report was adopted.

in frozen drifts. Officials believed all main roads in Lambton County would be cleared by Sunday.

The fifth day of a blizzard at Goderich on Lake Huron caused drifts that will take days to clear. County and provincial ploughs resumed operations yesterday after being balked by the storm for about 24 hours. A caravan of trucks and automobiles followed the ploughs out of town.

At Owen Sound there was no indication last night of the storm abating. Winds caused high drifts and filled in cuts shortly after they were ploughed out. There was no food shortage and milk producers were able to reach dairies but retail business fell.

Shoppers Travel Via Skis

Welland took on an Alpine aspect as deep snow covered the Niagara district and city. Skiing enthusiasts slithered about city streets and parked the skis outside shops while they attended to Christmas shopping. Bells of long-discarded sleighs were heard as automobiles were stalled in deep piles of snow.

From London came word if the cold continued electrically-heated sand would be provided to keep the peacocks warm in Springbank Zoo. The heating plan consisted of running wires carrying electric current through the sand.

Discovery at the villa of a trunk full of women's clothing—"enough for seven or eight women" and bearing various dainty monograms—caused police to redouble their efforts to uncover other possible graves.

Million and his mistress, who surrendered yesterday with a companion, Jean (The Little One) LeBlanc, already were charged with complicity in at least one of the five murders confessed by Weidmann. LeBlanc was held on an open charge.

After Pneumonia Couldn't Get Strong

After many severe illnesses the patient is often left in an extremely weak and exhausted condition.

To all those convalescents needing a tonic to strengthen and build up their weakened system we would recommend Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to assist them to recover the full enjoyment of robust health. They help to tone up the nervous system and bring back bodily strength and vigor.

Buy a box and be convinced.

Mrs. George Clark, Wallace, N.S., writes:—"Some time ago I had a severe attack of pneumonia. I never seemed to get my strength back, and was always in a weak, nervous condition until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

After I had taken two boxes I felt as well as ever, so I will recommend them to any one who is suffering as I did, for I could not have taken any medicine that would have done me so much good."

FIVE VETERANS ARE RETIRING FROM COUNCIL

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 11.—Definite announcement of the approaching retirement of five of the veteran members of the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham was received by their associates with mingled expressions of regret, praise and personal gratitude by their associates at the conclusion of the final sessions of the year Friday afternoon.

Regret was evoked by the realization that men who have gained valuable experience in the administration of the counties are about to retire to the sidelines of the taxpayer; praise for bringing the counties soundly through the recent years of the depression and also for placing the stamp of their ability on the council's affairs; and lastly personal appreciation of their influence upon younger members who had reached the finishing school of municipal knowledge and method in the counties council.

Aid to Young Members

Deputy-reeve Chas. Calver of Campbellford introduced the little period of encomium. "I don't know whether I shall be back here next year," he said, "and I would like to have this opportunity of referring to some members for whom this will be their last session, because they have intimated that they are not seeking re-election in their municipalities. I am thinking especially of Warden R. O. Jones of Bowmanville, Reeve Percy Stinson of Millbrook, Reeve A. L. Pascoe of Darlington, Reeve Cecil Mercer of Hope and Reeve Leslie Campbell of Cramahe, and the two Murray township men, Reeve E. Ireland and Deputy-reeve Crosby.

As one of the younger members of the council I wish to say that these men will be greatly missed no matter who come here in their places. From their experience I have gained considerable knowledge of municipal matters, and I want them to know that I have appreciated the privilege of working with them. When the ratepayers of these counties send men of their ability to this council they can rest assured that the council will be worthy of these important and united counties of Northumberland and Durham."

"This house won't look the same without the members who have announced their retirement," said Reeve L. H. Wilson of Cobourg. "We shall especially miss their experience and their friendly co-operation. I don't know anyone who ever worked harder here than Warden Jones, and often at a disadvantage to himself."

Deputy-reeve Roy Dodge of Cobourg and others expanded the tributes.

Old Guard Retires

In reply, Mr. Pascoe said that only Mr. Mercer and Mr. Stinson were in the council when he first represented Darlington as reputy-reeve. That was seven years ago. "There have been practically two new councils since then. I met the forty men who were here when I came and eighty others, and I shall always treasure their fellowship."

Warden Jones said in part: "It is not only the friendships you make here, but especially the wonderful education. The friends you make in the counties council are the kind you will always cherish. My work gave me a lot of pleasure, although at times I found it difficult to get away from my business. I feel we made considerable progress this year, and I may say that I am proud of the condition of the counties under this year's council. I believe the council of 1937 was as good as any other the counties have ever had."

The assistance of E. L. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, was also mentioned, and in his turn he said: "I have seen a good many councils and wardens but I have never had a more pleasant year's work than this year. The council and the Warden were splendid, and I wish to congratulate you all on your success. You have had a tough year, but the deficit of the counties is reduced to almost nothing, and the tax rate was lowered, leaving a good record behind you."

The sessions closed with the singing of "God Save The King."

pool and freshen up a bit."

"Let me wet mine."

I brought it back to her, and she had me hold a little mirror which she fished out of her pocket. She had, too, an infinitesimal powder-puff, and she touched her cheeks with it, and her nose and chin. Her own skin was rose-leaf, and she did not need any artificial aids, yet I must confess that the faint perfume of a powder, and her face so close to mine as I held the mirror, set my pulses pounding. She put on her hat, and we went together to where her horse was tied to a tree.

"What did you think," she asked, as we rode along, "when you found my hat?"

"I wondered how it came there. I thought there might have been an accident."

"There wasn't," dryly. "I threw it at Andy."

She made no further explanation, and there was silence for several moments, while I was consumed with curiosity as to what the dark man could have done that she should throw her hat at him.

Evacuate Wounded Chinese

Just before victorious Japanese troops took over the entire city of Shanghai, the 500 wounded Chinese soldiers were transferred from the hospital in the native city, to one in the French concession of Shanghai, which, outside of the international settlement, was the only refuge for wounded and civilians. Here a French soldier carries a pitifully thin Chinese invalid from the door of the hospital.

what he was doing with that axe or crow-bar was taking that poor horse into the barn and breaking its legs so it couldn't get out?"

Mr. McElderry based his charge on evidence given by Veterinary Surgeon Thomas Johnston who examined the carcass of the horse at the scene of the fire on November 1, several days later.

"What did you find inside the barn?" Mr. McElderry asked Dr. Johnston, Humane Society inspector.

"The charred remains of a horse."

"How far would you say the horse was inside the door?"

"About four or five feet."

"In what state of burning was that horse?"

"Pretty well burned up."

"In what state was the head?"

"Around by the left and in under the horse's side."

Buried Nose

Dr. Johnston gave the opinion from that observation that the animal had attempted to escape breathing the smoke and flames by burying its nose.

"Did you notice anything about the back legs of the horse?"

"Both were broken. The right leg was broken above the fetlock and the left above the hock."

"Could you tell the jury from your examination from which direction came the blow that broke them?"

"The blow came from behind because the fractures opened up to the front."

Questioned further concerning the location of the fractures, the veterinary said the break on one leg was about six inches above the hoof and on the other about three feet above the hoof.

"Having regard to the locations of the fractures, what would you say as to whether or not one blow caused the fractures?"

"It looked to me as though whatever broke one leg broke the other."

"Would it be the same blow?"

"It might be the same blow from an agle. It was more probably two blows."

"Could you give any idea what would cause the fractures, any instrument which might have caused the fractures?"

Mr. Carley objected to the question and Judge Coleman sustained the objection.

"Can you tell us in your opinion how those breaks might have happened?"

Various Ways

"There are various ways," Dr. Johnston replied. "It is not right for me to speculate. I think the horse was living when the legs were broken because he fell forward on his belly with his front legs under him. He must have been living when he put his head under his body."

Dr. Johnston said his examination indicated to him the horse was about 20 years old. Such a horse would not be of great value, he opined.

"You would have to conclude you had a fiend in the box, not a human being if you believed that William Hanrahan broke the legs of that horse," Mr. Carley declared in his address to the jury. He pointed out that Dr. Johnston, a Crown witness, did not go as far as saying the legs were broken by a human agency. A falling beam might have caused the fractures, he said.

The Crown completed its case shortly after four o'clock in the afternoon, calling Provincial Constable David Silvester for brief testimony concernin ga visit to the scene of the fire which he made, after Dr. Johnston had been examined. Mr. Carley offered no defence evidence.

When the jury returned and announced its finding that Hanrahan was not guilty, Judge Coleman said: "The jury having found you not guilty you are now free," and dismissed Hanrahan. He thanked the jurors for their service.

MEANS A SAVING OF $78,923,000

Maclaren-Quebec companies, the contracts cancelled in 1935 were replaced by new ones in 1936. The new contracts now are done away with, the amended original contracts becoming the basis of the new agreements. The present contract is the first negotiated with Beauharnois since the legislature declared the original ones "illegal, void and unenforceable."

Same As Old Contract.

The amount of power to be delivered by Gatineu and Beauharnois is the same as that called for in the old contracts. Chief features of the "amending agreements" are cheaper rates, revision of delivery rates and schedule of delivery and elimination of certain controversial clauses contained in the original contracts.

The Commission statement said in part:

"Calculations show the total commitments under all the old contracts made previous to 1934 would have cost the people of the province $326,167,000. The total cost to the people under the revised contracts will amount to $247,244,000, a net saving of $78,923,900.

"The Commission is further able to assure the municipalities and power consumers of the province that the settlement (of the contract disputes) and the result thereof in ample supplies of power and reserves will enable the Commission to maintain the present rate structure without any increase.'

The Commission statement said the cost of the power "will be largely eliminated" if permission of the Dominion government were obtained for the export to the United States of 90,000 horse power. It is said such an arrangement, if made under a yearly export-license agreement, would prove advantageous to Ontario power users.

Rents received in the last year by the London County Council of England for its houses totaled $10,685,000.

JAP FLIERS SINK U. S. GUNBOAT, TWO STEAMERS

ALL A MISTAKE SAY JAPANESE OF BOMBINGS

Claim Their Aviators Unable to See Flags

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13 (A.P.). — The Japanese navy to-night accepted blame for the bombardment and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and two Standard Oil Company tank ships, and avowed "profoundest regret" for the "terrible mistake."

One United States seaman died of injuries from the bombardment by Japanese aircraft indiscriminately strafing all craft in the Yangtze about 25 miles above Nanking.

(Official reports to Washington said three Standard Oil ships were sunk. Apparently, however, a 900-ton general cargo carrier was struck by a bomb and beached; the other two, the 1,000-ton steel tankers Meiping, and Meihsia, burned and sank).

Fifteen of 54 survivors aboard the Panay were injured.

Couldn't See the Flags.

The Japanese fliers who bombed the Panay, said Rear-Admiral Tadao Honda. Japanese naval attache in China, were unable to see the foreign flag and believed the craft to be Chinese.

This resulted in the "terrible mistake for which the Japanese navy feels profoundest regret," the admiral said.

Three naval aircraft participated in the attack, Admiral Honda said.

"The fliers returned, proudly reporting achievement of the bombing of this concentration of ships," he continued. "But the feeling of accomplishment turned to regret and sadness when they learned their mistake."

The Japanese navy, he said, was preparing to punish those responsible for attacking the craft, "identity of the fliers naturally being known."

Admiral Honda explained the fliers were aware foreign craft were "somewhere in the vicinity above Nanking," but were not aware of the specific location of the Panay and the others.

"The Japanese navy with the utmost sincerity is willing and prepared to bring about solution of this unfortunate incident, and hopes no extravagant reports of it will be circulated," the admiral told newspapermen.

EXPORTS UP OVER SIXTY MILLIONS

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP)—Canada's export trade for the eight months of the fiscal year crossed the three quarter billion dollar mark at the end of November, according to national revenue department figures issued here today.

Total exports of Canadian produce were valued at $716,682,690, to which was added $10,857,584 of re-exports of foreign goods.

This compared with $717,747,406 domestic and $8,623,911 foreign produce exported from Canada during the same period of 1936.

The chief export item was wheat which this year had a value of $91,053,940, slightly more than one-half of the 1936 value and only 30 per cent of the volume. Of the 11 other commodity groups, 10 recorded increases and one, furs, an almost negligible drop.

Export values for the period under review, with figures for last year in brackets, follow: wheat, $91,053,940 ($175,337,422); wheat flour, $16,225,682 ($13,543,866); fish, $18,382,753 ($16,672,353); furs, $6,266,496 $6,282,268); meats, $28,127,317 ($21,513,474); cheese, $12,246,079 (9,943,402); planks and boards, $32,656,008 ($26,580,557); wood pulp, $20,160,291 ($21,311,050); newsprint, $87,293,633 $72,300,954); automobiles and parts, $18,069,820 ($13,376,412); copper, partially manufactured, $40,550,028 ($25,220,032); unmanufactured nickel, $39,664,763 ($27,585,972).

During November, exports from Canada dropped to $106,662,684, from $120,971,364 in November 1936. Re-exports of foreign produce last month were $1,154,832, compared with $1,864,736 in November a year ago.

Japanese Masters Of Nanking As Capital Falls

Take Over Government Buildings, Cut Off Retreat Except by Boat—100,000 Refugees Starve on Island

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13—(AP)—The Japanese military command tonight officially announced occupation of Nanking, China's capital.

The troops completed the occupation at sunset, the announcement said.

Street fighting, with Chinese contesting every foot of the Japanese advance, marked the battle for the city, Japanese said. Slowly, however, they reported, they took over government buildings which had housed Chinese machine-gun nests and snipers.

Earlier reports received in Tokyo said Chinese troops had begun a general retreat from the city and declared that Nanking's "fate is sealed."

Japanese warships steamed up the Yangtze river, exchanging fire with Chinese batteries at Wulungshan, several miles below Nanking.

A Japanese military spokesman announced that a Japanese column advancing down the Yangtze had captured Pukow, opposite Nanking, cutting off Chinese retreat except by boat.

Japanese also announced the bombardment of Sian, in Shensi province, and Nanchang in Kiangsi province.

Chinese reports said 100,000 Chinese refugees marooned on Tungming Island in Lake Tai were starving, with relief cut off on all sides.

Chinese officials at Hankow said their Nanking troops suffered heavy losses but added that Japanese casualties were extremely heavy as well.

ITALY DEPARTS LEAGUE NATIONS 'WITHOUT REGRET'

ROME, Dec. 13 (A.P.). — Italy withdrew Saturday from the League of Nations, but announced her determination to continue to collaborate for peace.

The action, decided upon at a seven-minute meeting of the Fascist Grand Council, was proclaimed by Premier Mussolini from the balcony of the Palazo Venezia.

One of the greatest crowds ever assembled in the vast square in front of the palace, despite a heavy rain roared approval.

"We withdraw without regret," he shouted, "from the shaking temple where they are not working for peace but are preparing for war."

Italy thus followed in the footsteps of Germany and Japan, with whom she is joined in an anti-Communist pact, among the leading nations to depart from the League.

Membership in the League will not end until two years after formal notice of withdrawal, given to Geneva yesterday, but Italy for more than a year has pursued a "policy of non-co-operation" with Geneva.

Dates to Ethiopian Fracas.

This estrangement dated to May 11, 1936, when the Italian delegation walked out of a meeting of the League Council after it had voted to continue the sanctions against Italy because of the Ethiopian War.

Assailing the League as "preparing for war" rather than working in the interests of peace, he said Italy would adhere to her policy of "collaboration and peace."

"It is simply grotesque to believe, or to have it believed, that pressure determined our attitude," he said. "There is none, and there has been none. There could have been none. Our comrades of the Berlin-Tokyo axis were — and this is the plain truth—absolutely discreet."

Immediately after the Grand Council session, Foreign Minister Count Ciano notified Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, of Italy's resignation "as of December 11, 1937."

Canadian Nurses Find U.S. Barred

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (A.P.). — Immigration officials said to-day no more Canadian nurses would be allowed to enter the United to practice unless they came in as regular immigrants.

Officials said they had issued this order after receiving numerous complaints that Canadian girls were entering with visitors' permits to work in hospitals, displacing American girls.

They also said those Canadian nurses now here would be allowed to stay until their permits expired.

TO MAKE STUDY OF LIQUOR SALES

Deploring the large amount of money that, they claimed, was being spent on intoxicating liquor in the Province of Ontario and in the city of Peterborough in particular, members of Peterborough Ministerial Association this morning named a special committee to study the matter and bring in a report. Those named on the committee were: Adjutant Neil Warander, president; the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe and the Rev. E. W. Young. It was announced by Adjutant Warrander that the committee proposes to meet almost immediately to draft a letter to the press dealing with the drink question. He added the meeting commended the attitude of the press of the province generally on the stand the press was taking in regard to the sale of liquor. During the morning the Association heard an address from W. F. Butcher, M.A., of Toronto, who is chairman of the Missionary Council of the Student Christian Movement.

International Probe Clears Trotzky Brands Trial Of 17 'Frame-Up'

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)

LEON Trotsky was informed today that an international commission of inquiry had found him not guilty of counter-revolutionary activities and had declared the trial of 17 of his sympathizers a "frame-up."

Dr. John Dewey, philosopher and author who was introduced to a mass meeting last night as "the Zola of our age," read the commission's review of the evidence and concluded:

"We therefore find the Moscow trials to be a frame-up. We therefore find Trotsky and Leon Sedoff (his son) not guilty."

Thirteen of the 17 men who went to trial last January paid with their lives when they pleaded guilty to plotting against the regime of Josef Stalin.

In Mexico City Trotsky commented, 'the conclusions of the commission do not, of course, bring back life to the assassinated revolutionists, but it reestablishes their political honor."

Truckers Say Rails Showed No Books

Driver Disputes Evidence of Fabian On Hours and $1 Wages—Court to Check

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(CP)—The Chevrier Royal Transport Commission entered its third week of hearings here today with a protest by the Automotive Transport Association concerning the "rather large" demands of the commission.

Lewis Duncan, Automotive Transport Association Counsel, protested the request of the commission that the trucking companies produce detailed business records at the probe.

He said the railways had not produced such information when their witnesses were on the stand.

Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, commission chairman, said there would be more railway witnesses later.

The commission chairman said that trucking company heads who protested evidence given at the probe would have to appear before the commission if they wished to lodge a formal objection. Letters of protest would not be accepted.

James McMaster, only driver for Kingsley transport of Orillia, was called as a witness and testified he was paid $15 a week.

Kept Hours in Head.

McMaster said he kept his timebook "in my head," and if Mrs. Kingsley, who keeps the books, asked him for his hours he told her.

He said he never worked more than 10 hours a day, and told the court he was "flagged down" by L. G. Fabian, former Provincial highways inspector, some time ago.

Fabian asked him about his wages but he would not give him a definite answer, witness testified.

Commission counsel Joseph Singer said: "Fabian gave evidence here that you told him you were paid at the rate of $1 a day. Is that true?"

"No," McMaster said. "That's not true. I never told anyone I got paid $1 a day."

Fabian was recalled to the stand in an effort to clear up the conflicting evidence.

"You saw the last witness, McMaster," said Singer. "Is that the man with whom you had that conversation?"

"I couldn't say," said Fabian.

Fabian charged that Kingsley and McMaster were not telling the truth. "We have some valuable information that will be produced later to show that they are lying."

"We are anxious to get at the truth—we don't want the good faith of the Commission to be imposed upon," said Mr. Justice Chevrier, adding that if evidence disclosed anyone was imposing the Commission would deal with the offender with "all the vigor in its power."

Long Hours Unavoidable.

Fred Burford of Burford Transport, Picton, testified that long hours for truck company employees were "sometimes unavoidable."

PARIS MURDERER ADMITS SIXTH

PARIS, Dec. 13 (A.P.). — Eugene Weidmann, chief executioner for a murder-for-profit syndicate, to-day added the name of a sixth victim to his life of confessed slayings.

He admitted, police announced, killing the missing Janine Keller, 30-year-old Alsatian, in his St. Cloud Villa.

Weidmann once deported from Canada, previously had confessed to strangling Jean de Koven, young Brooklyn dancer, and to shooting four men—one of them an associate in the supposed syndicate of kidnapping and death for money.

COMPENSATION AND APOLOGIES IS U.S. DEMAND

Roosevelt Is Shocked And Tells Emperor So

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP) — President Roosevelt today conveyed to the emperor of Japan an expression of his deep concern over the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay.

Simultaneously the United States government transmitted to the Japanese government a demand for full compensation and apologies for the incident and guarantees against a repetition of such an attack.

The president's expression was transmitted to Hirosi Saito, the Japanese ambassador, by State Secretary Hull.

The Japanese envoy called on Hull to deliver his government's profound apologies over the sinking of the Panay in the Yangtze River above Nanking. Hull informed the Japanese envoy that President Roosevelt was "deeply shocked and concerned by the news of the indiscriminate bombing of American and other non-Chinese vessels on the Yangtze and that he requests that the emperor be so advised."

Pilot, 4 In Plane Saved By Flares

PRESTON, Ont., Dec. 13.—(CP).—Flying to a point near Timmins over the week-end, Clare D. Edwards, Preston aviator, made a forced landing on a frozen lake and a second landing at his destination after dark with the aid of flares. He was accompanied by four Toronto investment associates.

The plane was forced down on a small lake about 45 miles northeast of Sudbury and was nearly swamped in landing. The trouble was adjusted in two hours and the plane arrived at its destination after dark and was landed within an area designated by flares set-up by district residents.

Whole Bluebeard Villa Grounds To Be Spaded

Hunt Body Of Second Missing Woman And Fear Murder List May Reach 12

PARIS, Dec. 13 (AP).—Mystery of missing Janine Keller, feared to be the sixth victim of a murder-for-profit syndicate, convinced police today the list might reach 12.

They made new efforts to search for bodies in the St. Cloud Villa, where Eugene Weidmann killed at least two of his five admitted victims, including 22-year-old Jean de Koven, Brooklyn, N.Y., dancer.

Investigators said four pieces of evidence found at the ramshackle villa—clothing, a trunk, a picture and a passport—definitely connected Mrs. Keller, a 30-year-old Alsatian, to the ring.

Mrs. Keller's estranged husband identified the passport as his own, the clothing and trunk as his wife's and the photograph as a picture of her.

Mrs. Keller had not been seen since October 2, when she came to Paris from Strasbourg, presumably to become a companion to an invalid American girl known only as "Miss Wonder."

British Warship Hit In General Strafe On Yangtze

15 Reported Wounded, Many of Them Seriously; At Least 61 Rescued—Japs Offer Apologies

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14.—(Tuesday) (AP)—The British gunboat Bee reported early today she had rescued eight Americans, seven of them seamen from the United States gunboat Panay, sunk in the Yangtze river above Nanking by Japanese planes Sunday.

These rescues brought to 61 the known survivors among 72 persons believed to have been on the Panay when she was bombed. The report from the Bee further said it was understood two more Americans—not included in the 61—were safe ashore.

One seaman died of wounds. Fifty-four were known to be ashore at Hohsien, about 35 miles upriver from Nanking, 15 of them wounded, some gravely.

The British vessel's report alleviated fear that at least 18 lives might have been lost in the sinking of the gunboat and two Standard Oil Company ships by Japanese planes indiscriminately strafing all craft about 25 miles above Nanking.

The Bee, apparently the first rescue ship to reach the scene, said she had taken aboard Vernon F. Puckett, chief petty officer on one of three Standard Oil vessels attacked; J. V. Pickering of Cadiz, O., acting manager of the Standard Oil's Nanking branch, and Stoker William T. Hoyle.

54 Survivors Found.

The men, picked up near Hohsien, where 54 survivors of the Panay disaster were taken, said they had seen the Europeans on the river bank.

The Bee thus far had been unable to locate the survivors but continued the search throughout the night, remaining in the vicinity of the Kaiyuan wharf at Hohsien.

The other Panay survivors at Hohsien, a small Chinese river town in the centre of fighting between Japanese and Chinese, included 15 wounded, several seriously.

They were taken ashore there amid great danger from artillery and gun-fire but a Japanese spokesman said urgent messages to Japanese officials had halted the attack to en-

MARMORA TEACHER FREEZES TO DEATH WALKING IN SLEEP

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 13—The village of Marmora was shocked early this morning on hearing of the death of Miss Hilda Thompson, 29-year-old member of the Marmora Public school staff who was found dead from exposure on ice covered land between the village skating rink and Crowe river. The body was found about 4 a.m. by a search party composed of Constable P. Gray, F. S. Johnston, T. R. Wells, N. Mumby and W. C. Spry.

Missed from her room about 2 o'clock, F. S. Johnston, a neighbor was notified, who in turn got in touch with Constable Gray and a search party was quickly organized. The deceased girl was clad only in her night attire and it is believed while sleep walking she stepped into the river but made her way to the shore for the body was found a fair distance from the bank. Suffering from a nervous breakdown, the late Miss Thompson had been granted leave of absence from her school duties.

A daughterof Dr. David and Mrs Thompson of the village, she leaves to mourn the loss, one sister Jean of New York city and one brother James at home. She was an ardent member of St. Andrew's United church and deeply interested in the welfare of young children.

DUPLESSIS TO AID HEPBURN IN HYDRO

MONTREAL, Dec. 13. — (CP) — Agreement in principle on the two chief topics on the agenda for the meeting of Ontario and Quebec cabinet groups, headed by Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Premier Maurice Duplessis respectively, was reached this morning, and this afternoon the conference will get down to details.

The two decisions made, it was authoritatively stated, were:

Ontario and Quebec will submit to the Rowell Royal Commission on federal and provincial relations similar representations respecting further extensions of federal taxing powers and anything that might impair revenues of the two provinces.

Quebec will aid Ontario in making representations to the federal government to permit export of power under contract to United States power firms.

"Everything is harmonious," said Premier Hepburn, and Premier Duplessis nodded assent as the two left the hotel conference room arm-in-arm. Neither premier would make a statement but said an official statement might be issued at the conclusion of the conference.

Voices Fears At Consistory Elevating Five New Cardinals To The Purple

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 13 (AP) — Pope Pius expressed grave concern today over far eastern and other world problems at a secret consistory in which he elevated five new cardinals to the purple.

An official abstract of his 1,500-word address said he saw what great damages had been inflicted in the far east on heralds of gospel and flourishing Christian communities and what even greater damages might be feared for the future.

"Looking towards Europe we see with no less sadness the impious and atrocious things which are being perpetuated in Russia and which are being prepared to the danger of Christian life in Germany," the holy father said.

"The people of Christ in Spain, who are most dear to us, are still agitated by sad and harrowing events although one begins to see hope of better times."

Thirty-one cardinals were present at the elevation of the five — Most Rev. Arthur Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminister; Archbishop Giuseppe Pizzardo, vatican under-secretary of state; Archbishop Ermenegildo Pellegrinetti, papal nuncio to Yugoslavia; Archbishop Giovanni Piazza,

Convicts Slay Hostage Officer As Prison Break Fails

Six Defy Governor's 2-Hour Plea, Stab Captive As Guards Use Tear Gas

COLUMBIA, S.C., Dec. 13 (AP).—Six desperate convicts who slew their hostage, the captain of the State penitentiary guards, after defying a dramatic, two-hour plea to surrender by Governor Olin D. Johnston, were thrown into "solitary" today to await trial.

Sheriff T. Alex. Heise announced that William B. Woods, 24-year-old highway robber, confessed he was the one who stabbed the 61-year-old guard captain, Olin Sanders, yesterday before the convicts were routed from Sanders' office by national guardsmen hurling tear gas shells.

Prison officials said Sanders had issued a standing order that in such emergencies the demands of the prisoners should not be heeded.

Adjutant General James Dozier, who begged in vain for Sanders' life after the governor finished, said he could hear Sanders talking several times. Once the captain said, he lay on the floor in his shirt sleeves:

"I'd like to live, and if there is any way you can get me out of here, I sure would be glad."

The prisoners, pounded by clubs and bullets as they stumbled from the victim's office, were treated at the prison infirmary and question-

Wife Who Quit Dean When Refused Son Goes Back For Daughters' Sake

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 13 (AP)

DENIED a divorce on the ground that her clergyman husband had refused her pleas for a son, Mrs. Israel H. Noe, wife of the dean of St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral, has decided to take up her home life where it terminated six years ago. In a joint announcement yesterday, the Dean and Mrs. Noe said they would make a home for their two daughters once again.

Mrs. Noe sued for divorce in 1931, alleging the dean would not heed her desire for a son. In reply he said he did not believe in celibacy and loved his wife. Chancery court refused her petition and the state supreme court would not review the case.

In a written statement the dean expressed his belief that marriage is a "life of generation and a life of regeneration" and added:

"We have fulfilled the function of generation, being blessed with lovely children, and now comes the task of building up a life of regeneration and throwing around our children the protection of a permanent and abiding home."

St. Thomas Night Clerk Is Knocked Out But Saves Hotel's Cash

St. Thomas, Dec. 13 (CP)

A YOUTHFUL thug believed to be a transient walked into the Empire hotel early today and ordered Richard Butterwick, elderly clerk to open the cash register. Butterwick refused and the man went into a rough and tumble fight which ended when Butterwick was knocked unconscious. When he recovered the would-be robber was gone but the cash in the register was intact.

Butterwick said that when he came out of the washroom into the rotunda he saw the stranger standing near the office and he went to wait on him. "Open that till and be quick about it," ordered the youth, whose attitude with his right hand in the pocket of his reefer coat was threatening.

"I'm not opening any tills," retorted Butterwick and reached for an ornamental ash tray. The thug anticipated the action and grappled with Butterwick. "We had a lively few minutes," said Butterwick. "Then everything went black.

"When I came too I was lying on the chesterfield and the thug was gone."

JAP OUTRAGE STIRS ACTION ABOUT LONDON

Boycott Cry Widens; New Protest Likely

LONDON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Foreign Office officials conferred to-day on the serious Far Eastern situation preparatory to what observers believed would be dispatch of a strongly-worded note of protest of Japan.

As it has done since fighting started in the Orient, the Government kept in close touch with Washington.

Japanese shelling yesterday of the British gunboat Ladybird pushed aside temporarily consideration by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Eden of Italy's fanfare in withdrawing from the League of Nations Saturday.

A British seaman was killed and a British officer and seaman wounded by the Japanese shells off Wuhu China.

News of the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and two oil steamers missed all but the latest editions of morning newspapers. It came after publication of editorials commenting on repeated incidents which culminated in yesterday's attacks.

Since August 26 when the British Ambassador, Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, was wounded by bullets fired from a Japanese 'plane, Great Britain has sent a number of protests to Japan on various incidents.

Mass meetings at Southampton and Hull last night urged that Great Britain take the leadership in a boycott of Japanese goods, and commended Glasgow dock-workers for their refusal to handle Japanese cargoes.

MORDECAI BLEWETT IS DEAD IN SMITH

Smith township lost one of its oldest native residents when Mordecai Blewett passed away in his 90th year at his home, Lot 5, Concession 1, Sunday.

He was born in Smith, son of Josiah Blewett and Jane Wilson and spent his entire lifetime in the township except for short periods of residence in Otonabee and Peterborough. His parents were among the earliest settlers. Three years ago his wife, Mary Roseborough, predeceased him, ending a 60-year partnership in marriage.

Neighbours gathered from miles around when Mr. and Mrs. Blewett celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary on January 18, 1932. They had been married, it was recalled, by Rev. Mr. Doyle at the Gilmour Baptist Church parsonage in 1872. Present at that jubilant anniversary gathering was Mrs. W. McKee at Listowel, one of the bridesmaids at the wedding.

Mr. Blewett leaves two daughters, Mrs. S. Middleton and Mrs. George G. Hendren, both of Peterborough, one son, Stanley at home, and one sister, Mrs. Winnifred Elliott of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held from the Nisbett Funeral Home, Tuesday at 2 p.m., with interment at the Lakefield Cemetery. Rev. Ralph D. Wright of the Gilmour Memorial Church will officiate, assisted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church which Mr. Blewett attended lately.

CONVICTS SLAY HOSTAGE GUARD

ed for hours by the authorities before they were segregated in solitary cells.

Captain Sanders had gone to his office in a building in the prison yard after breakfast. The six men, in the prison yard for the recreation period, approached him singly or in couples on the ruse of asking a favor. In the office they overpowered him and demanded his automobile and passage out of the penitentiary gate. Captain Sanders was unarmed.

Governor Johnson, rushing to the prison, talked to the convicts through a barred window of the captain's office and offered them immunity from punishment if they would surrender.

One of the felons shouted back: "Get us a car. Open the gates. Otherwise it'll be too bad for Sanders."

For two hours the youthful governor pleaded.

"We'll stay here until hell freezes over," the convicts shouted back on one occasion.

Two minutes after the first tear gas shell was hurled into the room, a prisoner shouted:

"We surrender. For God's sake, let us out."

Three Ships Begin Rescue Of 600 Shipwrecked

Five Use One Name Satisfactorily

Troy, N.Y., Dec. 13 (AP)

SHAR J. Zyich, the last name in the Troy telephone book, is really five other fellows.

The five share an apartment. To avoid possible confusion among friends if the telephone were listed only in the name of one of them, they decided to make sure they could tell everyone:

"Ring me any time, I'm the last one in the book."

"Zyich," starting with the last two letters of the alphabet, seemed an unbeatable combination. The "Shar J." was evolved by using the first initials of Stephen H. Samson, Harold T. Lyon, Alex R. Robb, Richard J. McFalls and John Snyder.

The young men say the result is satisfactory.

Freighter Skipper Reports Beached Liner Passed Him At Speed On Bad Night

MANILA, Dec. 13—(AP)—While rescuers removed stranded passengers of the wrecked liner President Hoover, the master of a German steamship told to-day how the big vessel ploughed half her lenght upon jagged shoals near Formosa in murky, rough weather last Friday midnight.

Captain E. Stepback of the German freighter Prussen, first vessel to reach the $8,000,000 luxury liner, said the Hoover's condition was precarious because heavy seas rush in with great force where she is grounded.

"She will be ashore a long time," he said, refusing to hazard whether the Dollar Line vessel could be salvaged. "She was taking water fast early Saturday morning."

The U.S. destroyer Barker, in a message intercepted at Shanghai, said the Hoover was not in immediate danger.

Captain Stepback, advised by Captain George Yardley of the Hoover that he needed no further immediate aid, left the stranded vessel Saturday.

The Dollar liner President McKinley, aided by the Barker and another destroyer, began taking some 600 passengers aboard early to-day from the two tiny islands where they sought refuge aboard the Hoover piled up on Hoishoto Island, east of Formosa.

Liner in a Hurry

Captain Stepback said his ship was fast overtaken in murky weather by another vessel between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m. Friday (9 a.m. and 10 a.m., Friday, E.S.T.).

The captain set a course to pass westward of Hoishoto after the other

ONTARIO DIGS OUT, BLIZZARD COSTS RUN IN THOUSANDS

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (C.P.). — Storm-swept Ontario, slowly but surely, to-day was winning its fight to restore communications crippled by one of the worst series of December blizzards on record. In the East, the West and along the Niagara Peninsula conditions were returning to normal.

Snow-blocked highways in all storm areas were fast being cleared. Supplies of milk, butter and other foods were taken to communities isolated during last week's successive blizzards. Buses and transport trucks again were running on schedule in most sections. Motor travel in the peninsula, almost at a standstill for days, was resumed.

The cost of the storms that left snowdrifts several feet high in Eastern and Western Ontario was estimated in the tens of thousands of dollars. Extensive property damage was caused in all storm areas, while the cost to the provincial and municipal governments for road-clearing equipment and labor was heavy.

The lighter side of the storm was seen at Fonthill near Welland on Sunday. Clear, cold and sunny weather prevailed after days of blizzards, luring more than 500 sports enthusiasts from all parts of the Niagara district to the Lookout Point Golf and Country Club. Skiing and snowshoeing was the program.

Ottawa Area Open.

Highway traffic was reported as moving normally in all districts. Ottawa said roads there, blocked for several days, were cleared, with sub-zero temperatures prevailing. Roads in Western Ontario were fast being reopened. The Meaford district on Georgian Bay was the only trouble spot on the Western weather map.

Renewed storms at that port were reported last night. Roads cleared only a few hours previously were filled in by deep snow, but the storm at Meaford apparently was local. Owen Sonnd, 15 miles distant, reported clear weather and open roads and a threatened food shortage relieved.

Snowdrifts several feet high were cleared from the streets of Brockville, where the Eastern storm centred. Mrs. Frank Darling and her nine-year-old daughter Jean almost lost their lives in the deep snow there. They were caught on Sunday night in a snowdrift on the railway tracks and were struck by an engine and snow plough. Both were injured seriously.

Ball Of Fire In Marmora Area Has Citizens Wondering

Many Startled As Meteor Speeds East About 100 Feet Up

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 13. — Two luminous bodies passed over Marmora Township on Friday and the various groups of sightseers were left wondering as to their portent.

The brothers, William and Isaac Wright, returning from work to the latter's home in Marmora Township about 4.15 p.m., saw what Isaac Wright described to The Exminer as "a ball of fire with a head which looked to be 8 inches in diameter and a tail of about 8 feet in length" pass over the Wright residence in an easterly direction.

"Every little ways it dropped chunks which disappeared," said Wright, "and I would judge its fight to be about one hundred feet in the air."

George Wellman, Jr., who resides on No. 14 Highway, between Marmora and Bonarlaw, also related that school children proceeding northward from Bonarlaw School at the close of the day's studies also sighted the object.

The section men at Marmora C. N. R. Station and Mrs. Allan Garvey were others who reported the meteor's flight.

That same evening about 9.30 Clayton Cole, son of Fred Cole of the Vansickle Settlement, north of Cordova, left the school house after attending a Chrismas concert practice. A flash of light not very high up, he declared, was seen by him to travel northwards and greatly illuminate the area it passed over. He also said that he saw a similar occurrence about four years ago.

A DROUGHT APPEAL

TORONTO, December 13—(CP)—Two children from the drought areas of Saskatchewan will speak on a national network tomorrow night, when the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation presents a special program. The program will make an appeal for Christmas presents for children of the Prairie farm districts which have been stricken by the drought. Time of the broadcast is from 9 to 9.30 p.m. E.S.T. The children, whose names have not been announced, will speak from Regina.

YEAR FOR THEFT

CORNWALL, Ont., Dec. 13. — (CP).—Francis Burson of Cornwall, yesterday was sentenced to one year's imprisonment for stealing linen from Nazareth Orphanage after begging and receiving food from the institution. He was arrested as he sought to sell the linen at a second-hand store.

Burson's companion, Harvey Reynold, denied participating in the theft or knowing of it, but admitted he accompanied Burson on the attempted sale. He was remanded a week.

MEADVILLE, Pa.—(CP). — Reversing the admonition "go west, young men," a number of Mennonite families from Iowa are trucking east to establish a dairying colony near here.

ALL A MISTAKE SAY JAPANESE OF BOMBINGS

half of the naval command, Admiral Hasa said.

"It is my painful duty to make the following announcement that on receipt of information on December 11 that Chinese troops in Nanking were fleeing by boat up river, the naval air force unit was ordered to proceed to bomb these craft.

"In the course of these operations yesterday, they mistook three Standard Oil ships for Chinese vessels. It is most unfortunate that in the course of these operations a United States warship nearby was bombed and sunk."

British Protest.

British officers lodged vigorous protests with the Japanese, going ashore to interview the Japanese senior naval officer, who told them he had orders "to fire on every ship on the river."

The firing on the British ship however, he added, "was a mistake."

Commander O'Donnell is flag captain of the British river patrol. He was slightly injured. Just week ago the Ladybird's regular captain, Lieut.-Commander H. D. Barlow, was wounded by bomb splinters during a Japanese air attack on Wuhu.

A British merchant ship, the 2,672-ton Suiwo, also was hit by the shells which endangered the Ladybird. She was not badly damaged.

Near Nanking the British gunboats Cricket and Scarab were escorting several merchant vessels when Japanese aircraft flew overhead and dropped bombs. The gunboats opened fire with their small ordnance and machine guns and drove the planes away.

The British tugboat Tsingtah, carrying H. I. Prideaux-Brune, British Consul at Nanking, and Lieut.-Colonel W. E. Lovat-Fraser, British Military Attache, also was under fire from the Japanese off Wuhu but was not hit.

18 Bombers In Raid

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. — (AP) — Eighteen Japanese bombers and pursuit planes took part in the attack on the United States gunboat Panay and three American tankers, the Standard Oil Company was informed today by cable from Shanghai.

(In Shanghai Rear Admiral Tadao Honda, Japanese naval attache, said only three naval aircraft attacked the river boats.)

The message said the Panay and the tankers Meiting, Meishia and Meian were proceeding slowly up the Yangtze early Sunday when the planes launched their attack, 27 miles above Nanking.

The Panay sank. The Meian was beached and deserted, the cable said, and the Meishia and Meiting were left burning at a wharf.

RHODESIA TO END CANADIAN TRADE

OTTAWA, Dec. 13—(CP). — Slim, one-sided benefits favoring Canada today were believed caused for Southern Rhodesia's denunciation of its five-year-old trade agreement with Canada, signed at the Ottawa Economic Conference.

An external affairs department official disclosed last night the African colony gave notice last summer of its intention to terminate the agreement in conformity with a clause which said the treaty would last five years from its effective date and thereafter until six months from the day either party gave notice of withdrawal from the arrangement. The five years will have elapsed next Jan. 2.

It was not learned if negotiations were under way to patch up the treaty or contract another, but officials said Southern Rhodesia obtained little benefit from it and that Canada's trade under its provisions never reached $1,000,000 a year, practically all in exports to the colony. Imports reached only $163,431 at peak.

The treaty extended to Southern Rhodesia Canada's British preferential tariff rates on all its goods, placing corn, grapefruit, oranges, lemons and limes on the free list.

In return Canada was given tariff concessions on tires, automobiles, cream separators, batteries, boots and shoes, wood, newsprint and other types of paper.

Highest figure for Canadian exports to the colony was shown for 1936 when they were valued at $789,610. No Southern Rhodesian imports were received that year, or, if they were, they came via the Union of South Africa and were unidentifiable as Southern Rhodesian when they arrived.

In 1935 Southern Rhodesia sold Canada $169,431 worth of goods. That was its best year and the only one in which its exports to this country toped the $1,000 mark.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Lack of new incentives to induce buying caused wheat future to fluctuate irregularly within a two-cent range on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Final quotations were ⅝ to 1 cent higher after the quietest session in months, December at $1.20⅝, May $1.15⅞ and July $1.10⅞.

Apart from minor export and southern and local support in the first hour when wheat moved a cent above Saturday's close, trading was virtually at a standstill for long periods, frequently the pit was almost empty of traders.

Steadiness at Liverpool in view of smaller world wheat shipments last week and little bullish or bearish news from southern hemisphere countries contributed to a quiet trade.

Caledonians
Last Meeting 1937.

Members were asked to see that the children arrive not later than 6.30, when supper will be served to them by the ladies' executive. The usual Hogmanay dance will see the Old Year out and the New Year in. It was decided to hold a Burns' supper, but definite plans for such were left to the executive, who will give their report at the January meeting.

At the next meeting the annual election of officers will be held, when a good attendance of members is anticipated. After the business session the usual social hour with refreshments and dancing was enjoyed.

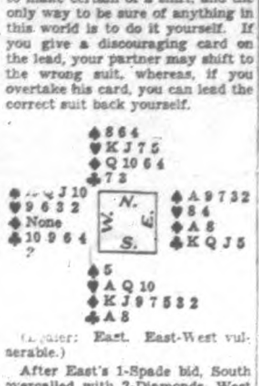
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DOING IT YOURSELF

ANYBODY who can add five cards in his own hand to four shown by his partner's bid, to three he sees in the dummy, can figure out easily enough that the declarer has a singleton. When that is the case, the thing to do is to make certain of a shift, and the only way to be sure of anything in this world is to do it yourself. If you give a discouraging card on the lead, your partner may shift to the wrong suit, whereas, if you overtake his card, you can lead the correct suit back yourself.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

After East's 1-Spade bid, South overcalled with 2-Diamonds, West bid 2-Spades, North 3-Diamonds, East 4-Spades and South 5-Diamonds. West felt inclined to double this contract, but feared, with the raise by his partner and South's repeated bids of diamonds that he might be void in spades.

When the spade K was led by West, East played a discouraging card and West switched to a heart. The diamond A was driven out and the thirteenth heart provided a spot for the losing club.

East informed his partner that the switch should have been made in clubs, but East could have taken the guess away from West, by simply overtaking the first spade lead and laying down the club K. Had he done this, it would not have been possible, for South to have made the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Against South's 6-Hearts contract, West led the diamond K. What play should South make to insure the contract?

Peterborough's Loss

It is not surprising that Arthur D. Runions, Ontario agricultural representative here, has been appointed to the staff of the Kemptville Agricultural College. Mr. Runions' record of achievement since coming to Peterborough, especially his marked success in training the county's junior farmers, has been so conspicuous that it was almost certain that the eyes of those in authority would be upon him as a man who had earned promotion. And so he goes to the Kemptville institution where it is not difficult to predict that his knowledge of agriculture and the marked ability he has shown teaching farm boys and girls and bringing out the best that is in them will be demonstrated very effectively.

Mr. Runions has been here only four and a half years but they have been fruitful and useful years; years that have left a permanent mark upon the careers of many young farm folk in this district. It is not too much to say that his teaching and influence have completely changed the view-point of many of those young people; converted them from boys and girls who had begun to look upon agriculture with disfavor and to weigh the possibilities of other callings, to a band of young enthusiasts convinced that farming was the best occupation of all and the way to succeed in it was to become better farmers.

Working quietly and modestly, Mr. Runions has made a notable contribution to the development of agriculture generally in this county and at the same time he has made a host of personal friends who will be delighted with his promotion but sorry that it entails his departure from the community. Devoted as he is to his life's work, he found an opportunity to serve the community well in other ways and the Kemptville appointment has cut in two his tenure of office as President of the Peterborough Rotary club.

Arthur Runions is the kind of citizen no community can afford to lose.

Political Dynamite

The intimation from Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario's minister of agriculture, that the demand for compulsory pasteurization of milk is increasing to such an extent that legislation in that direction may be looked for soon, is good evidence that the province has just passed through an election. We cannot imagine a provincial minister talking about compulsory pasteurization at any other time than at the beginning of a new term in power, for the simple reason that, next to daylight saving, there is probably nothing that arouses rural resentment more quickly than the suggestion that no raw milk should be allowed to be sold. Any such proposal is nothing short of political dynamite and, had there been the slightest suspicion during the recent campaign that compulsory pasteurization was even being thought of, it is safe to say thousands of rural voters would have been diverted away from the support of the government.

Under the present set-up, municipalities have the power to require all milk sold within their limits to be pasteurized and while a number have taken advantage of that permissive legislation, it is a fact that many other municipal councils, even though convinced that as a safety measure the sale of raw milk should be stopped, have sensed the opposition toward such a policy and have hesitated to pass the necessary bylaw. When municipal governments are reluctant to ride over the opponents of pasteurization, it is not difficult to see why a provincial administration, fully alive to the feeling along the concession lines on this matter and concious too that much of its support comes from the same quarter, should be dubious about introducing enforced pasteurization on a province-wide basis. Mr. Dewan's intimation comes, therefore, as a bit of a surprise. It would have aroused conjecture if it had been made by the Minister of Health and originating from the Department of Agriculture it is even more astonishing.

A Surprising Turn

When it comes to reversing his field Premier Hepburn is undoubtedly a political Fritz Hanson. No shifty backfielder in the history of football ever showed greater ability to change his course and pivot than Ontario's premier has displayed in his astonishing right-about face on the question of Quebec power purchases. Just over two months after the provincial election, after a campaign in which it was denied that there was any shortage of power and in which the old Hydro Commission and the Conservative government were denounced from every platform for dealing with the "Quebec power barons" for huge blocks of unwanted power, new contracts have been entered into with the Quebec companies that require Ontario to take all but a few thousand h.p. of the original quantities.

That is the astounding feature of this turn of affairs. The price obtained is of course $2.50 per h.p. less than before and from that viewpoint the new deal is a better bargain but as T. Stewart Lyon, until a few weeks ago head of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, points out, the new contracts "are very little different from the original contracts which Mr. Hepburn denounced from every platform." And Arthur W. Roebuck, Mr. Hepburn's former colleague and leader in the original fight against the contracts entered into by the Conservative government, is even more explicit. "The deal just announced," he says, "is in essence the same as that perpetrated by the Conservatives under Mr. Ferguson. It is for the purchase of power, irrespective of whether wanted or not, and whether or not it can be sold, in annually increasing amounts and in staggering figures."

It is difficult to get away from the truth of these statements from men who a short time ago were Mr. Hepburn's associates in battling for the reverse of the policy now adopted. And it is even more difficult to disbelieve the charge voiced by Leopald Macaulay, Conservative house leader, that "Mr. Hepburn used Arthur Roebuck and Stewart Lyon as long as they served his purpose to wage mock warfare on the power interests. He threw them to the wolves when they had served that purpose."

It is a surprising development, one that shows Mr. Hepburn to be the original young man on the flying trapeze in the political arena.

A Worthy Appeal

Some one with imagination on the staff of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has hit upon the happy idea of a nation-wide appeal for Christmas presents for the children of the drought areas throughout the west and Tuesday night in a national hook-up, using the C. B. C. facilities throughout the country, a special broadcast will ask Canadians from one end of the Dominion to the other, to contribute toward this most worthy cause.

It is undoubtedly true that Santa Claus will need a lot of help this Christmas if Yuletide is to be anything but a drab affair for thousands of little folk in the prairie provinces. In sections where there has not been a crop for years, where the necessities of life have had to be provided for families whose income has simply ceased to exist, and where, because of the conditions, people have not even found it possible to grow garden stuff for their own use there is of course no money for Christmas gifts. There is a place for every cent that can be scraped up and nothing can be allotted to the joyous task of providing toys and presents for the children.

Under the circumstances, therefore, it was a happy thought to send out a S.O.S. through the facilities of the country's radio system and it is to be hoped the response will be adequate and generous. The time is short. Anything that is done will have to be done quickly if Santa Claus is to do his stuff in the drought area this Christmas and so there should be a vast air audience for Tuesday night's appeal which will be sent out from Mntareal at 9 o'clock. The rest of Canada has done wonders in providing food and clothing for the drought victims and there is every reason to feel confident that this Christmas-gift campaign will be equally well-supported.

This Should Be Dropped

The Hastings County Council has passed a resolution asking the provincial government for legislation barring recipients of relief from voting at municipal elections. We must confess that the proposal appeals to us as one the provincial administration should give the six months' hoist twice a year.

To suggest that because an individual who, through no fault of his own, has found himself without work and therefore without income and has had to accepted public assistance, should lost the privilege of citizenship is a preposterous idea. We will admit that among those who have had to be maintained out of the public purse, has developed a certain type that makes the folk in authority lose all patience with them. The reference is to that portion of the unemployed who would rather drift along on relief vouchers than earn their own livelihood and who seem to think that the world has a right to maintain them in idleness. They apparently have no conception of the responsibilities of citizenship and in their case the Hastings suggestion is not so far out of line with common sense.

Making allowances for that condition, however, there is no spirit of justice in a blanket policy that would deprive deserving folk, who are the victim of circumstances, from exercising the right of voting. Men who are willing to work when an opening is provided, who have been self-respecting, independent citizens so long as they had a chance to earn their own livelihood and support their families, should not be threatened with the possibility of being placed on a political blacklist. They are not responsible for the conditions that have destroyed their chances of maintaining themselves on a footing of economic independence and they have suffered enough without being treated as if they were political untouchables.

Too Good To Be True

The rumor that the Federal sales tax would be slashed at the coming session of parliament has been denied in another story from the capital. We were afraid of that. The report, in the first place, was too good to be true. And besides next year is not an election year, in fact it is two years away from a campaign. Governments usually reserve any major lopping off of taxes for the time when they have to go out and present their record to the country.

The sales tax is a prolific source of funds; it brings in money fast and it brings in a lot of it and the party that happens to be in power is not anxious to throw away, in a non-election year, such a sure producer of the reinforcements any government treasury welcomes.

The sales tax has had quite an interesting history. When Mr. King came back into power after the defeat of Mr. Meighen and his so-called shadow government, the tax was three cents. The Liberal administration, finding itself in need of funds pole-vaulted it up to six cents. Then as another election began to poke its head over the horizon the slashing process began until the government finally went to the polls making the boast that it had cut the tax from six cents to one. In came the government of Mr. Bennett. It needed money too and nothing offered a better way of getting it than boosting the sales levy which ultimately found itself back at the six cent level. The general financial picture made it impossible for the Bennett government to trim the tax before it went to the country and so Mr. King returning to the seats of the mighty found it at six cents. The King administration in turn required funds so up went the sales tax again, this time to a new high of eight cents.

It will likely go down—but not this year. Next year will be a year closer to a general election and it is quite reasonable to look for a measure of relief then, followed by another generous slash in 1940.

NOTE AND COMMENT

United States relief rolls are to be increased by 250,000 persons and that is doubtful proof of the brevity of the present slump.

Because a man kibitzed at a card game a broken shoulder and a $5,000 damage suit resulted. Kibitzing, in cards, we hasten to explain, is similar to backseat driving in motoring.

University heads have signified their disapproval of a third-term for President Roosevelt. They doubtless feel that after all there are some 130,000,000 other folk in the United States.

British Columbia legislature has set a speed limit of 30 miles an hour for automobiles in organized territory. It is not a bad thing to have on the statute books even if it is not enforced.

Mr. Bennett has been criticising proportional voting. The trouble with any kind of balloting these days seems to be that the Conservatives are not getting a sufficiently large proportion.

Melbourne, Australia, penitentiary has been going on the air with a program of music broadcast from the prison concert hall. The trouble with that kind of thing is it hasn't an outside chance to succeed.

Those folk in the Kingston district who have been sighing for a real old-fashioned winter are willing to admit that their hopes have been realized—and exceeded.

New York reports the arrival of six thousand cases of frozen octopus as a Christmas delicacy but so far as we are concerned we are willing to waive any claims we might have had to a share of the shipment.

Senator Borah is about to declare war on the suggested United Kingdom-United States agreement and in that the senator from Idaho will be running true to form. He is the most consistent protectionist on the continent, R. B. Bennett, notwithstanding.

A report from Ottawa says that the rumor that the Dominion sales tax is to be slashed is without foundation. All we can say is that they might have withheld the denial until after Christmas so that our faith in Santa Slaus would not be shaken.

STAR-DUST

I thought that stars could only shine in heaven
Until I chanced upon a deep, clear pool;
And watched entranced, one summer's night in June,
A sparkling gem reflect from depths calm, cool.

Uplifting beauty dwells in humble things,
And yet I never dreamed that stars were cold,
Until some snowflakes pure, and chase and white
Once magnified, revealed new stars untold.

How could I know that stars were ever warm,
Until I saw them light your eyes? How queer
Their glow should spread unto my very heart!
The dearest stars are yours, yet mine, my dear.

Merging Provinces Is Only One Aspect

And Perhaps Merely a Minor Aspect at That In Problem of Over Government in Canada

(From the Financial Post.)

THE ROWELL Commission has lost no time in seeking information on a vexing topic—overgovernment. In Winnipeg last week, Hon. N. W. Rowell invited the Manitoba Government to express an opinion on the specific question of merging Canada's provinces into five "economic" areas. Mr. Rowell mentioned a representation that had been made to the Commission for the consolidation of the Prairie Provinces into one administrativeunit with a similar merger in the Maritimes. Consolidation of the Yukon with British Columbia was also suggested. In giving approval to the proposal, Premier Bracken recalled that Manitoba had in fact proposed such a plan some years ago but that it had fallen on deaf ears and received little attention.

Manitoba is an exception to the general rule that proposals such as this find favor only in the areas not affected by the change. Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia would probably approve the plan. Dr. H. L. Stewart, in his weekly article in this issue, interprets Maritime opinion as opposed. One reason there has been as yet no general enthusiasm in Canada is the presence of strong vested interests in the areas affected.

Then, too, there is the deep-rooted theory that Canada's ship of state is the sort of vessel described recently by Privy Councillor Lord Atkin as "still retaining the watertight compartment which are an essential part of the original structure." According to this theory each province is virtually a sovereign state within the federation—a constitutional viewpoint which in itself is deemed sufficient to bar any merger of individual provincial units.

The major point that must be kept in mind by the Rowell Commission is that the merging of several provinces is only one aspect and perhaps a minor aspect of overgovernment in Canada. Only last week the mayor of an important Ontario community submitted to The Financial Post a strong argument for the abolition of all county councils within that province. Similar suggestions of equal value could be made in every part of Canada.

Of first importance also is the question of overlapping functions as between the various provinces. This is one of the most valuable single avenues of approach to the problem of overgovernment—the avenue which offers perhaps the quickest road to success. Within three administrative units such as the Prairie Provinces (for example) there are a score or more of functions and services which could be eliminated or pooled by co-operative effort even without a formal merger of the entire provincial machinery. Similarly there are at least a dozen overlapping departments as between Ottawa and the provinces that have no reasonable excuse for existence beyond the desire to retain old vested "rights" and maintain work and prestige for local political interests.

The chief trouble seems to be that Canadians have never really tackled seriously this matter of overgovernment. Here and there, far-sighted political leaders have reduced the number of legislators or abolished certain obsolete functions. On the whole there has been no wholehearted effort to come to grips with the problem.

Apart from its other studies and recommendations the Rowell Commission should give Canada an informed and searching analysis of this matter. By carefully collecting the facts and views of every part of Canada it should be able to present in clear perspective the glaring excesses of our governmental superstructure. It must sketch out a pattern for the gradual elimination of overgovernment in this country.

The Real Story of the Steamer Caroline

Nothing in the Yarn About Canadians Riding Over Niagara Falls in Vessel

(From the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

"DID 33 CANADIANS ride over Niagara Falls in a flaming steamship on a chill night a century ago?"

In a commendable effort to put "pep" into a newspaper story, the writer of a Niagara Falls, N. Y., despatch submits this rhetorical question and then proceeds to answer it by quoting Dr. Robert W. Bingham, historical society director in Buffalo who says "No." Dr. Bingham attributes the exaggerated tale to excitement prevailing along the border in 1837.

Incidentally the contemporary reports in U. S. newspapers were to the effect that persons aboard the steamer Caroline when she was "cut out" by a boarding party 100 years ago this month were residents of Buffalo and therefore presumably not Canadians. Historical narratives agree that one man Amos Durfee was killed. The book by Robina and Kathleen Lizars which goes into detail in all these matters says Durfee was "shot by a bullet which came from the land. . . One tale of the day was that no life was lost. . . . The matter for extraordinarily sensational accounts given by the American press was chiefly furnished by Mackenzie."

The story is familiar to residents of Woodstock for Captain Andrew Drew who commanded the Caroline party, was one of the founders of this city, and his name is perpetuated in one of its principal streets. It has been said, not altogether facetiously, that the loyalist party which went from Woodstock to the aid of Sir Allan McNab comprised the vestry of St. Paul's church. It included Col. Alexander Whalley Light, Major Edward Buller, Captain Phillip Graham, R. N., Admiral Henry Vansittart, as well as Captain Drew. It is on record that the party which sent the Caroline over the Falls included "several" Woodstock men. Col. Light is known to have been aboard the ship, and Henry Vansittart, Jr., son of the admiral, was mentioned in connection with the affair.

The steamer, hired by the rebels on Navy Island, was used to convey stores to them from Fort Schlosser. Sir Allan McNab proposed that she be set adrift, and Drew took on the assignment. He led a party in several small boats, and personally boarded the ship first. He and his party chased off the captain and other persons aboard, set fire to the vessel and cut her loose. That she went over the cataract is not in doubt. In "Humors of '37" the Lizar sisters wrote that "care had been taken to rouse all sleepers, had any been able to sleep through such a scene. . . . Captain Drew and a companion were left on the burning ship, but together got into a boat sent back for them. Drew's shouts having fortunately risen above the din."

Drew received the thanks of the Two Houses of Parliament of Upper Canada for the exploit, and was appointed commodore of the provincial marine. But the deed excited tremendous indignation on the United States side, where aid and comfort had been given the rebels. Drew was hanged in effigy on the anniversary for years afterward; active attempts were made to assassinate him, and in the end the pleasant Woodstock home was forsaken and to preserve his life he returned to England and the navy. He rose in rank until in 1875 he was promoted full admiral, and died three years later, while on the Reserve List, in his 87th year.

ISN'T THE SOO a wonderful place? Here good sense and good will among our many races prevails. We have Anglo-Saxons, Italians, Australians, French, Germans, Poles, Finns, Indians and other peoples living in peace together, enjoying equal opportunity and tolerant of each other's views. And as the years go by we bear less of prejudice. We discover the good points in our neighbor and give him credit for them, for we see that he is doing his best to contribute to good Canadian citizenship. No man suffers because of his race or religion, and he is treated on his merits as a man. We have discovered in fact that to have friends we must be one.

MILLIONS of dollars are wagered annually at the spring and fall race meetings in Ontario. Much of this money passes through the legitimate channels, known as the pari-mutuel machines, out of which the Government of the Provinces receives a very substantial share of the money wagered. Notwithstanding the large amount wagered with the consent of the Government, it will be generally conceded that there is as much, if not more, wagered through the handbooks, so-called, which is a violation of the law.

There in the ceiling
Of the sky ever wheeling,
South go the geese
For autumn holds lease,
A march on summer is stealing.

North wind is mourning

Cold days are forming.

There by the window,
There by the sill,
Snowflakes scurry
And tumble at will.
White meadows stretching,
Jack Frost is etching
With fantastic skill.

Life Of Dr. T. J. Barnardo Is Subject Of Evening Sermon

Many Former Barnardo Boys Attend Service In St. James' United Church

"Men of Faith and Vision" was the theme of the unique and vastly interesting discourse given by Rev. F. W. Craik Sunday night in St. James' United church.

Dr. T. J. Barnardo, the child's champion, was presented in a vivid word picture as such a man, with much amplifying proof.

In response to the invitation extended by Rev. Mr. Craik to former Barnardo boys there was a good representation present, many of whom are now grown to manhood and who showed their sincere appreciation to the message extolling the life and work of Dr. Barnardo.

This young man began his great work among children in London, England, in 1866, when he was but twenty-one years of age. He himself had been a sickly, puny child. When two years old he suffered a severe illness and was on the brink of eternity for weeks. He was pronounced dead by two physicians and his casket was in the house, when a physician discovered a flutter of the heart, and he was eventually restored to life and health. Barnardo became a sturdy, hot-tempered, self-willed boy. He was raised in an Anglican home and confirmed and though his mother was of a Quaker family, Barnardo was by no means a saint.

When a student in London hospital he also made rapid progress in his Christian life. Here he met Dr. Hudson Taylor, the great missionary to China and with three other boys, Barnardo offered himself to service in China. However, he did not go to a foreign country, but with the sanction of Hudson-Taylor remained in London, and started the well-known Barnardo work for children in an old stable.

None Ever Refused

No destitute child was ever refused admission, and a total of 120,000 girls and boys have been cared for up to 1927. While Barnardo never went to China he lived to see seven of his boys sail as missionaries. Taylor was right when he told Barnardo he had a greater work at home with his boys and girls. There was no age limit, sex, creed or nationality. Children blind, deaf, crippled and incurable were all welcome. In 1867 there were 214 in these homes. Ten years later there were 30,000. This rapid advance was due to the inspiration of Christianity.

Dr. Barnardo gave sixty-four years of unbroken service to his boys and girls and has a record of many preachers, missionaries, doctors, principals of schools, singers and nurses to his credit. Of the 11,000 old boys of 1914, one half were enlisted in Canada.

Tributes to His Memory.

Many tributes to the memory of Dr. Barnardo were read by the Rev. Mr. Craik, among them being this: "I knew him and loved him" from an Anglican Archdeacon.

In his work for children, his wife shared his great ambition of "helping others." It can be truly said of Barnardo that "his works do follow him"

The following little poem embodies the ideals of Dr. Barnardo:

"Does not matter what I was
It's what I am that counts.
For faith in God and in myself
All obstacles surmounts.

E'en lowly birth and poverty,
My stepping stone shall be.
To nobler heights the goal I'll reach
And claim the victory."

The music for this service was very suitable, with favorite hymns of the Barnardo boys, as arranged by the organist, Cecil Lapp. Among these were "Now the day is ended," "Come to my heart Lord Jesus," and "Love lifted me." While the Scripture lesson was in the same vein, and chosen by the pastor, from Matthew's gospel, the 25th chapter, "For I was an hungered and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in."

This inspiring message, one of a series being preached by Rev. Mr. Craik, on "Men of Faith and Vision," would have special appeal to a Peterborough audience who are well aware of the fine work done in the Barnardo Home here.

Parliament Date Set This Week?

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP) — The government is expected to announce this week the date of parliament's opening, silencing speculation that has produced suggestions of Jan. 13, 20 or 27 as the day the nation will hear the administration's legislative program forecast in the throne speech.

It was suggested Prime Minister Mackenzie King, away in Florida for his customary pre-session rest, might return this week to make the announcement.

Mr. Mackenzie King was expected at any rate to be home in time to celebrate the 63rd anniversary of his birthday Friday.

FRANCO STRIKES ON THREE FRONTS

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 13 (AP). — Fighting proceeded on three Spanish fronts today as Insurgent General Franco's long-waited general offensive rumbled into action.

Government reports said there was a widespread movement of insurgent troops from their concentration points toward the fighting lines at Toledo, Brunete and Teruel.

Insurgent censorship prevented information on the progress of Franco's triple-headed attack crossing the closed Spanish frontier into France. Madrid and Valencia, former capitals, were the objectives.

After the general offensive had been launched an insurgent communique from Irun merely said the Franco forces had struck "like a bolt of lightning" and that "the Reds (Government) were unable to resist the attacks."

An insurgent shelling of Madrid, in which more than 500 projectiles fell into the city, was reported to have killed 12 persons and to have wounded more than 50.

That Car you bought

HELPED THEM TO BUILD

A few years ago this young couple were just "mother's little girl" and "daddy's little boy". They started housekeeping "on a shoestring", as most young couples do. But Tom had a steady job in an automobile plant and Jean was a good manager. So now they have a little family and they're building a little home of their own.

That car you bought helped them to build. A large part of the price paid was passed on as wages to Tom and his thousands of fellow workers in the automotive industry. Another large part went as wages to thousands of other Canadian allied industries — the men who make tires, batteries, electrical equipment, steel, paint, textiles and the scores of other Canadian products that enter into the building of Canadian-made cars.

And all these thousands of industrial employees in turn spend their wages in buying food, clothing and furniture, and the lumber, brick, cement and other items used in building their homes. Each man's work helps to give work to others. When each spends money he provides others with money to spend.

Canada's future greatness and the security of each individual in Canada depends upon the continued growth of Canadian industry.

For Instance, Take Our Own Industry

There are 18,000 workers in Canada's automobile plants, and 15,000 employed in the 202 parts manufacturers' plants. An average of four to a family means over 150,000 people whose prosperity depends in whole or in part on the activities of the motor car builders. Add as well, the employees of railways who live by traffic and you have a huge cross-section of Eastern Canada — a group of people who contributed much of the $40,000,000 spent last year for Western farm products. Therefore, all Canada — West as well as East — is vitally interested in a sound and well-supported Canadian Automobile Industry.

For statistical and further information about this industry, write to Automotive Industries, 1005 Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Mediterranean Sea At Mercy Of Italian Naval Guns

Professor S. A. B. Mercer Addresses Peterborough Trinity Club

Undisputedly under British control for the past several centuries, the Mediterranean highway is now at the mercy of Italian naval guns, Professor S. A. B. Mercer of Toronto University suggested as he addressed a Peterborough audience in the Public Library hall Saturday evening. The Italians apparently have the power to cut off traffic through the 100-mile bottle-neck which separates the Italian and African shores, he said.

Professor of Semetic languages and Egyptology at Trinity College, Dr. Mercer was brought to Peterborough under the auspices of the Peterborough Trinity Club. He was introduced by Dr. G. S. Cameron, club president. Outstanding in his field, Professor Mercer was one of the first to be given a chair in Egyptology in a modern university.

He spoke of the Mediterranean as the key spot in present international politics of Europe just as it has been a center of international attention throughout history. Forty thousand years ago, no Mediterranean Sea existed, just a great swamp between Europe and Africa, he said. Later in geological history, two separate lakes evolved and then, about 1,500 B.C., the great barrier between Spain and Africa broke away and the ocean came rolling in to leave only the mountain tops now known as Malta, Cyprus and other islands above water. The ancients believed the gods dwelt on those mountain tops, he said.

Eternal Struggle

Throughout history, a struggle for control of the sea continued perpetually. In early times the Mediterranean was the center of the known world and still is the world center from many aspects, he said.

Babylonia was the first to conquer the great "Western Sea" and various other conquerers followed. After Napoleon, England was undisputed lord of the sea. Almost all the great naval battles of history have been fought on the Mediterranean, the speaker said.

"You cannot blame Italy much for considering it their sea—Mare Nostrum," he continued. "Why shouldn't they? Little more than 100 miles of water lies between Italian shores and the shores of Africa. Italy wants to control the Mediterranean and she may go a long way towards it if something is not done."

He said the Mediterranean is the highway of empires—the British highway to India, the French and Dutch highway to their eastern possessions and now the Italian highway to Ethiopia.

Two Policies

The new modern outlook regarding this highway has led Britain to keep under consideration two policies, Professor Mercer said. One policy is that of making ready to resume if necessary the route to India and the Far East around the African cape, the route used before the cutting of the Suez. Such a policy does not provide for the safety of British interests on the Mediterranean such as Palestine and Egypt so the policy of strengthening the British hand in the Mediterranean is widely in favor.

"Many believe that Gibraltar is no longer invulnerable," he said, suggesting that traffic through the straits is now as much at the pleasure of the tenants of Spanish Morrocco as the British. Many believe the highly fortified British island Malta would be untenable in the event of war with Italy, he said.

Professor Mercer contrasted the beauty of the Mediterranean with its unpleasant significance as a danger spot of the world. In the world no more beautiful area exists, he said. He took his audience on a trip through the scenes of ancient civilization which bounds the great sea.

Asked at the conclusion of the lecture what had been the outcome of his work in Ethiopia where he had been engaged in locating and preserving for the world valuable ancient manuscripts, Professor Mercer said he now considered his work there at a conclusion. The country is now in the hands of a civilized people, the Italians, and reasonable assurance that all such venerable objects of value will be preserved for the use of the world exists, he stated.

Instal Officers For Carmel Lodge

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 13.—Carmel Orange Lodge, No. 421, held its annual meeting in the L.O.L. Hall, on Tuesday evening, when the following officers were elected for 1938: W.M., Stanley Olan; D.M., Luther Olan; chaplain, William Lunn; R.S., Clifford Allen; F.S., Verril Kennedy; treasurer, Jos. Thorne; Dir. Cer., J. Elmer.

The degree team from Reaboro Lodge, which this year won the Grand Lodge prize, was present and carried out the ritual by which three candidates were raised to the Blue Degree, and to the Royal Arch Degree, in a very efficient manner.

Among other visitors to the Lodge session were a number of brethren from Campbellford L.O.L.; Brother W. Dixon of Bewdley Lodge; Brother J. H. Paul, of Ida, Past County Master; and several others.

At the close, lunch was served, and a pleasant social hour enjoyed. Carmel L.O.L. annual fowl supper was successfully carried through on November 8, with a large number in attendance.

association recommend to the provincial association of cheese patrons that they resume payment of fees and again become affiliated with the Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation.

Mr. Elliott said the provincial Cheese Patrons' Association were holding their convention in Peterborough toward the end of January, and that S. L. Joss, secretary of the association, would visit the city in the near future to meet the local executive in regard to arranging for the convention which will likely be held in the Canadian Legion Hall. It was suggested that the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce might assist in the program, especially if the delegates desire to visit any of the local factories.

Mr. Elliott estimated the attendance at around three hundred, and said it would be one of the most important dairy meetings in Peterborough in a long time.

Federation's Aid

Mr. Cowan reviewed some of the work of the Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation in assisting the cheese factory patrons. He mentioned the success of an advertising campaign on the Pacific coast which had been an unqualified success to the cheese producers of that part of Canada, returning them at least $20 for every $1 they expended. A conference in Ottawa toward the end of January was being arranged with representatives of the dairy industry in Quebec for the purpose of endeavoring to co-ordinate the dairy policies of the two provinces, including a plan of advertising the cheddar cheese of the east.

Mr. Cowan also spoke of a campaign to unburden the dairy industry of this province of the excessive cost of transportation which he said resulted from the duplication of trucking. On a four mile road out of Stirling there are five farmers whose milk and cream is hauled by the trucks of four creameries.

Within a radius of twenty-five miles of Campbellford, there are thirty cheese factories and twelve creameries, and thirteen other creameries send their trucks into the area to haul out cream. The total production of butter in the area is 1,800,000 pounds. Mr. Cowan said he had made the survey himself, and the duplication of trucking in the Campbellford district was similar to other districts in the province. The cost of this redundant service had to come out of the dairy industry of the country.

Abandoned cheese factories up and down the province was an evidence of the transfer of a large quantity of milk to the creameries. There are now 335 creameries in Ontario with an average annual production of 280,000 pounds. One large creamery in the Campbellfor darea, Mr. Cowan continued, could produce all the butter for that section with a great saving to the industry and that meant chiefly to the farmers themselves. The dairy industry in New Zealand and Australia had adopted the plan of centralized factories, and the Canadian Federation of Dairy Farmers believed that similar elimination of unnecessary plants would place the industry in this county on a sounder basis.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Cowan for his impromptu address.

BRITISH WARSHIP HIT IN STRAFE

able the rescuers to tend the survivors without the peril of bursting shells.

It had been feared that 17 still missing from the Panay were killed in the bombing or were drowned when the gunboat was sunk. One seaman aboard the ship died of injuries suffered in the attack.

British Sailor Killed.

A British seaman also was killed and two other Britons wounded at Wuhu when Japenese batteries shelled the British gunboat Lady-Bird there.

British naval reports said Colonel Hashimito, senior Japanese officer, declared he had order to "fire on every ship on the river." The statement was made in response to their protests.

Japanese diplomatic and naval authorities immediately assumed full responsibility for the attacks both on the Panay and the Standard Oil vessels.

(A brief report of the tragedy to Washington said the Panay fired several rounds from her anti-aircraft guns at an attacking Japanese plane, but apparently without effect).

(The message said the names of those "lost" from the Panay were not known).

Two of the gunboat's officers, Lieutenant Commander J. J. Hughes and Executive Officer A. F. Anders, were wounded. Hughes suffered a broken leg.

Japs Admit Blame.

The Japanese navy, meanwhile, issued a communique acknowledging responsibility for the disaster to the Panay and the Standard Oil ships.

A Reuter's dispatch received in Shanghai from Hankow, temporary seat of the Chinese Government, said British authorities had been warned by Japanese that all Yangtze River traffic must come to a complete standstill for three days.

If shipping disobeys "it will be fired on," the agency quoted the Japanese commander in the Wuhu area. It said he had declared no ship would be permitted to move anywhere on the river because he was out of touch with his headquarters and his gunners were unable to identify the British flag.

British felt sharp apprehension here because of a Japanese attack on the British gunboat Ladybird, which apparently occurred about the same time as the attack on the American ships.

It expressed "most deep" regret for the tragedy and pledged immediate steps to place the blame on the Japanese military unit directly responsible.

Shigeru Kawagoe, Japanese Ambassador to China, telegraphed regrets for the sinking of the Panay to the United States Ambassador, Nelson Johnson, at Hankow.

Admiral Kooyoshi Hasegawa, the commander-in-chief of the Japanese fleet in Chinese waters, called on the American commander, Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, to express regrets.

Admiral Yarnell, who was to have left for Manila to-morrow aboard the Augusta, his flagship, deferred sailing indefinitely.

Haven for Refugees.

The Panay, a 450-ton vessel built in Shanghai especially for Chinese river service, had been anchored in the Yangtze as a haven for United States Embassy officials and refugees from besieged Nanking until she was ordered up the river to safety from Japanese shells which previously had crashed perilously close to her.

The three Standard Oil tankers reported bombed were the Meian, a two-ton vessel commanded by an American, Capt. C. H. Carlson; the 1,000-ton Meihsi and the Meiping, whose masters were a Norwegian and an Esthonian.

The Meian was a general cargo carrier and the other two were steel tankers. Which two were those reported sunk was not known here. Each carried a crew of 27 Chinese.

Standard Oil officers here were apprehensive also for the fate of six canal tankers and eight lighters in the vicinity of the Panay above Nanking. The company had notified the United States Consulate-General on December 10 of the river concentration.

Aboard Standard Oil craft, it was believed, were J. V. Pickering, J. Sherwood and D. E. Goldie of the company's Nanking and Wuhu offices. The smaller vessels carried a total crew of 70 Chinese.

After a day examining documents, police declared a crew of diggers would start tomorrow to spade up "every inch" of the villa's grounds. They said there were "strong possibilities" that the list of Weidmann's victims was even lengthier than had been suspected. They had previously expressed fear that 10 or more may have been slain.

Weidmann, who "was deported from Canada seven years ago, meanwhile, refused to help throw any light on the disappearance of Mrs. Keller. As before, he confessed killing Miss de Koven and the others. The German repeated he would talk "when the time comes and not before.

Roger Million, described by police as head of the murder ring, was said to have burst into fits of hysterical weeping in his cell, moaning, "I have done nothing—nothing." He, Weidmann, Jean Leblanc and Colette Tricot, the brunet mistress of both Million and LeBlanc, were being held.

vessel, presumably the Hoover, disappeared ahead.

"We saw lights inside a little bay of Holshoto Island," he said, "and thought it was a Japanese warship signaling to shore. Then my second officer spotted a rocket and saw two red signals, meaning a ship was ashore. The sea was rough and the wind high."

Captain Stepback said he went in as close as he could and offered to take all the Hoover's passengers aboard, but Captain Yardley declined the offer.

At daylight, Captain Stepback said, Captain Yardley told him it was impossible to pull the liner off, adding, "I don't like to detain you longer."

Stepback estimated the 21,900-ton ship, which is 653 feet long, had driven up on the rocks as far as her second funnel, or more than half her length. The stern is floating, the German said.

ROWBOAT OR OCEAN LINER?

The happy land everyone hopes some day to reach in life's voyage is that of Financial Security. But while everyone wants to go to the same place, opinions differ upon the safest and surest way to get there.

It is possible sometimes to reach the port of Financial Security the "row boat way." If you are an expert on financial navigation and do not mind perilous ups and downs, you can paddle your own way across.

But travelling this way you must always be able to judge between good investments and bad. You must invest and re-invest without loss. You must resist temptations to overspend. You must save money consistently without help or reminders. And you will eventually learn that most of those who travel the "row-boat" way are financially wrecked somewhere in the long voyage, and never arrive at Financial Security at all.

Why not take the liner—particularly if you have a family dependent upon you? The IMPERIAL LIFE is a safe and sure way, and it is actually much less costly. You can arrive at Financial Security through an Imperial Life monthly income policy for much less, probably, than you think.

"FINANCIAL SECURITY THROUGH LIFE INSURANCE" by Paul Speicher, an international authority, is an interesting book which should be read by everyone who plans to provide financial security for himself and family. Your local Imperial Life representative will make a copy available to you without cost.

5,000 Fascists Are Drilling On Banks Of St. Lawrence Social Service Speaker Says

Quebec Government Should Forget About Communism And Step On Fascism

Believing that the Quebec Government should forget about Communism for a while and "step on the Fascist movement that is growing in that province," C. E. Silcox, general secretary of the Social Service Council of Canada, speaking before George Street Men's Forum on Sunday afternoon, warned there are 60,000 Fascists, 5,000 of whom are drilling for "aesthetic" purposes lining the banks of the St. Lawrence in the eastern province.

Speaking on the topic, "The Challenge of Fascism to Democracy," Mr Silcox urged his audience to find out what the movement really stands for. As an impartial observer of world events, he discussed, the circumstances that had given birth to Fascism in Italy and Nazism in Germany and described both these forms of government as "anti-toxins against Communism," that had attempted to create national unity.

"Whether the democracy we have in Canada is worth saving or not I do not know," he said. "It takes our form of government so long to make up its mind that anything could happen to us. Premier Mackenzie King has assured us we would not go to war without a plebiscite. But do you believe that? A plebiscite in the case of an attack on Canada's shores would be impractical. It would take too long. Leaders must be prepared to act and take responsibility, and be willing to pay the price for the mistakes they make."

Democracy Still Possible.

"I believe democracy is still possible in the world despite the crushing indictment of Fascism — if democracy will only wake up," he declared. Democracy, Mr. Silcox believed, might still prove to be the best form of government if it could attract the highest type of men to serve and could create a real central authority capable of attaining national unity."

Mr. Silcox condemned the political system of this province and characterised some of the recent sessions of the Legislature as "nothing better than cat fights." Pointing to one of the weaknesses of the democratic type of government in its present form, he said, "It is only democratic in spots controlled by cliques who are fighting for political power and personal advantage."

Senate Is Useless.

He described the Senate as useless and absolutely unnecessary, declaring a Senator's qualifications were: First, party service; second, contribution to party funds; and third, senility and the inability to know what else to do with them."

Closing, the speaker prophesied the downthrow of white supremacy by the greatest empire the world has known. "It will spring from the Sino-Japanese conflict if we do not watch ourselves," he said. "Woe to the United Kingdom, United States and France if they fail to realize the position of democracy in the modern world."

Charles Elliott, who presided, announced there would be no question period because Mr. Silcox had a further meeting to address before returning to Toronto on the evening train. The Rev. M. C. Parr's introductory remarks were well borne out by the speaker's address. Presenting Mr. Silcox to a large audience, Mr. Parr declared, "He is well prepared and able to give you a message that will provoke deepest thought."

son of one of the first settlers in the township of Smith and he himself a resident of that municipality for 90 years who died at his home on Sunday.

FIREMEN HAVE BUSY WEEKEND

Total fire loss registered was small but the Fire Department staff had a busy weekend. Chimney fires and overheated pipes were the most frequent causes of alarms.

Believed to have started when a hose connection burst and spewed alcohol antifreeze over a hot exhaust pipe, fire did $100 damage to a car owned by Jack White near the corner of George and Charlotte Streets on Sunday morning. Excited passers-by sent in two alarms by telephone and rang two alarms in from box No. 39. Firemen promptly extinguished the blaze before it had gained much headway.

Smoking in bed, a member of the family at the home of Mrs. Charles Mills, 563 Sherbrooke Street, caused the Department a run at Sunday noon by accidentally setting the bed afire. Damage was estimated at $25.

Other blazes attended over the weekend were a chimney fire at Reid's Service Station; overheated pipes at the home of S. Garvey, 359 Euclid Avenue; overheated pipes at the home of D. C. Moore, 220 Monaghan Road; a blaze caused by a defective chimney at the home of Herman Crary, 479 Park Street, damage estimated at $50; and a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Barbara Hickey, 601 Rubidge Street. Firemen responded to an alarm for a chimney fire from the home of George Koren, 500 Park Street North, but could find no fire when they arrived.

GUM "SMACKERS" UPSET ACTRESS

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP)—An alluring refugee from Hollywood, Miss Joan Bennett of the movies is in the city today, confessing that she doesn't like people who chew gum with succulent smacks during her performances on the legitimate stage.

Wearing a corsage of orchids, a black dress with short skirt, and looking very much as she does on the screen—which is saying something—Miss Bennett sat on a chesterfield in her hotel suite and told of the rigours of the uncanned theatre.

It was at a matinee the other day in a mid-western city. A few minutes after the star with the honey-colored hair came on stage as leading player in "Stage Door" she heard the juicy smacks — maddeningly rhythmic—being produced by someone chewing gum in one of the front rows.

Miss Bennett averred it was even more distracting than the buzz that rises for a few moments when she first appears before the audience, or the coughing that sometimes breaks out when the tension eases. It threw her off plenty.

These things are unknown to performers in the movies, and Miss Bennett takes them hard. She hopes to do a new play in New York next year, and the current road tour in an established success is partly for tuning up purposes.

DIRECTORS PLAN ON IMPROVEMENTS RYLSTONE PLANT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13. — Robert Mumby replaced Marous ...ort as director and Fred Barnum w re-elected to the office of president and secretary of the Rylstone Cheese and Butter Company at their ...ual meeting held on Saturday afternoon. One of the few factories who were this year able to show a decrease in the amount of undergrade cheese the patrons were commended by A. G. Thompson of Campbellford who spoke briefly at the meeting.

There was some discussion of joining the Hydro power lines which had been recently extended past the factory and installing an electric motor and other equipment occupied considerable time and the matter was finally left with the directors.

Patrons delivered to the factory 1,734,870 pounds of milk from which was manufactured 141,175 pounds of cheese and 4,169 pounds of whey butter during the season. The cheese brought $19,706.04 and the butter netted $836.14, according to the financial statement submitted at the meeting. The price of cheese averaged .139 cents per pound, or 3105 cents were pound of butter fat. The amount paid to patrons for cheese and butter showed an increase of $1,629.35 over last year.

Following presentation of the financial statement the election of officers was held and Thomas McKeown, Andrew Thompson, and Harold Barnum were returned as directors, with Robert Mumby being added to the list.

BROKEN GAS VENT FATAL TO SLEEPER

CALGARY, Dec. 13.—(CP).—Gas fumes from a gas water heater caused the death of Mrs. Lena Bass and sent her husband, Dr. Fred L. Bass, Calgary dentist, and Dorothy, 24-year-old daughter, to hospital here.

Dr. Bass was in semi-conscious condition in hospital to-day while his daughter had recovered consciousness and both were reported to have good chances of recovery.

They were discovered Saturday lying in gas-filled bedrooms by a second daughter, Norma, 19, a nurse-in-training. Mrs. Bass was dead and the doctor and daughter unconscious.

Fumes were pouring from a broken vent in a gas water-heater, in the basement of the bungalow home. The victims had evidently been lying in the house for about 40 hours. They were last seen by neighbors Thursday night.

Norma Bass, unable to open some of the windows in the fume-laden house, smashed the glass with her bare hands, cutting them badly.

Mrs. Bass had been dead for several hours, ambulance attendants said. Born in Brampton, Ont., she came to Calgary some years ago. A son, Lloyd, is working in a North Bay district mine. Other survivors include three sisters, Mrs. R. Peacock, Toronto, Miss Bertha Ellis, Toronto, and Mrs. H. Ingram, Brampton.

90 MILLION REDS VOTE FOR STALIN

MOSCOW Dec. 13 (AP)—Soviet Russia had a Stalinist parliament today elected by a turnout apparently of virtually all the nation's 90,000,000 voters in the first secret direct election in the 20 years of the Communist regime.

Few candidates for the 1,143 seats in the two-chamber parliament were opposed. There was no early tabulation of returns or announcement of results even in what few districts might have had contests among candidates equally loyal to the regime of Joseph Stalin.

As far as foreigners could learn there was only one such district, which was in the caucus. Bands played and red banners fluttered during yesterday's voting.

The electors in each district voted for two candidates—one for the Soviet of the union and the other for the Soviet of nationalities, the two new governing bodies.

Sinking Of Panay Branded 'War'

MANILA, Dec. 13 (AP). — The Manila Daily Bulletin, United States owned English-language newspaper, editorially declared today the sinking of the gunboat Panay by Japanese planes was "hostile."

"All the notes of regret that can be filed, all explanations that can be concocted cannot alter the fundamental fact," the paper said.

The paper asserted the United States and other powers have been "running away from trouble" in the Orient for five years, and added:

"Diplomats can call it what they please, but the cold fact is that when armed forces under different flags fire upon each other—'that's war'."

Gotham's Snow Army At Work

A unit of New York's mechanized snow army is shown gobbling up a 7-foot drift at Lake Placid, where the new equipment is being tested. This machine, it is claimed, can move 21 cubic yards of snow in 35 seconds. So enthusiastically have the operators of these machines gone about their manoeuvres that it is feared they'll run out of snow and begin moving the mountains if there isn't another fall pretty soon.

The accident occcurred at George and Charlotte streets on Saturday. On the afternoon of the same day, Mrs. J. Sugden, 479 Bolivar street was driving north on Water street when her car was involved in collison with another automobile parked on the west side of the street between Murray and McDonnel streets. Mrs. Sugden applied the brakes of her car to avoid striking a wagon load of hay and skidded into the parked car, she told police.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

When he pleaded guilty to being intoxicated while in control of a motor vehicle in Smith Township, R. J. Knox of Crowe's Landing was this morning sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to seven days imprisonment. Acting Crown Attorney Edward Borbridge intimated to the court, "the circumstances are such that I am asking only for the minimum penalty." The car was found by police at a standstill in a ditch at the roadside, he said. Taking this fact into consideration His Worship pre-dated the penalty to Saturday night when Knox was arrested.

Historical Background Of Christmas Threatened Congregation Is Told

ASKING the question "Where was Jesus in the Santa Claus parade?" Rev. E. W. Young told his St. Andrew's United Church congregation a great danger of over-commercializing Christmas is threatening, Sunday evening. The historical background of Christmas, the birth of Jesus, is in peril of being forgotten, he said.

Much of the goodwill shown at Christmas rests on the historical fact that God gave His greatest gift on the first Christmas—the gift of His Son to the world, Rev. Young continued. "If we slur over that historical fact we may lose the beneficence and philanthropy which has been associated with Christmas in the past."

The minister commended the recent civic Santa Claus parade in Peterborough, saying it was well organized and executed. However, the greatest feature of Christmas was totally unrepresented in the parade—a representation of the fact of the birth of Christ, he declared.

Rev. Young took occasion also to contend also that the Christmas season is becoming increasingly a time for the consumption of liquor. He deplored the increased Christmas sales of liquor reported during recent years, and appealed to adults and younger people to leave liquor out of their Christmas social activities.

LEADING FIGURES IN WORLD CHURCH APTLY DESCRIBED

Most interesting word pictures of some of the leading figures at the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh were painted for the benefit of the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel today by Wilfred F. Butcher, M.A. of Toronto, chairman of the Missionary Council of the Student Christian Movement. Mr. Butcher was one of the Canadian delegates to that most important gathering and his impressions of the dominating personages were outlined in most effective manner.

Today's session was notable in that among the guests was Frank Paterson who is the successor of President Art Runions as Ontario Agricultural representative here. He has been a member of the Welland Rotary Club and was heartily welcomed to Peterborough by President Runions. Rotarian Dr. Barr made a reference to the club's pleasure in the promotion conferred upon President Runions and also to the sense of loss felt at his departure from Peterborough.

Rotarian Craham invited Rotarians to have their wives present at next Monday's luncheon when the club's farewell will be voiced to President and Mrs. Runions. It will also be the annual Christmas session. It was decided not to hold a meeting on Monday, December 27 which is Boxing Day.

Mr. Butcher, the guest speaker who was gracefully introduced by Rotarian Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, began by stating that he proposed to outline some of the leading figures of the Edinburgh conference so that his hearers might be able to picture them. He first discussed Dr. John R. Mott whom he described as the most prominent delegate from North America. Dr. Mott, he said, would have made a great president of the United States, he would have made a great business man and his dynamic quantities made him an outstanding figure. The speaker then told of the unique case of the 97-year-old Bishop Herd, representative of the colored Methodist Church in the United States, who because he had been refused accommodation in Edinburgh hotels became the centre of a storm which hospitality to the happily when the great of the land extendied their hospitality to the colored bishop.

Other personages aptly described by Mr. Butcher included a Russian emigre, a girl who had had a most varied experience since the revolution and who, converted in Paris, knew more about western religions than did the Westerners themselves, and an Indian Anglican Bishop in whose diocese great things had been accomplished.

On motion of Rotarian Alex Mowat, a vote of thanks was passed to the speaker for his most interesting address.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HUNTING FOR SNOW

Skiing over the week-end turned into a hunting trip—or several hunts, in fact—for snow. One contingent of local ski enthusiasts scoured the hills around Bethany, finding several superb hills but rather spotty where snow was concerned. This group travelled across country to join the "run" at Chemong but the snow was so scarce here that they found it almost impossible to ski. The Chemong group then journeyed to Bewdley where they had fair conditions, but only short runs were provided on the hills. However it was an enjoyable first outing.

Instruction classes will be held again this week every evening at Victoria Park, and all members and prospective ones are urged to attend, as skiers can learn much about turns and body postures in a short series of these outdoor classes.—P.

SANTA CLAUS ALREADY?

It looked suspiciously as if a certain George street family had been peeking into their Christmas presents before the arrival of the festive season. This morning a certain housewife and mother, was observed on the verandah of her home, excitedly directing an amateur movie production. Blissfully unconscious of the fact it was about 8 degrees above zero, she squinted through the peep sight and pointed a movie camera in the direction of her two boys who were self-consciously backing away from the house with school bags over their sturdy little shoulders. "You're not having your pictures taken," she lied cheerfully, "you're going to school." As she chattered on, she steadily followed the two lads with the camera lens shouting the while, "Good-bye Jimmy; good-bye, Bob." The lads taking their cue from mother waved her a cheery good-bye and turning their backs on the camera strode off schoolward. Perhaps the little scene will be re-enacted on the screen in connection with a Christmas party, and we wish the amateur producer luck in her efforts. The weather conditions were certainly ideal.—R.

15 SECONDS TO GO.

With fifteen seconds to go, New York Rangers scored a goal in their game with Maple Leafs on Saturday night that gave a local Scotsman a severe headache, it is rumored. Our friend from "Auld Scotia" had a ticket on the game in a sweepstake and was following the game with unusual interest as the play by play description was being broadcast from Maple Leaf Gardens. With the score 5-3 for the Rangers "Scottie" had the sweepstake in the proverbial bag. But he counted his chickens too soon (pardon the mixed metaphor). Fifteen seconds before the game concluded the Rangers slammed the puck into the Maple Leafs' net for another goal. "Ah, weel," Sandy philosophized, "bang goes anither saxpence."

OBITUARY

MRS. JOSEPH GOSSELIN.

Friends and relatives paid a final tribute as Mrs. Joseph Gosselin was laid to rest in St. Peter's Cemetery on Saturday. A service was held at the Sacred Heart Church, Rev. J. C. Maloney officiating at Pontifical High Mass, assisted by Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. E. Welch. A fine tribute to Mrs. Gosselin was paid by Rev. Maloney in his sermon.

Six sons acted as pall-bearers. They were Fred and Leo of Toronto and Vincent, Peter, Angus and Frank of this city. Among those in attendance were four daughters, Mrs. James O'Neill, Mrs. John Kelbrick, Mrs. Victor McNeeley, and Miss Ann Gosselin, all of Peterborough, and one brother, Joseph Gosselin of Montreal.

APPEAL IS HEARD BY JUDGE SMOKE OF MILLING FIRM

On the appeal of the Maple Leaf Milling Company against the assessment of $30,000 on their building at the corner of Dalhousie and George streets, Judge Smoke this morning reserved his decision after hearing evidence and argument for both the appellants and the city.

S. H. Fleming of St. Catharines, son of David R Fleming, of Peterborough, represented the company as solictior, and the city's case was directed by John R. Corkery.

J. A. Laughlin of Toronto, milling engineer with the appellant company, said the building was being used only as a flour and feed warehouse for wholesale trade. "I see no possibility of the mill ever operating as such again. The domestic demand for flour is being supplied by the mills that are now producing. We tried for a month to get some business in the chopping trade, but we didn't make enough to pay for the cost of the oil. To recondition the plant and building for milling purposes would take from $50,000 to $60,000."

J. H. McCannan estimated at $5,000 the value of that part of the building that is being used as a warehouse. J. K. Sheehy valued the building at $30,000 as a flour mill, and for warehouse purposes at $7,-000.

Henry T. Hickey, contractor, estimated the replacement value of the building at $65,536 and struck off 33 1-3 per cent for depreciation, leaving the present value at $42,569. He said he spent half an hour or more in examining the building a week ago, and a longer inspection five years ago, when he placed the depreciation at 30 p.c.

"The building is in a fair state of repair and would be suitable for many purposes," Mr. Hickey said.

Remodelled In 1918.

J. A. Feir, 18 years superintendent of the mill from 1910 to 1927, said that when it was remodelled in 1918 the plant started operations on Armistice Day. Work was immediately halted to let the men make a holiday of the big event.

"In its present day condition I believe if they had work to do they would put it into operating shape, and it would be a boon to this locality.

I know reasons why it can't be operated, and also reasons why it could be, Mr. Feir said.

Water shipment of grain was much cheaper than rail hauls for inland mills. The export market had almost disappeared in recent years. He admitted that milling in Peterborough would cost more than at the lake ports, for export business, but for local flour demand the mill operating here had a decided preference.

The George Street mill in 1926 bought 500,000 bushels of wheat from the Peterborough district within a radius of thirty miles.

The farthest place of shipment was Mariposa Station.

Small Plants Closed.

"The small plants are closed by your big chains," Mr. Feir said, but he added that he could not substantiate that statement in regard to the closing of mills at Campbellford, Castleton and other places in Central Ontario.

"The Maple Leaf Company has plenty of capacity without this building," Mr. Feir said.

Assessment Too High.

W. A. Brown of G. Whitaker and Co. said his company had considered purchasing the building, but they had been deterred by the present assessment.

In his argument, Mr. Fleming said the company should be assessed as wholesalers, not as flour millers. "We were operating the mill in 1926, but I think the possibility is very remote that it will ever be operated as a mill again. For that reason we contend that the building should be assessed as a warehouse. Therefore, the assessment should be based on the value of the building for which it is used today.

Mr. Corkery said that until some change is made in the building, the assessor is required to assess it as a flour mill property. Because it was idle was no reason why it should not be assessed. On the valuation by Mr. Sheehy, who was called for the company, the building's assessment at $30,000 was a fair valuation, Mr. Corkery said.

Canadiens Topple Leafmen From Top Place In Section

Montrealers Set Current Record By Playing Nine Games With Loss

TORONTO, Dec. 13.— (CP).— It doesn't seem reasonable but Montreal Canadiens have demonstrated they are the best team in the National Hockey League at the moment. Overshadowing starry clubs that seem to outclass them on paper, Cecil Hart's Flying Frenchmen have bounded to the top of the heap, a game and a half ahead of their best opposition.

They have set a season record by playing nine games without a loss, beating Boston Bruin's earlier eight-game streak, have toppled Toronto Maple Leafs from Canadian division leadership and even have George Manthan leading the league in goals scored with 10.

Mantha scored three of his weekend total of five when Habitants defeated New York Americans 4-3 in Montreal Saturday and added the other pair when they held Red Dutton's team to a 4-4 tie in Madison Square Garden last night.

Rangers Beat Leafs 6-2.

New York Rangers aided Canadiens' move to division leadership by beating Toronto Leafs 6-2 in a spotty game Saturday night at Toronto. Then they moved on to Detroit to take he world champion Red Wings 5-2 last night and move within one point of Boston, American division leaders.

Jack Adams' champs dropped farther into the cellar not only by losing to Rangers, but because Chicago Black Hawks defeated Montreal Maroons 3-2 in an overtime game, climbing three points above the Wings.

Overtime Games.

Three of the five week-end games produced overtime and the winning goal Canadiens scored in extra time probably will produce arguments that will last for months. Mantha slipped the puck into the net just as 10 minutes of overtime was ending. Dutton claimed the bell had rung, but the officials—Mickey Ion and Johnny Mitchell—ruled otherwise and the timer marked it 10:59.

Habitants had scored twice in the first period through Mantha and Johnny Gagnon and Art Chapman and Sweeney Schriner had tied it up in the second. Mantha scored again in the third and Schriner tied it up for the second time on a pass from Chapman.

Seven thousand fans saw the Montreal game and more than twice that number witnessed the New York clash, indicating both teams are stepping out as crowd pleasers. Through goals by Eddie Wiseman and Lorne Carr, Americans took a lead in the first period.

Polly Drouin brought Habitants within striking distance before that session was over and George Mantha's two goals in the middle session put the Montrealers ahead. Five goals were scored in that period. Carr and Wiseman scoring again and Babe Siebert getting the goal that gave Canadiens a tie.

Lester Patrick's Rangers impressed a crowd of 11,500 Toronto fans with the smooth execution of their passing plays. Even with Charlie Conacher back on right wing after three weeks' absence, Leafs never hit their stride.

Cecil Dillon and Neil Colville each scored twice for Rangers, and Phil Watson and Clint Smith got the others. Sly Apps, Nick Metz and Gordon Drillon were the Toronto counters.

In Detroit, Red Wings showed a smooth attack and more strength on the defence, but they couldn't cope with Rangers' smooth passing. After Lynn Patrick had scored in the second, Mud Bruneteau fed goals to Herb Lewis and Heck Kilrea but Neil Colville tied it up before that period ended. Mac Colville, Alex Shibicky and Patrick scored for Rangers in the third.

Wins Game for Hawks

Paul Thompson won the game for Hawks in Chicago, scoring in overtime when Stew Evans was serving time for tripping Thompson. It was the first time Hawks had defeated Maroons in 10 games.

Doc Romnes got the first goal of the game for Hawks in the opening session, Des Smith tying it in the second. After Louis Trudell scored halfway through the third, Dave Trottier sent the game into overtime with a neat backhand shot.

St. John's Meets Initial Reverse

St. Paul's Juveniles took a 16-5 Church Basketball League win over St. John's Saturday night in the "Y", it being the losers first reverse in four starts. An alright defence of Ascott and R. Ferguson aided the winners. The Anglicans failed to combine on passing plays and they spoiled their efforts with bickering among themselves and with the referee. Taylor was heavy scorer for St. Paul's and Amys went good for the other side till he left with four fouls. The teams:

St. Paul's: J. Ferguson, Dundas, Taylor, R. Ferguson, Ascott.

St. John's: Castle, Dyer, Marshall, Craig, Forsythe, Amys.

Referees: J. Dougherty and R. Rogow.

TORONTO BOXER GETS MAGEE CUP

PORT HOPE, Dec. 13. — Craig Somerville of Toronto, 14-year-old student at Trinity College School, is winner of the Magee Cup, coveted new-boys' award at that school, following his win over D. Lawson of Vancouver in the lightweight class in the finals of the boys' boxing competitions on Saturday.

The Magee Cup is awarded annually to the new student who secures the highest number of points in the cross-country run, the gym competition, and the boxing tournament.

E. Finley of Montreal defeated J. O'Hanlon of Calgary to win flyweight honors and to provide the outstanding bout of the finals in the new-boys' boxing tournament at Trinity College School here on Saturday. The boys were evenly matched, but Finley's fast, straight left earned him the decision on points.

A blindfold bout, in which W. Harvey of Kingston defeated J. Coultis of Turner Valley, provided considerable entertainment. Results:

Middleweight, D. Garbutt, Dunnville, defeated T. Sims, Barrie. Lightweight, C. Somerville, Toronto, defeated D. Lawson, Vancouver. Welterweight, J. Thomson, Islington, defeated L. Holton, Freeman, Ont. Bantamweight, J. Hart, Oakville, defeated A. Moore, Coulonge, Que. Featherweight, W. Langdon, Timmins, defeated G. Jones, Detroit. Flyweight, E. Finley, Montreal, defeated J. Badminton

R. O. BENSON

Now that the Yuletide season is but a scant 12 days distant, it begins to look as if inter-club tournaments will be left over until the effects of the Christmas spirit have passed away. It is hoped that soon after 1938 has sneaked up on us, most of the club members will be primed for a fast start in the direction of match play. Possibly the league which has been proposed may be in operation by that time too. Peterborough Club were hoping for a meeting with Port Hope before Christmas, but a slight lack of enthusiasm just now seems to point to a postponement until January.

Knox Club held their second tournament night on Thursday, this one being a mixed doubles affair to select possible teams for outside tourneys. Matches consisted of but one game, one of the best of which was that in which Ada Spencely and Reuben McDonald won from Mabel Ferguson and Horace Fisher by a score of 15-11. This was a tidy number, the winners enjoying just a slight edge on the fast volleys. Another stiff battle was waged by Phyllis Hill and Jack Miller as they downed Lily Bull and George Ringer, 15 to 12. The final winners of the tournament, Edith Boddy and Ralph Charlton, breezed through each round with ease, not once being extended. Complete results are as follows: 1st round—Mabel Ferguson and Horace Fisher vs. Margaret Parker and Jack Miller, 15-2; Ada Spencely and Reuben McDonald vs. Gladys Gerard and George Ringer, 15-4; Edith Boddy and Ralph Charlton vs. Anne Davis and Harold Charlton, 15-6; Phyllis Hill and Jack Miller vs. Lily Bull and George Ringer, 15-12; Mrs. C. Ruth and Ross Allen, bye. 2nd round—Ada Spencely and Reuben McDonald vs. Mabel Ferguson and Horace Fisher, 15-11; Edith Boddy and Ralph Charlton vs. Mrs. Ruth and Ross Allen, 15-5. Final round—Edith Boddy and Ralph Charlton vs. Ada Spencely and Reuben McDonald, 15-6.

Peterborough Club's second scheduled tournament of the current intra-mural series resulted, last Wednesday, in a win for Johnny Murphy's team over Grahame Faulkner's troops by a fairly sizeable margin. Couldn't help noting the good stuff displayed by Jim Hall, who is working up a nice around-the-head smash. His recoveries and net dribbles helped Walter Perks as he turned in a fine cross-court game. Don Ross and Johnny Murphy, a strong team, showed plenty of zip and dash. Pat Hall, jumping high after the tall ones, gave Mrs. Hewitt good support. The latter's service was working with effect against Mr. and Mrs. G. Faulkner, who look like a steady twosome when they bear down. Never saw so much keen excitement and such will to win as that offered by Mr. Collins toiling on court one in a strenuous men's doubles fixture. He was playing for the first time since an operation but he gave a surprisingly good performance.

Calling All Stars:

Florence Adams and Mrs. (Dr.) Preston taking a good win from Mrs. J. Mathews and Mrs. Putnam, 15-6, 15-3...Both games were good, with the ladies getting good length to their drives and yumph into their smashes ...Also they were taking full advantage of their opportunities and picking the corners nicely...Mrs. Putnam, the left-handed, looks like a real stylist...Doris Ackford, improving every time out, and Myrtle Burns made up an attractive pair and would make a very nice team if their attack were not quite so concentrated and with the burden a little more evenly divided...But even at that they managed to trim Mrs. Dawe and Helen Banks, 14-18, 15-6, 15-9...Major R. J. Bolton was working up a clever plan of attack as he and Col. C. H. Stuart pooled their efforts...Irene Robinson, featuring fingerless "badmintens," was playing a strong game Saturday night, carrying the play to her opponents, with her partner, Mel Mesley, covering up well...Nels Stanger, stroking smoothly and playing a real game in collaboration with Ethel Brownlee, a netter of no mean ability...Jack Osborne and Mr. Steer, of Trinity, impressing with a speedy 15-3, 15-9 win over Lorne Reynolds and Harold Rehill...Anne Franks, keeping up a persistent attack with some fancy stickhandling ...Mrs. Runions and Mr. Steer, winning a "feud" match from Mrs. Steer and A. D. Runions by a score of 15-12.,

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'ackle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

FOR THE first time in a number of years, the local Hockey Club expects to have a complete set of first-rate equipment. True, they have had a lot of good equipment in the past, but not sufficient. For instance, an injured junior or intermediate hockey player here had a tough time getting special pads to suit him. You couldn't blame the club—regardless of what unknowing folk say about the profit there is in sports—as they just didn't have enough dough to properly equip both teams from stem to stern. As the pros do. They expect to do so now if this prize draw pans out okay, as they hope it will. Officers have a flock of good stuff lined up and they hope to purchase it within the next two weeks.

JUST A few words about W. E. (Pick) Hines, new coach of the Petes in the O.H.A. senior "B" race. He comes here with a real rep in hockey circles, and in his playing days he was a star baseballer and puckist. Just wait a second and look over his record in hockey coaching. He started in 1929 with the Willowdale club in Toronto, going right through to the O.H.A. intermediate finals. There was no nonsense about "A", "B" and "C" classifications in them thar days, nossir, by golly! A number of those gents later hit pro ranks. Next we hear of Pick is in Windsor and he cut quite a swath for several years.

* * * * * *

IN 1931, Hines coached the Windsor Mic Macs and they went right on to cop the senior "B" championship of Ontario, beating out Belleville that season. Next year there, he won the intermediate title from the Doherty A.C. of Toronto. The following season he lost out in finals to the Hamilton Pats. In 1933, they were in the senior "B" finals again. And in '34, they won the senior "B" championship. IN fact they gave the Hamilton team an awful scare in the Allan Cup playdowns! He was idle in '35 but the following winter Pick filled in as coach of Western University at London when Bill Marsden was out sick. He didn't do anything last winter and was transferred here by his company last summer.

* * * * * *

YOU CAN'T laugh off this sort of a record. Hines is a winning coach and only once has his team finished out of the finals. He is a real disciplinarian, and any player who doesn't hop when he's told to will suddenly find himself parked on the bench. We think we'll like him this winter and we imagine local players and fans will too.

* * * * * *

HARLEY WEIR and Ernie Wolff represented Peterborough at a hockey meeting in Belleville yesterday, the O.H.A. president being on hand to help iron out grouping difficulties in Central Ontario. After much chatter it wound up with two groups being formed. One is an intermediate "A" loop of Kingston City Club, Gananoque, R.M.C. and Garrisons; the other is one of those "A"-cum-"B" affairs taking in Peterborough, Fliers, Belleville and Queen's. In this latter, the top two teams playoff with the winner to be known as a Senior "B" squad in Ontario playdowns, and the bottom two playoff with the winner going into intermediate "A" playdowns—meeting the winner of that Kingston district group. Thus, like the O.H.A. senior "A" setup, every team in our group is sure now of making one playoff series. Well, we suppose it is the best that can be done—and at least fans will see one more club in group action here, Queen's U., than they did last semester.

* * * * * *

IT CAME to pass that the Dundas Red Bombers bombed our Orfuns into oblivion by a 21-6 score on a Hamilton gridiron Saturday. 'Twas the second game of the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" final series. As the big Bombers had taken the first tilt here by a 15-1 count, the round score was: Them 36, Us 7. Yeah, nearly as bad as we beat Toronto in the semi-finals. At least, you must give the local gridders credit for getting into Provincial finals against a lot of classy teams, and don't forget no other Peterborough team was ever in the rugby running so late in the season. They didn't bring us an Ontario championship but they made a real effort. And they lost out to a football outfit of senior calibre. The Dundas gang will be playing senior company next year.

* * * * * *

COACH BILL Turnbull's team went out fighting. They never quit trying. Getting an early break, they scored a try in the first frame to hold a 6-0 lead. It was 6-all at halftime and the Crimson Wave rolled over 'em during the last half, outplaying them in this part. Crowe intercepted a forward to gallop 70 yards for a touchdown in the initial heat, converting it, for the lone Peterborough tally. Gurney got two tries and Cahill one for Dundas, along with a few other minor counts. The gridiron was free of snow but it was colder than an Eskimo's attic. Orfuns were without the services of Don Crowe most of the game, the local hoofer early getting hurt. So was Hendren, who was laid up over the weekend with a bad arm. But they have no alibis—the better team won.

* * * * * *

AND SO ends the rugby season here for this year—and not before time, y'know. The rugbyists barely have time now to get in shape for the Xmas festivities. Those who play hockey have no rest between sports this year at all. At least, the Orfuns didn't default their final game nor did they quit. The lads battled gamely all the way through the football fray in Hamilton. For instance, little Red Harle was in two fights and finally got the gate for taking a poke at the Dundas' coach! He bounced one off big Gurney so hard the latter's teeth rattled. They all fought fiercely but bowed to a bigger and better gang. Our congrats to the players, coach and officers for a fine season. Three hard-working executive officers who have received little or no mention all season are: Secretary Jim Morley, Treasurer Walter Jackson, and H. A. Cranfield who has been Orfuns' official timer at all games.

MISS VI CLARK DUFFERIN WINNER

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Miss Vivien Clark piloted Bert Patch, owned by M. E. Wilson of Mono Mills, to the major money share in the harness horse race for lady drivers at Dufferin Park on Saturday. This combination took the last three heats after Miss Rowntree reined Lee Henley under the wire first in the opening heat in the good time of 2.13 flat. Miss Clark drove Prudent Grattan to victory in the first race for lady drivers a few weeks ago at Dufferin.

It was the only complete event on the four-race card. The others are to be finished this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

Very fast time was made in the two heats of the free-for-all. Peter Bidwell copped the first dash in 2.10, and then Tom Grattan set what probably is a record for winter racing at Dufferin when he stepped the second heat in 2.09.

Dobbindale won both heats raced in the first classified event, and Logan McKillop took the lone heat of the other classified race.

Canadian Teams Are Selected For '38 British Empire Games

Officially Name Seven On Mitt And Mat Team—Eight Others Eligible

VANCOUVER, Dec. 13 (CP).—A hand-picked boxing and wrestling squad of seven was named Saturday to represent Canada in the British Empire Games at Sydney, Australia, next February.

Five boxers and two matmen were listed officially for the trip after the two-day game trials, which ended here Saturday night. Eight others may go if their expenses are provided.

Selections were made from winners of final matches.

After an all-day session Canadian Empire games officials approved committee recommendations to send two ringmen from Montreal and one each from Winnipeg, St. Catharines, Ont., and Victoria as Dominion boxing representatives. Toronto and Vancouver split the wrestling berths.

Blond Joe Gagnon, 19-year-old flyweight whirlwind from Montreal, headed committee selections for the boxing squad, with Tommy Osborne the second Quebec member. Both hold Dominion titles in their classes, Osborne the heavyweight.

Harry Hurst, leather-throwing lightweight from St. Catharines, completed the Eastern boxing selections.

Winnipeg's smart bantam, Billy Brade, captured one of the two Western berths, with Rex Carey of Victoria named in the middleweight place.

Terry Evans of Toronto, Canadian and British Empire middleweight wrestling champion, and Jack Whelan, Vancouver motorcycle police officer and British Columbia heavyweight champion, rounded out the selections.

Fifteen Eligible.

Those seven were assured of the Australian trip, and in addition officials listed eight on their supplementary list, to go if their expenses are provided for independently.

James Curley, Toronto featherweight boxer, and Norman Dawson, Vancouver welter, were expected by officials to accompany the Canadian aggregation leaving December 22, but the future of Regina's light-heavyweight, Gaston Eichel, was uncertain.

Three Montrealers and two Toronto final winners were on the supplementary wrestling list.

From the Quebec city were Vernon Blake, bantamweight; Larry Clark, featherweight, and Ed Ferguson, light-heavyweight, all Canadian champions. Morgan Plumb, lightweight, and Harry Peace, welter, were the Toronto wrestlers on the extra list.

ST. PETER'S PRACTICE

Manager Ken Fleming of the St. Peter's juvenile entry into the Southend Hockey League has called a general practice for tonight (Monday) from seven to eight o'clock at the Sacred Heart rink. Prospective players are invited with the following, in particular, asked to attend: Cauley, Corkery, Rochetta, Prete, Ascott, L. Clark, Foster, Miller, Parnall, Curtin, Craig, Henwood, Campbell, C. Clark, Shaughnessy, Connelly, Cox, Nichols, Murphy and Vitarelli.

What's Up Burl?

Many strange things are to be seen at the annual meetings of baseball managers and scouts, and this is a typical example taken during the National League meeting in Chicago. Who would think that the gentleman pictured here was Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyn Dodgers? It would seem that things were going along fine from the contented look on his face, and maybe they are, who knows, there might be a deep, secret regarding the possible trading of Van Lingle Mungo, Dodgers' ace hurler.

Peterborough Hockey Club In New Eastern Grouping

Petes to Operate With Trenton, Belleville And Queen's University

With Alvin Schlegel, president of the O.H.A., and W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the same organization, in Belleville on Saturday, the groupings of Eastern Ontario teams was finally ironed out at a meeting called by S. R. (Sandy) Burrows, O.H.A. executive member, and schedules will be drawn on Thursday night.

Kingston Hockey Club, Gananoque, R.M.C. and Kingston Garrison will operate in an intermediate "A" series, while Peterborough, Trenton Fliers, Belleville Redmen and Queen's University will operate in the other group. The last-named group will play an interlocking schedule, the first two teams to finish to play off for the right to enter the senior "B" playdowns and the third and fourth place teams to play off to enter the intermediate "A" playdowns and play off with the group winners that will operate with the first four-named teams.

Belleville team was represented by Eddie Thomas, Trenton Fliers by Flying Officer Carling-Kelly, Peterborough by Charles J. Hicks, R.M.C. by Pro. T. J. Gelley, Kingston Hockey Club by Fred Cunningham, Kingston Garrison by Professor Gelley, and Gananoque was communicated with by phone.

George St. Takes 12-6 Cage Victory

George St. copped a 12-6 nod over St. John's Bantams in their Church Cage League tilt at the "Y" on Saturday night. They got an early lead that the Saints failed to cut down in an exciting second half. The fine defensive work and scoring tries of G. Richardson gave the Uniteds a well-earned edge. Crowter was much the best of the St. John's gang all the way. The teams:

St. John's: Dutton, Crowter, Groombridge, A. Sage, L. Sage, Gynane, Smith, Brand, S. Packard, W. Packard, Grierson.

George St.: Mason, G. Richardson, M. Richardson, Burns.

Orfuns Lose Early Advantage To Drop Second Game 21 To 6 And The Round By 36-7 Count

Dundas Bombers Show Superiority After First Quarter In Title Game

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 13.—(CP)—Dundas Red Bombers crashed their way over a frozen field here Saturday to score a 21-6 victory over Peterborough Orfuns in the Ontario Rugby Union's intermediate "A" final. It was the second contest of a two-game titular series, Dundas taking the round 36-7 by virtue of their 15-1 win at Peterborough the previous Saturday.

With the win went the right to meet Montreal Rocklands, Quebec intermediate winners, in a possible Dominion intermediate final next Saturday. Arrangements for such a game have not yet been completed.

The visiting Orfuns took advantage of Dundas' errors in the first quarter of Saturday's game and on the first change of ends led 6-0, having cut their round deficit to eight points. From then on, however, the Bombers showed their real power and the Petes never had a chance.

Biggest Dundas mistake in that opening quarter came near the end when Smiley's hurried forward pass was intercepted by Crowe, Orfun middle wing, who raced 70 yards for a touchdown. It was converted by Crowe. Prior to that, loose Dundas ball-handling gave Petes several chance on none of which they were able to capitalize however.

Costly Short Kicks

Bombers tied it at six-all in the second quarter with a converted touchdown. Late in the period when Crowe, Peterborough punter, kicked one short to his own 30-yard line, Dundas put over four crashing line plays, with Quarterback Gurney carrying the ball over the opposing line on the fourth play for a major count. He converted with a drop kick.

Another short Peterborough kick, this one by Magee, gave Dundas another chance in the third quarter. From 35 yards out three successive plays, one each by Mountain, Cooke and Cahill carried the ball over the line. Gibb converted.

Soon after the start of the final quarter Curley Donald, Dundas alternate outside, grabbed a loose ball on Peterborough's 15-yard line. He ran to within five yards of the goal-line before being stopped. From there Gurney sneaked through centre for his second major count. Gibb converted again to make it 18-6.

Petes started a forward pass attack late in the period but it backfired when McCready intercepted one to give Dundas possession on the visitors' 45-yard line. Gibb kicked to Orfuns' three-yard line and on the first play after that Orfuns were forced to concede a safety touch.

Last score of the game came when Gurney returned Loucks' hoist for a touch-in-goal to make it 21-6.

Line-ups:

Peterborough: Flying wing, Marsh; halves, Crowe, Kearns Guardino; quarter, Archibald; snap, Henderson; insides, Sloane, E. Spencely; middles, Begley, Mitchell; outsides, Cameron, Grosse; subs, McIntyre, Magee, F. Spencely, Ascot, Smith, Williams, Weir, Loucks, Pulkinghorn, Smith, Harle, Winslow, Prete.

Dundas: Flying wing, Mountain; halves, Gibb, Smiley, Cahill; quarter, Gurney; snap, McDermott; insides, Gray, Galvin; middles, B. Donald, Wilson; outsides, McCready, Fleming; subs, Cooke, Dowling, Burton, C. Donald, P. McDonald, Reid, Tedford, Pawley, Morgan, Lyne, Demarchi.

Referee, Bob Leith, Hamilton; umpire, Gus Rider, Toronto.

Bears' Coach

L. B. "Stub" Allison, coach of the University of California football team, who, now that the regular season is over, will concentrate on the Rose Bowl game to be held New Year's day, is pictured here. California will meet the University of Alabama's undefeated and untied eleven in the climax game of the season.

SCORING SPREE NETS SYRACUSE TWO VICTORIES

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (C.P.). — It's getting close to Christmas and the boys who play for Syracuse seem obviously have ideas of doing their goal shopping early.

Stars went on a scoring spree during the week-end that gave them a goal total to-day as plump as a Christmas pudding. In one International-American Hockey League game they out-shopped Springfield Indians 9-7, then slackened their buying pace a bit on Sunday in taking a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia Ramblers.

Indians fared poorly in week-end play, dropping a 2-1 decision on Monday night to Providence Reds. The victory gave Reds an even break for they lost 2-0 on Saturday to the Pittsburgh Hornets. Cleveland Barons defeated Philadelphia 2-1 on Saturday but dropped a 3-1 decision the night after to New Haven Eagles.

Syracuse's two victories broke the tie for first place in the league's Western section, sending Stars two points ahead of Barons, who have 14 points. In the Eastern section Indians, pace setters in the early part of the season, slipped into the cellar, while New Haven moved up into third place ahead of them.

Duguid got the first Cleveland goal against Philadelphia in the second period, and Lloyd Roubell tied it up a minute later. Bud Cook scored the winning goal for Cleveland in the last period on a pass from Earl Bartholome.

Against Eagles, Bartholome and Phil Hergesheimer scored for Barons while the New Haven goals were scored by Miller, Freeman Jack and Max Kaminsky. Kaminsky got the winner only 20 seconds before regulation time was up.

Argonauts Regain Football Supremacy For Queen City Winnipeg Beaten 4 To 3

Bob Fritz Is Outstanding Player On Field—15,000 Sees Game

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP). — The team that stopped Fritz Hanson with common, every-day Eastern tackling holds the Canadian football championship today. The champions are Toronto Argonauts, featuring the tackling Teddy Morris, West Cutler and Bill Bryers.

Before a shivering crowd of 15,000 in Varsity Stadium Saturday, Hanson and Winnipeg's Blue Bombers were conquered by the defensive perfection of Lew Hayman's Argos. The score was 4-3 as football supremacy returned to the East.

Behind the tremendous punting of Bob Isbister, the Scullers contrived to halt the fleet and elusive Hanson by the simple method of surrounding the golden ghost with tacklers. It was an obvious and entirely successful manoeuvre.

Field Goal Counts.

With Hanson in subjection, the Eastern champions won on a field goal by Earl Selkirk in the first period and a 70-yard punt by Isbister in the second. Steve Olander, former Winnipeg junior star, wicked two Bomber points, and Greg Kabat scored the third on a wide place-kick that sailed to the deadline.

In a struggle between big and evenly-matched lines, backs who were generally beaten back by furious tackling, the verdict rested with the fates and the punting. The fates switched from one side to the other and Isbister settled the kicking matter.

Pitted against the best Western punter this sector has seen, Isbister laced out a succession of 60-yard shots in the third and fourth quarters to squelch the final Bomber hopes. Olander made a gallant stand against Big Bob, kicking high and far with never an error.

The new champions outgained the Bombers on the ground 158 yards to 137, largely because they outcharged the Western forward wall. They made eight first downs to five. Otherwise they had little or no margin in the closest of all East-West gridiron classics.

Hanson, wonder man of the 1935 final when the Bombers turned back Hamilton Tigers, had no chance to make long runs. It was late in the fourth quarter before he was able to break loose from his goal line for spurts of 17 and 25 yards.

Bombers Have Chances.

But the Bombers had scoring chances. In the first period Coach Bob Fritz scooped up a fumbled catch and ran 65 yards to the Argo 10 before he was pulled down. Isbister stopped the great Bomber coach and quarterback. The play netted only one point, Olander kicking a single.

Later in the first period Bill Stukus dropped a catch on the Toronto 20 and Bill Ceretti gathered in the ball, running over the goal line. The play was called back by Umpire Eddie Grant of Winnipeg, who ruled Stukus had been given less than five yards by the tacklers.

These were two of the game's three decisive breaks. The third occurred when Hanson fumbled a rolling ball on Winnipeg's 20-yard line in the opening period. The ball was recovered by Argos and Selkirk kicked a field-goal from 31 yards out.

Fritz Leads Bombers.

For the rest of the way it was tight, hard football, with Fritz the outstanding offensive and defensive player in the contest as he led the Bombers. The Winnipeg coach gave a masterly display of fighting spirit and power, crunching gains out of an opposing line that never yielded.

Scarcely less effective for Winnipeg were Ceretti, Jeff Nicklin and Lou Adelman. Argos had a definite advantage in balance, using a half-dozen halfbacks effectively. They had a wingline that outplayed the Bomber forwards most of the way and ends that tackled brilliantly.

But mostly, Argos had confidence under rules familiar to them and condition that the Bombers lacked after a four-week layoff. In 16 years of intersectional rivalry, no game had been as close as this one, decided in the long run by the mighty Isbister.

MAY BECOME MANAGER

LIVERPOOL, England—(CP). — Ned Tarleton, former British featherweight champion injured recently in a motor accident, will retire from the ring to concentrate on the managerial side of the game.

McGILL CAPTURES WATER POLO TITLE

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP).—McGill University's water polo team won its fifth straight Intercollegiate championship Saturday night with a 4-to-1 victory over the University of Toronto in their one-game final.

The Toronto swimmers, who defeated Queen's University of Kingston in the Friday night semi-final, went into an early lead in the first period, but thereafter were held at bay by close checking as the Montrealers piled up their goals.

U. of T.'s only goal was marked up by John Adams on a pass from Bill Laari. In the second period Jack Rabinovitch tied it up, and Hugh McGuire put the Red team in the lead on a pass from Shrag Shragovitch just before half-time. Captain Pete Bourne sewed it up for McGill in the fourth by registering two more tallies.

Shore Exonerated By Bruins' Pilot

BOSTON, Dec. 13 (AP). — Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins hockey team said Saturday he had written Frank Calder, President of the National League, exonerating Eddie Shore, his star defenceman, of blame in a scuffle with Doug. Young, Detroit player, last Tuesday.

Shore drew a major penalty after the incident. Ross said Calder was investigating at the request of the Detroit Club.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (A.P.). — Everyone here got a laugh out of the picture of Dizzy Dean, all dolled up as Santa Claus, talking to the kids in front of a Coral Gables, Fla., department store....That's one way to get back in the papers, Butch. (And boy, have you been out.)

Tim Mara, owner of the New York football giants, wants to hide every time he thinks of how he once bemanded Cliff Battles and $10,000 for Tuffy Leemans—Mr. Mara, who is a professional bookmaker, bet on only one football game in his life...That was the Pitt-Fordham game (or one of them) which ended in a scoreless tie.

Martin Burke, New Orleans promoter, asked Henry Armstrong to go down there and fight Johnny Jones....Armstrong wanted to go home to Los Angeles, but took the boat to oblige his manager, Eddie Mead, who is a pal of Burke's.... The fight did all right at the gate ....But when they arrived in New Orleans, Mead and Armstrong heard Burke was about to lose his home, as they refused to take a nickel for their share beyond actual expenses.

CAPTAIN OF INDIA

CALCUTTA—(CP). — Possibility that Vijay Merchant of Bombay will captain India in future test cricket matches is seen in his selection as skipper of teams to meet Lord Tennyson's touring eleven.

GEORGE MANTHA IN SECOND HOLE

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (C.P.). — George Mantha's five week-end goals against the Americans lifted the Canadiens' wingman into second place among the National League point leaders and made him top goal-getter. The rest of the Canadian division began to challenge Toronto's high men seriously, even though Gordon Drillon stayed ahead, but Marty Barry of Detroit was the only member of an American section team to hold a place. With 13 points, he was tied for fifth place with Syl Apps and Red Horner, Toronto, and Johnny Gagnon, Canadiens.

The leaders:

Drillon, Toronto	9	9	18
Mantha, Canadiens	10	5	15
Jackson, Toronto	7	7	14

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press).

Vince Dundee, in the first defence of his newly-gained world's middleweight boxing championship, won a split 15-round decision over Andy Callaghan at Boston four years ago today. Dundee won the title October 30, 1933, with a seven-round knockout over Lou Brouillard, French-Canadian, at New York.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

by—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, after a course at Yale, finally meets Mimi Le Brun, now a St. Louis society girl, whom he has admired for years. She is a cousin of Lionel Clark, Jerry's only close friend at college. All three, with several other young people, are at a Maine camp presided over by Olga, an attractive young woman who married Mimi's wealthy grandfather shortly before he died. Jerry has just met Andy Fuller who is in love with Mimi. And now Jerry is with Mimi herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 13.

Mimi spoke again, after a while, of her grandfather. "Did you hear any of his speeches when he was in the senate?"

"Yes."

"Wasn't he wonderful?"

"Yes. I used to hang over the gallery rail to listen."

"I must have been there sometimes when you were hanging over the gallery rail. How queer to think that we were both there! Lionel has told you about Olga. It was dreadful for all of us. She is pretty, isn't she? And old men are vain. She flattered him."

The note of sophistication in all that she said hurt me. "Perhaps he really loved her."

There was a flash of jealousy. "But he loved us—he loved me; yet he forgot us at the last."

"I am sure he did not forget you," I said earnestly; "he couldn't have forgotten."

"But there was the will," sharply, "leaving her everything, and leaving us out." Her breath was coming quickly. "It wasn't just the money—although that meant a great deal to us. It was the forgetfulness that hurt."

Yet I think that my defense of her grandfather pleased her and formed a link between us, and that she was kinder to me because of it.

For she was not kind to everybody. I was to find that out as I knew her better. She could wrap herself in her little mantle of remoteness and thus withdraw from those who disturbed her or whom she disliked. She had this manner, to some extent, with Olga. It was the one flaw I found in her—that she could accept favors and yet seem to scorn them.

When we reached the house, there was nobody about. Mimi left me, and I went to my room, where Lionel was getting into white flannels. "We are all going over to the Bradleys for a dance," he told me, "so you'll have to change."

"Where were you?" he asked presently. "When I looked around, you were out of sight."

"I rode through the woods. I met your cousin."

"Andy Fuller said you were with her. What happened to Andy? He was terribly grouchy."

"I think he and Miss Le Brun had quarreled."

"They are always quarreling. And don't call her 'Miss Le Brun'; everything here is first names. It's a rule of the camp."

When I came back from my bath, I asked, "Who is Andy Fuller?"

"You wouldn't have to ask that if you lived in St. Louis. His father and his grandfather were at the head of a great coffee house. Money to burn! He wants to marry Mimi—and he'll get her before he is through with it."

My heart seemed to stop beating. "Is she in love with him?"

"No; but the chances are she'll marry him. He isn't used to having people say 'no' to him, and he is very masterful. A man like that usually gets what he wants in the end."

Across the years came the echo of Uncle Jerry's voice, "If you want to win a woman, make yourself her master." It had come to me then as a rather attractive theory; it was hateful to me now.

"She seems very young," I said, "to think of marrying."

"Well, she is. But even after her debut she's not likely to find anyone with more money than Andy."

I wanted to flare into a denunciation of his worldliness. I wanted to tell him that girl like Mimi Le Brun, a little lovely thing like Mimi, would not give herself to any man until she found her mate; that she would not give herself to any man who failed to climb with her to the heights; that she was too young now to know what love really meant. But when she was taught—

I had the sense, however, to hold my tongue. Lionel would laugh at my rhapsodies. He wouldn't understand, and he would find out how I felt about Mimi. I couldn't risk that. No one must find out; it was too sacred.

When we were dressed, we went into the great living room where most of Olga's guests were assembled. I saw Andy Fuller, towering above me. I could match his inches with my own, and I had more than his breadth of shoulder. I had, too, enough boyish vanity to belive that I could match him in looks. Lionel had slapped me on the shoulder as we left our rooms, saying:

"You're stunning in those clothes, Jerry. Don't let anybody put things over on you."

I knew what he meant. I had confessed to him a certain shyness I had felt in accepting Olga's invitation. "I'm not like your friends, Lion."

"You don't have to be," he told me. "Just keep a stiff upper lip and don't let them see that you feel the difference."

Yet I did feel the difference, none the less, and stood a little on the outside of the group of young people, seeing Bernice in the midst of them looking like a bit of flame in her amber satin gown as the light of the fire shown on her.

Mimi was not there when I first came in, but presently I saw her approaching through the door of the living room which led to what Lionel called "the harem." Olga had given the men one wing of the house and the women the other. He own suite separated the two. I was surprised that there were no older people to keep the Ogre company. I was to learn the reason later.

Mimi in the doorway was not the Mimi of the afternoon. She seemed to have grown up in a moment. She wore a trailing dress of a deep shimmering blue, and on a thin chain around her neck was a pendant—

BEDTIME STORY

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY FOOTBALL

"Bang!"

"Pop!"

"There int goes! I told you not to kick it too hard, Buster!"

"It's a funny football that breaks so easy," said Buster, one of Uncle Wiggily's little boy rabbits. "I didn't kick it hard."

"Sure you did!" barked Jackie Bow Wow.

"I told you to kick it easy," whined Peetie, who was Jackie's brother. "Now what are we going to do for a football?"

"When my daddy comes I'll ask him to get another," said Buster. "I'm sorry I broke this one. But my daddy will get us a new one."

"Yes, Uncle Wiggily is good that way," said Jackie.

"Oh, ho, so that's what they think of me," said Uncle Wiggily himself, who had, hidden behind a stump, heard what the animal boys were saying. He had been watching the play when, all of a sudden Buster gave the football an extra hard kick. "Pop!" it exploded.

Worn Out

"He's a buster if ever there was one," said Custer, who was Buster's brother. "Now we can't have any fun."

"I wish daddy would hop along," said Buster sadly. He felt sorry for

"How well they think of me!"

having broken the football. True, it was an old one and had been kicked around many times so it was worn thin.

"Uncle Wiggily will know what to do," said Jackie.

"How well they think of me," thought the hidden Mr. Longears. "I suppose my ears should burn, hearing such nice things said of me. But I think if I twinkle my pink nose that will be just as good."

The animal boys tried to play with the old football, but they couldn't.

"It just won't hold the air," said Jackie, blowing until his cheeks were as large and round as toy balloons. 'Oh, dear!"

Buster felt so bad he wandered off by himself.

"Poor little rabbit boy," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I must help him and the others by getting them a new football even if it isn't Christmas. But I'll wait a few minutes yet. Then I'll pop out."

All of a sudden, as Buster was hopping along he reached an old barn. Looking up toward the roof he saw something underneath the edge that made him jump for joy. Running back he called:

"Hey, fellows, I've found a football! It's stuck up under the edge of the barn. Come and look!"

As the animal boys followed Buster, Uncle Wiggily trailed along behind them and they never saw him.

Queer Football

"Look! There it is!" shouted Buster, pointing to the roof.

"That's a funny looking football," said Jackie. "It's colored gray and not yellow like our old one."

"That's because it's been out in the rain, I guess," said Buster. "But let's knock it down with a long pole."

"How ever did a football get up there under the barn roof?" asked Peetie Bow Wow.

"Somebody kicked it there and it stuck," said Buster.

Jackie and Peetie found a long pole. Then the animal boys took turns poking at the round thing like a football under the eaves.

All of a sudden down it fell—plop. Just then Uncle Wiggily hopped around the corner of the barn, calling.

"Don't kick that funny football, boys! Don't do it!"

"Why not?" asked Buster.

"Because it's a wasp nest—not a football at all," said Mr. Longears. "There may be wasps in it still. Don't kick it or something funny may happen."

Well, something funny really happened. I'll tell you about it in the next story—Uncle Wiggily's kick. And I hope the chocolate cake isn't too proud to dance with the ham sandwich.

ASK BIGGER RELIEF LOAD IN INDUSTRY

REGINA, Dec. 13—(CP)—Industry should be compelled to contribute more to the maintenance of industrial employees in periods of inactivity, the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association contends in a brief to be presented today before the Rowell Commission.

"We think the case of the industrial employee is just as much the concern of that industry as the case of any of their capital equipment," the brief says. "We feel that the government should enact regulations which would compel industry to carry a greater part of this responsibility."

The brief dwells on the many phases of the relief problem. Since the varied factors which contributed to unemployment could only be dealt with by the Federal Government, it urges that responsibility for the unemployed should be assumed completely by that government.

Division of unemployed into employables and unemployables now proposed by the Dominion, as a preliminary to establishment of a national unemployment insurance scheme, would only leave the municipalities in worse condition than before if they were to become responsible for the unemployables.

Unemployment is a condition which in itself creates unemployables, the brief says. With unemployables about 30 per cent. of the urban unemployed, Saskatchewan cities would be in worse condition if loaded with their responsibility than they were now contributing a substantial part of the upkeep of all unemployed.

Had Indigestion Gas and Pains In Stomach and Bowels

The process of digestion depends largely on the condition of the stomach, and when it is unable to do its work properly there will be a rising and souring of food, a gnawing and burning sensation in the stomach, belching and pressure of gas, flatulency, etc.

Burdock Blood Bitters starts an increased flow of gastric juice so essential for the proper digestion of food.

Miss M. C. Weiss, Mapova, Alta., writes:—"For a long time I was troubled with indigestion. My stomach would not digest my food, and I would have gas pressure and sour stuff coming up in my mouth.

I used Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking one bottle I felt a change for the better, so I decided to keep on, and after the third bottle I could eat anything and not be bothered with the rising and souring of my food."

MARMORA

AMATEUR NIGHT IS JOLLY AFFAIR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 13.—With Comrade T. E. Pritchard presiding, Marmora branch No. 237 Canadian Legion staged another Amateur Show in the Town Hall on Friday evening before a large audience; the proceeds being in aid of their Christmas Cheer Fund.

The program commenced with some community singing, after which Miriam Nobes sang "At Ebbtide With You." Nita Dorie, another entrant in the juvenile class, received much applause for a pianoforte solo and a tap dance. Joan Brown, youngest entrant, followed with a tap dance, pianoforte solo and song in turn.

The adult entrants then took the footlights. Ross McColl, with own guitar accompaniment, sang a cowboy song. Card tricks by Christ Newman came next on the program. Albert Bartlett sang a song reminiscent of his shanty days. A guitar duet was furnished by Bert Kouri and William Hart. Impersonations of animal sounds were given by Percy Gray of Deloro. A comic character songs was given by Charlie Cummings.

A skit by three boys: John Shannon, Joe Clairmont and Harold Doyle, created a diversion. A duet by Sid Brown and Walter Hawara with their own guitar accompaniment, took well, as did an instrumental duet by Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds. Glen McColl sang a cowboy song as the concluding competitive item. Also on the program were numbers by Danny Boy and Pete of Toronto, and a skit by members of the Legion assisted by others.

Awards made by the judges were: Juvenile—1, Nita Dorie; 2, Jean Brown; 3, Three boys with skit.

Adult—1, C. Cummings; 2, Eugene Reynolds and Bert Kouri; 3, Glen McColl.

The attendance shield was won this month by Miss N. Watson's classroom, the presentation being made by last month's winner, Miss E. Roberts.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The meeting next month will be held on January 11th.

CROP INSURANCE URGED IN OTTAWA

REGINA, Dec. 13—(CP).—A Federally supported system of crop insurance was urged upon the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations yesterday by the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities.

By "crop insurance," it was explained, the Association meant insurance against "all those calamities that render the labor of our people abortive.

Municipal mail insurance had served a useful purpose and proved economically sound even under the adverse conditions of the past seven years. (A surplus of $4,000,000 was revealed in the hail insurance scheme by Attorney-General T. C. Davis in his evidence Thursday.)

"The time has now come when it may be necessary to go further and to insure the farmers against loss not only by hail but by drought, pest, grasshopper, wire worms, frost and all those other happenings against which the man on the land has to contend," the rural brief said.

Such a scheme would be beyond the capacity of the municipalities and the province to operate without Federal contribution.

Miracle Rescue Saves Girl From Sea

Worn out from her five-hour battle with the sea, Miss Eleanor Offut, of Los Angeles, is pictured stretched out on the life boat seat alongside a blue clad officer from the S.S. Lillian Luckenbach, who commanded the rescue craft. Miss Offut disappeared from the Lillian Luckenbach somewhere north of Cuba. Her cabin-mate, a Canadian, reported her missing. Captain Bowen, in command of the freighter, ordered the ship put about and retraced his course. Recovery of the young woman after a needle-in-the-haystack search is barely short of miraculous. Miss Offut was removed from the ship by private ambulance when it docked at New York, and all details of the incident were shrouded in secrecy.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

an old French jewel set with emeralds and sapphires and opals. She told me afterward that this pendant was the last thing her grandfather had given her. It was now her only ornament. Her burnished hair was dressed high on her head, and this, too, gave her a grown-up air.

From the moment of her entrance she was the center of things. I did not see her speak to Andy Fuller, but he stood beside her with an air of ownership which I resented furiously.

I was, as it were, on the fringes of the crowd, but at last Mimi saw me and nodded. I did not join her. In her princess-like presence I was gripped by self-consciousness. I felt that I must not presume on her friendliness of the afternoon. I wished desperately that someone would come and talk to me, so that Mimi would not see me standing there alone.

It was Olga who took me finally under her wing. She approached me in her slow way, waving a great feather fan. She was very gorgeous in spangled silver and, I must admit, very beautiful.

"You won't mind," she said, "if I put you next to me at dinner? The last arrival always gets the seat of honor. But I know you men would rather be between two pretty girls."

"I wouldn't," I said honestly.

I think she liked that, and we laughed together.

"You don't know any of them very well, do you?" she asked.

"No one but Lionel."

"Well, it is always hard to get started in a crowd like this. I still feel that I am not acquainted. They have all been coming every year, but this is my first summer. And I invited this particular crowd because of Lionel and Mimi. I wanted them to have a good time. I might have asked some of my own friends, but they wouldn't— fit in." She hesitated. "My friends are different."

I knew what she meant. Her beauty would carry her far with men. It had carried her on to marriage with a distinguished gentleman. But it would not carry her far socially with women. Her money would be more potent there. I think that her real reason for inviting the young crowd was that she could get on with them better than with their elders, and she felt that friendship with them might be an entering wedge.

Bernice was on the other side of me at dinner. Mimi was across the table, with Andy Fuller next to her. As the meal progressed I saw them talking earnestly.

Bernice saw them, too. "He is apologizing to Mimi," she said, "he is always doing it."

"And—does she forgive him?"

Bernice shrugged her slender shoulders. It was a gesture I had noted among the girls of the crowd. It was, indeed, a subtle reminder of their French ancestry— that, and the darkness of their eyes.

But Mimi's beauty was quite gloriously Irish, by way of. I found, her maternal great-grandmother. Her cheeks at that moment were flaming, and under the lights her hair flamed.

"Do you wonder that Andy is crazy about her?" Bernice was saying in my ear.

I did not wonder that anybody was crazy about her. I wished that Bernice would not talk to me. I wanted just to sit and feast my eyes on Mimi.

Then Lionel's voice broke in. "They are asking me to read our play, Jerry. And I read like a fish; so I've told them you'll do it."

It seemed to me that a perfect battery of eyes were turned on me, but I managed to say, "We can't read the whole of it; it isn't finished."

"I know, but we've got the outline, and the big third act is all written. We can try it on these helpless infants when we come home from the Bradleys'. If they don't like it, they can go to bed."

EXPECT TURKEY PRICES LOWER

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—A composite picture of the turkey which will be sold over the counter in Toronto in another ten days or so is a well-dressed bird, weighing about what a good, plump turkey should weigh, and selling from 30 cents a pound upward.

Toronto poultry dealers say it is a little early yet to tell what the market for turkeys will be this Christmas, but they believe there will be a plentiful supply, with the price slightly lower than last year. The fact that Thanksgiving came earlier this year than usual resulted in Canadian turkeys not being ready for killing, and this means that many birds which otherwise would have come on the market at Thanksgiving will now join the Christmas supply.

"There is not much interest being displayed this year in poultry," said one dealer. "Of course, it is a little early in the season yet. Most stores don't want their supply until a few days before Christmas."

A survey of a number of poultry dealers seemed to indicate that just as many turkeys would get it in the neck this year as last season. Shipments from Western Canada will determine the wholesale price, which stands at between 24 cents and 28 cents a pound. There will be a heavy demand for fowl, which sells for considerably less than turkey.

If the storm conditions of the past few days continue, farmers may have difficulty getting their poultry to market, it was pointed out. Many rural roads are impassable, and in Western Canada the question of transportation is quite a problem. Which all means that the ill-fated birds may have a few more days of life before yielding to the Christmas spirit.

Crankiest Bachelor In Peterborough Getting Married

No need to mention his name. You know him—he was a regular "crank"—a nuisance to himself and to everybody else. Well, you should see him now! He's as genial as any man in town. Clear eyed, vigorous, vital—a picture of health and energy.

Excess toxic acids in his system was the cause of his trouble. Rheumatism, lumbago and other uric acid complaints plagued his life. Wastes that should have been eliminated remained in his body, poisoning his system, sapping his energy. No wonder he was cranky and irritable. He just couldn't help feeling sour and sore.

But Fynnon Salt remedied his trouble. It moved the impurities out of his system, rinsed away pain-causing uric acids, gave him that "spring morning" fitness every day. Fynnon Salt, with its scientific combination of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium — Nature's healing minerals found at famous English spas—stimulated his liver, kidneys and bowels, regulated his digestion, put him right and keeps him right. If YOU feel achey and miserable, if rheumatic pains and kindred ailments rob you of the joy of living, take Fynnon Salt every morning and see how quickly this home "spa" treatment will improve your health, how much brisker and better you'll feel. Your druggist sells Fynnon Salt—75c a large package. If you have any difficulty getting supplies, write: Laurentian Agencies, St. Gabriel Street, Montreal. 19

During the pleasant social hour at the close, Mrs. Stinson, assisted by Mrs. J. H. McKnight and Mrs. Sisco, served dainty refreshments, the vote of thanks to the hostess being moved by Mrs. J. McKnight, seconded by Mrs. F. P. Johnson, and endorsed by a hearty handclap.

Fifteen Are Forced Into Zero Weather Bancroft Hotel Fire

Trainman Overcome by Smoke is Carried Out; Guests Lose Everything in $10,000 Landmark Fire

BANCROFT, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP)—Fifteen persons, guests and employes of the Queen's Hotel here, were saved from a fire which destroyed the hotel early today.

Practically all were forced to the snow-covered street in night attire. The thermometer registered 13 below zero at the time.

One man, believed to be a trainman, was overcome by smoke and was carried out. The others were able to make their way down the stairs or down rope fire escapes from their rooms. Loss was estimated at $10,000.

Bancroft is about 65 miles north of Belleville.

None of the guests, mostly travellers, was injured although they lost all their belongings, clothing, sample books and money.

The Queen's, of frame construction, was one of the old established hotels of the county and was popular as a tourist centre during the summer months. It had been conducted within recent years by Mrs. H. Lebarge, since the death of her husband several years ago.

The flames, starting in the furnace room, spread quickly and it was with difficulty that some of the occupants were removed when the alarm was sounded.

A house owned by W. J. George was badly scorched, the voluntary brigade confining the blaze to the one building.

FIND HARD LABOR SCARCE IN JAILS

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—(CP).— C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, said to-day all prisoners sentenced to Ontario jails are sentenced to hard labor—but hard labor isn't what it used to be and sometimes the jailers can't find enough work to keep their prisoners busy.

"The stone pile has gone," he said. "There was the day when prisoners were kept busy moving a pile of stone form one part of the jail yard to another and then moving it back again. As far as I know there is not even a rock-crushing pile left.

"When a magistrate sentences a man to hard labor he means reasonably hard labor if there is such available. How hard the labor will be depends on the number of prisoners. If a jail is overcrowded, there just isn't enough labor. You may be sure no useless work is done."

"Jailers use their own judgment as to what hard labor means, he said. "They take into account the physician's report on a man's physical condition. We received few complaints about tasks assigned prisoners."

Mr. Neelands said there was no objection to prisoners being compelled to do labor apart from the jail, actually connected with the jail. In the Kingston jail, for instance, all concrete tile for county roads and drains were made by prisoners.

Weather Eases Off Over Ontario

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP).—Moderating weather today brought relief to Ontario after a week of storm and cold. Except in the London district, where temperatures hovered at six degrees below zero, sub-zero temperatures prevalent in most parts of the province yesterday were relieved.

Communities that became snowbound in blizzards and gales had reopened communications with other centres and traffic conditions near normal.

An ice blockade left two ships stranded near the mouth of the Detroit River. The ice-breaking tug Progresso reached the freighter Fellowcraft. Another freighter, the James Watt, was stranded farther out in Lake Erie.

RADIO OWNERS FINED

SARNIA.—Eighteen radio owners of the city and district today were fined $1 and 75 cents costs each after they had pleaded guilty to operating sets without licenses for the current year.

CLAIM RAILROADER CAUGHT AT SECRET TRUCK PROBE FYLE

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP)—Lewis Duncan, Automotive Transport Association of Ontario counsel, raised a storm at the Chevrier Royal Transport Commission hearing today when he charged a railway employee was obtaining confidential information from records filed with the commission by a trucking operator.

Fred Burford, Burford Transport, Picton, filed his complete business records with the commission with the understanding counsel should be permitted to look at them, Duncan said.

"I came in early this morning and found one of the railway express company employees, C. H. Green, taking notes from Burford's invoices," said Duncan. "From what I saw I had difficulty in using moderate language.

'Confidential information is being given the commission and this confidence should not be abused. It is a shocking matter that after the care your lordship took in indicating only counsel should have access

Briefs On Ship Bombing

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP Cable). The House of Commons was tensely eager again to-day to hear the latest of the grave situation on the Yangtze. But Foreign Secretary Eden, although promising a fuller statement tomorrow, was unable to add anything material.

"His Majestys Government, Mr. Eden said, replying to Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, "have under urgent consideration the situation created by the attacks by Japanese forces on British ships on the Yangtze.

"I regret I am not in a position to make a further statement today, but if the Right Honorable Gentleman will repeat the question to-morrow I expect to be able to give him a full reply."

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14—(AP).—Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet, said to-night that "vessels of the United States now in China waters will remain there for protection of United States nationals as long as such necessity exists."

12-Foot Drifts in Scotland Tie Up Trams, Cars, Ships Pile on Shore—4 Die in R.A.F. Plane Crash

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Winter weather disrupted communications and transportation in the British Isles today, and caused at least nine deaths.

Huge snow drifts, some 12 feet deep, blanketed Scotland and Northern England. Fog blurred some sections while ice and even floodwater hampered facilities in other parts.

Two persons died of exposure, two track workers were killed, four persons were killed in a Royal Air Force plane crash and a sailor was washed overboard in the Irish Sea.

London trains were behind schedule and trains in Scotland were delayed as much as eight hours. Hundreds of automobiles and buses were stranded. Many roads were impassable.

Large herds of deer, driven by Scottish blizzards to low-lying Sutherlandshire, ravaged small crops.

Tempestuous seas drove small craft to shelter and grounding some ships on the Scottish coast. Part of Bournemouth was flooded.

The four Royal Air Force men killed in a crash in Sussex were Flying Officer Andrew Aitken, Serweant Duncan Ross, Corporal John Bennett, and Leading Aircraftsman William Sillince.

Last Minute News Flashes

SHANGHAI (Wednesday) — The known death toll from the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay and three other American ships increased to four today when the badly burned body of an unidentified seaman was found. Three of the dead were Americans and one an Italian newspaperman, who had taken refuge on the Panay.

COLLINGWOOD—Harold Hough, last night discharged as Chief of Police in this Georgian Bay town, today was arrested by his successor, Police Chief Lorne Davidson. He was charged with conversion of funds. Provincial Constable J. A. Rowe accompanied the new chief to make the arrest.

U.K. PRESS URGES SOLID ANGLO-U.S. FRONT WITH JAPS

LONDON, Dec. 14 (A.P.). — Indications grew to-day that the British Government would look to President Roosevelt for leadership in the next move if protests to Japan against the bombardment of United States and British gunboats on the Yangtze River fail to gain full satisfaction.

The view was expressed that the United States was "the more aggrieved party" because of the sinking of the Panay, whereas the British gunboats Ladybird and Bee weathered attacks.

London newspapers gave prominence to the Roosevelt message to Emperor Hirohito, but carried little on Britain's own conferences in Downing Street. Editorials urged a solid Anglo-American front to deal with the matter.

It was understood Japanese Ambassador Shigeru Yoshida would call on Foreign Secretary Eden today to express regret for the shelling of the Ladybird and Bee on Sunday, the day Japanese navy fliers bombed the Panay.

A Japanese military attache went to the War Office yesterday on a similar mission.

Plans Shaping Up.

Government leaders were believed to have under review steps which might be taken if Japan does not comply with requests for apologies, indemnities and guarantees.

Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, said he intended to ask whether Mr. Chamberlain is satisfied that British forces at Hong Kong, the Crown colony on the South China coast, are sufficient for defence of Hong Kong in view of the situation.

Commander Fletcher said also he would ask if the Prime Minister would consider the desirability of

FIND LAD 14, DEAD ON WAY TO SKATE NEAR OWEN SOUND

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP). —James, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Godfrey, Irish Block, Sydenham Township, was found dead last night by a younger brother, Teddy, near the farm home. In response to a telephone call from neighboring boys, James picked up his skates after supper and started for the creek running nearby. His brother Teddy later decided to join the party and followed the same path to the stream. He came across his brother lying face down in the snow. He could not rouse him, and hurried back to the house to get his father, who found James was dead. He did not get as far as the creek. Dr. A. B. Rutherford, chief coroner, Owen Sound, was notified. A post-mortem was made in order to determine the cause of death, but the report has not yet been received, and it was not known whether there would be an inquest.

The boy was in apparent good health when he left the house, although against the wishes of his mother, who thought he should not go out after his tramp through the snow to school and back.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers and four sisters.

Apologies, Regrets Are Offered With Indemnity

Promise No Recurrence, Safeguards for Others After Roosevelt's Note Is Sent to Emperor

TOKYO, Dec. 14—(AP)—Japan today delivered a formal note which met, in priciple, major points of President Roosevelt's demands for satisfaction for the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay. Similar apology was sent Britain.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota sent to United States ambassador Joseph C. Grew the note which:

1. Expressed apologies and regrets;

2. Promised indemnification;

3. Stated measures to prevent a recurrence of the incident already had been taken.

Grew received from Washington a statement to present to the Japanese government. Its contents were not disclosed but it was said to be in line with President Roosevelt's memorandum.

Roosevelt Emphatic.

The statement from Washington and the Foreign Office note virtually coincided.

President Roosevelt's memorandum had asked the Japanese Government consider for presentation to the government of the United States full expressions of regret and proffer of full compensation and methods guaranteeing against a repetition of any similar attack.

Another Japanese government statement was issued in connection with the fall of Nanking.

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye issued the document which declared, "Birth of a new China will serve to safeguard foreign interests in the Far East."

It summarized Japan's contention that she had pursued a policy of "non-aggravation" and said the Nanking government had been reduced to a mere local government.

Earlier the Premier and the Cabinet Council had heard Hirota's report on the Panay incident and the report of War Minister General Sugiyama on the capture of Nanking.

A Rare Note.

The President transmitted to the Emperor of Japan an expression of "shock and concern." Only in rare instances does the head of a state address a message personally to another ruler in diplomatic incidents between nations.

Informed observers said only a desire to impress the entire Japanese nation as forcibly as possible with the gravity of the situation could have prompted President Roosevelt to adopt such unusual procedure.

Officials did not attempt to disguise their belief that the incident presented the most serious strain on Japanese - American relations since the outbreak of hostilities between China and Japan.

BELIEVE CANADIAN ONE OF BLUEBEARD MURDER VICTIMS

PARIS, Dec. 14 (CP-Havas). — The newspaper L'Intransigeant reported today that the French authorities are investigating clues indicating Thomas Brown, a native of Montreal, was among the victime of Eugene Weidmann, German 'bluebeard,' deported from Canada.

French authorities plan to send inspectors to Canada to investigate possible overseas clues to the fate of Brown, the newspaper said.

According to the newspaper, Brown was born at Montreal in 1908. The authorities allegedly found papers belonging to Brown in a box in which the ex-convict, deported from Canada in 1930, kept various papers and objects taken from his victims.

Find Sixth Victim.

The body of Mme. Jeanne Keller, 30-year-old Alsatian woman, described by the police as the sixth victim of Weidmann, was found in the forest of Fontainebleau today.

More than 250 persons milled around the entrance of the cave as police found the body, buried under a thin layer of sand.

Blames Million

Weidmann today charged that Roger Million, one of his arrested accomplices, shot and killed Roger Lebond, whose body was found in an abandoned automobile at Neuilly-Sur-Seine this summer.

Calmly changing an earlier statement that he had been the killer of Lebond, the German "bluebeard" who murdered the American dancer Jean de Koven told police "It wasn't I who killed Lebiond, but Rober Million."

"He even asked me how to kill him," Weidmann said, adding that he had advised Million: "You only have to shoot him behind the ear. That will be enough."

Jap Troops Roll Past Burning Nanking

Nipponese Conquerors Begin Shaping New Government For China At Peiping

SHAIGHAI, Dec. 14. — (AP).— Great fires blazed in fallen Nanking to-night as Japanese troops relentlessly pursuing their enemy deep into China, rolled on past the conquered capital, where Japan's rising sun flag flutters at each corner of the city's massive walls.

Japanese fliers reported flames raging through what had only a few weeks ago been the proud seat of Premier Chiang Kai-Shek's government.

Fragmentary reports, filtering in over disrupted communications, indicated actual fighting had ended within the walls of Nanking and the Japanese troops, without slacking their offensive campaign, were carrying their operations farther afield.

While clouds of smoke shrouded the fallen city, a new provisional government for China — under the aegis of conquering Nippon — was formed at Peiping.

The guiding principles of the new regime, reported Domei (Japanese News Agency) were vigorous opposition to the harassed government of General Chiang Kai-Shek, suppression of Communism and cooperation with Japan and Manchoukuo.

Foreigners Unreported.

The communique on the occupation of Nanking gave no word of the

NIPPONESE LEND AID IN RESCUING RAID SURVIVORS

Send Planes, Warships To Bring Out Injured

By Lloyd Lehbras
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14—(AP)—Fifty-two survivors of the bombed United States gunboat Panay today made their way from an inland refuge back toward the Yangtze River, carrying their two dead and eight seriously wounded.

Awaiting their arrival from Hanshan, some 20 miles inland, the United States gunboat Oahu, the British gunboat Bee, three Japanese warships and a Japanese airplane stood by at Hohsien to aid the injured.

The two known dead in the Japanese bombardment Sunday of the Panay and three other United States vessels were Charles L. Ensminger of Ocean Beach, Calif., Panay storekeeper, and Sandro Sandri, Italian newspaperman who had sought refuge on board the vessel.

Available information of the attack which endangered 79 foreigners, was that two were dead, eight seriously wounded, two slightly wounded, 11 foreigners and 81 Chinese missing, and probably a total of 96 saved.

The Panay party had fled to Hanshan to avoid Chinese-Japanese fighting on the river banks.

One of Duce's Writers

Sandri had represented the Tour-in newspaper La Stampa. Before coming to China he had covered wars in Spain and Ethiopia for Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia of Milan.

There was no word of the 68 missing Chinese members of the crews of the Meian, Meinsia, and Meiping, Standard Oil Company boats destroyed in the bombing attacks for which the Japanese navy has accepted full responsibility. It was believed, however, that most of them had been saved.

Names of the eight foreigners seriously wounded were not known here. Available information listed names of 22 survivors, including Lieutenant-Commander James Joseph Hughes, Lieutenant Arthur F. Anders, and Jim Marshall, Collier's Magazine writer, all of whom were wounded.

F. Hayden Vines of Roanoke, Va., arrived at Wuhu with a slight injury.

Captain C. H. Carlson of the Meian was unaccounted for.

Colonial 'Tortures' For Drunk Drivers

Under the proposed measure, two to ten lashes might be imposed, while penalties ranging up to four hours a day for three days would be imposed in the ducking stool and stocks.

Lands Contract For British Army—Tiny 50 M.P.H. Job To Be Built 2 a Day

WESTFIELD, N.J., Dec. 14 (AP).—J. Walter Christie, 70-year-old inventor, ran his hand lovingly along the steel top of an army tank today and said:

"Here she is — the fastest land weapon anyone has ever seen. It's taken me five years and all my money to build her. I hope her only use is for peace."

Christie had brought the tank out to the Westfield Airport, the most open bit of country available, for a demonstration and official tests by the American Automobile Association, to prove his claim it could travel 50 miles an hour over a field.

"She'd be awfully hard to stop," said the tall, thin man, "Look at her, only four feet high. It would be hard for field artillery to hit her at 200 yards if she were standing still—and with her speed and power, well — figure it out."

The tank he demonstrated weighs about six tons. Its steel is 11-16-inch thick. It is powered with a 430-horsepower aviation motor. It can carry three or four men an da quick-firing field piece operating from the safety of its turret.

Montreal Court Finds Iroquois Tongue Useless On Rice Lake Ojibway

Montreal, Dec. 14 (CP)

THE language of the Iroquois was heard in arraignment court yesterday as Joseph Jocks, police chief of Caughnawaga Indian reservation, sought to interpret a charge of theft to Marie Oquish.

But the Indian woman from the Rice Lake district in Ontario showed no sign of comprehension as Chief Jocks attempted to explain a charge of stealing $50 worth of linen and hot water bottles while a patient at the reserve hospital.

"It's no use," Jocks told the court, "she's an Ojibway, and I'll have to get another interpreter."

After a plea of not guilty was entered, Chief Jocks promised to bring his friend, Chief Ben Big Canoe, who speaks the Ojibway language, to the trial, fixed for December 17.

Scream As Invader Slugs Girl Costs Widow Her Life

Robber Calmly Shoots Victim As She Objects To His Assaulting Beauty Shop Operator

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14 (AP).—A youth who shot an attractive young widow and attempted to assault her comely companion was described by police today as one of the calmest killers they had ever known.

Mrs. Wilma V. Carpenter, 38, was found dead last night in the bedroom of her fashionable Camp Hill home after Miss Mary Griffin, 22, a beauty shop operator, broke free from the bonds the intruder used to tie her.

The man, Miss Griffin related, confronted them with a pistol as they entered the Carpenter home. After taking all their money—about $3—she said he drove them before him upstairs.

"He got a length of rope from the kitchen and ordered Mrs. Carpenter to tie my hands," Miss Griffin added.

Mrs. Carpenter, whose husband died several years ago, was killed when she screamed wildly as the man, about 20, slugged Miss Griffin with the butt of his gun.

The youth then continued his efforts to attack the younger woman but she struggled fiercely and he finally left her alone.

IT'S the women who do the cussing these days. That is the considered verdict of a blind musician, fam'liar in Toronto's main business section.

Men were particular about who hears them swear, he said. Women just don't give a darn who hears them.

King Spends Quiet 42nd Birthday

LONDON, Dec. 14 (CP-Havas)—The King celebrated his 42nd birthday at Buckingham Palace today.

Salvos of cannon from Hyde Park, the Tower of London and Windsor Castle marked the event, which will be officially observed on June 9 of next year with publication of the honors list.

His Majesty spent the morning in his rooms at the palace, signing a number of official documents and receiving birthday gifts from Queen Elizabeth, Princess Elizabeth and Margaret, and other members of the royal family.

PREMIERS MEET, TWO PROVINCES TIGHTEN BONDS

Duplessis Said Ready Aid Hepburn on Power

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (CP)—The heads of government in Ontario and Quebec were in "complete agreement" today on the main points covered in a full day of conference on problems of the two provinces.

A course of closer co-operation between the neighbor governments was charted as the outcome of yesterday's parley, and a common outlook on economic and constitutional affairs was indicated as one possibility for which Premiers Mitchell Hepburn and Premier Maurice Duplessis laid the groundwork in their talks.

"We are in complete agreement on all the main points," the Ontario premier said, adding "one or two details" still were to be attended to. The conference, he asserted, was "just an economic discussion."

What agreements were reached, it was understood, were tentative. Cabinets of both governments were to be consulted before a second conference of the premiers. This meeting would take place "probably in Toronto next week."

Subjects canvassed in the discussions covered a wide ground. They ranged from possibility of a joint Ontario-Quebec submission to the royal commission on Dominion-provincial relations to the question of getting federal permission for Ontario to export surplus power under a contemplated renewed contract with Quebec power companies.

A Silent Issue

On the power export question, both premiers maintained silence. But it was stated authoritatively the Quebec premier had expressed will-to Burford's records that a railway employee should look at them."

Admits Seeing Notes

F. C. S. Evans, associate counsel for the railways, said: "I did look at some of the records. I do not know a single customer on those records. I told Green to get down some rates. I think Mr. Duncan is unduly concerned about the matter."

Green said he took down only a few rates and did not know any of Burford's customers. Earlier the commission had ruled that names of customers would not be made public. Green's notes were shown to the commission and Mr. Justice Chevrier said no customers' names were in them.

"Our companies won't feel their confidential information is being kept in confidence if railroad experts prowl around it," Duncan said. The commission chairman said the rule only counsel should have access to the information must be interpreted reasonably.

"Counsel must have assistants and I see nothing reprehensible in what has been done," said the chairman. "Mr. Duncan's solicitude for his clients was quite correct and I have no fault to find with the stand he took."

Judge Protests Long Hours.

Later Mr. Justice Chevrier voiced protest against long hours worked by truck drivers.

The Commission chairman said: "There must be an end to this burning of human energy. I dont think it is a good thing to have men on our highways so long hours." That is what I am concerned about."

Mr. Burford had testified some of his drivers on the Picton-Ottawa run worked 96 hours a week for several consecutive weeks during the fruit season but did it voluntarily because they were paid by the round trip.

"If some people cannot protect themselves, laws may be necessary to do so," Mr. Justice Chevrier said.

Under cross-examination, Burford said there was considerable "starved" equipment on the highways and advocated that the standard for equipment be raised by all operators.

Counsel's questions disclosed that Burford went to Picton in 1903 as a farm hand and established himself in the motor transport business later. He now owns seven trucks and a Picton warehouse storing 150 tons of canned goods. Some of his drivers have been with him for 12 years and are "quite satisfied with wages and conditions."

Burford said that last year he called his drivers into a conference about wages. Three asked to be paid by the week, two at $20 a week and the other at $18. Their request was granted. Others asked for the trip-basis wage and this request was also granted. "I have never had a complaint from a driver," witness said.

ROME, Dec. 14—(AP).—Italian press reports to-day on the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay, in which one Italian was killed and two reported wounded, treated the incident as an "accident."

The Italian killed was Sandro Sandri, newspaperman, who had sought refuge aboard the Panay. Sandri's own newspaper, La Stampa of Turin, in a Shanghai dispatch, blamed the bombing on darkness."

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—It was learned from diplomatic sources today that Germany has protested to the Japanese Charge d'Affaires against bombing of the British steamship Wangpu, on the grounds temporary offices of the German Embassy had been established on the ship.

A German message from Hankow said the Wangpu was first attacked last Saturday while anchored off Hsiakuan. There were no casualties but the steamship left its anchorage and proceeded up-river, shelled by Japanese artillery.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—The State Department announced today the United States Government had sent a formal note to Japan protesting against the bombing of the gunboat Panay and demanding adequate reparation.

The demands were the same as set forth yesterday by President Roosevelt in an oral message directed to Emperor Hirohito.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (CP Cable).—Consultation continues between the British and United States governments over the Far East.

In conversations in Washington and London the situation has been examined and the next move discussed. But official denial is given reports of the likelihood of a joint Anglo-American naval demonstration against Japan or that any decision has been reached to recall the British Ambassador at Tokyo, Sir Robert Craigie.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (CP).—Eric Mayell, Fox Movietone News photographer, who may have been aboard the United States gunboat Panay when it was sunk near Nanking Sunday by Japanese bombs, was unaccounted for in despatches from China today.

Havas News Agency, which understood Mayell was a Canadian by birth, reported he with two other newsreel cameramen, were picked up by the Panay.

However, the Associated Press received a report from Shanghai that Mayell remained in Nanking to take final pictures of the Japanese arrival.

DOMINION RUSHES BIGGER DEFENCES ON PACIFIC COAST

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (C.P.). — Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie said at a Canadian Military Institute banquet in his honor here the Canadian Government was concentrating defence expenditures on the Pacific Coast "for strategical reasons which you will all appreciate."

Speaking last night, the minister said the Government's schemes for fortification of the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts have been revised completely. He said it is hoped funds may be available to enlarge the program on the Pacific Coast next year.

Difficulties were encountered in carrying out the defence and armament program and in obtaining military equipment, Mr. Mackenzie admitted.

"In this regard we do not stand alone as Great Britain and all the Dominions have the same problem to face. Great Britain is busy with her own rearmament program. Some of our equipment must be bought from the Motherland, and deliveries are necessarily slow."

Air Force Advances Slowly

He said development of an adequate air force was slow because the Canadian aircraft industry was not well enough equipped to permit rapid headway.

The outlook, however, was encouraging and will be greatly improved within the next year and a half, he said. A survey of the Pacific Coast has been completed and suitable operating bases for peace and wartime requirements have been located.

The defence program will be carried out as funds can be provided, the minister said. "All which we have in mind cannot be carried out in one year or two or even three. It is no policy of aggression, but is one for our national security and for the protection of our neutrality."

Mr. Mackenzie said the peace of the world is precarious and it will take the united efforts of all peace-seeking Powers to avert a major war. Great Britain should be supported in her struggles in this regard.

Gas masks are being manufactured in Canada and the Government is negotiating for anti-aircraft guns with auxiliary equipment and an adequate supply of Bren guns.

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP-Havas)—The Admiralty announced to-day that for the year ending March 31, 1937, there were 11,508 naval recuits as against 8,159 for the period ending March 31, 1936.

December 15 Is Tax Paying Day In Many Rural Municipalities

Village And Township Councils Hold Final Meeting Also On That Date

Mid-December is the virtual end of the fiscal year of the minor municipalities. Taxes are due on Wednesday, December 15, and after that date penalties are applied on amounts that are in arrears.

Village and township councils hold their last statutory meeting of the year on same day, fixing up the last details for the approaching nominations and elections, and otherwise setting the municipal house in order for their successors, who may be themselves.

Otonabee township council will probably hold their final meeting to-day, but as elsewhere up and down the province ratepayers have their last chance to settle accounts with the tax collectors on Wednesday.

Returned April 1

And rural tax rolls are supposed to be returned on the following first day of April. That means the rolls which have compiled the taxes due for 1937 are returnable on April 1 next year, but resolutions can always be passed extending the time in which the collector should hand back the books to the municipal clerk.

All over Ontario tomorrow farmers will be drawing on their bank accounts, those who have the money salted for such emergencies, or counting their cash on hand, or gathering funds elsewhere to escape the tax penalties.

Conditions Improved

Others who are hampered by necessity will have to let the taxes go unpaid indefinitely, but with conditions measurably improving for most of the people in the townships and villages the number of tax delinquents is expected to be smaller when the cash on hand in municipal treasuries is counted Wednesday evening.

FENELLA INSTITUTE PLANS CARD PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FENELLA, Dec. 14. — Mrs. Carl McNaught was hostess to the Women's Institute, which was held in the community hall on Thursday, December 9, with a large number of members and visitors present. A letter of thanks was read from the Crippled Children's Hospital for the donation.

Arrangements were made for a card party to be held in the aid of the Hydro to be installed in the hall, the date to be announced later. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. C. Leach with Mrs. G. Harvey and Mrs. C. McNaught as program leaders.

Mrs. C. Brisbin and Mrs. E. Sandercock, the delegates to the cooking classes held in Cobourg, gave a very interesting demonstration on preparing salads.

Mrs. W. H. Sandercock then took over the program. Roll call, "How to be neighborly"; reading, "Help Our Neighbors," by Mrs. W. H. Sandercock; reading, "Christmas Pudding," by Mrs. W. Rogers; pianoforte solo, by Miss Viva George; reading, "Castles in the Air," by Mrs. R. Smith; reading, "A Good Rule," by Mrs. John Cowling. Then came the exchange of Christmas gifts. Miss Viva George as Santa Claus distributed them. Mrs. Hugh Sherwin moved a vote of thanks to the hostess. The meeting closed with singing "God Save the King." A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Grant had a family party on her "100th" birthday. Civic representatives congratulated her for reaching the century mark.

But the royal telegram, which felicitated her for attaining 101, caused a check of birth records. They showed Buckingham Palace was right.

BELIEVE CANADIAN ONE OF BLUEBEARD MURDER VICTIMS

At the same time the 29-year-old German admitted killing an Alsatian woman, Mme. Jeanne Keller. He implicated Million and Million's mistress, Mlle. Renee Tricot, in this crime, committed in the forest of Fontainebleau Oct. 2.

Leaving her husband to answer Million's advertisement for a governess' position, Mme. Keller came to Paris on Oct. 2. They met her the next morning, Weidmann said, and engaged a cab.

Prefers To Kill Her

"We started out in the direction of Vichy but stopped on the Fontainebleau road not far from Barbizon to decide whether we should only rob Mme. Keller or kill her," he said.

He himself voted the "death sentence," Weidmann said, and they invited the woman to take a stroll in the woods. A shot behind the ear was enough, he complacently confessed.

Stripping the body of a 1,300-franc money order (about $40), a gold ring and about 100 francs in change, they burned her in a shallow grave.

PEACE, GOOD HEALTH

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—"May 1938 bring peace, happiness and good health to us all," is the greeting of Prime Minister Chamberlain on the official Christmas card of the Conservative party. A new portrait of Mr. Chamberlain appears on the card alongside a reproduction of his message and autograph. Facing these is a picture of the Houses of Parliament.

Portugal's shortage of fish is forcing some canneries to close.

Toy-Making Becomes 'Serious' As Kiddies Change Ideas

Rattles No Longer Break, Blocks Won't Fall, Dolls Go "High-Brow"

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (CP).—The ghost of Christmas past sighed his way through New York's various toy-lands today and yearned for the time when toy-makers filled fun with "foolishment."

Even building blocks have become serious but toy-makers blame the kids. Said James Fri, managing director of the Toy Manufacturers' Association: "They want toys which imitate grown-up activity."

So building blocks for 1938 construction won't come tumbling down when they reach skyscraper proportions. They are made with grooves so as to stay in place.

Once rattles were things to make a noise; to be taken apart and investigated. Not so the 1938 rattle. It does not come apart. Neither does it break.

Dolls are just as serious. Miss 1938 has many as 15 pairs of shoes and airplane luggage. Some 'high-brow' infant dollies have 100 pieces in their layettes.

Other new toys include electric trains geared to run 10 miles an hour; dial telephones that get the television effect by use of mirrors; a road construction set that includes everything from a hydraulic excavator to "men working" signs; and a four-octave pipe oran, complete with stops, pipes and pedals.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Renewed export buying of Canadian wheat, firmness at Chicago and scarcity of offerings in the December position featured trading on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. December rallied almost five cents on a late buying flurry with futures final quotations 4⅞ to 5 cents higher, December $1.15¼, May $1.16⅞ to $1.17 and July $1.11⅞.

Wheat moved ahead steadily in late trading after an irregular opening. Continental buyers turned to Canadian wheat with sales for the day estimated at 300,000 bushels.

Scattered export sales, favorable intermarket spreading and higher Liverpool prices accounted for an advance of more than two cents in the December future. Volume of trade, however, was small and selling at no time threatened to send prices as much as a cent below yesterday's close.

HASTINGS, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Margaret Venters entertained eighteen members of the Trinity United Mission Circle on Tuesday evening, Dec. 7th, for their regular annual meeting for the election of officers. The meeting opened by Mrs. F. W. Newell followed by the treasurer's report by Miss Margery Scriver, which showed the Mission Circle in a good financial standing and that all their allocations had been met. The worship period was in the form of a questionnaire conducted by Miss Jessie Lamb and answered by Misses Helen Turner, Jean Sherwin, Pauline and Verna Scriver and Mrs. A. Thompson.

Arrangements were made to hold a Christmas tree and treat in the basement of the church on Dec. 20th for the children of the Sunday School.

Mrs. Newell presided over the election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Margaret Venters; vice-president, Miss Jessie Lamb; secretary, Miss Helen Collins; treasurer, Miss Margery Scriver; pianist, Mrs. H. Edwards. lunch was served at the close.

Ten individual tables were nicely arranged and served by Mrs. C. Hoard, Mrs. M. Venters, Mrs. F. Crate, and Misses M. Metcalfe, Pauline Scriver and Verna Scriver. Mrs. H. Edwards took charge of the receipts of the door.

On Thursday evening seventy lantern slides of a survey of the work of the Bible Society throughout the world, were shown in the basement of St. Andrew's Church. Representatives from all the churches were present and explanatory notes accompanied the slides, the lantern being operated by E. Radford, Jr., of St. George's Church. Due to the illness of Rev. William Stocks he was unable to give a lecture on the work. Representatives from the various churches will collect in the village and district in aid of this society.

PLANE HITS TREES PORT HOPE FIELD

PORT HOPE, Dec. 14. — Forced down by engine trouble 24 hours after a previous forced landing, a seven-passenger R.C.A.F. airplane from Trenton crashed into several small trees in a field seven miles north of here at noon on Saturday and was damaged considerably.

Flying Officer D. A. Bradshaw of London, Ont., alone in the ship at the time, was bruised and shaken up, but not seriously injured.

The day before, at 11.30 a.m., the plane had made an emergency landing for the same reason on the farm of Frank O'Hara, two miles further north. Repairs were made to the engine, and, after leaving the five passengers, all members of the R.C.A.F., to return to Trenton by motor, Flying Officer Bradshaw took off.

He had been in the air only two or three minutes when his engine conked again, and he was obliged to land in a hurry. After the crash, Bradshaw stayed with his plane until a truck came from Trenton, on which it was shipped home.

Gives Eye To Save Friend's Sight

An eye was the most unusual of gifts given 18-year-old Frank Chabina, of New Orleans, by his aged friend, 68-year-old John Amos, a carpenter. The old man donated his left eye so that his young friend would not lose his sight after lime dust burn. They are shown here in New Orleans Charity hospital just before the delicate operation in which Amos' left eye was removed and part of the cornea grafted to that of young Chabina's eye. Now they are eagerly waiting removal of bandages. Theoperating surgeon is confident that the 68-year-old eye will successfully restore the younger man's sight.

TRENT RIVER W.I. EXCHANGES GIFTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 14.—There was an attendance of 29 at the Women's Institute meeting Thursday afternoon held at the home of Mrs. George Brooks. The secretary, Miss Doris Scott, read a letter of thanks from one who had received fruit during her illness, also a letter from Miss Helen Cameron, enclosing a cheque for one dollar for the Institute. Letters and cards of sympathy were ordered to be sent to the recently bereaved. Fruit was ordered for the sick. Hostesses for the lunch committee were appointed for the January meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Thos. J. Brown. Mrs. Roy Longmuir had received a number of tickets from Westwood W.I. to be hold on a draw. A number of Christmas Carols was sung. Miss Doris Scott gave part of an interesting report of the 36th annual Women's Institute convention held at the Royal York, Toronto. The members expressed their appreciation by a hearty hand clap. The balance of this report will be given at the January meeting. The roll call was responded to by an exchange of Christmas gifts. Each member received a pretty and useful gift. The National Anthem closed the meeting after which lunch was served.

URGE TECHNICAL BUILDING CODE

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP)—Efforts to bring scientific formulae and practice into the building industry were underway here today as several committees worked on plans for a technical "code" to be presented as a model for municipal building legislation.

A conference of the national research council and national organization interested in home building heard Saturday from Finance Minister Dunning that unscientific and chaotic conditions in the industry caused waste of millions of dollars annually.

Minimum standards established under the Dominion Housing Act had been successfully employed after early objections from speculative builders and had been accepted throughout the country, the minister said.

Mr. Dunning urged more study was necessary, however, "If we are going to make it possible for families of low and moderate incomes to purchase housing accommodation of good quality at a price within their capacity to pay."

The minister suggested that "amongst technical problems to which study should be given is that of greater economy in the various uses of materials and methods of construction, and the development of a scientific building code which will be available as a model for our municipalities throughout the country."

It was not intended that such a code should be "imposed" on municipalities, he said, but that it should serve as a model for legislation by municipalities with the expectation it would lead to a greater degree of uniformity in building practice than now existed.

LIFFORD LINE

Miss Emma Lathangue and Mrs. John Henderson were joint hostesses at a jolly euchre party at their home on Thursday evening when approximately fifty guests were hospitably entertained. The winning lady was Mrs. A. B. Sisson and the winning gentleman George Tims. These were presented with a butter dish and pack of cards respectively. Consolation novelties were presented to Miss Marguerite Neals and W. A. Neals.

The hostess then served a dainty lunch and all enjoyed a social half-hour. An instructive bird contest was an interesting feature of the evening and the winners in this capacity were Miss Marjorie Page and A. B. Sisson.

Of 890 candidates for positions on the London police force only 78 were accepted following a recent test.

T. Pornomarenko Loses Appeal

TORONTO, December 14—(CP)—Appeal for Tom Pornomarenko against his conviction of murder October 22 was dismissed to-day by the unanimous decision of five justices in the Ontario Court of Appeals.

Pornomarenko was sentenced to death for the killing of Police Sergeant Fred Davidson in a rock quarry near Sudbury last July.

A. J. DeDiana appeared for Pornomarenko and objected to a direction of the trial judge on the grounds he followed a wrong subjection of the Criminal Code.

"He was convicted as the accomplice of another man who actually killed the police sergeant," DeDiana said.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"What would we do without the TELEPHONE?"

Sally Watson turned to her Mother. "Whatever would we do without a telephone?" she asked. She had just finished making arrangements for the evening with the ever-faithful Jack.

Mother smiled as Sally raced upstairs to get ready, realizing how much the telephone had smoothed the day for all the family.

Do your children have to admit to their friends, "We have no telephone"? It's hardly necessary when the cost is so low—actually only a few cents a day!

No Better Life

This seems to be a very opportune time for repeating a very significant statement made by Right Honorable Stanley Baldwin to the following effect.

"Public life, as we all know, is a great trial in many ways. But I believe there is no better life to which a man can devote himself than this life of public service, if he takes into it his ideals and if he is determined to think more of the good of the country than of himself."

Municipal elections are rapidly approaching. A number of the members of public bodies who have served the community well over a number of years are retiring from the arena of municipal affairs and that means there is a call to service to other men to take their places. The first thought of many, who are well qualified because of the qualities they possess and the training and experience they have had, is to fight shy of public office. That of course is not to be wondered at because the man who works for the public is as a general thing working for an ungrateful and often a cruel boss.

Democracy makes a poor employer and the individual who offers himself for public service must exect to find his motives often misjudged and his actions and judgment suspected. He must be ready to accept criticism when in his heart he feels that he should have thanks and as the former British premier has said he must be prepared to find public life a great trial.

It is not, however, without its reward, the reward that comes from the knowledge that one has measured up to the most exacting test placed upon his citizenship and from the realization that he has done what he could to the full extent of his talents and ability to make his home community a better place.

It is in that spirit we hope that citizens who have the qualities necessary to enable them to contribute useful service in the public interest will approach the requests that will undoubtedly be made of some of them to allow their names to go before the electorate.

An Unusual Situation

Peterborough is in for a rather unusual municipal election on New Year's Day inasmuch as in addition to electing five aldermen for two-year terms, the electors will also have to choose three others to complete the terms of three members of the council who were elected for two years last January and who have now resigned. This is a situation that is without a parallel in local municipal history. It is made even more unusual by the fact that, even when the electors have completed their task, the 1938 council will still be one man short because former alderman Max Sloan resigned during the present year to accept a municipal appointment and his place has never been filled. It will be up to next year's council to appoint his successor.

The three other members who have resigned halfway through the term which they were elected are Alderman James Hamilton who will be a candidate for the mayoralty, Ald. Gordon who is asking the electors to re-elect him as an endorsation of his stand on the C.G.E. Nassau power contract and other issues and Ald. Malcolm McIntyre who has decided to drop out of municipal service.

Ald. E. R. Wilson remains therefore as the only member of the present council who is sure to be a member of the 1938 body.

Whether there will be an election for the mayoralty and the Utilities Commission remains of course on the lap of the gods but in any case with this novel situation existing as regards the aldermanic contest and with the controversial issue of daylight saving tossed squarely into the centre of the proceedings, the coming campaign promises to be interesting enough surely to bring out a large proportion of the possible vote.

That Levy On Cheese

There was a resolution passed at the last regular meeting of the year of the Iroquois Cheese Board the other day that was symptomatic, we believe, of the sentiment among those interested in the cheese industry generally. It was to the effect that the Iroquois Cheese Board "together with the residents of the surrounding country" protests against the action of the Ontario Government in making it compulsory to pay five cents per one hundred pounds of cheese to the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association on the ground that they consider it to be of no benefit whatever to the cheese producers of the province.

This levy is one of the legacies that was left by Duncan Marshall, the former Hepburn minister of agriculture, who was defeated in the last election, and The Examiner is informed by a man who has been connected with the dairy industry for many years and has an intimate knowledge of the cheese situation, that the Association has not succeeded in accomplishing very much in return for the money that is collected from the producers. There is an agent in the United Kingdom and a secretary in Ontario and our informant seemed to feel that beyond opening up positions for these two officials the scheme has failed to produce benefits for any one. Evidently that is the opinion of the members of the Iroquois Cheese Board and of others in that district interested in the industry and it may be that Hon. P. M. Dewan, the new minister of agriculture, when he has had time to look into this particular matter, will arrive at the same conclusion. If the industry is receiving no return for the money it is compelled to put into this Association—and evidently many cheese men think it is not—there does not seem much justification for the government requiring them to keep on paying it.

A Notable Increase

The local Ministerial Association has appointed a committee to investigate the increased drinking reported in Ontario and we would imagine that the members delegated to that task would have little difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that there has been in the last year or two a substantial jump in the quantity of liquor consumed, albeit they might find themselves somewhat handicapped when it came to suggesting what to do about this condition.

They do not have to look further than the annual report of the Liquor Control Board to satisfy themselves of the increase for the figures contained therein and dealing with the year ended last March tell their own story. They show that, although one argument advanced in favor of the introduction of the beverage rooms was that they would cut down the consumption of hard liquor, the amount of spirits sold in Ontario jumped from 846,848 gallons the previous year to 1,394,471 gallons and it must be admitted that an increase of 547,623 gallons of hard stuff in one year is a sizable increase. Moreover it was accompanied by a notable upward curve in the sale of beer for 26,191,820 gallons was sold last year as against a total during the previous twelve months of 18,398,857 gallons. Some of this increase in both liquor and beer consumption can of course be attributed to the return of better times and part to the increase in tourist traffic but having given those two factors due weight there still remains a heavy increase to be accounted for.

Possibly the investigators may find that the control end of Ontario's government sale of intoxicants has skidded badly in recent years. Local police court cases have shown that individuals who afterward find themselves facing police court charges for illegal sale apparently do not run into a great deal of trouble in securing what seems to be unreasonably large quantities of supplies from the government filling stations and brewery warehouses. When hundreds of dollars worth of liquor and beer are passed out to such customers, apparently with no questions asked, there is some cause for wondering whether the word "control" that appears in the name of the body governing the sale of intoxicants in Ontario means anything.

Creditable To Both

There is so frequent a tendency in politics to attack everything advanced by the other side simply because of its origin and with no consideration whatever for any merit it might possess that it is refreshing to come across such an incident as happened at Woodstock the other night when Hon. P. M. Dewan, the newly appointed Ontario minister of Agriculture, was addressing the warden's banquet and made the following reference to the man who held a similar position in the last Conservative government:

"One of the most gratifying things which occurred to me was that when the first day's session of the House closed the former minister, Thomas Kennedy, came and shook hands with me, complimented me on having this position and assured me I would have his keenest co-operation—and as most of you know, he has been chosen the critic for agriculture. I was pleased with that, because I think it is the proper spirit, and I do feel I am going to have the co-operation of Mr. Kennedy. I assured him in return I would be glad at all times to have the benefit of his experience. To that we have agreed, and I feel confident that any moves we make in connection with legislation affecting agriculture, the former minister and myself will be pretty well agreed upon it."

It seems to us that something cleaner and more wholesome and more sensible came into the political atmosphere of this province with that little speech of the minister of agriculture. The sporting offer made by Col. T. L. Kennedy was what one might expect of a politician of his calibre and the wholehearted and sincere manner in which it has been accepted by Mr. Dewan was thoroughly in keeping with everything that can be learned of that gentleman. The promise to co-operate and the way in which it has been received reflect the highest credit both upon the present and the former minister of agriculture.

The Tourist Dollar

C. K. Howard, manager of the tourist and convention bureau of the Canadian National Railways, who is to be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association tonight, said something about the tourist business the other day that is worth remembering. It was that the tourist dollar is spread over a larger proportion of the population than any other dollar.

We believe that statement is entirely correct. The money that is spent in Canada by the millions of visitors who come into this country every year—the sum is conservatively placed at $300,000,000 for the tourist season of 1937—goes into a good many cash registers and a great number of pockets. There are first the folk who deal directly with tourists. Namely the hotel and restaurant proprietors, the people who run summer hotels and tourist camps, the merchants, the service station and garage operators, the firms which manufacture boats and engines, the guides, the farmers who sell garden stuff and a lot of others who supply either goods or services to the visitors within our gates. Then back of these are thousands of other Canadians who benefit from the tourist dollar because it represents more orders for Canadian manufactured goods and therefore more work and more jobs for the men and women who work in the factories that turn out the desired articles. In fact that tourist money goes in so many directions and into so many hands that it is difficult to trace all its travels.

Under the circumstances it is gratifying to learn that the volume of tourist traffic increased by 15 per cent this year and even more satisfactory to hear that the figures for 1937, good as they have been, are likely to be surpassed next summer. It may not be long before we will be looking back at the total compiled this year and wondering why we should have got excited over a mere $300,000,000 volume of tourist business.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Blue Bombers, we assume, are just blue today.

It has been discovered that a Wisconsin co-ed has been posing unclad to earn her way through college. That must be what is known as a bare pass.

Hagersville boasts a marksman of 93 who can score 49 points out of a possible 50. He must have been quite a shot before his eyes dimmed a little.

One of the safest predictions we have read in a newspaper in a long time was a heading Saturday which said "Will Elect Stalin Tomorrow."

The charges that are being made that Canadian products are not sufficiently advertised in England are heard too often not to have a considerable element of truth in them.

Somehow we have the idea that the new power policy has not received the approval of Arthur W. Roebuck. That may be one reason why he was not invited to the government caucus.

The Duchess of Windsor has been ranked last of all among the Duchesses of the Empire, and henceforth Burke's Peerage is not likely to be a favorite book in some quarters.

The Globe and Mail intimates that the Liquor Control Board is getting more and more particular about licenses. A beverage room must have a roof on it now.

You cannot break any records now in the way of early Christmas shopping but at least you can shop early this week and help make Christmas a little easier for harassed sales staffs.

The next problem for Mr. Hepburn to solve is how to persuade the Federal Government to allow export of large chunks of Quebec power for which Ontario has now contracted.

The announcement that King George VI will continue the practice so effectively adopted by his royal father of broadcasting a Christmas message to the people of the Empire has been joyously received. The royal message has become an important part of the British commonwealth's Yuletide celebration.

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission is offering himself as a candidate for re-election. He is a busy executive and the community is fortunate that he should be willing to lend his experience and ability to the important job of running Peterborough's public utilities.

The local Grand Jury seems to have made a good job of its duties, earning the commendation of Judge Coleman for a thorough and comprehensive report. Occasionally a grand jury comes along with a performance like that to justify a continuance of the institution.

BEGIN TODAY

Dream not too much of what you'll do tomorrow,
How well you'll work perhaps another year,
Tomorrow's chance you do not need to borrow—
Today is here.

Boast not too much of mountains you will master,
The while you linger in the vale below;
To dream is well, but plodding brings us faster
To where we go.

Swear not some day to break some habit's fetter,
When this old year is dead and passed away;
If you have need of living wiser, better,
Begin today!

You may find it HERE

A NAMELESS WIDOW, supposed to be living in Battersea, London, has been left a small fortune by a man who died recently in South Africa. The only clue to her identity is the following extract from a will: "To Mrs.——, a widow, of Battersea, I bequeath £2,000."

The will made out on an old paper bag in almost illegible writing is that of an 80-year-old man, Kenneth Kemp, who died in a hovel on the outskirts of Johannesburg, leaving $50,000. Kemp was found dead on a bed composed of a pile of rags.

Every day he was to be seen tottering along streets in the district, picking up cigarette ends and raking over refuse. Few people knew him. One or two men he talked to understood he has prospected for gold outside Johannesburg and for diamonds in Kimberley, without success.

Neighbors missed him and informed the police who broke into the hovel to find the occupant dead. The surprising discovery was then made that Kemp owned shares worth over $50,000 in a gold-mining company.

The only picture in the place showed Sir Edward and Lady Kemp who were not related to the man leaving London for Canada in 1919.

Officials of the L.M.S. Railway in England are said to be planning to set up a speed of 126 miles an hour with their Coronation engines. Their own record stands at present at 114 an hour. The Coronation enine built in Crewe railway works was the first of a series of streamlined engines.

Parishioners of St. Paul's Walden, near Kitchen, Herts, England, the birthplace of the Queen, are raising funds for a bell to be called the Elizabeth Bell which will be added to the existing peal of five bells at the parish church, in honor of the Coronation. The Queen was baptized in the church.

Nerves in Plants.

SIR JAGADIS CHANDRA BOSE, eminent Indian scientist died recently at Giridih, India, within a few day of his 79th birthday. His great work, carried out at the Bose Research Institute at Calcutta, was to demonstrate the existence of a nervous system in plants, analogous to that in animals. By a series of experiments he revealed the "heart-beats" of trees, flowers and vegetables and showed their reactions to pain and their death agonies.

The gypsy king of the Forest of Dean in England, 96-year-old William Johns, is dead. Father of 18 children, he leaves five sons and two daughters, 48 grand-children, 14 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

✧ ✧ ✧

His eldest son William has no wish to succeed to his father's position and the kingship of the Forest may thus fall into abeyance. "King" John feared that in a few years the gipsy encampments, with their quaint dwelling tents and picturesque children, would have disappeared. Even he, however, had forsaken his tent and caravan for a bungalow on a heath near Coleford and later a cottage at Milkwall where he died.

An order has been made for the preservation of the windmill at Upminster, Essex, England, which was built in 1802 and is one of the oldest in the London district. Another old landmark, the windmill of Wimbledon Common, south-west London, had a close call from total destruction the other day when for the second time in a few months fire broke out. The blaze was fortunately discovered by some children before the flames had made much headway.

Four hundred boys between 15 and 17 will be wanted by the Royal Air Force in January for training as armourers, photographers and wireless operators.

The new traffic lights in Piccadilly, London, are referred to as "Era" and many persons have been wondering why. The explanation is quite simple. The technical description of the type of light in use is "Electromatic Vehicle Actuated" which is admittedly a mouthful so the initial letters of the three words were quickly adopted.

A Stage Family.

IT IS over three centuries since the first of the Luppino family made his appearance in London. He was Signor Luppino, Italian motion master and his debut was at the Bathoiomew Fair. His son also a puppet player, continued in the business in London and was once put into the stocks for omitting to renew his license. Their descendants abandoned puppet shows for the legitimate stage and every generation since has produced a generous quota of famous clowns, dancers and comedians.

Sir Frederick Menzies, medical officer of health of London is given the credit for introducing the iron lung into London's hospitals. So convinced was he of its efficacy that he offered to pay out of his own pocket the expense of bringing it over from the United States if the London County Council refused to purchase it. The council committee, however, did not refuse. A demonstration convinced the members of the life-saving prospects of the iron lung and they unhesitantly ordered the purchase for every one of their twelve hospitals.

During his recent tour in the west of England King George was presented at Launceston Castle with a number of gifts that had their origin in mediaeval custom. Among them were a pound of pepper and a red rose. The rose was in respect of the holding of one "perling" of land in the manor of Austell and the pound of pepper for two and a half acres at Trenaswy Thick.

Says North is Cinderella of Ontario

One-tenth of Populaton Produces Billions Of Dollars From Sections Natural Resources

(From the Sault Ste. Marie Star.)

WHAT WOULD Canada have done without the colossal wealth New Ontario has poured into national channels during the depression?

One-tenth of the population of Ontario live in the north and this small fraction has produced billions of dollars from New Ontario's natural resources,—gold, nickel, copper, pulpwood, newsprint, lumber and so on. Preparations are under way to start the mining of iron ore, and this activity will be a great user of labor.

And yet the story of the development of the north has hardly begun. Native copper chromium, platinum, lead and so on,— we are just beginning to know we have them.

Truly New Ontario is the Cinderella of Canada.

"Ontario's future and its prosperity lie in the north," says Premier Hepburn who has announced a vigorous road building program to help New Ontario realize its destiny.

Instead of "a ribbon stretch that won't pay for the grease for the car wheels" of the railroads through it (an idea expressed in 1890), enterprise has discovered New Ontario potentially to be probably the richest part of the earth's surface.

From the days when New Ontario was Premier Whitney's despised "Land of the Stunted Poplar" to the present year when about $85,000,000 will be producted in gold alone is not so long. The difference is emphasized in a Montreal despatch which tells of an organization in that city advocating extensive road-building up here as a good business move.

Every now and again orators declaim upon the vast undeveloped resources of Northern Ontario. And the probabilities are that these are quite as extensive as the roslest picture would indicate. But perhaps few of us realize just how much wealth has already been produced from this "bare backbone of the Dominion."

In the past ten years, for example, New Ontario has produced well over a billion dollars worth of minerals. It has produced about $400,000,000 of newsprint paper in the same period. And these figures take no account of lumber production, of exports of pulpwood and wood pulp, of fishery production, tourist revenue and other activities. The Sault alone pays $1,000,000 a year in freight.

In the past decade then, Northern Ontario's contribution from these sources to the wealth of Canada has been about $2,000,000,000 or two thirds of the net debt of the Dominion.

Comparing the money which the province has spent in this territory to the amount of wealth it has produced, it is easy to see that the development of New Ontario is the province's best insurance for the future.

Country Signs Show Winter Has Come

First Freezing of Pump Handle One Evidence Smoke Curling Up in Spirals Is Another

(From the Lindsay Post.)

IT LOOKS as though Winter has set in. When the north wind blows and the snow packs in the gutters, when the smoke from the chimneys curls upward in clear-cut spirals and the frost is on the window panes, then folks in the towns and villages know that Winter has come and that they can look forward to a few months of snow-shovelling, stoking of furnaces and all the extra little chores that go with keeping comfortable during the cold weather.

In the country there are other signs that are a sure indication that Winter is at hand. Nature unhampered by man is given to a clearer manifestation of the transformation that has taken place, so much so that every country boy can tell by the many signs about him when King Winter has commenced his reign in earnest.

On the way to the barn to do the morning chores it is apparent that Winter has dropped down like a blanket over night and enforced certain restrictions on all living things.

The birds, huddled in little balls to ward off the cold, seek the shelter of the eaves and the straw stack. When the stable door is opened a blanket of steam is formed as the warmth of the animals mingels with the chill of the outside and forms a hoary border about the openings. The cattle, loosened from their ties for their trip to the watering trough have lost their ardor for the outdoors and are excluded from the warmth of their home with difficulty. The team on the sleight is soon muzzled with frost as the horses champ at the bits and are anxious to keep moving, steam rising from their sleek bodies into the thin air.

Perhaps of all the farm stock the hens present the most dreary appearance when the cold days come as they stand huddled on one foot with their heads drawn down in their feathers not wishing to brave the snow and the chill.

The first freezing of the pump handle, frost crackling in the trees in the nearby woods, children muffling tightly for their walk to school, these and many others are sure indications to the countryborn that the cold days have come to stay awhile.

Woman Should Annoy the Puffed-up Men

So She Has a Right to Use Pet Names in Public; Keep Man From Thinking He Amounts to a Great Deal

(From the Chicago Daily News)

O WOMAN, uncertain, coy, and hard to please. O Woman, forever various and mutable. O Woman, at best a contradiction.. O Woman, who lost Mark Antony the world. O Woman, brawling in a wide house. O Woman. Oh, what's the use!

So man has ranted, exhorted and berated as through the centuries he has sought to advise, arrange and guide the last creature to be understood—Meredith said civilized—by man. And only yesterday there came galumphing yet another rash expounder who would alter woman's sweet contrariness and bid her renounce the most inalienable of her privileges. Lo, a professor at Vilna University in Poland has dared to write: "Never address your man friend with a pet name in company. 'Kitten,' 'Froggy' or 'Little Bear' may sound all right in the intimacy of the boudoir, but they make a man feel ridiculous in public."

And if they do, O academic sage? That is woman's most purifying mission: to make proud; puffed man feel ridiculous in public and private, and under all seasons of the westering sun and the regnant moon.

Not even fiat law would ever restrain the mademoiselle from naming her dignified senatorial spouse a little cabbage. Ah, le mot juste! Not even stern-browed Hitler will adjudicate the Maedchen from describing her goose-stepping and be-weaponed soldier boy as a little mouse. Nor will the Potawatomi squaw forbear to limn her heap-big-brave as aught but little-old-man-afraid-of-a-bear.

As man poses and struts with high-binding attitudes, as he shouts his eminence to the indifferent stars, as he horses about on this high horse, how soon he is brought down to earth by woman as she issues the irresistible summons, "Here, kitty, pretty kitty!"

GAME LAWS.

(Ontario Fish and Game Bulletin)

FROM TIME immemorial many laws, such as those against public morals, have had the special backing of organized effort, religious and educational, and their importance to humanity thereby emphasized. Young and old, for example, have been taught that it is wrong to steal. This pernicious practice carries with it a moral turpitude quite apart from any punishment under the law. Most people are bitterly opposed to stealing, even when they are not directly affected, but their resentment is keener when public property is involved.

Wild life is public property, and the man who takes more than his legal share or takes it by illegal methods, is breaking one of the moral laws, we hate to call it by its proper name, for he is depriving both present and future generations of a rightful heritage. Public opinion has a very restraining influence over those who are tempted to break any law; while moral support will nearly always ensure its success.

To the Editor

UNIONISM AND THE WORKERS

Editor Examiner,

Sir: Will you kindly let me express my thoughts through your paper concerning unions. Well, until such time a proper labor government gets into power and gets things working so that the workers get a square deal, unions are the only thing that the workers have that will help them. Business men have their associations and also manufacturers know the value of being united. So why should there be opposition to workingmen having their associations. This is where the injustice comes in. They know keeping the workers separated, that the workers can do nothing. Some people preach individualism, but see how far the average worker will get on his own. I know in my own case and the cases of others who have asked the boss for a raise, all you get is "I will see the superintendent about it." That's the last you ever hear. If there is any seeing the superintendent it is generally about a cut. It's hard to figure why any workers themselves should be opposed to a union. It is sometimes stubbornness, mostly ignorance, and the old fear of the job complex. Some workmen think they are too old to join a union and think the factories will let them out because of their age. Well a union operating right is there to protect their jobs, and see that while they can do the work they are kept on. And some people think a union means strike. It does only when the strike is forced on it and is the last resort. A fair minded manufacturer will see the workers' point of view and come to an agreement. It's only a certain class of men who try to wring the last ounce of work out of the employees for their own profit.

And when a boss threatens to close a place, he can't close a factory without consulting the share holders and any place that is making money will never close down. Some people might think the textile strike here was lost. But it was not. If the strike had never happened, the government would never have started the fair wage probe.

It is also up to the workers to elect to the city council at the next election, a good labor candidate. Another point that is a problem is the equal work and equal pay situation. In the southend is a factory where equal pay and equal work doesn't seem to count. It isn't the only factory, though. If two men are working together one married, the other single, there is no reason why they both should not get the same pay, especially when the single men are always first laid off. Length of service doesn't seem to count or one's ability; it's only if you are married or single. The single men have to live also and some day they might want to get married. Also in this mill, a large section is starting on three days a week just before Christmas when the men need the money most. It just seems a way they get back at the men, but that just causes trouble and does not put it down. To correct these faults unions are the only way it can be done.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain a sincere reader.

Economic Structure Of World Out Of Date W. T. Butcher Says

Conditions In The Christian World Are In Danger And Difficulty

Wilfred T. Butcher, M.A., of Toronto, chairman of the Missionary Council of the Student Christian Movement, addressed a public gathering in St. Andrew's United Church on Monday evening, on "The World Church in Conference."

Remarking that "the Canadian press took less notice of the Conferences held at Oxford and Edinburgh this last summer than any other country in the world," Mr. Butcher continued: "The economic structure of the world in which we live is long out of date, and intellectually we are in a worse way, with the old ideas rapidly losing their meaning, conditions in the Christian world are in danger and difficulty."

Speaking of the "totalitarian states" of Japan and different countries of Europe, where the ruler or government claims absolute devotion and obedience from every subject, taking even the place of God, and taught often by means of a pleasing philosophy, the speaker said, "That is the world picture, and what effect has it had on the church, and when we say the church, let us think of a world church, not limited to this building or this denomination."

Is There Anything in Christianity?

Questions arise," said Mr. Butcher, "first, is there anything in Christianity, and secondly, has the Church anything more to give the world, and thirdly, what is the relation of the Christian and the Church to the great and pressing questions of these times?" Always in history, from the earliest days, when there have been questions and crises the Church has gathered in conference, and so this last summer representatives were sent to the conferences of the churches held at Oxford and Edinburgh.

At Oxford was discusseed the relationship of the church to the state and community, and at Edinburgh, the internal difficulties, divisions, and misunderstandings of the churches. "The conferences were very dull. There were distinguished theologians learned professors, important bishops, with just a few young people looking on, and we thoroughly enjoyed it," said Mr. Butcher, and continued: "It was a marvellous sight, all these leaders wrangling, thinking and praying together. There were many technical debates, one saying 'This is the Truth,' and another, 'No, this is the Truth, and if that goes through, I and my church stand condemned.' "

"That the Church is free for service to God alone and is not limited by state or community, traditions of men, popular beliefs or prejudices, was the strongest note sounded at the Oxford Conference," explained the speaker, who had previously mentioned the one hundred ministers in prison in Germany at the present time for having resisted Hitler. The Christian Church must speak in judgment of anything in the secular world that is contrary to the will of God, it was stressed at Oxford.

No Answer for World Needs.

People claim that Christianity has no answer for the needs of the world—that it is just a case of changing the economic or political structure. "If we do believe in Christ, we know Christianity is the only answer to the needs of the world," said the speaker. "We must realize the fact of a "world church," recognizing one another as Christians, seeking together the things of Christ, and in a universal sense be aware of the issues, knowing what we believe, and why."

"The Church has things to say to every community," continued Mr. Butcher, "and it must be a community of people who try to serve God and find the wonderful facts of God revealed in Christ."

Taking part in the service were the pastor of St. Andrew's, the Rev. E. W. Young, Adjutant Neil Warrander, president of the Ministerial Association, and the Rev. M. C. Parr, who pronounced the benediction.

High Production Cuts Cow's Life

WINIPEG Dec. 14 (C.P.). — Dr. M. T. Lewis, veterinary, told the Manitoba Milk Control Board yesterday high production demanded from dairy cattle increased the susceptibility of the animals to disease He maintained it also has materially shortened their production life.

Dr. Lewis declared at best the dairymen could not expect more than four or four and a half years from a dairy cow. Bovine tuberculosis, contagious abortion, mastitis, sweet clover poisoning, and certain metabolic conditions were chief diseases attacking dairy herds, he said.

The board is investigating Winnipeg milk prices.

YULETIDE TURKEY TO PROVE COSTLY

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—It looks like a merry Christmas for turkey producers.

Increases of two to five cents a pound from last year were predicted today for dressed grade birds. A decline in feed prices from the high 1936 levels also will add to the profits of gobbler-raisers.

Ontario housewives can expect to pay 32 to 35 cents a pound for best quality turkey this year. There has been little marketing. Lower-grade turkeys will sell at discounts of three to eight cents from top prices.

The cold snap in western Canada brought fowl to the marketing stage earlier than usual, but not in time for Thanksgiving trade in October. Movement of turkeys from the west, an important market factor, was constant with last year as was production here. Saskatchewan output was reduced slightly by drought conditions.

With The Boy Scouts

Monday, December 6, marked the second anniversary of the Sacred Heart Cub Pack and it was marked by a special birthday party, held in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church.

A full turnout of Cubs and parents together with several visitors added to the making of a very successful evening. Baloo Gerald Grady gave welcome to the guests.

At the Red Flower, Akela Peter Dominic told the story of last year's activities.

Rev. Father O'Brien gave to Cubs and parents an inspiring talk on Saint Anthony and of the Cubs' usefulness, after which he presented the pack with a picture of Saint Anthony—each one present received a pamphlet on the history of the Saint.

Commissioner Lewis Grant presented service and proficiency stars to the following Cubs: 2-year service stars to Jim Daley, Frank Lucarno and E. Marsden. These boys being members of the original Pack. One-year stars to Gerald O'Dette, Bernard Amyotte, Lionel Neary, Harold Legrow and David Jones. 2nd Proficiency stars to Jim Daley and Frank Lucarno, who were invested into the ranks through a beautiful ceremony. 1st Proficiency stars went to the same boys, who received their one-year service stars.

District Cub Leader Gordon Clegg presented the Sixers and their Seconds with the stripes of office. The Sixers were Jim Daley, Lionel Neary and David Jones.

The meeting was brought to a close with the serving of a delightful luncheon; the centre of which, a birthday cake stood with two candles brilliantly burning.

On Tuesday the first meeting of the Rover Counsel was inaugurated in the den of the First Peterborough Rover Crew. Pete Dominic was elected chairman and Frank Pammett, secretary. The other members being Charlie Dobbin and Ken. Brown. The aims of the branch are: 1, To place Rovering in a better standing in Peterborough and district. 2. To organize such Rover activities (social and educational) as there is need for. 3. To form a clearing house for service duties in this area. 4. To organize new Rover crews and to assist in organizing new Scout and Cub groups in the city.

The resignation of Alex Chivas as patrol leader of First Peterborough Crew was accepted with sincere regrets. Rover Mate Charles Jeffreys was elected to fill the vacancy for the time being. Guests of the evening were: Rovers Peter Dominic and Charles Dobbin, A.D.C. L. Grant and D.C.L. Gordon Clegg, who gave to Crew a brief talk on the main essentials in running a concert or amateur night.

Thursday night found us at St. James' Church for the Scouters' Club monthly meeting. Very little business was conducted. Commissioner J. T. Hornsby presented Akela Pete Dominic with his correspondence Course certificate and his Cub-leader's warrant. Gordon Clegg received his District Cub-leader's warrant. The Commissioner also urged all leaders present to take up the Correspondence Course for their further education in Scout work.

The Scouts enjoyed a game of carpetball, after which our worthy friend Ernie Wolfe played Santa Claus. George Brooks furnished the music of the evening.

The St. John's Scout group held a splendid evening of games and instruction. At camp fire Scouter told a story of Southern India.

At All Saint's, A.S.M. Tomkins was in charge. A very impressive going-up ceremony was held when Harold Dunford left his jungle friends and took his place with the troop. Harold is with the Crow patrol under the leadership of his brother, Walter Dunford.

A.S.M. Tomkins presented the honor pennant to the Crow patrol, which has won this pennant for the second consecutive time. Mr. Bridcote was presented with a gift in appreciation for his services to the boys. Lunch was served, songs enjoyed and a skit put on by the Crow patrol. The troop will not meet again until Friday, January 7, and extend Christmas Greetings to all Brother Scouts in the district.

Sacred Heart Troop put on an entertainment for parents' night in the style of a musical interlude. The meeting was in charge of Troop Committeeman Mr. Grady. Father Maloney spoke on the Scout movement and the various parts that bring the success of the whole. The local association, the district officers, the group committee, mothers' auxiliary, the group officers and Scouts. He expressed his sincere thanks for the interest and co-operation of the various officers who have attended the meetings from time to time.

During the musical interlude the main feature was a duet by Don DeNoble and Don Corrin, with Jews' harp, mouth organ and guitar.

Commissioner Hornsby presented badges to the following: 2nd class to Don DeNoble, Grant Willis, Omer Shaughnessy, Tom Richie, Frank Gosselin and Jim Grady. 1st class to Bud Hallihan, Bill Jones and Jack Welsh. Laundryman's badge to Bud Hallihan, Jack Welsh and Bill Jones. Cyclist and swimmer's badges to Bill Jones and Bud Hallihan. Entertainer's badge to Dan DeNoble. Handyman's badge to Jack Welsh. Don Corrin received Laundry'sman's Reader's, Engineer's, Pathfinder's and Ambulance, and his King Scout badges. Also the second all-round cords; the Commissioner urging him to go forward and get the gold cords, the highest in Scouting.

The St. John's Cub Pack enjoyed the companionship found through the medium of games. Instruction was given in leap frog, hopping, time telling and cleanliness. Several boys passing tests. During Red Flower several songs and recitations were given by the boys.

District Commissioner L. Grant and District Cub Leader Gordon Clegg visited the Pack and presented Akela Frank Pammett with his leader's warrant, to which the Cubs gave three rousing cheers for Akela. The pack wish to thank its many friends for their support in the paper collection.

The White Six was the winning group and will hold a theatre party next Saturday afternoon for their welfare.

Punch And Judy Oust Old Santa Claus As Show Window Attraction

New York, Dec. 14 (CP). PUNCH and Judy have stolen the windows of New York's department stores from Mr. S. Claus, the rollicking rosy-cheeked fellow with the white whiskers.

Santa is tolerated in the windows of some metropolitan department stores but only as a stooge for marionettes. In one window Santa Claus reveals his intention of lifting Punch and Judy down from the Marionette stage into the clutching hands of juvenile spectators.

There are knight, clown, monk and peasant puppets who go through their antics for window gazers. In another big window Donald Duck, resplendent as a drum major and Mickey Mouse in a cowboy outfit cavort in the centre of a three-ring circus.

The fairy-book theme which appears to be the favorite of the window display departments this year is the legend of snow white and the seven dwarfs.

Fancy Cooking For Christmas Takes Plenty Of Patience

Takes a Heap Of Cooking To Make a Home Homey At Christmas

While I agree with many poets and one in particular that maintain that it takes a heap o' living to make a home—but being a cook I think it takes a heap of cooking and at Christmas time a heap of fancy cooking to make a home and a homey Christmas.

With that reminder have the patience to sit you down and crack enough hickory nuts to make a cupful of meats and make Hickory Nut Fudge. Wrapped first in waxed paper and then in red or green cellophane squares it is one of the grandest pieces of chewy candy you could want, to "festify" a box of candy for ahy "giftee."

Hickory Nut Fudge

Two cups granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk (if evaporated milk is used ½ cup of it and ½ cup of water), 2 teaspoons corn syrup, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup chopped hickory nuts (if you haven't the patience ½ cup will do). Mix the sugar, salt, corn syrup and milk in a saucepan and heat over low flame, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Cook to 238 deg. Fahr. (or soft ball stage), then add the butter and cool to 145 deg. Fahr. (or until dish feels quite warm to touch), then beat with spoon until nearly stiff, then add the nut meats which can be either chopped or left whole. Pour into buttered flate pan and mark deeply into squares and chill. If not to be sent away as a gift for a day or two wrap as soon as cold and cut into squares, in small squares of heavy waxed paper.

One of our readers wants Creamy Chocolate Fudge that keeps well—this will keep so well that if she makes it now and has to ship it off immediately to far off relatives in Timbuctoo it will still be grand.

Creamy Chocolate Fudge

Two cups sugar, 2-3 cup whole milk, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, 2 squares bitter chocolate, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

To the chocolate which should be broken finely or shaved, add the sugar, milk, and corn syrup. Put over low heat and stil until sugar and chocolate melt, then let come slowly to boiling point and cook until it reaches 238 deg. Fahr. without stirring. Let cool to 110 deg. Fahr. then beat with wooden spoon. If, after 10 or 15 minutes of beating it is heavy but still sticky add ½ teaspoon very warm water, beat a little more then spread 1-inch thick on greased pan.

Of course top may be decorated with whole walnuts or pecans, by marking surface of candy into squares, placing a nut in each square. Let this stand in pan overnight and cut into shapes and stand on plate and let dry again overnight before wrapping.

The decorations in your gift boxes of candy are important—and to me candied orange peel makes one of the prettiest eatable decorations one could want.

Candied Orange Peel

Remove peel from four thin-skinned California oranges in quarters. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling point, and cook slowly until soft. Drain, remove white pith using edge of teaspoon and with scissors cut orange portion into strips. Boil ½ cup water and one cup sugar until syrup will thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Cook the orange rind strips in this 5 minutes, drain, and coat with fine granulated sugar.

Again for effect you must have color and Divinity Roll will give you this—the slices must be wrapped with the cut side up so that they give a good appearance when box is opened.

Divinity Roll

Three cups sugar, 1 cup corn syrup, 1 cup water, 2 egg whites, 1 cup Brazil nuts (other white nuts will do), ½ cup each sliced candied red and green cherries. Boil the sugar, syrup and water to firm ball stage (not hard)—which is 244 deg. Fahr. Beat the whites until stiff. Stir one cup of the syrup at 244 deg. Fahr. into the whites and let the remainder boil to the crack stage—296 Deg. Fahr. Now add this to egg mixture and just stir in. Moisten the fruits and chopped nuts (if Brazils they should be peeled to eliminate the dark skin) with juice from one orange. Spread the fudge out on buttered board, immediately spread over fruit and nut mixture and roll up like jelly roll then wrap roll in waxed paper until cold. Slice off and wrap slices in waxed paper.

Peanut Nougat

One pound sugar, 2 cups roasted but unfried peanuts (if you cannot buy unfried peanuts but 1 quart peanuts in the shell and shell them). Remove skins from peanuts and chop them finely. Sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Put the sugar in an iron frying pan, place over heat and stir constantly until melted, taking care to keep sugar from sides of pan. Add nut meats, stir around twice and immediately pour into buttered tin, and mark in squares. Cheap, sure and good.

Maple Bonbons

Two cups maple syrup, 2 tablespoons very heavy cream, whole walnuts. Combine the maple syrup and cream in a pan over very low heat. Cook to 236 deg. Fahr. or soft ball stage. Cool to 165 or until outside of pan feels very warm to hand then beat with wooden spoon until stiff. Form into balls by rolling in the hands and flatten out top by placing a whole walnut deeply into it.

Parisian Sweets

One pound dates, ¼ pound figs, ½ pound seeded raisins, ½ cup drained crushed pineapple, 1 pound nut meats—if almonds they should be blanched, if walnuts they should be fresh. Put all these fruits and nuts through food chopper together when they are prepared. Put them through food chopped a second time. Then work with the hands until all ingredients are completely blended. Roll into ¼-inch logs about 3 inches long, or into balls or ovals and roll in fine granulated sugar, and shake off superfluous sugar. If to be used at once they may be rolled in freshly grated cocoanut.

Pack in layers in tin box, putting heavy waxed paper between each layer. (To stay in character I must add that these are "good for you" too.)

Spiced Nuts

We printed this three years ago—but it was so good it needs repetition.

One and one-half cups icing sugar, ⅝ cup cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon each cloves, ground nutmeg, allspice, 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ pound pecans and walnuts mixed. Measure and sift together the sugar, cornstarch, salt, and spices twice. Arrange in baking pan. Beat the egg white into the water and dip the nuts separately into spiced sugar mixture and roll them lightly once over on it. Next place the whole pan full in an oven of 250 deg. Fahr. and bake for 2 hours, turnings nuts and sugar over very gently at end of first hour. Let stand in this mixture to cool, shaking pan to loosen sugar from bottom, then lift out and store in layers, having heavy waxed paper between layers.

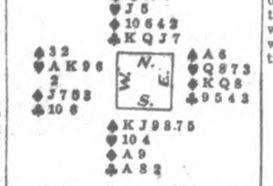
Princesses Pose For Their Camera-Fan Father

The King's interest in amateur photography is revealed by these pictures taken by his majesty, of his two daughters, Princess Elizabeth, now 11 years old and Princess Margaret Rose, seven. These with several other photographs of princesses made over a period of years by their father, are included in the book "The King's Daughters", recently published and bear out the royal claim to picture-taking ability. Princess Elizabeth is the subject at LEFT, posing pensively with her pet dog; at the RIGHT, Princess Margaret Rose is "snapped" at the wheel of her toy automobile.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

CHANGING THE SIGNAL

PLAYING a high card to an opening lead encourages a repeat of the suit. Following that play with a smaller card on the next trick asks for a third lead of it. But playing a still higher card on the second lead than the card used in the first place asks a discontinuance of the suit, telling partner in effect that what he desired was just two leads of the suit and then a switch.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South started the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade, North called 2-Clubs, South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South four.

When the heart K was led by West, East decided that if his side could cash two heart tricks, a diamond and a trump, it could defeat the contract. He could not give West a high-low, for that would ask West to lead the suit again. His play of the 7 on the first round encouraged a continuance of the suit but when the A was played, he now threw the 8, which notified West that the 7 was not the start of a high-low.

As the club suit looked rather formidable, it appeared evident to East that a switch by his partner would no doubt be in the diamond suit. He was right in this assumption, and the plan East worked out on the first trick defeated the contract. When the spade A was won, East tried a second diamond, which held, giving his side four tricks.

Girl With Etiquette Wins Every Time

No more sitting in wallflowers how for Kay! She's brushed up on her etiquette.

She used to be lost at large parties—thought she should talk only to those she'd met. Now she knows it's correct to introduce herself to the other guests, to start conversations.

And how hard it was for Kay to get escorts! When she asked a man to take her to a party where he knew no one, she never realized she should introduce him to the guests she knew. Now she graciously helps her escorts to meet people—and how eager the boys are to beau her around!

Kay's thankful, too, that she's learned to say after a movie date, "I enjoyed it so much" and not "Thank you"; at a tearoom to give her order to her escort and not the waitress.

Men you like to know judge you on these points. Let our 32-page booklet tell you what's expected of you at parties, on dates, at dinners, when motoring.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: For many years I have been delighting the family's appetite with recipes from your page. Today, however I was not so fortunate. I served "Spiced dumpling" from a November issue of the cookery page. My boy aged 6 looked at it, tried a spoon oh it and then decided he was not hungry. My husband said he had more regard for his stomach. A daughter aged 16 said the syrup was nice, and two husky boys, 14 and 17 years, ploughed through it sans comment.

I am enclosing the recipe. I think probably there is a misprint.

I have always found your page so very interesting and helpful and look for it every week. Some little time ago you published a recipe for an English Lemon Cheese which I intended to keep, but some way or another it got mislaid. I wonder if you can find it.

Also could you advise me how to prepare my mincemeat that it will keep without fermenting. I made about 12 quarts of Plumarrow from your recipe—it is good.—(Mrs.) L. S., Rubidge Street, Peterborough.

ANSWER: Thank you for your considerate letter.

The baking powder was left out of that recipe—however, I lament ever having published that recipe, for it is far from being fool proof—and I wish every Cookery Page reader who clipped it and put it in her files would tear it out and put it in the waste basket. At best it is not easily digestible. There! That's off my chest.

To prevent mincemeat fermenting it must be either preserved with the addition of brandy or sherry (if it is to be kept in a crock), or it may be sealed in quart jars, while boiling hot.

Please see the cookery page of two weeks ago for a good mincemeat to keep in jars.

The following mincemeat will keep in a crock.

Mary Thomson's Mincemeat.

Three pounds each cleaned currants, raisins, finely minced suet, ½ lb. citron peel, 2 6-quart baskets Greening apples, 2 tablespoons each cinnamon, mace, 1 tablespoon each cloves and allspice and salt, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 2½ lbs. brown sugar. Mix all these ingredients very well, put over low heat and stir until boiling point is reached—do not let burn. When mincemeat is cold pour over 1 gallon cider which has been boiled down to half its volume. Add ½ pint each sherry and brandy.

Lemon Cheese (English Recipe).

One-quarter lb. butter, 1 lb. sugar, the rind and juice of 3 lemons. Grate rind, and squeeze juice from lemon, and butter and sugar to these. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved and it begins to thicken. Keep cool and covered.

We hope you like these recipes and that we can help you again.

QUESTION: So far I have been a silent admirer of your page, but now I have a request to make.

I am very anxious to get the recipe for cheese served at——. It is a delicious lemon flavored cake—it is not moist and heavy like most cheese cakes—but light and spongy and dry like cake, but one can see the cheese through it.

Another thing I would like to know how to make is the baked apples one eats at the restaurants, like ——etc. They are pared half way down and have pink glazed appearance. Mine usually burst or fall apart or they are too hard, so I would greatly appreciate getting these two recipes. — (Mrs.) M. R., King Street, Peterborough.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

To retain the shape of apples when baked they must either be a hard variety or basted very often with sugar syrup. Tallman Sweets and Alexanders are good for baking—the Tallman Sweets stay while, the Alexanders are a good flavor when baked, but must be basted with the syrup.

Glazed Baked Apples

Make a syrup of 1 cup sugar, ¼ lb. little red cinnamon candies and 1 cup water, by boiling together 1 minute.

Pare apples half way down, and remove core, and fill centres with sugar. Place in baking pan and baste apples with some of the syrup, and place in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. In 20 minutes baste with remainder of it, then sprinkle pared portion of apples with granulated sugar and return to oven. Turn on upper oven to brown apples slightly, but do not baste again. The cinnamon candies give the pink appearance.

This may be too long if apples are small—but large apples should be selected for this purpose.

Cheese Cake
(a butter cake mixture)

One-quarter cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1¼ cups pastry flour, ½ cup milk, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon lemon rind grated (or lemon extract), ½ cup finely grated old Canadian cheese (grated and spread out on plate to dry in warm room for ½ hour). Cream the shortening and sugar very well together, then add the beaten yolks and beat well. Sift dry ingredients together, mix the grated rind with the milk and add the flour mixture alternately with the milk a little of each at a time. Beat white stiff and fold in, then fold in cheese, and pour into desired shapes of tins which have been buttered and bake about 20 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. for layer cakes—or 45 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. in loaf pans.

We hope you like these and that we can help you again.

With the president, Miss Mary Greer, presiding, a Christmas program was presented with sacred song and story, the meeting taking the form of a fireside group, with illumination provided only by the fire and lighted candles. Following the Devotional period, when the Scripture reading of "The Shepherds Watching Their Flocks," was given by Miss Marjorie Nesbitt, Miss E. Walker showed lantern slides of sacred subjects, with Miss Orma Lacheur singing Christmas lullabys at intervals. An old story, "The Wind and the New Born Babe," was charmingly told by Miss Walker. Mrs. Adam Sands presided at the piano during the evening's program, which included a number of carols sung by the members.

Mrs. A. T. Barr presided for the annual meeting and election of officers. Splendid reports for the year's work were heard, the Auxiliary having met its allocation, and greatly increased its membership.

Miss Mary Greer was re-elected for her third year as president of the Auxiliary, and other officers were elected as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. A. T. Barr; 2nd honorary president, Miss E. Walker; 1st vice-president, Miss A. Junior Auxiliary Successful Bazaar.

A successful bazaar and Christmas entertainment was held by the Junior Auxiliary of St. Luke's Church in the Parish Hall.

All sorts of attractive things were sold by the girls during the afternoon. Joyce Wyatt and Rona Wickenden had charge of the pretty fancy work, and an apron booth was looked after by Catherine Wetherstone and Lorna Andrus. Delicious candy was sold by Shirley Wyatt, and bouquets of bittersweet by Dorothy Carpenter. A popular fish pond was run by Carlotta Laing, Lorraine Smith and Emily Willshaw. Helen Chartren sold tickets on an embroidered quilt which was won later by Mrs. M. Lough.

Main feature of the evening's program was a delightful little Missionary play, in which parts were taken by Shirley and Joyce Wyatt, Carlotta and Elva Laing, Dorothy Carpenter, Alice Kent, Emily and Louise Willshaw, Lorna Andrus, Fern Agnew and Catherine Wetherstone. Other numbers on the program included a solo by Fern Agnew and a recitation by Miss Queenie Hope.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening from a table attractive with Christmas decorations, with Mrs. G. J. Bousfield, Mrs. J. Scott, Mrs. Wyatt and Miss Moore in charge, assisted by members of the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary took the occasion to present their former superintendent, Mrs. Bousfield, with a silver dish, in appreciation of her long leadership. Mrs. Wyatt, the present superintendent, was presented with a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

December Meeting Central H. and S. Assoc.

The December meeting of Central Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the kindergarten room of the school.

C. D. Munro, assistant principal, presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. C. H. McWilliams, through illness. The attendance was fair with the picture for the largest representation going to Mr. Bolton's room.

The regular routine business included a report from Mrs. N. Stanger on the Women's Council. A national conference will be held in this city about the first of February and a donation towards the entertainment of delegates was asked for and granted. Mrs. Stanger read an interesting paper on the health talk given monthly to Home and School representatives by Dr. G. Murray Fraser in his office. This particular talk dealt with Scarlet fever of which several cases were reported in this city but which did not reach the proportions of an epidemic.

At Inspector Wightman's request, Mr. Bolton asked for a donation towards the children's milk fund. This was granted.

Dr. C. M. Scott was guest speaker and received a good hearing in a very helpful health talk. Choosing as his subject "Common Colds" and "Tonsilitis" and their prevention, Dr. Scott's advice was to call the doctor who could allay the trouble, but which in every case has to run its course.

A short musical program was much appreciated. In real cowboy fashion Fred Kiff and Royal Clark delighted the audience with their songs and playing their own accompaniments skilfully on their guitars. A trio of pupils from Mr. Nicholls' room were well received when they chose as their number, "Star of the East" with Berta Breckinridge singing the solo part, Jean Sarginson at the piano, and David Poulson on the violin.

Mrs. Strong showed a series of volumes "The World Book" and "The Britannica, Junior". The advantage of having these in the home was fully explained. If 15 families subscribe for either in a school district, the Home and School Association will receive one of the series without cost.

A vote of thanks was proposed by the chairman to the guest speaker and those contributing to the program. Mrs. Stanger on behalf of the association thanked Mr. Munro for his kind assistance at the meeting which closed with the National Anthem.

Constable-Quartermaine.

A wedding of interest to a number of Lakefield residents took place recently in Victoria, B.C., when Mrs. Alice Mildred Quartermaine, youngest daughter of the late Henry Foljambe Mellor of Lakefield and Cheltenham, England, was married to Sydney Francis Constable, son of the late Dr. Joseph J. Constable of London.

The ceremony was performed quietly in the Bishop's Palace, with the Rev. Father Scheelen officiating in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

Following the ceremony, luncheon was served, a feature of which was the wedding cake, a gift of Mrs. B. C. Gale. The happy couple left later for their home among the pines at Deep Cove, Vancouver Island.

Among those present were: The Rev. T. R. Lancaster, Mrs. D. A. Downey (nee Lucy Mellor), Mr. and Mrs. Bingham and Arthur Sherwood, cousins of the bride, Mrs. B. C. Gale, Ernest Constable, brother of the groom.

A very pretty wedding was quietly solemnized in Park Street Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon, when Doris Inkpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Inkpin, was united in marriage to Norman Jobe, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jobe. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. C. Boyter, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a very lovely toe-length gown of satin back crepe in green, with matching jacket threaded with silver, and fastening with a row of tiny brilliant buttons. She wore a green velvet hat, gloves and silver sandals, and over her gown, she wore a charming green and silver wrap, with fitted stand-up collar. Her corsage was of Sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Norma Dunbar, was becomingly attired in a toe-length princess gown of pale mauve taffeta, trimmed with a row of tiny seed pearls from the neckline to the waist. She wore a black and gold taffeta hat, gloves and gold sandals, and over her gown a black and mauve wrap with frilled stand-up collar. Her corsage was of American Beauty roses. Lloyd Morrow of Toronto, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. Following the ceremony, a wedding supper and small reception was held.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

He that hath fears his blotches may offend
Speaks gently of the pimples of his friend;
For reciprocity exacts her dues,
And they that need excuse, must needs excuse.—Horace

Dear Friends:

Isn't it funny the way we approach a person when we want to tell them something nasty? Some will say, "Excuse me for telling you this, but,—" and then follows something which makes us squirm.

Another will say, "I don't want you to get mad, but—"; or "I hope you will take this right, but—"; or "I'll tell you this if you promise you won't say anything," and each and everyone prefaces something we would rather not hear.

Holmes tells us this: "Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. The nearer you come into relation with a person the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to learn unpleasant things from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them."

"I say, God preserve us from the too candid friend, the ones who seem always to be looking for flaws, and who feel it their duty to tell us of them, in season and out.

They like us, sure they like us, but, they are always wanting to change us into what they think is something better. Why can't they enjoy us as we are? We must take them as we find them.

Does it never occur to them that we might be aware of our imperfections? That is one thing I have had to fight all my life, my friends expecting perfection from me, while I am supposed to turn a blind eye to their faults.

So, recently, when someone said to me, "Roberta, you are all right, but—"; I said stop right there. Don't say another word, because I don't want to hear it.

She said, "there you are. You can't stand criticism. I was just going to say—". And again I stopped her. I said, let us turn the tables. Let me tell you some of the things I do not like about you.

I like you. I think you are fine, but if you altered yourself in some ways, I think you would be better. Want to hear them?

She looked rather dubious for a minute, an dthen said, "Well if it will help me any, go ahead." I said, no, I do not think it would help you one bit. I like you as you are, but I did want you to get my reaction to my friends wanting me to be perfect.

We had a good laugh over it, she saw my point of view, and I know she will hesitate before she says to anyone else, "I don't want you to get mad, but—".

It always makes me shiver when I hear those words. There is something ominous about them, something that is going to cause me discomfort, something that will rankle and take away some of my self-respect, and if I can shut them up before the words are uttered, I shall do so.

Think it over. If you have been doing such a thing, cut it out. Remember how much you hate these things said to you. Think of the blemishes in your own character, and you will be a little more blind to those of your friends. "I don't want you to get mad, but—", I am

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Soviet Cows Clean Women Untidy

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—(CP). — Canada would profit by stationing agricultural experts in Russia to follow developments there, Dr. Cora E. Hind told a joint meeting of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club and the Business and Professional Women's Club last night.

The Winnipeg newspaper woman, who visited Russia in 1935, said the Soviet Union's progress concerned Canada closely, particularly for its scientific advances. As a money-saving device she cited the system of waterways and canals down which barges carry wheat to enable cheap marketing.

Dr. Hind outlined disadvantages in Russian methods as well, relating that in the dairy industry cattle were given careful attention, but women workers wore soiled clothes and did not attempt to carry out sanitation plans.

Need Co-operation For Rotary Spirit

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14.—Addressing Rotarians at their regular noon day luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday, N. Alex. McColl told members that it was not the size of the club nor the population of the municipality which made the club a success, but instead it was the spirit of co-operation which existed among the Rotarians. "Fifty per cent. of all Rotary clubs have less than thirty-five members," said Mr. McColl, in reviewing statistics which showed that in the United States there were 114 clubs in towns of less than 1,000, four hundred and one clubs in towns of from one to two thousand, and six hundred and eighty one clubs in communities of from two to five thousand.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Wednesday, December 15

A day of high pressure and excitement is forecast from the ruling lunar aspects. However, certain benefits may be nullified by impetuosity, bad temper and hasty and restless acts. New projects, particularly in connection with combines, mergers, diplomatic, political or secret societies, are favored, mainly through strategy or subtle understandings. Sudden news should stir energy and ambition, and private affiliations should bring happiness.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively year, with news from a distance as the inspiration. But refrain from haste and reckless, impetuous, quarrelsome activities. Deal with mergers, secret bodies or political or diplomatic circles, or by subtle rather than direct measures. Happiness in the home is promised.

A child born on this day may be lively, energetic and constructive, but it may be carried away by impulse, strife, jealousy or stubbornness. But it should be personally kindly and approachable. It may lean toward sports and athletics.

PREMIERS MEET, TWO PROVINCES TIGHTEN BONDS

ingness to back Premier Hepburn in asking for authority to ship his province's surplus energy to the United States.

There was no announcement of the outcome of discussions on the Rowell Commission submission. Most probable was the belief that this problem had been left open.

The forestry industry was debated, and it was understood the parley considered Quebec's policy that no new lumber mills may be started in the province until those now standing are operating. The lumber industry, too, had been talked over a few weeks before by Mr. Duplessis, as minister of lands and forests, and Hon. Peter Heenan, who holds that portfolio in Ontario.

Mr. Heenan was present yesterday, with Attorney-General Gordon Conant, Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten and Mines Minister Paul Leduc. Quebec was represented by Agriculture Minister Bona Dussault, Works Minister John Bourque and Hon. T. J. Coonan, minister without portfolio.

JAP FLAGS WAVE ABOVE NANKING

foreigners still believed in Nanking. Japanese spokesmen said they were without information concerning foreigners or foreign-owned property.

In a communique was a hint the conquerig Japanese would thrust on into the heart of China: "Although Nanking has fallen, so long as anti-Japanese sentiments exist in China the sentiments of the Japanese people are that hostilities have just begun."

The Japanese reported their foe was in flight up the zig-zag valley of the Yangtze river and charged the Chinese retreating from their one-time capital, had fired many buildings in an effort to carry out the "scorched earth" strategy of leaving nothing useful for the Japanese.

Chinese press reports from Hankow, one of the temporary seats of Chiang's government, about 300 miles further up the Yangtze from Nanking and possibly one of the next Japanese objectives, said outer Mongolian authorities had arrived to confer with the General on plans for a rear attack against the Japanese in North China.

CHRISTMAS CAROL AT CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, December 14. —A carol service will be held in the Hollywood theatre at 8.30 in the evening of December 19th according to a report of a meeting held in the council chambers and attended by representatives of the local churches and charitable organizations last week.

Mayor F. F. Long presided over the meeting at which it was decided that in view of the lateness in organizing and the better general conditions the Christmas concert which was originally planned would not be held. Instead a silver collection would be taken at the carol service and the public would be asked as well to make voluntary contributions. Arrangements were made to have donations of fruit and vegetables left at A. D. Bennett's Furniture Store and donations of cash to be left at the Herald office.

Representatives who included Mrs. Elie Brunelle, Mrs. George Hawthorne, Mrs. Jack Storie, Rev. Harold B. Neal, Captain D. Sharpe and Mayor F. F. Long, were each asked to submit a list of those requiring baskets at Christmas.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES ARMSTRONG.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 14.—Following an illness of over nine years, Mrs. James Armstrong passed peacefully away on Tuesday, December 7, in her 74th year, at her home, a mile west of the village.

Formerly Miss Mina Henders, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henders of Yelverton, she became, 49 years ago, the wife of James Armstrong, an ex-Warden of Durham and Northumberland and ex-Reeve of Manvers. He was also for many years county road master, and predeceased his wife just five years ago.

The late Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong lived practically all their lives on the old Armstrong homestead. They had two children, Russell and Harry, both of whom reside at home.

Mrs. Armstrong was a faithful member of the United Church, and taught a Sunday School class as long as health permitted. She was an outstanding example of a true Christian, and during her nine years as an invalid never once was known to complain, but instead radiated cheerfulness and encouragement to the hosts of friends who constantly visited her.

The funeral was held from her late residence on Thursday afternoon, December 9th, and was largely attended, despite stormy weather.

The service, which was most unusually impressive, was conducted by her pastor, Rev. M. A. Bury, and a former pastor, Rev. R. M. Patterson, of Sunderland.

The pall-bearers were Newton Henders of Toronto, Colville Evans, Ernest Stacey and Roland McGill of Yelverton, Norman Skuce of Mount Horeb and Charles Deyell.

Interment was made in Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay.

lieved to have been aboard the Panay and that nothing had been heard from him.

The United States cruiser Augusta received word that one of two Japanese planes which had flown to the scene of the incident was on its way back. The Bee and the Japanese gunboat Hodzu were expected to steam back from Hohsien tomorrow, bearing survivors of the tragedy.

Efforts were under way to locate possible straggling survivors along the river banks. The Oahu wireless said that its plan was to bring survivors and dead to Shanghai with the aid of the Japanese destroyers and the understanding of Japanese assurance for a safe passage downstream.

The more seriously wounded may be flown to Shanghai on board the Japanese planes, one of which carried doctors, nurses, and medical supplies.

The spokesman for the Japanese navy, which has admitted full responsibility and expressed regrets for the incident, said consular staff officers on one of the planes would investigate all details of the tragedy.

Peterborough Inspectorates Have Music Being Taught In 128 Rural Classrooms

Rapid Progress Made in Teaching Of Music In Past Five Years

From a dubious and hesitant beginning five years ago the teaching of music in the rural schools of the two Peterborough inspectorates now embraces 128 class rooms, one of the finest and most surprising cultural achievements recorded in the district in a long time.

In Leo W. Copp's inspectorate, East Peterborough, 32 schools, representing 70 class rooms, have adopted music teaching, and in R. F. Downey's inspectorate on the west side, including part of Victoria County, music is being taught in 58 of 97 class rooms. And from all accounts the cost to the ratepayers is not exceeding one dollar a year for each pupil.

No Festival This Year.

This information was elicited yesterday in a casual inquiry about the rural school festivals which have been held in the city during the Christmas season of the last two years. Mr. Copp happened to tell The Examiner that he had received an invitation to attend a concert at South Lake School about twelve miles north of Havelock in the afternoon of December 21. Lakefield School is giving a concert that night and Zion School in Otonabee is going choral about the same time.

Apparently the annual concert in the city is to be abandoned. Some of the children had to come too far at night, roads could quickly become difficult, and the younger children reached home long past their bed time. The area from which they came to Peterborough to sing together extended from the Omemee district to the vicinity of Keene, if not farther.

Citizens who attended the last two annual concerts, which were also the first two, may be disappointed that they are not to have the opportunity of hearing the young folks sing their Christmas carols again this month.

Mr. Renaud a Pioneer.

When this work was introduced into the county, by H. C. Renaud at Norwood and thereabouts it received some attention, but the people generally were not greatly impressed. Then Cyril Rice enlisted a number of schools nearer the city, gave his first concert in Peterborough, and demonstrated decisively what could be accomplished in teaching vocal music to the little children of the rural schools.

The remarkable progress has been a rapid advance of the last five years. Most of the expansion of school singing has spread around the two inspectorates in three years. The members of school boards and the ratepayers generally have taken an active interest in this work, the enthusiasm of the seven or eight music teachers has been an essential factor, and the co-operation and encouragement given by Mr. Downey and Mr. Copp has been an inspiration over the whole area.

Sang Church Service.

The school children of Peterborough and Victoria, supported by their parents, have proved that they are the young peers of children elsewhere in the province whose experience in singing has ben more extensive. One result of this vocal culture is a new and increasing source of supply of trained voices for church choirs. The children of a school at Apsley, taught by Miss Constance Legon of this city, recently sang the entire musical accompaniment of a regular service at the Anglican Church at Apsley, one of the pupils even singing a solo.

School Boards that take up this subject receive from the Government half the expenditure on music as a special grant, and they also pay half the music teacher's salary. So the cost to the ratepayers amounts in the long run to less than one dollar for each pupil. Teachers engaged in this work include the following: H. C. Renaud, Norwood; L. F. Unitt, Peterborough; W. R. Potter, Peterborough; Homer Oulette, Peterborough; W. H. Wildman of Havelock; Mrs. S. Kilborn, Apsley; A. B. Harle, Peterborough.

Nearly 12,500 public service buses in Britain have been equipped with Diesel motors.

NORWOOD SEEKS GOVERNMENT AID

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Dec. 14.—The regular meeting of the Norwood Board of Education was held recently. The chairman reported that Miss Outhbertson had started her duties as school nurse. Mr. Brackon was present and suggested to the board that plans for accommodation and equipment in instituting the new course of study be made, so that there would be no delay when the Department ordered these courses started. On motion of Messrs. Bailey and Bongard, Mr. Brackon was asked to write the inspector and arrange for a meeting with the board at the time of his regular inspection. Carried.

On motion of Messrs. Stevens and Buck, that the parents of pupils who are in arrears of school fees be notified that if their fees are not paid in full for the year that they cannot continue to attend the school. Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Brethen and Buck, that the board endeavor to get the co-operation of Lakefield and Havelock High Schools to interview the local member of parliament with a view of having the Act changed so that High School districts would receive 50 per cent. of the cost of resident pupils as formerly.

Canadian Legion Notes

The hall of the Canadian Legion is the scene of great activity these evenings, the billiard league playing off their games, and the card room in full operation.

Since the entry of a Canadian Legion team in the City Carpetball League a great deal of interest has been aroused in the other members and a good deal of practice has been going on.

The officers have, therefore, decided to run a tournament and give a set of prizes to the best carpet bowling team amongst the members. Five teams have been got together at present, and there is room for more, so if there are more bowlers we will be pleased to have more teams. Experience is not necessary and a good proportion of the names already entered have never bowled before; so come along and join in the fun.

It is the desire of the officers of Post 52 to make our hall a place of pleasure and sociability for all the members, and as far as lies in their power they will provide any game the members desire. At present there are billiards, cards, darts, rings and carpetball, and they are at the service of any members; so why not come along and enjoy the fun.

At every meeting of the Post we see new members coming along, some old faces amongst them and many new ones, and we are steadily growing in strength.

The next meeting of the Post will be held on Monday evening, December 20th and a good turnout of members is requested.

The City of London in England now has no movie theatres.

LEADERS NEEDED FOR GIRLS' CLUBS

The December meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors was held Monday afternoon, Mrs. H. C. Southeran, vice-president, in the chair, in the absence of Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner.

Following the opening devotions, minutes and correspondence, the financial reports were given by Miss E. Morrow, showing cash receipts of the recent Extension Campaign, $25,553.31, and promises of $20,307.25, a total to date of $45,860.56. The regular association financial statement was most encouraging, being $341.90 ahead of last year. Miss Wood reported several meetings of the Campaign Follow-up committee.

The appointment of necessary committees to carry on the next plans in extension and renovation of the building was left to the executive.

The Educational committee reported need of leaders for two business girls' clubs. The Girl's Council will be reorganized in January and elect their representatives from each class. The council then plans for various membership activities. Several lectures were suggested for the new year and the following classes. Household Workers, Handcraft, Etiquette, Dramatics and Home Nursing. Sunday Vesper services will commence in January and the Leadership Training Course.

Reports of the month's activities included: Residence well filled; Old Country Club and two Saturday afternoon clubs carrying on splendid programs; Employment Bureau assisting in the placement of 35 last month; Trophy night and Swimming Exhibition showing keen competition among the swimmers; Business Girls' Badminton clubs playing Wednesday and Saturdays. The Association was used for 27 meetings of 14 city organizations, as well as 40 meetings in connection with the Y.W.C.A. activities. Basketball teams are practising each week and league games scheduled to start early in January.

The girls' bazaar held last week was most successful with a total of $100.00 for the Campaign Fund. Appreciation of the board to the girls was expressed for their splendid effort.

The Association Christmas parties commence this week, with the Old Country Club party Tuesday evening. Gymnasium class parties after each class next week, and the big Santa Claus party for juniors, babies and junior club members on Wednesday afternoon, December 22, from 3 to 5 p.m.

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

Jimmy Doran, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Many Doran, 608 Walkerfield avenue who sustained a compound fracture of the left leg in a motor accident last Friday evening, is reported to be making satisfactory progress. On her return from a visit to her son who is still in St. Joseph's Hospital, Mrs. Doran stated early this afternoon, "Dr. Cameron thinks his condition is quite satisfactory."

MAY GO INTO NEXT WEEK.

The possibility that Mr. Justice Kingstone will come to the city next week to preside over a continuation of the present Supreme Court non-jury sitting was rumoured about the court to-day. A lengthy list of cases awaits attention, several of which will be quite lengthy. This afternoon the court was still engaged on the first case, an action by James Logan against the township of Asphodel. Mr. Justice Mackay indicated yesterday he must leave the city Friday evening.

NO FRAZIL ICE.

Although power houses in the Niagara district have been given serious trouble by frazil ice during the past few days, power houses here have escaped such blockages so far this season, it was learned to-day. The sudden cold snap swept over the waters of western Ontario before an effective protective covering of ice had formed. The Otonabee river north of Peterborough has had its ice covering for several weeks now and the greater portion of its surface area is protected against sub-zero temperatures.

Women Offer Services In Dressing Of Dolls At The Fire Hall

ACKNOWLEDGING the aid which the members of his department have received in such unstinted measure from needlewomen all over the city, Fire Chief George Gimblett this morning stated, the recent appeal for aid in dressing the scores of dolls in the firemen's toy repair shop had resulted in a regular deluge of answers. Already several dolls have been completely clothed and returned to the fire hall ready for distribution along with toys of other varieties, to the children of the city's needy families. At the same time over one hundred dolls are out in different homes throughout the city being fitted with new outfits before finding their way back to the fire department and ultimately into the Christmas stockings of as many little girls. Although Christmas is over a week distant, the firemen are beginning to get the imposing array of toys which have passed through their hands for repair classified and ticketed ready for distribution. As in former years, it is estimated, over 1,500 toys will be distributed at the festive season to gladden the hearts of boys and girls who might otherwise be overlooked.

JAMES LEO LOGAN SEEKING $10,000 FROM ASPHODEL

Evidence that a depression in the road caused by partial collapse of a culvert was allowed to exist unrepaired for three months on the 12th Line of Asphodel by Asphodel authorities, was given by plaintiff's witnesses as trial of an action by James Leo Logan against the township for $10,000 damages proceeded in Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Mackay today. The plaintiff is contending the defective condition of the road was the cause of a motor accident in which he sustained injuries.

The accident occurred on August 20, 1936, about 120 feet south of the C.P.R. crossing of the 12th Line. Mr. Logan, a resident of Dummer, pleads he was driving northward on the road when his vehicle struck the hole in the road. He was jolted forward and was rendered unconscious when his head struck a part of the car, the car taking to the ditch, he claims.

Acting for Mr. Logan, F. D. Kerr, K.C., adduced evidence to show that the defect in the road was in existence during June, July and August of 1936, and was known to members of the municipal council. The plaintiff is claiming to have suffered injuries to his head, neck, back and left hip, and that he still suffers from the back and hip injuries and is unable to do farm work.

Contributory negligence is pleaded by the defence, conducted by G. N. Gordon, K.C. The plaintiff was negligent in attempting to drive past the defective portion of the road if the condition was such, as he claims, the defendant township contends. Other defence pleas are that the plaintiff was trespassing on the public highway since he allegedly had no operator's license, that the road was in good condition considering the volume of traffic it was intended to serve, that the plaintiff's car was defective and that the plaintiff was driving recklessly.

On his first visit to Peterborough as a Supreme Court judge, Mr. Justice Mackay heard words of greeting and welcome expressed by Mr. Kerr, senior member of the local bar, Mr. Gordon and W. F. Huycke, K.C.

SKATERS WARNED AGAINST RIVER ICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 14.—As a result of two or three Hastings youths breaking through the ice near the shore, Chief Wellman issued strong orders Monday night, that they must not skate on the river, which has been frozen over for a week.

More than fifty young people were seen skating back and forth across the river on Sunday and again Monday. The ice apparently seems strong enough to permit skating, but is regarded as extremely treacherous due to under-currents.

It has been some years since the river has remained frozen over for more than a day, and few residents can recall anyone skating across it.

Peterborough's Assessment Said To Be Among Highest

Judge Smoke Refuses To Decrease Assessment Of Drug Store

Assessment of a converted duplex house of the late Dr. W. T. Holloway estate at 183-185 London street was reduced from $3,000 to $2800 by Judge S. L. Smoke Monday afternoon. The assessment of the land remains unchanged at $700. J. W. Stevenson was present for the appellants and John R. Corkery, City Solicitor, represented the city.

Fred L. Rowan said the house was built about seventy-five years ago, and was made into a double house of five rooms each, eighteen years ago. He estimated the value of the building alone at $2500. Incidentally Mr. Rowan said he had built forty-five houses in Peterborough.

Walter Nugent, real estate agent, valued the building at $2,000, and said each house rented for $22 a month. H. T. Hickey's valuation was approximately $2,500, and W. J. Henry, city assessor, said the assessment of $3,000 was about the actual value. "Most property here is selling below its real value," Mr. Henry said. "During the depression quite a number of people sold property for what they could get, and the effects of that condition are still being felt. We consider our assessments are actual values."

Mr. Stevenson argued that the assessment should be reduced by $400 or $700. No allowance, he said, was made for the disrepair mentioned by Mr. Rowan.

Judge Smoke declined to reduce the assessment of the Elliott Drug Store on George street. The property is assessed for $14,700, and William Ogilvie, accountant for the Elliott Stores said their Peterborough assessment was higher than similar stores in other cities in Ontario, including Kingston, Stratford, Cornwall, Belleville and several other places.

"I think you have one of the best locations in the city," Judge Smoke remarked, and Mr. Ogilvie replied that the sites of some of their other stores were comparatively better. "We could put a new one storey store on that location for $7,000."

It was stated that the assessment of the block including the Elliott Drug Store was $68,280. It was divided between the three ground floor stores and the offices over them.

"We have two stores in Kingston," Mr. Ogilvie said, "and one of them is on the best corner in the city, and the assessment for land and building, with frontage on two streets is only $10,720. Our Belleville assessment is less than half what you assess us for, and our location there is better."

Judge Smoke said that in comparison with other local assessments the appellants had no complaint that he could see. "You can't bring in assessments from other cities. Our assessment department has no opportunity of giving any evidence about the values in other places."

Seems Toscaninis Dislike Photomen

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (CP). — Arturo Toscanini, temperamental orchestra conductor, who looks on cameras with loathing, yesterday led his wife in a charge upon two newspaper photographers who snapped their pictures as the Toscanini's arrived in New York City aboard the Italian liner Conte di Savoia.

At sight of the two cameramen, the maestro leaped from his chair, loosed a series of yells and made an ineffectual rush while one of the photographers fled down the deck.

"You assassins!" he yelled. "You murderers! You scoundrels! You criminals!"

Mrs. Toscanini meanwhile pounded the other photographer on the back with the flat of her hand, but he also managed to escape.

FIRE THREATENED PLANING MILL

An outbreak of fire threatened the Scott Coal and Lumber Company's premises situated in the old McDonald Lumber Company's Mill on George street shortly after nine o'clock this morning.

Attributed by Fire Chief George Gimblett to an overheated steam pipe, the fire originated between the floor and ceiling in an accumulation of sawdust.

An alarm at nine fifteen o'clock sent all equipment hastening to the scene. Firefighters laid two lines of hose, but found the use of only one line sufficient to stem the outbreak. Damage was slight. It amounted to a few hundred dollars, which was believed covered by insurance.

The fire is the fourth of a series of disturbances faced by the company in recent weeks. A short time ago the premises were visited by burglars, and within a week of that time the company's coal yard on Dalhousie street was also burglarized on two occasions. The safe was removed from the coal yard office and was broken open without giving the burglars anything for their trouble.

At 4.58 a.m. the fire department turned out in full force with the thermometer registering about 27 degrees of frost, in response to a sprinkler alarm from the Peterborough Canoe Company's factory. A blaze in some sawdust in the boiler room at the plant caused four sprinkler heads to go into action. Damage was negligible.

So Many Great Hockey Teams Even Secretary W. A. Hewitt Refuses To Name The Best

Junior Champions Have All Been Outstanding In Last Ten Years

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—"Hmm—that's a difficult question." W. A. Hewitt, Secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said as he mused over the reporter's point-blank inquiry as to which team, in his estimation, was the outstanding O.H.A. junior team of the past ten years.

"I'd have to take a little time figuring that out before I made any definite selection," he said. "You can't just say such-and-such a team was the best of the lot without having something to back up your argument."

"But," the reporter persisted, "some claim the St. Mike's team of 1934-35, with Kelly, Metz and Art Jackson included, was the best of all time."

The man who has been O.H.A. secretary since 1903 smiled and nodded his head.

A Lot of Territory

"I'll grant you they were a great team. But as for best of all time—well, that takes in a lot of territory. There have been some great junior teams in Canada, particularly in the last ten years.

"Newmarket had a grand bunch in 1933. Remember their series with Stratford? It took four games to settle that one—that's the longest junior final series we've had so far.

"West Toronto had a pair of outstanding teams in 1936 and back in 1930, when Bill Thoms and Buzz Boll were starting to go places. Then Niagara Falls in 1931 came up with a smart squad, with Shannon, Scotty Bowman, Max Kaminsky and those boys.

"Marlboros had a great team in 1932, with Still, Stein, Pud Kitchen, Reg Hamilton, Harry Gray. And remember the Dukes back in '28 and '29 when Jackson, Charlie Conacher, Horner, Convey and those brilliant youngsters were beginning to hit their prime? And Owen Sound Greys in 1927 (also 1926) were outstanding. So you see it's a pretty tough question to answer."

The reporter could see the point. "Well, name a few of the really outstanding junior teams since the war,' we invited, trying to probe a little deeper.

A Couple of Great Teams.

Hewitt produced some of the old O.H.A. record books. "Here was one of the greatest," he said, indicating the 1920 Toronto Canoe Club juniors, starring Lionel Conacher, Billy Burch, Alfie Moore, Tex White, Duke McCurry, Roy Worters, Harold Applegath and Mollie Mollenhauer. "They breezed through all opposition and lost only two games all season. They were beaten 6 to 5 by Stratford in the first game of the finals. But they won the next game 10 to 2, and the round 15 to 8, and then took the Memorial Cup by beating the Western champions, 15 to 8."

"Bill Marsden's Aura Lee team of 1922 was another great collection. They won the Eastern title and were headed west to play the Dominion final. First, however, they had to play Fort William a sudden death game. They had to switch trains and take a side-line into Fort William. The boys had to travel in an unheated coach and were nearly frozen when they arrived for the game. Under the circumstances, plus a bit of odd refereeing, the Toronto team lost 5 to 3 to a team they otherwise would have trounced. That was one of the biggest disappointments in history."

About Morenz and Taylor.

Stratford had a fine championship machine in 1921, Mr. Hewitt recalled. Howie Morenz and Frank Carson were two of their standouts. "One of the things that made Morenz a colorful performer was his temperamental outbursts. I remember one occasion, in particular. Stratford were playing in the Memorial Cup finals against Winnipeg Falcons.

"On one of the first plays of the game, Morenz gave Carson a pass, but the latter did not return the puck when Howie was left in a clear scoring position. That peeved Morenz to the extent that he refused to give Carson, or any one else, a pass, for the rest of the game. Stratford lost 9 to 2, came back to win the next game 7 to 2, but lost the round."

Speaking of Morenz recalled another immortal hockey star, Fred (Cyclone) Taylor. "This is going away back," Mr. Hewitt said, "but the 1904 finals brought together Kingston Frontenac - Beechgroves and Listowel. And the outstanding star of the Listowel team was Cyclone Taylor. Although his team was beaten, it was in that series that Cyclone displayed the speed and stickhandling skill that made him famous."

FLORIDA QUEEN GETS TOP BERTH SPORTS RATING

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Katherine (Kitty) Rawls, diminutive Florida swimming queen who captured six national titles this year, achieved the added distinction today of being rated the No. 1 athlete of the year among United States feminine competitors in the seventh annual Associated Press sports poll.

The 18-year-old aquatic star won the closest voting contest in the history of the poll, participated in by the nation's leading sports writers. Only one point separated Miss Rawls from her two closest rivals, Anita Lizana of Chile, the new holder of the United States tennis title, and Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N.C., the national golf champion.

Although this trio dominated the balloting, the 44 participating experts gave mention to the performances of 21 feminine headliners, including Sonja Henie, Babe Didrikson, and Eleanor Holm Jarrett. Miss Didrikson, now concentrating on professional golf, was winner of the 1932 poll.

Miss Rawls won two out of three title bids at the national indoor A.A.U. meet last winter. She hopped off a boat from Japan, in mid-summer, to capture four national outdoor championships in two days at San Francisco. This increased to 27 her total of national title triumphs.

TRAVEL EXPENSES ARE TOO HIGH FOR KINGSTON OUTFITS

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 14.—Highlights at the joint hockey meeting held over the weekend at Belleville between O.H.A. officials and clubs concerned to settle the trouble over the groupings of teams in Eastern Ontario, are as follows:

Charles Hicks — "Some have stated Queen's has an over-flow treasury, but I'm here to tell you we have a $250,000 mortgage to pay off and as our 1,600 students are admitted free to all games, we just can't make things pay in a group that includes Peterborough. Why it would cost us $90 for a bus to go to Peterborough.

Harley Weir, Peterborough — "We travel by taxi and it's cheaper."

Mr. Hicks—"The Athletic Board at Queen's won't allow us to travel that way. Our senior Intercollegiate team has 18 games and we can't draw from their ranks and anyhow our intermediate team is for players who can't make the senior Intercollegiate team."

W. A. Hewitt, O.H.A. secretary—"You'd have a variety of teams coming into your rink."

Prof. T. F. Gelley — "Four clubs coming into Kingston means four nights of hockey each week. Kingston can't stand it. We budget our sports at R.M.C. and have allotted $5,300 already for sports, but that does not include trips out of Kingston for hockey."

Mr. Hicks phoned T. A. McGinnis, chairman of the Queen's Athletic Board in Kingston, and got his o.k. Then Mr. Hewitt phoned Gananoque and they said, "O.K. for a Kingston loop, but count us out in a group any larger." Alvin Schiegel, O.H.A. president, pointed out that Peterborough had to be protected some way and at last Mr. Hicks agreed.

Play 'Heads Up' Soccer

Players on English soccer teams have to be able to practically use every part of their body when they go on the field for competition. The action photo here is a good example of "heads up" soccer. It was taken during a game between Leeds and Arsenal on the latter's home field at Highbury, England. The two players are Hodgson, of Leeds and Joy of Arsenal, who are pictured together as they fight for the ball.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THE FOLLOWING invitation was sent us by R. S. Cotton, chairman of the reception committee of the City Council: "Dear Sir—The Mayor and members of the City Council have arranged a dinner in honour of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School rugby team, interscholastic champions of Ontario. The dinner will be held at the Empress Hotel at 6.30 o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, December 15th, 1937. You are invited to be present in order that this group of splendid young sportsmen may be properly honoured on this occasion." We wouldn't miss it for anything.

AT THE annual school basketball league meeting in Cobourg a few nights to the rear of us, Bowmanville, Fort Hope and Cobourg were represented. Local and Lindsay delegates stayed home to read Robert Service's "Spell of the Yukon" instead of experiencing a taste of it, so they just sent word as to their desires. P.C.I. senior gals are grouped with Lindsay, Cobourg and Bowmanville; while P.C.I. junior boys are in with Bowmanville, Cobourg and Port Hope; and P.C.I. senior boys are with Lindsay, Bowmanville, Cobourg and possibly Oshawa. If not Oshawa, then Port Hope will enter. Principals must submit an eligible list after Xmas, giving player's age and the fact he or she has made at least a 50% average in five subjects; another rule calls for home team to communicate the official score to the convenor right after the game. First tilts will be played January 7th.

* * * * * * *

LADIES' Basketball League of Central Ontario will be made up of two local teams, C.G.E. and Westclox, Cobourg, Belleville and Port Hope. We understood Lindsay would join, but the drafted schedule shows no Scugog squad in so far. It opens Jan. 6th with Westclox at Cobourg. The next night sees Belleville playing C.G.E. here. Play in the L.O.B.A. loop will be a couple nights a week—playing under men's rules—and the teams don't finish till the middle of March. Local games will likely be at the Y.W.

WEST END Hockey League, of independent intermediate calibre, is being re-organized at an open meeting tonight (Tuesday) at eight out at All Saints' rink. Those interested are invited. Officers will be elected, teams entered and plans for the season made. So far, four have indicated intention of entering, Keene, Warsaw, All Saints and Canadiens. Two more local clubs would round out a neat circuit. Some good hockey is played each winter in this West End Loop.

JACK WHITE and Pat Calladine are toiling like Trojans day and night now getting the ice in at the Brock St. rink. Dance decorations have been torn out, stone fountain removed, booth switched around, the floor cleaned up and a foundation laid. They are flooding it frequently these days and hope to have a fine sheet of ice ready for hockey practises by Thursday evening. That is if the weather keeps frosty like this. Local puck prospects should be set to start off ere the end of this week if the call for workouts comes. It is just possible that an exhibition tilt may be staged next week. No rink manager for the winter has been named so far. We trust the guy who is put in charge will enlarge the press box a trifle so that we can wear an extra sweater on coolish nights without pushing other scribes out at each end.

TWO OF our O.H.A. schedules will be drawn up Thursday p.m. at a meeting of club delegates and convenors in Belleville. The junior "B" group of Peterborough Colts, Havelock and Belleville will be lined up at this time; and ditto the senior "B" setup of Petes, Fliers, Queen's and Belleville Redmen. Play will probably start a couple of days after Christmas. Havelock will have home games at the Norwood arena, and the airmen will again use the Belleville rink. No manager has been named yet for the intermediate "B" local squad, which is in with Whitby, Oshawa and Port Hope—and that schedule will be drawn up next week. No name yet for this team, either. Any suggestions, youse puckists and hockey followers?

* * * * * * *

QUINTE COLUMNIST writes: "It was only after two hours of controversy that Queen's finally agreed to come in with Peterborough, the Airport and Belleville in a senior 'B' group. They have this rating through their schedule and all games must count wins and losses, Billie Hewitt warned them. At the termination of the regular schedule, the first two clubs playoff, the winner going out into the senior 'B' playdowns; while the third and fourth placed clubs playoff in a series, ultimate winner entering the intermediate 'A' playdowns. The latter meeting the winner of the group of Kingston City, R.M.C., Garrisons and Gananoque." The Limestone City delegates at the meeting Sunday said that deal whereby Napanee players were awarded to Belleville wouldn't have been pulled had Jim Sutherland, O.H.A. member from Kingston, not been sojourning down south.

RIVERVIEW A.C. will hold its next boxing show at the Armouries either Jan. 6th or 7th, depending on hockey that night. Four Toronto pugs will dot the eight-bout card. We haven't the complete card yet, but can tell you how the Queen City sluggers will be matched. Bev. Carter—that colored flash who mixed with Orlando here—is again paired with Nick Orlando, and this will be a nifty return bout—both claiming they can win handily. And Joe Genovese and Ned Minicola are rematched, and it'll be another honey of a scrap. Both these jousts ended in poor decisions last time, and the fighters were as dissatisfied as the fans over the outcome. Norm Bowler has agreed to take on Art Darnbrough, and we must wait Norm for being unafraid of this kayo kid from Toronto. And Pat Jordan will tangle with a colored leather-pusher from Toronto named Tom Foster. More about the program again.

RANGERS PLAY FOR HOMEFOLKS AT THE GARDENS

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—None of the Torontonians who have done considerable moaning about the Maple Leafs' defeat on Saturday, pinned the blame on the radio broadcast. However, New York Rangers did something like that very thing.

One of the victorious Rangers was asked this question:

"How is it that you fellows play such a whale of a game whenever you appear in Toronto?"

His reply was both enlightening and reasonable, and it furnished a new angle, too.

"It's like this," he said. "Most of us come from Western Canada, and when we go back home in the spring all we hear from our relatives and friends is 'Leaf, Leafs, Leafs.' That's because of the Saturday night broadcasts. Heck, our people know more about the Leafs than they do about us. We get fed up with it."

Give Home Folks Earful.

"Now, just about the only time that Western Canada can hear about us on the radio is when we play in Maple Leaf Gardens. And what's the natural thing for us to do, eh?" he continued. "We just bear down to shoot the works, and give the folks back home a real earful about what we did to their well-known Leafs."

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'

By HERB MARTIN

TONIGHT (Tuesday) Dec. 14 will see the official opening of the 1937-38 curling season. True all the ices will not be ready but it is expected that at least four will be in form. . . Looking over the opening records for the past few years, December 14th is about the average date. Just by way of comparison we give the following dates: 1932—Dec. 12; 1933—Nov. 23; 1934—Dec. 11; 1935—Dec. 21; 1936—Dec. 2; 1937—Dec. 14. . . In the year 1933 it might be well to mention that the season was the longest known to clubs operating on natural ice, the season ending on March 31, 1934 and if the ice had held one day more the boys would have curled for six months straight.

THE COMING of the Scotch curlers to our Dominion this year created added interest to the sport. Lindsay has been selected for this district and the local club has been asked to send up two rinks. The last visit of the Scotchmen was in 1923.

AS THE CLUB is holding a general meeting on Monday night next to draw up the rinks, it would be advisable for curlers who would like to play in the schedule to communicate with the secretary, H. T. Foote at once.

Hastings Hockey Meet Postponed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 14.—With practically all Hastings youth hockey enthusiasts present, a meeting called in the Clarendon Hotel Monday night for the purpose of electing a 1937-38 hockey executive, was postponed. The reason given was that there were not enough men present. The meeting will be held on Wednesday night, December 15, at the Clarendon.

Hershey Bears May Turn Pro Looking To Int.-Am. League

Doubtful Whether U.S. Eastern Amateur League Will Operate Next Season

HERSHEY, Pa., Dec. 14 (CP) — Encouraged by the capacity crowds which have attended early season games Hershey Bears, champions of the United States Eastern Amateur Hockey League, today cast an appraising eye at International-American League activities.

Boasting one of the best and most experienced teams in the circuit Hershey has had five sellouts in six home games so far during the current schedule—a total of more than 35,000 customers paying their way into the modern ice plant erected in the Pennsylvania mountains last year.

Problem facing local officials, however, is whether this prosperity can last in face of the limited attractions presented by the Eastern League. The loop is composed of five teams but is thought likely the luckless Bronx team or Baltimore will retire before another season rolls around.

Hershey hockey authorities declare the team will not operate in a four team circuit. With this possibility in view Herbert Mitchell of Windsor and Pembroke, who coached the Bears to two championships, was signed to a two year contract.

If Hershey joins the Int.-Am. an experienced hand will be at the helm. Mitchell led Windsor to an International League championship some years back.

Strong '37 Team

Although he lost forwards Gil Mancuso to Montreal Canadiens and Red Currie to Detroit Redwings of the National League, Mitchell retained eight of last season's players as a solid foundation for rebuilding his present outfit. They are Tony Grabowski, Kirkland Lake, Nick Damore, goalkeeper of Niagara Falls, Ont., Harry Frost, and Bill Morris, New Liskeard, And Tuten, Melville, Sask., Captain Lloyd Blinco, Grand Mere, Que., Henry Lauson of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Walter Russel of Boston.

Recruits snared from the plentiful supply the Hershey coach says still abounds in Canada despite inroads by farm organizations of major league clubs are: Joe Catlin, Kingston, Ont., Fred Hunt, Brantford, Stan Kowalski, Kitchener, Jo Jo Grabowski, Kirkland Lake, Ray Van Daele, Winnipeg and Ab Grant, Toronto.

Leaves Broadway

JACK DOYLE

For years and years Jack Doyle's quoted betting odds of sports events have been as official as the listing of a stock in Wall Street. Now the veteran Broadway commissioner announces he's retiring from his "billiard academy" at 1456 Broadway. Jack is 60 years old and says he wants to rest.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (A.P.). — Mike Jacobs looked over his near sellout and said: "Well, I hope them boycotters don't feel hurt"....Impression at the ringside was Max could have polished off Thomas any time he wanted to, but Max insisted his timing was so bad he had to go slow....Biggest surprise of the evening was to hear the popular Jimmy Braddock booed by a few fans when he entered the ring to be introduced....Joe Louis, filled with good fried chicken, was just about to drop off to sleep when Schmeling began firing rights in the sixth....Joe sat up and took plenty of notice from then on....He knew just how Thomas was feeling....P.S. Thomas still is a good catcher.

Not that it means a thing one way or another, but a gal named Rose Bowles got a marriage license in Reno the other day....When he was here with the Washington Redskins a week ago, Dixie Howell, former Alabama star, made a bet with the patrons of a Greenwich Village joint by acting as starter for a turtle race....It may not mean anything, but one New York newspaper reports there's a "for sale" sign on the house of Judge Stephen McKeever, half owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Cuba is bidding for Henry Armstrong to go down there and fight Kid Chocolate....Eddie Mader, the heavyweight, used to be a choir boy in St. Michael's Church here....Harry Thomas really is owned by James Norris, Jr., vice-president of the Detroit Hockey Red Wings, but Norris doesn't figure in the management, leaving all those headaches to the astute Nate Lewis....Georgia is reported to be very much interested in Harry Pipke....(We don't blame 'em.)

Max Schmeling won't go into a fight in this country unless Doc Casey of Detroit is in his corner....The doc is one of the best seconds in the biz.

It must have jolted the monocle plumb out of the eye of Henry Cotton, British open golf champ, when he was booked as secondary attraction to a trained dog at a recent Lunnon luncheon....My word....When Gunnar Barlund of Finland and Alberto Lovell of Argentina fight here next month it will be their first meeting since Lovell won a decision over the Gunnar in the 1932 Olympics....Walter Hagen treated English fans to a 65 and 67 just before taking off for Africa on a hunting trip.

BOMBERS ASSURED OF BIG WELCOME

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14. —(CP)— Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who failed to bring the Grey Cup West for the second time Saturday when they lost to Toronto Argonauts, 4 to 3, will be honored on their arrival from Toronto to-day.

A band will greet the team at the dept. decorated for the occasion. Then the team and Winnipeg Rugby officials will be taken to a Winnipeg hotel for breakfast.

Art Stevenson, Blue Bombers halfback, whose trick knee kept him from showing the East his real booting ability, arrived home Monday to get down to his books in preparation for medical examinations at University of Manitoba.

"It was a great game and the boys all fought hard," he said, when asked if he had any excuses to offer for Winnipeg's loss.

He summed up the game: "The breaks—if anybody got any it was us." Stevenson said the slippery field worried him, adding: "You just couldn't do anything."

Proud Of His Job

It's a boy at the Max Baer's and the Livermore larruper and former king of the heavyweight fighters seems highly pleased with the washing he has done for his new eight-pound heir. In high spirits he declared, I've really got something to fight for now, and you just watch. I may be champion of the heavyweight fighters again." Baer's wife is the former Mary Ellen Sullivan of Washington, D.C.

George Mantha Of Canadiens 2nd In N.H.L. Scoring Race

Spectacular Scoring Over Weekend Advances Montreal —Trails Drillon By 3

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (C.P.)—The goal-getting rush of speedy George Mantha left the Montreal Canadien winger-man last night in second place in the National Hockey League's scoring race. Six goals and an assist during the week—five of the goals in two week-end games against New York Americans—brought the Montrealer three points behind Gordon Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs.

And the week's sharpshooting according to last night's official league statistics, landed Mantha at the top of the scorers in total goals. His ten placed him one up on Drillon and leader up to now, and Sweeney Schriner of Amerks. Drillon's nine goals and nine assists for a point total of eighteen compare with Mantha's ten and five.

Harvey Jackson of Leafs and Nels Stewart of Americans, each with seven and seven, are tied for third. Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers and Marty Barry of Detroit Red Wings are tied at the top of the United States division. (The official listing gives Dillon one assist more than his unofficial total of five.)

Red Horner of the Leafs stayed ahead in assists with eleven, though Art Chapman of the Americans began to crowd him as his total moved up to ten.

In penalties, Allan Shields of the Montreal Maroons stepped out into the lead with thirty-nine. He was two up on a team-mate, Baldy Northcott.

Schmeling Scores Eight Round Triumph Over Harry Thomas

Wins In 8 Rounds

MAX SCHMELING

German heavyweight returned to the ring after an absence of one year and a half to score an eight round technical K.O. over Harry Thomas of Minnesota in Madison Square Garden bout.

Joe Louis Unimpressed Over Teuton's Victory—16,000 See Fight

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Joe Louis, the cocoa-colored heavyweight fight champion, is not a man easily impressed.

He sat dead-panned in Madison Square Garden last night while Max Schmeling knocked Harry Thomas daffy as a dervish in eight rounds, and all Joe had to say was: "If I can't whip that Schmeling the next time I don't ever want to see another pair of boxing gloves."

Joe might have been whistling in the dark. Schmeling, to, the lay eye, looked like a truly great fighter as he toyed with Thomas in the early rounds and then methodically chopped him to the canvas with lightning rights. But Louis sounded as though he meant it.

So did his dusky manager, old Jack Blackburn: "All I hope is that nothin' happens to that date we got with Schmeling next June," he said happily.

16,000 See Fight

Nothing, apparently, is going to happen to that date. Over 16,000 customers jostled their way into the Garden and most of them seemed to be there to cheer Schmeling.

The ovation given the ex-champion as he entered the ring brought a broad smile to his face that departed only fleetingly as he worked on Thomas.

While beaten by a much superior fighter, Thomas was far from disgraced. He hit the canvas for the sixth time in the eighth round before Referee Arthur Donovan escorted him, rubber-legged, to his corner. He didn't know a thing by that time, but he still wanted to battle.

The long 18-month lay-off since he stopped Louis last summer appeared not to have affected Schmeling's timing or the lethal power of his right once he got himself unlimbered. He let his wild-swinging opponent carry the fight to him and bided his time. Thomas, in fact, connected sufficiently to win three of the first five rounds.

It wasn't until the sixth that Max, moving around easily, unhurriedly, began cracking Harry on his whiskers. He said afterward that he had found the Eagle Bend, Minn., product harder to tag with a right than he did Louis. But once he got the range it was all over.

Saved by The Bell

Just before the seventh round ended Thomas went down, hard, the bell clanging almost as he landed. His mouth had been bleeding since the second round, when one of Max's left's drove a tooth almost through his lower lip. In the eighth Schmeling really went to work, and Thomas was bouncing up and down like a rubber ball until Donovan made the German stop.

There wasn't any doubt in Thomas' mind, once it cleared, that he had run into a stingeree. In his humble opinion, he said, Schmeling will stop Louis' clock again the next time they meet, and quicker than the other time. Thomas hadn't been down before in his four-year ring career, and Schmeling's right surprised his considerably. It being the first such experience, he didn't know enough to take a count.

Schmeling was pretty well pleased. He came out of his first tune-up unmarked and breathing easily. He seems ageless. At 32, his legs and his body are as smooth and rippling and tidy-looking as ever. Undoubtedly he has a great right that he never exhibited as champion.

Germany has reduced the amount of alcohol required in motor fuels from 10 to 8½ per cent.

BRADDOCK SIGNS FOR FARR BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP). — James J. Braddock, who lost the world heavyweight title to Joe Louis at Chicago last June, will signalize his return to the ring in a ten-round match with Tommy Farr, holder of the British heavyweight championship, at Madison Square Garden, Jan. 21.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced last night he had clinched the match as a part of his 1938 heavyweight program. Braddock was restored to good standing Monday by the New York State Athletic Commission after being in disfavor since last June. He was charged with running out of a contract to fight Max Schmeling. Braddock and his manager, Joe Jacobs, paved the way for their reinstatement by paying fines of $1,000 each, assessed following the Braddock-Schmeling fiasco.

Farr, who went the fifteen round limit in a championship fight with Louis in August, is now in England. He cabled acceptance of Jacob's terms for a Braddock match and will return shortly to this country.

Boussus Rated No. 1 Netter In France

PARIS, Dec. 14.— (AP).—Frail Christian Boussus has resigned his place as France's No. 1 tennis player.

Top-ranking French player in 1934-35, the 23-year-old Boussus was displaced last year by long, lanky Bernard Destremeau, 21. Destremeau was listed No. 2 in the latest rankings followed by Paul Feret and Yves Petra, bracketed in the No. 3 spot; Marcel Bernard No. 5, Henri Bolelli and Jean Lesueur, bracketed at No. 6; Antoine Gentien and Andre Merlin, bracketed at No. 8, and Roland Journu, No. 10.

Mme. Renee Mathieu, perennial women's champion since Suzanne Lenglen put away her racquet, headed the women's list.

TUNE IN SHORT WAVE as Easily as Local

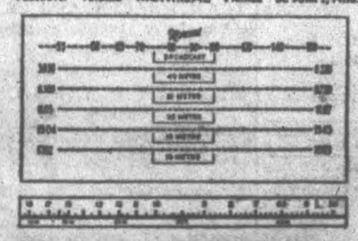
Marconi, with Band Spreading, ushers in a new era of tuning ease. You don't have to hold your breath to tune in short wave. You have all the scope in the World to bring in your favourite stations in full, rich, resonant tone, actual "face to face" reception. Think what this means in added entertainment. Think of the fun in store as you embark each evening on a simplified "Marconi Tour" of the World's great radio stations. Remember, Marconi has everything — Ten-Station Automatic Tuning, Electric Tuning, exclusive Exponential Baffle and Band Spreading, the greatest forward stride of the day in simplified tuning. So why be satisfied with less when Marconi brings you so much more at no extra cost.

MARCONI

THE GREATEST NAME IN RADIO

CANADIAN MARCONI COMPANY

Vancouver Toronto MONTREAL Halifax St. John's, Nfld.



Actually it is easier to tune short wave on the Marconi band spread dial than to tune your local station on standard broadcast. The reason is simple: on the new Marconi dial the standard broadcast band and each of the five short wave bands have separate scales as shown on diagram, upper left, each clearly marked and extremely easy to read. Old style receivers had one scale for standard broadcast and only one scale for all five short wave bands, shown at lower left. That means many stations crowded into very short space, making separation and tuning very difficult.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, after a course at Yale, finally meets Mimi Le Brun, now a St. Louis society girl, whom he has admired for years. She is a cousin of Lionel Clark, Jerry's only close friend at college. All three, with several other young people, are at a Maine camp presided over by Olga, an attractive young woman who married Mimi's wealthy grandfather shortly before he died. Jerry has just met Andy Fuller who is in love with Mimi. And now Jerry is with Mimi herself. More impressed than ever with Mimi's charm, Jerry feels he is going to enjoy the house party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 14

THERE WERE 10 guests besides Lionel and me. With our hostess, we made 13 at the table.

Bernice was much disturbed. "Something will happen to some of us, you see if it doesn't! And it will probably be Mimi. She can't miss it, with her peacock feathers and 13 at the table. She laughs at me when I say such things, but look at the awful luck she's had with her grandfather dying—and all that."

She caught herself up as Olga turned a little toward us, and changed the ending of her speech skillfully.

"Well, thank heaven, there won't be 13 of us in the cars. Andy Fuller will drive six, and Drake four, and the rest will go in Scott Belden's car. I am going with Scott. Far be it from me to ride behind Andy when he's got Mimi on the front seat!"

Remembering the episode of the afternoon, it seemed to me surprising that Mimi would ride with Andy. But she did, wrapped in a winderful cloak with a fur collar which came up to her eyebrows.

It was just as she was stepping into the car that she turned and saw me.

"Aren't you going to ride with us?" she asked. "We've plenty of room for him, haven't we, Andy?"

Andy nodded, and before I knew it I was sitting on one of the small folding seats in Andy's seven-passenger car, with two pretty girls—the Ammidon twins—in the tonneau, and a stocky little youth, Girard Sylvester, on the other small seat.

I was just behind Mimi, so near that by leaning forward a little in the dark I could touch my cheek to the fur of her collar. I could hear her low laugh—the things she said to Andy.

"I haven't forgiven you, Andy," floated back to me, "but I'd rather have you drive me than Drake or Scott Selden."

"Thank you. Bernice says she wouldn't trust me when I've got you beside me."

"I trust you, always—as a driver."

I felt that I ought not listen, that I ought to talk to the Ammidon twins. But they seemed absorbed in the little Sylvester chap. So once more Mimi's words floated back.

"I do like you, Andy. And the things you do for me are—wonderful. But I won't stand being bossed. I never have been. I never will be."

"That's why I—love you."

Again, in desperation, I turned to the twins and spoke of the beauty of the moon.

But they cared nothing about the moon. Sylvester had left his seat and was sitting between them, and they were apparently entranced by some story he was telling. They lent unwilling ears to my remarks, so I gave up in despair.

Mimi was saying, "But when you do things as you did this afternoon—trying to make love to me, when you know how I hate it."

The world was all at once, flooded with light. So this was why she had thrown her hat at him—why she had cried.

"If you loved me," Andy expostulated.

"But I don't. How many times must I tell you? Why can't we be just friends?"

"Because I want more than that." His voice was tense. "And I am going to have it, Mimi. You can't get away from me. You are—mine."

I was listening now with all my ears. I wanted to know what Mimi would say to this autocrat who claimed her. I played eavesdropping unashamed.

For a long time she said nothing, and Andy drove as if a thousand devils were pursuing. I began to realize what Bernice had meant. Yet always, in spite of his wild speed, he seemed to have the car under control.

Then Mimi said, "That isn't the way to make me care—to act like a Turk and a tyrant."

"Do you want to care, Mimi?"

"Oh, well, perhaps. Everybody says it would be the ideal thing."

I sat back in my seat, sick at heart. Oh, that hard little voice! It seemed to me it could not belong to the girl with whom I had talked in the afternoon—to the woman of whom I had dreamed.

The Bradleys' house was more like a country club than a private residence. It was part of a fashionable summer colony, and was furnished with a sumptuousness that seemed out of place in the heart of those wild mountains. Yet it was lovely, none the less—a sort of fairyland—and my heart quickened to the beat of the music.

Lionel danced with Olga, then turned her over to me. I'll confess that I felt sorry for her. She was ill at ease and showed it. I was ill at ease, but I did not show it. I was sure of that, for Lionel said afterward:

"You might have been born to the purple, Jerry."

But I was not born to the purple. I had been born in a parsonage, and the thing had left its marks upon me. I had not inherited, as those other young people had inherited, a tradition of gayety. It was not until I danced with Mimi that all the stars sang. I knew them that I had never been young, that I had never been happy, that never before had I drunk the wine of life so that it was warm in my veins, making me mad with the joy of it.

Then and there was born in me a fierce determination to win her. I did not know how I was going to do it. Without her my life would be wasted, my ambitions would go down in a crash. I would wander on, aimless, in an empty world!

I was sure that Mimi did not have the least idea of my state of mind. She treated me in a comradely fashion, as she had treated me in the wood. She gave me three dances before the evening was over, cutting out one of Andy Fuller's to do it, and I could see that he was seething.

I did not go back in Andy's car. Olga asked me to ride with her. She thought, I am sure, that she was being kind to me, and that I felt as alien as she among those merry-makers. She could not know I was at last recklessly one of them; that the Puritan in me had succumbed to the Pagan; that I meant to grasp happiness, at whatever sac-

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S KICK

"Would one little kick do any harm, Daddy?" asked Buster.

"One little kick or one big kick might do a lot of harm," said Mr. Longears.

"Would it be funny?" asked Jackie Bow Wow.

"I might be funny for the wasps, if any are still in their house you knocked down from the barn," said Uncle Wiggily. "But I think it wouldn't be so funny for you animal boys."

"Then can't we use this for a football?" asked Buster, who had burst the regular football by kicking it too hard.

"No," said Uncle Wiggily, "it wouldn't be safe. Though it is a cold time of the year up here where we live, and though most of the wasps in the old nest may be dead or so numb with cold they can't sting, still there may be a few inside who are lively enough to make trouble."

"And I suppose they would call it trouble if we kicked their nest around like a football," said Curly Twistytail, a little pig.

"Oh, yes," said Uncle Wiggily.

May Be Asleep

"Is there any honey in that old wasp nest that looks so much like a football" asked Neddie Stubtail, a boy bear, who was very fond of honey. "Is there, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I don't believe there is," said the rabbit gentleman, as he slowly twinkled his pink nose. "You had better

2-14

"Ha! Here is where I make a kick!"

leave the old wasp nest alone though, as yet, I don't see any flying out."

"Maybe they're all asleep," said Peetie Bow Wow.

"I should think the way their nest fell after we knocked it loose from the barn would wake them," said Buster.

"You might think so," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "But cold weather makes wasps sort of slow and sleepy. Better leave the old nest alone, boys."

"But what can we use for a football?" asked Jackie. "Buster busted ours. He kicked it too hard."

"It was an old ball, anyhow," said Buster.

"But we told you not to kick it hard!" barked Jackie.

"Oh, now don't, please, start that all over again," said Buster.

"Come on, boys, I'll buy you a new football," offered Uncle Wiggily. "I don't want you kicking a wasp nest around."

So Mr. Longears took Buster and the other animal boys to a store where he bought them a regular football.

"Now we can have some fun!" shouted Jackie.

"Touchdown! Touchdown!" yelled Buster.

Comes in Handy

As the animal boys ran off to play football, Uncle Wiggily hopped back to where the old wasp nest had been knocked down. A low, humming sound came from it.

"I wouldn't be surprised," said Mr. Longears, "but what some of those stingery wasps were waking up. Yes, they are," he said as one or two flew lazily out into the sunshine. The day was cold, but the sun was warm.

Just then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily saw coming toward him the Woozie Wolf, running hard and fast.

"Ha! Here is where I make a kick!" laughed the rabbit.

Quickly he kicked the wasp nest, that was like a football, at the Wolf. It struck him right on the nose. Out flew the wasps, very angry at being kicked around.

Uncle Wiggily was too far away for them to sting him. But they stung the Wolf so hard he howled and ran away, taking his tail with him. He didn't hurt the bunny gentleman.

So this teaches us we cannot eat peanuts without cracking the shells. And if the dill pickle will stop putting paprika on to make itself look like a Christmas tree, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's snow plow.

SASKATCHEWAN'S TAXATION POWERS HELD INADEQUATE

REGINA, Dec. 14 (CP) — The Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations moved into the third week of its six months of public hearings to-day with Attorney-General T. C. Davis of Saskatchewan scheduled to continue his claims of the inadequacy of existing provincial taxing powers.

The province had adopted practically all the forms of taxation existing in other provinces, with the exception of the wage tax applied in one or two, according to the brief being presented by Mr. Davis. The result was the taxation in Saskatchewan had reached "its extreme limit," but essentiall expenditures still left a large deficit.

Saskatchewan had even resorted to a two per cent sales tax assessed directly against retail purchases, from which it was hoped to collect $2,000,000 for education purposes this year.

Mr. Davis' brief shows that the per capita tax burden in Saskatchewan was higher than the Maritime provinces in 1933 and 1934 but lower than the others. However, when expressed as a percentage of net production in the province in those years, the burden of Saskatchewan was heavier than in any other province.

Some Comparisons

In 1934 the per capita tax burden in the provinces (with the percentage of net production in brackets) was as follows: Prince Edward Island, $9.12 ($5.45 per cent.); Nova Scotia, $20.37 (8.09); New Brunswick, $11.42 (5.60); Quebec, $32.95 (10.36); Ontario, $42.67 ($9.25); Manitoba, $35.11 (13.06); Saskatchewan, $23.68 (13.42); Alberta, $23.40 (7.17); British Columbia, $42.82 (9.58); Canada, $33.92 (9.64).

When the Federal imposts such as customs and excise and sales tax were added to the percentage of production the Saskatchewan taxpayer paid in provincial taxes, "it is evident that he contributes largely to the support of government," Mr. Davis' brief says.

The small amount of income tax and succession duties collected in the province merely served to emphasize that a comparatively heavy burden had to be carried by people of small means.

rifice of previous scruples. I wanted to drink life from a brimming cup.

I am afraid I was not very good company. My thoughts were with Mimi on that front seat with Andy Fuller, and I wondered what he was saying.

When at last we reached the camp, it was after 2 o'clock. I had expected, of course, that we would go at once to bed, but I did not know the nocturnal habits of Olga's guests.

"We can sleep in the morning," Lionel told me, "and they want the play, Jerry."

I found that "they" meant, specifically, Katherine Merrill and Stiles Sanderson. They represented, it seemed, the literary element in Lionel's list of acquaintances. Stiles had written some verse which had been published in magazines of the better class. Katharine had tried to write, and, having failed to do anything significant, she had won a reputation for brilliancy by her ruthless criticism of the work of others.

Night Coughs Hard On The System

The dry, hacking cough, cough, day and night, is very wearing on the system, and the constant coughing not only disturbs the rest, but it keeps the bronchial tubes in such an irritated and inflamed condition they get no chance to heal.

Sometimes it is the constant cough that won't be quieted, sometimes a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult.

Obstinate coughs and colds generally yield to the grateful, soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is indicated for this kind of a cough, as it is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant barks, herbs, roots and balsams obtainable.

MR. HARRY LANE, Lakeville, N.B., writes:—"I had such a terrible cough I could not sleep at night. I tried different medicines, but they never helped me; my cough still hung on. I then got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I was surprised to see how quickly my cough disappeared."

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14 (CP-Havas). — Among the refugees aboard the Panay, United States gunboat sent to the bottom by Japanese bombs near Nanking, was Eric Mayell, a Canadian employed by a Fox Movietone News.

They signalled the Panay by waving from the bank as the boat passed. A small boat was lowered to pick them up and take them aboard.

Not long afterward the ship was sent to the bottom. It was not yet known definitely whether Mayell was among the survivors.

CHRISTMAS HOPPING

"NEXT Christmas I do my shopping in July!" exclaimed one weary Peterborough tinsel-tier at 3:49 a.m. last Christmas morning. Perhaps you've felt like that, too, long before Merry Christmas arrives.

Yet why should frazzled nerves and weary feet be part of the holiday season? So many women bob up fresh and smiling on the Day . . . even after filling a gift-list as long as from here to the last relative.

One answer is this: A critical careful survey of advertisements in The Examiner . . . before you set foot in a store . . . will save time, save missteps and false starts, give you new ideas and present the best values for your consideration! Peterborough advertisers do their best to make gift giving easy . . . and pleasant. They spread their most attractive wares before you . . . tell you, in text and illustration, what they have to offer. They can help you . . . and all who share with you the season's joys . . . to have the happiest Christmas ever!
